► Political advertising hits record high this year — $4.9 billion

By Sally Rummel

Every time you see a political ad in the newspaper, on TV or hear one on the radio, you’re experiencing a complex dynamic of today’s political climate — campaign financing.

This year’s presidential campaign puts financing at the forefront of the news, as candidates at all levels see who can outspend or outlast their political opponents.

The 2012 election season will bring a record-breaking $4.9 billion in political advertising spending, according to analysts at Wells Fargo, Seal fine china cracks by placing the cracked piece in a pot, cover with 2 cups milk, and simmer on the stovetop over low heat for 45 minutes. The milk protein casein expands when heated, filling in the fissures. Then it bonds with the damaged portion of the china as it cools restoring it to its flawless finish.

Tyrone Twp. — Even if you haven't heard of him by name, you can be sure that you have heard his music many times during his half-century rock music career.

"Only Women Bleed" and "I Never Cry" are just a few of the Alice Cooper songs co-written by lead guitarist Dick Wagner, who is now recording songs for a future album at the Real II Reel Productions studio of Tyrone Township, owned by producer Marshall Block. Wagner has written and performed more than 1,000 songs in a career that has spanned more than a half-century.

Rock music lovers always recall their favorite scorching guitar riffs, and many Alice Cooper songs come to mind among rock historians who worship classic songs. Wagner performed on follow-up Alice Cooper albums "Welcome to My Nightmare" plus "Alice Goes To Hell," "Lace and Whiskey" and "From the

By now, the script should be familiar. A bombing or a mass shooting occurs and the media immediately look for a simple cause. Invariably, they turn to talk radio or some other conservative pit of 'intolerance.'

Within recent memory are tragedies like the 1995 Oklahoma City bombing, the 1999 massacre at Columbine, the 2007 Virginia Tech shootings and the 2011 shooting of Rep. Gabrielle Giffords and others in Tucson. Some politicians and liberal interest groups have sought to link these and other violent incidents to the far right.

Within hours of the massacre of 12 people and the wounding of dozens more in a movie theater in Aurora, Colo., Brian Ross, an 'investigative reporter' for ABC News rushed on the air to say that he had found a name similar to that of the alleged shooter and that the Jim Holmes he had discovered with a quick Internet search was (gasp!) listed as a member of the tea party movement.

ABC and Ross later issued a limp apology, but the bias was exposed.

Ross was not alone in his rush to misjudgment. The New York Times sought the opinion of film critic Roger Ebert, who predictably argued for more gun control laws even while diagnosing the alleged shooter as 'insane.' How would more laws force an 'insane' individual to act sanely and obey them, especially when that person is intent on committing murder? Ebert didn't say.

Politicians and commentators almost never speak of evil as something that resides deep inside the human heart. All humans possess the capacity for evil. While it rarely rises to the level of mass murder, the capacity for doing great harm to other human beings lurks within each of us.

Violent movies like 'The Dark Knight Rises' do not make all people emulate the Colorado shooter, anymore than a movie about love causes people to love one another.

Both President Obama and Mitt Romney set the right tone, asking for prayers for the victims and their families. Calling on that Higher Authority is the proper and perhaps only counterforce to this and other expressions of true evil.

OBAMA HASN'T DELIVERED

If we can all take a break from the breathless back-and-forth about Bain-gate for a moment, there was a more meaningful exchange that came out of President Obama's interview with Charlie Rose that aired recently on CBS.

The president used many of his oft-repeated lines, saying that 'this campaign is still about hope . . . it's still about change,' and that he 'underestimated the degree to which in this town politics trumps problem-solving.' But it got really interesting when the conversation turned to what the president considers the biggest mistake of his first term. It was, he said, 'thinking that this job was just about getting the policy right.'

So what else is needed?

'The nature of this office,' he said, 'is also to tell a story to the American people that gives them a sense of unity and purpose and optimism, especially during tough times.'

That's a spot-on description of one of the key elements missing from the last three-and-a-half years: storytelling. But while Obama has accurately diagnosed the ailment, he hasn't delivered on his own prescription.

But of course, neither has the Romney campaign. Indeed, its ineptitude on the subject was underlined when it responded to the Rose interview by saying, 'Being president is not about telling stories. Being president is about leading.'

So, Obama hasn't delivered, but Romney remains clueless about the fact that the office he's running for isn't CEO of the country. And telling stories, casting a narrative, is an essential element in communicating ideas and values, and an integral part of leading — especially leading from the Oval Office.

Unlike Romney, at least Obama sees the need for that narrative.

'Every presidential election is a renewal,' says biographer and historian David McCullough. 'Like spring, it brings up all the juices. The people are so tired of contrivance and fabrication and hokum. They really want to be stirred in their spirit. That's when we are at our best.'

This election certainly doesn't feel like spring. But there is still time — it is, after all, only midsummer.

Seven Lakes State Park campground has had a busy month, along with the rest of Michigan's parks. Michigan state parks are on track to draw 25 million people — over the average 21 million.

'Capacity crowds' at campgrounds

► Attendance up 17 percent over last year

By Tim Jagielo

tjagielo@tctimes.com; 810-433-6795

Michigan's great outdoors are "in" this summer as its state parks are drawing healthy attendance.

They can expect to see 25 million visitors — more than parks have seen since 1988, said Harold Herta of the Michigan DNR.

"Attendance is up, reservations for campsites are up," said DNR information officer Ed Golder. He said the DNR expects to hit one million "camp nights" this year. This is a way to measure camp attendance. One camp night means one person or group camped overnight at a Michigan state park.

A DNR news release said Michigan state parks should hit 1 million by August — the highest since 2005. The same news release said that camp nights are up 17 percent over last year.

"In 2010 we bottomed out, but we bounced back in 2011," said Harold Herta of the DNR Parks and Recreation division in a news release. "We're seeing capacity crowds that we haven't seen since the '80s. We're having a banner year."

Although motorists would prefer gas prices to be lower than they are, they haven't "skyrocketed," and Golder thinks this has also encouraged motorists to at least explore Michigan. He also said that warm weather drives attendees to water.

Above all, is the recreational passport that gives access to all state parks for $10 annually. "That's been a huge success for the state," said Golder. "That model has encouraged participation in state parks." The recreation pass, he said, makes parks cheaper and more accessible than they were in previous years.

Nearly 25 percent of Michigan motorists opted for the recreation pass in 2011, exceeding the goal set by the DNR.

Driving while license suspended and is a 'certificate of mailing' testimonial? (part two)

On July 11, 2009, the Michigan Secretary of State issued an 'Order of Action' revoking the driving privileges of one Terry Nunley for one year because he had two or more substance abuse convictions in seven years. On June 22, 2009, the Secretary of State generated a certificate of mailing indicating that this Order had been mailed to him on the same date. Although not signed, the certificate showed 'officer or employee F. Beuter' as the mailer and the handwritten date.

On Sept. 9, 2009, Mr. Nunley was stopped while he was driving and given a ticket for DWLS and was subsequently charged with DWLS Second Offense. As part of its trial proofs, the prosecution proposed to admit the certificate of mailing without the testimony of its author 'F. Beuter' or a representative of the Secretary of State.

The defendant objected and argued that under the Confrontation Clause of the United States Constitution the certificate was 'testimonial' and therefore an in person witness had to be called at trial to be subject to cross examination.

The lower courts all agreed with the defendant.

'Testimonial' in this context means a statement that would be available for use at a later trial.

Determining what is testimonial and nontestimonial is complicated. The lead case on this is the 2004 United States Supreme Court case of Crawford v Washington.

If the lower courts were upheld, conceivably an administrative employee from the Secretary of State would be required to testify at every suspended license trial in Michigan. This would be a marked change from past practice.

On July 12, 2012, Michigan's Supreme Court ruled that such a witness was not required under the Confrontation Clause as the certificate of mailing was not testimonial and remanded the case back to the District Court for further proceedings.

The effect of this decision is that documentary evidence of this kind may be admitted under the provisions of the Michigan Rules of Evidence without violating the Confrontation Clause.

Police&Fire report

EX BOYFRIEND KEEPS TRUCK

On Sunday, July 22, a 21-year-old Fenton woman reported to Fenton police that her ex-boyfriend had not returned her vehicle. She filed a stolen vehicle complaint. Police Chief Rick Aro said the woman allowed the 22-year-old Grand Blanc man to drive her truck to work for one day only. She said they broke up and he refused to return her green 1995 Chevy pickup truck. Police are attempting to make contact with the man and the vehicle was listed as stolen in Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN).

TEENS DAMAGE GAZEBO

At 2:40 a.m., on Sunday, July 22, Fenton police responded to the area of East and Ellen streets to investigate a malicious destruction of property complaint. The complainant said about an hour prior to calling 911 he heard loud banging outside. The man said he observed several teens kicking out the posts on a gazebo in the park. He yelled, prompting the suspects to run. Police noted four damaged posts, that were about 3-feet long. Police are asking witnesses to call the station at (810) 629-5311 with any information on those responsible.

POLICE TRY TO ID SHOPLIFTING SUSPECT

At 3:15 p.m. on Sunday, July 22, Fenton police responded to a department store in the 18000 block of Silver Parkway to investigate a retail fraud complaint. Loss prevention employees reported that a black female, carrying a large pink purse, exited the store without paying for merchandise concealed in the purse. She was seen entering a Mercury two-door car and leaving the area. The employee said they noticed the woman by one of the public restrooms and she appeared to be nervous. As the employee approached her, she fled the store. The license plate of the suspect vehicle was registered to a resident of Flint. Fenton police contacted Flint police for information on that individual with hopes of locating the car and suspect. Police are also reviewing the store's surveillance video.

TRAILERS BROKEN INTO AT LINDEN STORAGE FACILITY

Linden Police Chief Scott Sutter said police responded to Simply Storage on South Linden Road in Linden on July 18 to investigate several complaints of larcenies from trailers. Responding officers found that the suspect(s) cut through the fence to gain access to the facility. Several trailers were broken into and items such as power tools and electronics were stolen. Police and the victims are compiling a list of stolen items. The surveillance video showed two to three individuals inside the fenced in area at 12:30 a.m. Linden police continue to investigate.

FENTON TOWNSHIP MAN ARRESTED FOR OWI

Linden police arrested a 24-year-old Fenton Township man for operating a vehicle while intoxicated at 12:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 21. Police Chief Scott Sutter said police were alerted to a possible drunk driver. The responding officer located the suspect's vehicle and observed the 2004 Chevy pickup truck weaving in and out of the lane. The driver drove about two-thirds of a mile before pulling over for the officer who had its emergency lights activated. The man was lodged overnight at the county jail and his truck was impounded.

soon become president of the Michigan Municipal League (MML). At any time, he takes phone calls and e-mails related to the city, or talks one on one with people at the grocery store, pumping gas, or mowing the lawn. "It's all part of the job, it's a 24-7 gig, but it's public service so it's all good," he said. He also works his full-time job at the University of Michigan-Flint.

His pay, along with councilors, is dictated by the city charter. Councilors legislate for the city and make $150 per year.

On the other hand, the base pay for members of the U.S. Congress is $174,000, according to about.com. If a member of congress is 65 or older, they must serve at least five years to receive a pension, or 20 years if they've reached the age of 50. If under 50, they must have served for 25 years.

On top of the salary, there is an office budget that pays for staff, rent, and mailings, said Press Secretary David Holtz.

Although Gov. Rick Snyder gave back all but $1 of his $159,000 salary in 2011, it is reported that in 2012 he will be accepting his wages in full. He also receives $54,000 for an office budget.

State congress members are paid $70,000 per year, with around $12,000 for office expenses. Sen. John Gleason (D-Flushing), feels that the pay is too low for the work that is done. "I do an awful lot of work, my wife would tell you, 70 hours per week, on government," said Gleason. He said the pay is also too low to attract qualified candidates. "I've seen a terrible diminishing of talents," said Gleason, whose term ends in January, and will not seek reelection. "These people don't read the laws they are voting on anymore."

The compensation for members of state congress is calculated by the State Office of Compensation (SOC). The SOC will then make a recommendation that congress votes on. Gleason understands

CONGRESS PAY FACTS

- During the Constitutional Convention, Benjamin Franklin considered proposing that elected government officials not be paid for their service. Other Founding Fathers, however, decided otherwise.

- From 1789 to 1855, members of Congress received only a per diem (daily payment) of $6 while in session, except for a period from December 1815 to March 1817, when they received $1,500 a year. Members began receiving an annual salary in 1855, when they were paid $3,000 per year.

- Members are free to turn down pay increases and some choose to do so.

why people are generally frustrated with congress but feels that compensation brings experience, and therefore better public service.

State Rep. Joseph Graves (R-Argentine Township) makes the same compensation as Gleason, but he does feel that the pay is fair. "It's an honor and a privilege to serve," he said. Graves is new to the game, after being elected this spring, but he added that pay for elected officials can't be cut too far, as they also need to pay bills. Graves said that as a legislator, he's busy in town hall meetings, and is active when not in session. He also must always be present in Lansing to vote.

Graves served as Genesee County commissioner before he ran for Paul Scott's open position as state representative. He said as commissioner he made $30,000 a year in the part-time role. He said he worked anywhere between 55 to 30 hours a week in that capacity. "I was very active," he said.

Local elected officials do not make the same salaries as their state, or nationwide counterparts.

Holly Village Council members make a stipend of about $900 per year. An option to raise their pay was shot down in a recent ballot question. The board of trustees for local townships is paid, in cases like Holly and Rose, a per diem for meetings. Though it is intended as a part-time job, trustees will often serve

Summary

► Constituents elect their public officials to represent them, and also pay whom they've elected through their taxes. The pay varies widely, with U.S. congress members making more than double what state members make.

"I put in way more than what we're paid, and that's part of the job."

direct control over what songs are played, as you listen to more music, Pandora will gain a better understanding of your musical preferences, and continue to play songs that it thinks you will like.

Different stations can be created based on your likes, so that you can listen to different types of music based upon your mood, all of which that are specifically tailored to you.

Spotify

If you like to have a bigger hand in selecting what you are listening to, Spotify allows you to make up playlists out of their extensive database of music.

Using Spotify will require a Facebook account. Once you are registered and have downloaded the Spotify app, you can share the music you are listening to with your friends, and check out what they are listening to if you are looking for recommendations. Those who are feeling self-conscious about their musical tastes do not need to fret — they have the option what they are listening to from friends.

The downside is that while the music is free, you will have to sit through periodical advertisements. Additionally, while using Spotify on your computer is free, accessing your playlists on your smartphone is not.

Freegal

If you are looking to find a more local source of free music, the Genesee District Library offers yet another service to look into. All that is required is a library card and a PIN to log on to the Freegal service from the library website, www.thegdl.org.

Trenton Smiley of the GDL said that the music from Freegal covers a variety of genres, from pop to country to rhythm and blues and more.

"Pretty much all of the music comes from the Sony music library, which is a huge library that contains a lot of new music and a lot of your classic music as well."

When using Freegal, you are limited to downloading three songs a week. Unlike the other services though, once you download the files you are able to keep them forever.

Tunein

While the Internet may offer many different types of customizable digital 'radio' stations, sometimes you want to listen to the original.

The website Tunein provides free access to thousands of radio stations across the world. Simply select your location and then the station you want to listen to, and your personal computer will be transformed into your personal radio.

If you do not have a favorite radio station, or are looking to find new radio programs of interest, you can also search stations by musical genre they play or subjects that they discuss, and find the right fit for you.

iTunes

Apple's online music store was one of the first steps forward in creating an Internet that legally co-existed with the world of music. Though music from iTunes is not free and needs to be purchased, with songs cheaper than a dollar, it is a good place to look for that song that's stuck in your head if you cannot seem to find it anywhere else.

departments and how well they are equipped, trained, and staffed to deal with fires in particular locations. The rating scale goes from one to 10, with one being the best and 10 being the worst.

The majority of Tyrone Township was previously rated as a nine. The recent review process, which typically takes about a year, improved the majority of the township's rating to a six.

"With this current area, we managed to drop the majority of our service area from a nine to a six," Fire Chief Robert Cairnduff said. "In some areas, the department was able to get the rating as low as a four, while one small section remains a rating of a 10, due to its distance from the fire department."

Cairnduff said that those who live in the areas that have received a better rating may want to shop around for insurance, as different insurance companies put varying amounts of emphasis on the ISO rating.

Bobby Maksymowski of Farm Bureau Insurance in Fenton said that going from a 9 to a six is a very significant change. "It is going to make everyone's rates go down," Maksymowski said. "In some cases it could go down in half."

The rating affects the homeowner's premium and can change how much a person will pay for insurance.

"We are trying to get this information out to the people, because it is going to make such a big difference in their homeowner's insurance," Cairnduff said.

The last full review for the fire department took place back in 2005. "That was a little more in depth and they had to review every single aspect of our fire department, including things such as our dispatch operation and our training, and we got a rating of a four for the city of Fenton."

"We are trying to get this information out to the people, because it is going to make such a big difference in their homeowner's insurance."

Robert Cairnduff
Fenton fire chief

The amount of fire hydrants throughout the city helped the department to achieve the rating of a four, while more rural areas do not have the same luxury.

Cairnduff credited Deputy Chief Edward Hadfield as the one who oversaw the review project, as well as the department-wide review that took place in 2005.

"This doesn't improve our overall methods, as it is what we were already doing. We just had an official review to prove that we could handle the situations out in Tyrone to meet ISO's requirements," Cairnduff said.

IT SEEMS LIKE the more this president gets involved in the running of this country, the worse things get.

I SIGNED UP for new cable, and I wanted local stations. They told me I could only have Detroit ones, but I wanted Flint since I live closer to there. Now the government is trying to tell me what TV I can watch? This is too much.

PEOPLE HAVE BEEN thinking that auto insurance is similar to the health care tax. You don't have to have a car, so therefore not car insurance. However, the health care tax is a tax on you just because you exist.

Wagner has two upcoming book signings, Wednesday, July 25 at UDetroit Harmonie Park Studios in Detroit at 5 p.m. and Thursday, July 26 at Motor City Guitar in Waterford at 6 p.m. "It's amazing to be going on 70 and still getting this recognition," said Wagner.

MONEY

and nearly half of that money will be spent on broadcast television. For presidential campaigns, TV ad buys are the largest expenditure.

This record year of political advertising spending is due in part to recent changes in campaign financing, which removed restrictions on campaign donations from third party entities such as corporations and unions. This decision resulted in the formation of Super Political Action Committees or "Super PACs," which focus on collecting large pools of cash and pouring that money into political ad campaigns. Borrell Associates, an advertising consultant firm, estimates that political action committees will contribute 48 percent of the record-breaking political spending this year.

As the Tuesday, Aug. 7 Primary Election approaches, candidates at the local, state and national level put the heat on their own campaigns, raising and spending money to finance their efforts. Each of the dollars raised and spent is required by law to be reported to a government agency.

National candidates, from presidents to congressional hopefuls, are required to file campaign finance reports with the Federal Election Commission. State level candidates file their reports to the Secretary of State's office, while local, city and township candidates send their reports to the Genesee County Clerk's Office, Election Division. Candidates who spend less than $1,000 on their campaign may file a Reporting Waiver.

Huge political spending starts at the top. Total campaign monies raised by incumbent President Barack Obama through July 23 was $550.2 million, of which $377.3 million has been spent, according to reports by Campaign Finance Explorer. Republican nominee Mitt Romney has raised more than $156.6 million and spent more than $134.1 million. These figures include dollars raised and spent by the candidate, political action committees and interest groups.

For a more local perspective, the tri-county area is part of the 5th and the 8th Michigan Congressional Districts. In the 5th Congressional District (mostly Genesee County), voting is heavily Democratic and retiring Congressman Dale Kildee (D-Flint) is not seeking re-election. His nephew, Dan Kildee, is running to replace him. Dan Kildee has raised $446,995 in funding through June 30, according to financial disclosure figures by the Federal Election Commission filed July 16. That includes $282,424 (or 63 percent) from individual donors, the report says.

Kildee's two Republican challengers, Jim Slezak and Tom Wassa, have together raised less than $29,000 to challenge Kildee, nearly all from individuals. Some of Wassa's records were not filed by July 16, officials said.

Meanwhile, in the mostly Republican 8th Congressional District (much of Livingston and Oakland Counties), incumbent U.S. Rep. Mike Rogers (R-Brighton) has a substantial fundraising lead over his Democratic challenger Lance Enderle, as of June 30. Rogers has received $1.429 million in donations, including $536,952 (or 38 percent) from individual contributors. Meanwhile, Enderle has received $8,175 through June 30, including $2,025 (or 25 percent) from individuals.

Candidates for the 51st state congressional seat vacated after State Rep. Paul Scott's recall last year are getting out there with their own political messages. Republican Joe Graves, of Argentine Township, who was elected to replace Scott in February, is spending most of his time campaigning door-to-door.

With this August Primary, candidates were to close their financial books out on Sunday, July 22 and submit their final reports to the state on Friday, July 27, after which they become open to the public.

County political parties also help their candidates with campaign funding. "We ourselves don't do advertising," said Genesee County Republican Party Chairman Prudy Adam. "We do provide candidates with funds after the primary. We'll determine how much money there is after the primary, then will divvy it out to Republican candidates. Those who have the greatest likelihood to win will likely be given the most financial support."

State Sen. John Gleason (D-Flushing),

"I've raised over $20,000 for the primary and plan to raise at least that for the election. I don't want to know who has given me what. I've made it a priority to run for the job, not against anyone. The way a person campaigns is the way he or she will govern."

SIGNS ARE EVERYWHERE

You don't have to look very far to see signs promoting local political candidates. There are specific sign provisions that guide the placement of these signs, according to Tom Broecker, operations manager/deputy clerk of Fenton Township.

- Signs are permitted with the permission of the property owner.
- Signs must not be placed in the right-of-way.
- Maximum sign size is 4-feet by 8-feet.
- Signs must be removed within five business days of the election.

estimates he has knocked on more than 7,000 doors so far in his campaign for Genesee County Clerk. John Gleason's Republican opponent is Michael Stikovich of Davison.

"I go door-to-door throughout the county almost every day," he said. "I've raised over $20,000 for the primary and plan to raise at least that for the election. I don't want to know who has given me what. I've made it a priority to run for the job, not against anyone. The way a person campaigns is the way he or she will govern."

THE HOTLINER WHO thinks the middle class has no wealth needs to pay more attention. The financially powerful use an endless stream of maneuvers as they attempt to get their hands on the wealth, which the poor and middle class have created through hard work.

YOU REALLY THINK that the breadwinner in a family, that pays Social Security their entire life, passes away that their spouse has no rights to their Social Security? That's pretty selfish if you ask me.

MY DAD WORKED from the time he was 16 to the time he died at 60. My mom worked from 18 until she died at 62. Neither of them ever collected Social Security. What happens to that money?

THE BIGGEST PROBLEM Obama has is that he followed three presidents, and he's stuck cleaning up their mess.

SUPPLY-SIDE ECONOMICS is the real problem. People aren't working and can't buy anything, so nobody gets hired. Demand drives economy, not supply.

Responding officers found that Teddyjo Fliam, the driver had been ejected from her 1997 Toyota 4Runner. Her 1-year-old daughter, who was not properly restrained in a car seat, was also ejected. Her 4-year-old son remained in the overturned vehicle, due in part to his use of a seatbelt.

Fliam and her two children were transported to the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor by Livingston County EMS. Fliam and her two children were listed in serious condition, but were expected to recover from their injuries.

The preliminary investigation has revealed that Fliam was traveling westbound on Center Road, when a witness saw her run the stop sign at Old U.S. 23. As her vehicle continued westbound, it crossed the centerline, nearly striking an oncoming vehicle. She overcorrected to the right and ran off the roadway, where she lost control.

The vehicle traveled back across the entire roadway, struck and embankment on the south side of the road causing it to overturn. A preliminary breath test at the scene revealed Fliam's blood alcohol content to be .185, which is slightly more than two times the limit for drinking and driving in Michigan.

Deputies with the sheriff's department Traffic Safety Bureau will be forwarding a completed report to the Livingston County Prosecutor's Office for operating while intoxicated (child endangerment) along with child abuse and neglect.

Sheriff's deputies were assisted at the scene by Livingston County EMS and the Fenton Township Fire Department.

Summary

►A 22-year-old Fenton woman faces charges following a rollover crash that sent her and her two young children to the hospital on Friday. The Livingston County Sheriff's Department said the woman's blood alcohol content was .185 percent, more than twice the legal limit when she lost control of her SUV.

I WAS AT 'Pigs Point' on Lake Fenton on July 4th. We witnessed a pontoon full of young people throw all the garbage in and around their boat into the lake. A lady started picking it up and told the girl outside the boat that she should be ashamed of herself. I agree, she/they ought to be ashamed of themselves. Pure ignorance!

YEP, I AM voting for Romney. After seeing what Obama has done to this country in four short years, Bush déjà vu would be a Godsend.

JUST BECAUSE IT'S a hot summer, does not confirm 'global-warming.' How do you 'global-warming' fascists explain that we had relatively cool summers lately? The records that were broken recently were mostly 100 years old! What does that tell you? Weather is a cycle that man has little influence on.

THE NEW LIBRARIAN at the Fenton library is like a breath of fresh air. She is so upbeat and friendly and greets the customers when they walk in. It really encourages such a nice atmosphere.

I'D LIKE TO know what good it does to be on the 'do not call' list when every single politician and their recorded messages can call you anyway. I am sick of it!

TO THE $17,000 a year man, you might want to care about the $250,000 man, because he might be the one providing the $17,000.

THE ADVANTAGE PRESIDENT Reagan had over Obama was that he did not follow Bush? Are you kidding me? He followed Jimmy Carter. Up until that time, he was the worst president we had ever had. Of course, Obama has knocked him out of that slot. Go back and read history! It was so bad we had a misery index.

MY OPINION OF fair share is if you make $1 million a year and I made $20,000, we both pay 27 percent in taxes, not 3 percent by the millionaire.

REPUBLICANS CLAIM THAT reducing taxes for the richest will create jobs and reduce the deficit. Reagan tried that and tripled the debt. Bush's tax giveaways to the wealthy doubled the debt and lost an average of 80,000 jobs per month. Why don't we just decrease the richest's tax to zero? That'll create more jobs than we know what to do with, right?

REGARDING MEDICINE, I believe one of the first premises of the Hippocratic Oath is to do no harm. Well, cholesterol medication harms the body in that it causes muscle cramps. Your doctor's hands are tied. The government says 'you must get his cholesterol down.' How do you like socialized medicine now?

AS OUR FUNDRAISER-IN-CHIEF, Obama has attended over 100 fundraisers in 100 days. He has spent more time raising money for his campaign than acting as president. He has not met with the jobs council once this year. He is only concerned with creating one job — his own.

I SEE ON the news that Obama is trying to make it so you do not have to show ID to vote. I just signed up for Charter Cable, and they made me give them my Social Security number. What's up with that?

MITT ROMNEY IS always making some political speech. He has a promising career.

DOES ANYONE KNOW what religion Obama is? I never hear Obama or any of his family going to church. Please let me know, thank you.

WANT TO KNOW how to tell a Romney supporter from an Obama supporter? Romney supporters sign the front of their checks; Obama supporters sign the back of their checks.

IF A CONSERVATIVE does not like meat, they don't eat meat. If a liberal does not like meat, they don't want anyone eating meat. If a conservative does not like guns, they just don't own one. If a liberal does not like guns, they don't want anyone to own guns.

PAY ATTENTION TO what is going on in church. Quit looking at all the girls. Concentrate on the altar.

I JUST LOVED the kind message to senior citizens on July 18. I worked for 38 years. I paid for health insurance. They took it out of my humble paycheck. After 25 years, the company paid for it — perks. I worked for my Medicare and my Social Security. That was another deduction.

TEACHERS DESERVE EVERYTHING they get. They are not your 'babysitters.' You are the parent. Check the definition for the meaning of 'parent.' It might surprise you.

YOU MIGHT BE a redneck...when you throw out a mattress days before garbage pickup with a sheet still on it. Really?

SPORTS TRIVIA

Q He scored 110 touchdowns in his NFL career but didn't get one in his only Super Bowl appearance. Name him.

A If he was still alive, Walter Payton would've turned 58 today. The Chicago Bears' running back ran for 16,726 yards during his NFL career.

Tigers make trades

Apparently Detroit Tigers general manager Dave Dombrowski was getting a bit tired watching his second basemen bat a combined .201 with a slugging percentage (.276) lower than their anemic slugging percentage (.286). So he tried to do something about it Monday. And in the process, he tried to bolster the Tigers' starting pitching. The question is, was the deal worth it?

The Tigers acquired former Tiger and second baseman Omar Infante and right-handed pitcher Anibal Sanchez from the Miami Marlins in return for highly touted prospects Jacob Turner and Rob Brantly, as well as one other prospect.

The move should bolster the Tigers' issues at second base. Infante is batting .287 with limited ability to draw a walk himself. However, he does provide a bat that has some pop (eight home runs). Sanchez could end up being no more than a rent-a-pitcher if he doesn't re-sign with the organization. He owns a 3.94 earned run average and is averaging about 6 1/3 innings a start, striking out 110 batters in 121 innings.

While it can be argued anything is an upgrade for the Tigers' second-base situation, Sanchez enhancing the rotation is more of a mystery. This was certainly a trade to win today, not tomorrow. Now, all anyone can do is see if it works.

The tri-county's triple threat

► Fenton's Cowger becomes our Softball Player of the Year for the third straight season

By David Troppens
dtroppens@tctimes.com

As long as Sammi Cowger can remember, softball has been in her blood.

Actually, it may be more accurately described as in her family blood.

Her older sisters played softball, and both her parents played as well when they were younger. So, softball has come to Cowger pretty honestly.

And that family line has been pretty good to the Fenton varsity softball program as well, as Cowger has been pretty much the undisputed leader of the Fenton Tigers for her entire prep softball career. That career is ending with not her first, not second, but third straight Tri-County Softball Player of the Year award for her efforts during the 2011-12 season.

"My older sisters started playing when I was younger, so I was always on the field, practicing together," Cowger said. "That started the whole thing. It was something to do together."

Older sisters Kate and Tori were outstanding softball players while at Fenton, both past All Tri-County Softball performers. Finally, younger sister, Ellie, remains with the program, and was Sammi's biggest competition for this year's title as Softball Player of the Year. So there's no doubt in Sammi's mind that having a family that loves the game has helped her.

Rusaws enjoying playing volleyball together

► Pair win early summer two-on-two tourney

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

John Rusaw told his son, Sean Rusaw, he'd play in a two-man volleyball tournament with him under one condition.

"I told him as soon as he could serve it over the net consistently, I would play in a tournament with him," Rusaw said.

That happened when Sean turned 10. And, with that first tournament the father-son pair experienced their first success as a team together, taking first in that event.

About a decade has gone by since that initial tourney, and the father-son pair continue to play strong together. Earlier this summer, the pair played in the Mid-West Professional Volleyball Association Amateur Beach Volleyball Tournament in South Haven and took first place in the 18-team Men's 'A' division event.

The two-man sand volleyball team lost its first match in pool play, but then won each of their next three matches, earning a spot in the playoffs.

In the elimination pool, the Rusaws won in a quarterfinal match 25-20, and then beat the first-place seed from another pool in the semis 25-21.

Finally, they faced Bergman-Bergman, the team they lost to in pool play. Early on the teams traded points, keeping the match close. However, the Fenton squad eventually fell behind 22-18. Later in the match, the Rusaws got the service back and Sean earned an ace, cutting the gap to 23-22. The pair got the next two points as well and actually led 24-23, earning tournament championship point.

They weren't able to win it on that point, but later a tight set forced a joust in which

John had to play the ball high off the defender's blocking hands. It tipped off the block and went straight up so that John could attack it and get the kill, earning the team the title with a 27-25 victory.

"It was our first tournament this year and we lost that first game 25-17. That was pretty bad for us, but then we went on to win the rest of them," Sean, 19, said. "I wanted to play that team again. It didn't have to be in the finals, but I wanted to get a chance to beat them."

"(On match point) dad reached back and barely got it over and in. It was a good match."

John, 48, is typically older than most of their competition in two-man volleyball, while Sean is typically younger. And at about six-feet each, they aren't the tallest team. Yet, they've made it work, and love playing together.

"I can't even tell you how great it feels," John said about playing with his son. "It's just so thrilling he wants to be with me. Going through high school I wanted to play softball with my dad. I'd go to games and do the books and as soon as I graduated, I played with him and loved it so much. When I married and we had kids, I hoped I could play something with them. Having this opportunity to play volleyball with him is amazing."

Sean enjoys it as well.

"I think it's the greatest," Sean said. "We always have good communication. We know each other well and it makes it easier to play with two. When you are not playing with each other, you don't talk as well and miss out on things. And this way we don't have to go find a partner. We can always play together."

When the pair started nine years ago, they played in a 'B' tournament. In recent years the team plays in 'A' competition, which is a higher level of two-man volleyball. The 'AA' level is the top level for those that won't likely play professional volleyball. The pair plan to bounce between the two A levels whenever they get a chance to play from here on out. Usually they have a decent amount of success. John says they usually get to the playoffs in 'A' competition, so any victory is a thrill.

Playing together eventually will get a little tougher. Sean is in a naval ROTC program and will be away from the tri-county area frequently throughout the next couple of years. Yet, the pair plan to find time for awhile.

"I'll play with him as long as he can play," Sean said. "He had a couple of knee surgeries a couple of years ago. He has to wear a knee brace. We'll play as long as we can play. I'm leaving for the Marine Corps in three years. Up until then, I'll be playing with him for sure."

David's Dabblings

A few thoughts about the area's sports scene and some others not dealing with sports at all.

PSU FANS SHOULD GIVE TEAM 'THE DEATH PENALTY'

For most of last weekend we've known the NCAA's sanctions for the Jerry Sandusky child sexual abuse scandal involving the cover-up by the Penn State football program and its now-deceased leader, Joe Paterno, were coming on Monday.

We were told that the sanctions would be unprecedented in their severity. Now that we know what those sanctions are — a reduction of football scholarships for the next four seasons, the vacating of all Penn State football victories from 1998 to 2011, a fine of $60 million with the money going to an endowment to benefit children, a four-year ban on postseason play and the right for any player to leave Penn State without restriction — many have spent the last day deciding if they are severe enough, too severe or just right.

I don't think the sanctions went far enough. This was a program that put the football program ahead of sexually abused children within their own showers on campus by a man that was once an assistant coach. And once the evidence came out to those with the ability to take swift action, nothing was done. Meanwhile, others were abused because of that inactivity. To me, if there was ever a team that deserved the death penalty, it is Penn State.

I will say this. I think NCAA president Mark Emmert got half of the sanctions right. However, if I was him, I would've ended football for one year at Penn State, making that institution reflect on its wrong-doings and not worry about football games for a season. And then, I would've enacted Emmert's other sanctions after that year.

But that doesn't mean the death penalty can't occur in one phase — with the Penn State football fans. I graduated from Central Michigan University and am a huge football fan for the school. I don't miss games I don't have to and have a large collection of games I've recorded over the years on DVDs and VCR tapes. However, if the Chippewas' football program was found guilty of such a

ATTENTION ROSE TOWNSHIP AND HOLLY TOWNSHIP REGISTERED VOTERS PRIMARY ELECTION AUGUST 7, 2012

There have been several questions regarding the voting process of the Primary Election on August 7, 2012. For clarification purposes, Michigan Election Law Act 116 of 1954 Chapter 168.570 states you cannot split your ticket. If you vote for candidates on more than 1 party ticket, your ballot will be rejected. In the August 7, 2012 Primary Election, you must vote either Republican or Democrat, not both. Additionally, the ballot is a two-sided ballot so you must vote both sides of the ballot and it must be only 1 party.

Absentee Voters – If you believe you have made an error on your absentee ballot and need to request a new ballot, please contact Debbie Miller, Rose Township Clerk or Karin Winchester, Holly Township Clerk.

"Without a doubt it has helped," Cowger said. "If I didn't watch my older sisters I wouldn't have known what to do to advance. I grew up watching them. They taught me some stuff and helped jump-start everything. They both played college softball, so they really paved the way."

But while Sammi can give her family some kudos for her play, Fenton varsity softball coach Rick Bescoe knows another huge reason for her success.

"There's no question about it. She's the player she is because she has a love for softball and because she has a tremendous work ethic," Bescoe said. "You put the combination together and she's unbeatable. No one outworks her. And she has such a passion for the game that it's one of her priorities."

"There are kids with the work ethic. They'll go through the routine, do the hitting and know what to do, but it's not their fire. For Sammi, softball is her passion, so she puts in the work with her passion."

That combination worked mighty well during the softball season. At the plate, she was one of the Metro League's most feared hitter, batting .472, with a slugging percentage of .769 and an on-base percentage of .541. She led the Tigers with nine triples, 83 total bases, 18 walks and 39 RBI. Of her 51 hits, 21 went for extra bases and one was a home run. Eleven were doubles.

However, it's probably on the pitcher's mound where Cowger showed her greatest progress as a senior. She pitched in 30 games, completing 22 of the contests she started. She recorded a 19-11 record with a 1.65 earned run average, earning eight shut-outs. Opponents batted .139 against her, and she allowed just 78 hits in 164 2/3 innings of work. She struck out 286 batters in those innings, walking 88. Just a year ago, opponents batted .183 against Cowger, striking out just 187 times in 152 innings.

"I definitely worked all winter and through the summer with my pitching," Cowger said. "That's what the team needed me to do. You have nine hitters, but you can only have one pitcher at a time and you better be able to perform. I was thankful I was able to get the gym time and work out as much as I could."

"She worked hard at it three days a week during the winter," Bescoe said. "It paid off. Overall she was a pretty tough pitcher."

Her all-around performance earned her All-State First-Team honors, as well as some mention as a possible Ms. Softball.

"She had an outstanding season," Bescoe said. "As a coach I wish I had three or four kids like that every year on the team. If I did, I'd have my roster all set."

Cowger is pretty strong with the glove as well. When she's not pitching, she usually plays first base, and does so well. Between the two positions, Cowger made just three errors all season long, fielding at a .973 percentage. Cowger played more innings in the field (245) than anyone else on the team, yet she tied for the fewest errors among the starting position players as well.

And now, Cowger is poised to continue another family tradition — preparing to play at the next level.

Both of her older sisters were involved with the University of Minnesota softball program. Meanwhile, Sammi is headed to Ball State University where she will continue her softball playing days. She will end her pitching days in pursuit to play in the field.

Ball State is a Division 1 school out of the Mid-American Conference. The squad finished 13-8 in conference action and posted a 34-24 record overall. Bescoe has no doubt that Cowger will thrive at the next level.

"She'll do great," Bescoe said. "During her freshman year she might struggle a bit, but by her sophomore year she should be able to pick up right where she left off in high school."

"She's going to get a chance to play there, so it's a great opportunity for her there."

TRI-COUNTY TIMES | DAVID TROPPENS

Sammi Cowger, a three-time Tri-County Softball Player of the Year winner, is headed to Ball State University to play at the Division 1 level in the fall. She led Fenton with her .472 batting average, .769 slugging percentage, .541 on-base percentage and 39 runs batted in during the 2012 season.

DEATH PENALTY

cover-up to protect its program, I'd want to shut that thing down. At the very least, it should be shut down until one is reasonably secure that the issues that made the past possible couldn't happen again.

And even if the death penalty wasn't handed out, how could you watch a game? Wouldn't your head be filled with questions and disturbing thoughts about what happened. And wouldn't there be a realization that the program is only trying to "clean itself up" now because it was caught? Is that really worth supporting? Couldn't a fan find a candidate more worthy of their support? Certainly a fan could.

So while the NCAA, technically, didn't give Penn State the death penalty, I wonder if its fans will.

Really, such actions would be about the only sign of moral behavior in this pretty pathetic scandal. And, hopefully, some Penn State fans, however small or large the number, have the moral fiber to do what's right — give their football program their own personal death penalty.
