Higher fees, higher gas taxes on horizon

► Governor facing opposition to new Michigan road improvement legislation

By William Axford

axford@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Michigan drivers may have to pay more at the pump and the Secretary of State if they want better roads.

Gov. Rick Snyder is currently pushing legislation to net $1.2 billion a year for road improvements. Increasing the gasoline and diesel tax to 33 cents a gallon and increasing vehicle registration fees are two methods Snyder is proposing in order to repair the state’s roads. According to the Associated Press, the new taxes will increase vehicle registration fees by 60 percent.

Snyder estimates the new taxes will cost families across the state about $120 more a year. If left unfixed, the governor said taxpayers

The Fenton Police Department is urging residents and businesses to be on the lookout for counterfeit $5 bills.

According to Police Chief Rick Aro, the police department received word from the Secret Service in Saginaw that it was seeing a significant number of counterfeit $5 bills in the Fenton and Linden areas.

All of the fake bills so far have had the serial number HF0655252C printed on them.

Counterfeit detecting pens should identify the bills. These

In addition to prison time, U.S. District Judge Julian Abele Cook also ordered Duke to pay nearly $95 million in restitution and a $1 million fine. Duke pleaded guilty last July in connection with the extensive multi-million dollar mortgage fraud conspiracy, in United States District Court in Detroit.

Schools strive to make fitness fun

► Districts applying standards to variety of activities that increases difficulty over time

By Tim Jagiello

tjagiello@tctimes.com; 810-433-6795

Fenton — The tiny gym at State Road Elementary School is packed with action. Each of the second-grade students partook in seven activities on three-minute rotations for 40 minutes.

Sparking, rope climbing, cup stacking, roller racer, double dutch, jump rope and juggling kept the students busy during the entire session. Physical education (PE) teacher Kim McKinley keeps the students moving.

Later at Lake Fenton Middle School (LFMS), 29 students play an augmented version of kickball right up to the buzzer.

The Michigan Department of Education sets the standards for Michigan schools, which are then adopted by each board of education into policy. Individual districts set the curriculum to meet the standards.

The current Michigan standard was set in 2007, and is called "Physical Education Content Standards and Benchmarks." It was adapted from the 2004 "Moving to the Future, National Standards for Physical Education" publication by the National Association for Sport and “My main purpose is to get them to enjoy exercising, and let them see the fun in it.”

Kim McKinley
State Road Elementary physical education teacher

Physical Education (NAPSE).

The standards are divided into different grade levels, each with their own requirements that build on each other.

By second grade, students should be able to "achieve mature forms in the basic locomotive skills." They should also be able to transition smoothly between locomotive skills, and be positively working toward complex skills, like dribbling a ball, or an underhand throw.

But students don't care about standards, benchmarks or movement patterns. State Road Elementary student Caleb Markley, 8, likes "having fun," in class. He especially likes the "sparking" game, where students hop over a spinning and weighted ball on a cord.

Gym was more interesting than an interview with a newspaper, so he then took off to his next activity.

There are several sessions at State Road Elementary, taking place during their regular teacher's preparation period. The skills are laid out into tables with different skill levels, which McKinley applies through different activities.

"Next week I'll be doing some team building," she said. "It's a lot of half cooperative, half competition."

In her activities, cardio, fine motor skills, cooperative aspects and sometimes a knowledge component is applied.

Man jailed after loud argument

A 36-year-old Fenton man ended up spending last Friday night in the Genesee County Jail after getting into a loud argument with a 34-year-old woman. Lt. Jason Slater said Fenton police responded to an apartment on Foley Glen at 8:30 p.m. on Friday, April 5. The man and woman were arguing loudly in the parking lot. Upon further investigation, police learned that the man had an outstanding warrant, for which he was taken into custody.

Owosso men arrested for shoplifting

At 3:30 p.m. on April 7, Fenton police responded to a department store in the 3200 block of Owen Road to investigate shoplifting in progress. Police learned from store employees that two male were observed concealing numerous items under their clothing while they stood in the electronics department. After exiting the store without paying, police were called. As police approached the men in the parking lot, they could see that they were concealing items under their clothes. Police recovered two BluRay DVDs and a nine-disc Star Wars set for $195 from the 28-year-old Owosso man and a DVD and five Nintendo DS games for $118 from a 19-year-old Owosso man. Both suspects have a May 6 court date for retail fraud.

'Old stone church' is foundation of St. John's Parish

► Fenton community has embraced the history, beauty of this 85-year-old building

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Fenton — Diego Velasquez, D.D.S., remembers stopping at St. John the Evangelist Catholic Church back in 2003, when he was moving to the area from Texas with his young family. The door to the main sanctuary was locked, so he instinctively went next door to the small stone building, which welcomed him in.

"I walked in and was filled with so much peace," recalled Velasquez, a periodontist (dentist who specializes in the treatment of gum disease) practicing in Fenton. "It confirmed to me that Fenton was the place I wanted to bring my family to live."

This warm, quaint stone building, which used to be St. John's main sanctuary until 1965, has that same impact on many people, whether they attend St. John's or not. Today, it houses church offices and an 80-seat chapel that conducts weekday Mass, small weddings and funerals. It has become a well-known place in the community, not only as a grand example of historic architecture, but also as a place of refuge and prayer.

"It's very precious to us," said Velasquez. "It's a place to pray, reflect and spend some good one-on-one time with God." The architecture also reminds Velasquez of his childhood church in the Andes Mountains of Columbia in South America.

Summary

► The old stone church at St. John's has unique history that is interwoven with the history of Fenton as a farming community.

“Our roots as a Catholic parish go back to this original stone church.”

Fr. David Harvey
St. John's in Fenton

TRI-COUNTY TIMES | TIM JAGIELO

The stone chapel at St. John the Evangelist Catholic Church on Adelaide Street in Fenton serves as the administrative offices for the church. It was in danger of being torn down in the late '70s, but is now part of the history of Fenton.

What people may not know is the interesting history of the stone chapel. In the scope of today's modern building practices, it's almost impossible to imagine the faith, hope and sheer determination of the farmers who brought field stones from their own outlying farms to build this church back in the late 1920s. The new church was the vision of Fr. Maurice Walsh, who determined that the old building was outdated and too small for the growing parish. "The original wood-framed building of St. John's built in 1868 was 'standing room only," said Fr. David Harvey, pastor at St. John's since 1979. "Some parishioners actually had to stand outside to hear Mass."

Pet beds, chew toys, and dog or cat food are just some of the expenses that coincide with being a pet owner. In addition to these, it is important to also remember pet tags and licenses. Every dog 4 months or older is required to be licensed in Genesee County.

"Licensing has changed and it's different rules for every different county. Genesee County just made several changes that took effect this year," said Vicky Bales, a receptionist at Fenton Veterinary Clinic. These changes have made dog licenses a more confusing matter during the transition.

"It used to be every year December, January and February we would sell a one-year license. Now it goes by the

Nationally syndicated columnistAn odd push to privatize marriage

Should government get out of the business of defining marriage? That's not a new question. But as conservatives appear to be losing ground in the same-sex marriage debate, some are showing a new interest in changing the rules.

Wisconsin's Republican Gov. Scott Walker brought up the notion on NBC's 'Meet the Press' last month, noting how many young people have asked him 'why the government is sanctioning it (marriage) in the first place.'

An alternative, he said, would be 'to not have the government sanction marriage, period.'

The idea was not 'anything I'm advocating for,' Walker pointed out, but he appeared to favor the idea of government pulling itself out of the same-sex marriage debate that has sparked culture war and two cases on which the Supreme Court is expected to rule in June.

Former Rep. Ron Paul also spoke of the idea several times during his campaign for the 2012 Republican presidential nomination. After President Barack Obama came out in favor of gay marriage Paul declared on Fox News last May that 'I think marriage should be something you do in a church' and a 'voluntary association' into which 'the state should not interfere.'

Radical as it may sound, Paul actually expresses a very old-fashioned idea. For most of Western history, marriage was a private contract between two families. Returning to that ancient tradition would mean courts and government still would be called on to judge and enforce the validity of contracts that a couple enters into, regardless of their gender.

And, although Republican Party leaders aren't talking about it much in public, separation of marriage and state also could help separate the Grand Old Party from its same-sex marriage opposition, which has morphed from a political plus into a growing albatross in national polls.

With that in mind, the right's new interest in privatizing marriage sounds a lot like a familiar desperation move. After all, when you can't stop social change, you try to dodge it.

YOU ARE RIGHT about what happens in Europe will end up here, but you were wrong about Italy. It was Cyprus where they were taking from the people's bank accounts.

THIS IS TO the person who was shocked to see the 'now hiring' sign, in the store with so many part-time employees. They keep most of them on part-time because of Obama Care. They will be unable to pay for it if they have 50 or more full-timers. Obama Care is going to kill us all.

THANK YOU TO the one backing me up on the President's budget, or should I say, lack there of it. Sad how his own party votes it down.

THE CURRENT CONDITION of this country does fall on one person — the man in charge! He has no desire to fix the problem. He takes our money and his perks and abuses them. We are being sequestered while he's giving billions of dollars to foreign countries. Why? He doesn't care.

WHY WOULD the DDA give a building for a dollar in downtown Fenton? He's only open on weekends and all he has for sale is a chair and a painting! How does that bring business downtown? What else is on the dollar menu?

WHEN WILL OUR criminal justice system make drunk drivers accountable? Again, a man drove a car drunk, hit a tree and thank God he was the only one hurt. If my loved one gets hurt by him, I will see police, probation/parole officers in court.

Cal Thomas

Nationally syndicated
columnistSchool for Scandal

My first question after reading about seven teachers in an Atlanta, Ga., public school accused of altering standardized test scores to make it appear students performed better than they actually did was: How could they!?

According to Georgia state investigator Richard Hyde, the less than magnificent seven sat in a locked room without windows, erasing wrong answers and inserting correct ones. It's one thing for a child to cheat on a test; it's quite another for teachers to do it.

Compounding the cheating scandal is that the children in this elementary school are mostly poor and African-American. How are they helped to develop a moral sense, not to mention an academic foundation that will lift them out of poverty, if they get the message that cheating is better than achieving?

According to The New York Times, the scandal goes beyond cheating. Retired district superintendent Beverly L. Hall is among 35 Atlanta educators indicted by a Fulton County grand jury. Hall reportedly earned more than $500,000 in performance bonuses. She faces up to 45 years in prison.

Even the reliably liberal and pro-public school columnist Eugene Robinson is disturbed. Writing in The Washington Post, Robinson says, 'It is time to acknowledge that the fashionable theory of school reform — requiring that pay and job security for teachers, principals and administrators depend on their students' standardized test scores — is at best a well-intentioned mistake, and at worst nothing but a racket.'

The problem is that a monopoly always protects itself. The teachers' unions and many Democratic politicians, who receive their campaign contributions, oppose school choice, which would improve not only public schools, but also the chances of poor and minority children to have a better life.

It's not the children who cannot achieve. It's the system that fails them.

Authorities should pursue investigations of alleged cheating by teachers and school administrators across the country.

Holly man charged with attempted home invasion

►Homeowner watches as military-uniformed suspect tries to enter his home

By Sharon Stone

sstone@tctimes.com; 810-433-6786

Christopher Allen Murphy, 32, of Holly Township was arraigned last Friday in Oakland County's 52-2 District Court on first-degree attempted home invasion, a five-year felony.

Deputies responded to a home in the 800 block of Cedar for an attempted home invasion complaint.

The homeowner reported that he was home with his young daughter when he spotted a white male, later identified as Murphy, allegedly trying to enter his home through the front door. The homeowner observed the man walk to the rear sliding door and attempt to make entry. When that was unsuccessful, he watched as the suspect climbed over the deck and attempted to enter through another rear sliding door.

A responding deputy arrived and observed a white male attempting to get into the home through a rear sliding door. Murphy, who was wearing a camouflage uniform with his name and unit patches, was taken into custody at this point.

Murphy was transported to the sheriff's office substation and interviewed by a detective. The investigation revealed that Murphy is a current member of the Michigan National Guard. Breaking and entering tools, a mask, gloves, k-bar knife and two air soft pistols were found in his vehicle.

Murphy was lodged at the Oakland County Jail as he awaited his Friday arraignment on this incident. He is also facing two outstanding felony warrants for larceny in a building from Waterford Township police. His Unit Commander was notified and Michigan National Guard is moving to terminate him.

Murphy's cash surety bond was set at $25,000 and he remains lodged at the jail. His next court date is Friday, April 12 at 8:30 a.m.

a phone call to the couple — but the calls were forwarded instead to the parties involved in the scam, who posed as Siegwald's "husband" on the line, eventually verifying the transaction.

The money was to go to Blue Edge Renovation in New York City, N.Y. Everything about the process seemed legitimate to the financial institutions involved, with the exception of the company, Blue Edge Renovation, which FPFCU couldn't find.

The bank on the other end of the process wasn't satisfied either — they had been warned of similar scams being perpetrated. "We're the first in this area," said Siegwald. She received a call from FPFCU on Friday March 29.

"This is something that's supposed to be in the movies," said Siegwald. She thinks the scammers got their information from the Livingston County Register of Deeds.

"Our records are public, most people don't know that," said Livingston County Chief Deputy to the Registrar, Kathy Ignatowski. Mortgages, transfers of ownership, and original mortgage amounts are all public records. Items like Social Security numbers are not available.

Residents in Livingston County have a fraud alert system through livingston-live.org, which Ignatowski suggests property owners utilize.

Registrar Sally Reynolds isn't convinced there is enough records available to the public to complete the loan information. Much of the needed private information isn't available publicly, though property indexes are free online. She does urge residents to use the free fraud protection, or at least check on their records frequently.

She said she has not had many cases like Siegwald's. "People's creativity, and what they can do, it's incredible," said Reynolds.

Siegwald did turn the case over to Livingston County Sheriff's Department Detective Bureau, and the Michigan Attorney General's Office. She has since placed a note on her account, stating there will be no wire transfers without her signing in person.

Det. Sgt. Gary Childers of the Livingston County Sheriff's Department investigated the complaint. He said offenses committed across state lines in a big city pose a challenge to budget-limited local law enforcement agencies. Childers said FPFCU got a hold of him, wanting to help. "I would say they were on the ball."

He said credit unions tend to be active on pursuing frauds, but bigger national banks might be more likely to write off that loss. "I've been in law enforcement 19 years now," he said, adding that fraud is the number one growth crime, and Internet fraud barely existed at the beginning of his career.

"If you don't need that line of credit, don't leave it open," he suggested. Talk to your banking institution on how an account could be flagged, and avoid mailing checks, and use in-person transfers. He also suggests using an account that can only be drawn, or moved in person, "park my cash, put it somewhere safe," he said.

Even as a detective, he's been a victim of identity theft, so his account sends a text whenever he charges.

To Childers, the call forwarding was an interesting detail. This is the first time he has seen phone hacking in real life.

"This is something that's supposed to be in the movies."

Investigators reported that the numerous defendants, led by Duke, conspired to defraud mortgage lenders and obtain money and property by means of materially false and fraudulent pretenses and representations. The scheme lasted for close to four years, ending in July 2007 when the FBI executed seven search warrants in metropolitan Detroit and Florida.

Over the four year period, the scheme involved more than 500 fraudulent mortgage loans, more than 100 straw buyers, and approximately 180 different residential properties in metropolitan Detroit that were used as — or falsely represented to mortgage lenders to be — the collateral for the loans. Most of these loans went into default and foreclosure. The loans ranged in size from roughly $350,000 to $600,000. Losses to the lenders resulting from the scheme are expected to exceed $100 million.

Some of Duke's co-defendants used proceeds to purchase luxury items, including a helicopter, cars, boats, residential properties, and for extensive travel to the Caribbean and foreign vacation destinations.

This case was investigated by the FBI, with the assistance of the U.S. Secret Service, and was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorneys Erin Shaw and Stephen Hiyama.

According to the Detroit News, Duke was a long-time criminal first convicted of embezzlement in Allen Park in 1986. He was sent to prison in 1989 for receiving stolen property and briefly escaped from prison in the Upper Peninsula before he was released in 1993. He later moved into mortgages, even though Michigan regulators banned him from the mortgage business in 2006. By then, he had created a network of real estate agents, appraisers and others willing to forge signatures and submit phony documentation to secure millions in loans, according to federal prosecutors.

Duke is expected to report to prison by June 3.

Summary

►Ronnie Duke of Fenton will spend the next 13 years in prison for his part in a $100 million mortgage fraud scheme that lasted several years.

Firefighters to be trained as divers

►Fenton Township could have divers by summer

By William Axford

axford@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Fenton Township — The Fenton Township Fire Department will start training divers as soon as possible. On Monday, the Fenton Township Board of Trustees approved a plan presented by Fire Chief Ryan Volz two weeks ago.

"It's going to be a big help to the lake community," Volz said. "We're going to make some phone calls and could start training in two weeks."

Currently, six firefighters have volunteered to undergo training as divers. Training and equipment is to not exceed $25,000, which will come from already existing funds said Volz and township trustees.

Summary

►The Fenton Township Fire Department has been approved to train some firefighters as divers.

Volz and Lt. Tom Howley approached trustees at the March 28 meeting and said the training would include low visibility/night diving, stress/rescue diving and eventually ice diving. Volz told trustees that it would cost $680 to train each diver in open water and that the fire department would purchase three full sets of dive equipment at $2,700 per set. Divers will be responsible for purchasing their own dive masks, swim fins, swim boots, snorkel and knife.

The plan for local divers came after two drowning incidents in Fenton Township last summer. The divers will be confined to Fenton Township with immediate recovery as their main priority. Divers with the Fenton Township Fire Department will cooperate with Genesee County divers, if they are present at a scene.

Drug dogs and the Fourth Amendment

Over the past few years, the national increase in illegal drug sales and use has reached alarming proportions.

In response, law enforcement has been able to implement a wide array of tools to help stem this tide.

A fairly recent tool is the use of so-called drug dogs that are specifically trained to detect the scent of illegal substances.

There have been a number of court cases defining what a drug dog (under the supervision of its police handler) is legally allowed to do in finding drugs without running afoul of the Fourth Amendment, which prohibits illegal searches and seizures.

In two recent cases from the State of Florida, the United States Supreme Court defined some limits that drug-sniffing dogs can go to.

In the first case, Florida v. Harris decided Feb. 19, 2013, the Supreme Court held that in a traffic stop situation if a drug dog alerts to the possibility of drugs in a car, the police may thereafter conduct a vehicle search to determine if there are illegal drugs present.

The second case, Florida v. Jardines decided March 26, 2013, involved the police taking a drug-sniffing dog to the front porch of the defendant's home. The dog alerted for drugs and subsequently the police obtained a search warrant for the house.

The subsequent search by the police located a significant amount of marijuana. The defendant was charged and thereafter convicted of trafficking cannabis.

On appeal the question became was the 'alert' by the drug dog when on the defendant's property a search within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment?

In a five to four decision, the Supreme Court held that it was and affirmed the Florida Supreme Court in suppressing the evidence.

The Court said that the police did not have the right under these circumstances to explore an area around one's home in the hope of discovering incriminating evidence.

These two cases illustrate how under the law, a person's home is treated differently than a moving vehicle for Fourth Amendment purposes. Both decisions are available on the Internet.

month their rabies is due," Bales said. "When they are puppies they receive one at 16 weeks of age. Then when they are a year old, they will get one every three years."

The change in the licensing schedule has also changed the licensing price.

A spayed/neutered pet will cost $10 for one year, and $25 for three years. Otherwise, a license will cost $30 for one year, and $80 for three years.

In Oakland County, a license for a pet that is spayed or neutered will cost $7.50 for a one-year license, or $15 if they are not. While cats also do not require a license in Oakland County, they can be registered with the Oakland County Animal Control department for a one-time fee of $7.50 to help them find their way home should they get lost.

In Genesee County, pre-printed applications are mailed out to pet owners

“Licensing has changed and it's different rules for every different county.”

30 days before expiration of an animal's rabies vaccine. The pet owner then has the month before, the month of, and the month after the vaccine expiration to purchase a new license. If a license is not purchased in this window of time, a delinquent fee will be charged.

The delinquent license fee is $50 for one year, or $100 for three years, and delinquent licenses are only available through Animal Control.

While you will not need a pre-printed application to purchase a license, you will require proof of a current rabies vaccination and proof of your pets spayed/neutering in order to be eligible for the discounted price.

"Cats do not require by law in Genesee County to be licensed," said Bales. "Again it's county by county, as far as the rabies go it is the same protocol. The first year is a one year, and when they come back it's a three year."

Bales said that it is recommended that all cats, even those who will remain indoors, receive a rabies vaccine. Pests such as rats and bats can carry the virus and are known to find their way inside of homes.

Not only is getting your dog licensed the law — it serves a practical purpose of helping you reunite with them should anything happen and they end up lost.

Bales said that tags for your animals should include the pet's name, your name, phone number, and the veterinarian's phone number to help others identify a lost animal's home.

Microchips

For those who wish a secure way to find their lost pet can look into having a microchip implanted, which will typically cost somewhere around $50. A microchip provides a permanent form of identification that cannot be removed. Though it does not act as a tracking device, it offers ultimate proof that your dog is in fact, your dog.

Putting a microchip into your pet will not hurt them any more than a normal vaccination, and can be done on both cats and dogs.

would have to pay billions in the next few decades in order to improve the state's infrastructure.

"It is the choice of spending $12 billion over the next 10 years to repair our infrastructure, or $25 billion later on to reconstruct a failed system," Snyder wrote in his executive budget for the fiscal years of 2014 and 2015.

The plan would also allow officials at the county level to add a vehicle registration tax of .18 percent of a vehicle's list price, which Snyder said would "generate $280 million that counties could use to fix local roads or invest in public transportation."

According to gasbuddy.com, gas in Michigan has cost an average of $3.59 so far this year.

Snyder may face some roadblocks however as he drives his plan through Lansing.

Members of the Michigan Petroleum Association said Snyder's plan would make Michigan have the most expensive gas tax in the country, according to an article by the Detroit News. Michigan Secretary of State Ruth Johnson told media outlets that she is opposed to increasing vehicle registration fees.

The Detroit Free Press reports that most Republicans are opposed to Snyder's legislation as presented and have made numerous changes to the bill.

State Rep. Jim Ananich (D-Flint) has proposed alternative legislation to raise funds in order to repair Michigan's roads, including "ending tax loopholes for corporations like BP and Exxon" and "giving middle class drivers a break."

"Everyone agrees fixing our roads and investing in jobs is important, but we also need to make sure we're doing what's right for Michigan's hardworking taxpayers," Ananich said in a press release.

Snyder's push for higher gas and registration taxes follows a few months after right-to-work legislation was signed into law, a move that split politicians in Lansing.

"Watching all this, with some glee, are legislative Democrats," said political columnist Tim Skubick. "They know that (Snyder) knows that he needs them and the D's are not ready to bail the governor out. Why should they?"

Currently, drivers in Michigan pay 19 cents to the state and 18.4 cents to the federal government for each gallon of gas. Drivers also pay 6 percent sales tax on gas, before state and federal taxes are assessed.

Fenton man, father-in-law heading to the Masters

► Passes won at St. John School's annual silent auction

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

For one local man and his father-in-law, there will be plenty of green grass and sightings of those famous green sport coats worn only by the winners of the Masters golf tournament when they travel down to Augusta, Ga. this weekend.

Michael LaJoice, owner of Chasse Ballroom & Latin Dance Studio in Fenton, is heading down to Georgia with his father-in-law Larry Bell. LaJoice admits he is not much of a golf fan, however, his father-in-law is a huge fan.

Michael LaJoice

Instead of finding time to hit the links, LaJoice spends his time running his business and taking care of his three children with his wife, Ashleigh. Still, he's a sports fan in general, holding Detroit Tigers season tickets and fully understands the prestige and glamour of the Masters.

"He would probably golf 18 holes every day if he had the time," said LaJoice of his father-in-law. "He has always wanted to go to Augusta to watch the Masters, however, you can't simply purchase a ticket. So, it has always been one of those things for him that has been more of a dream."

Every year, LaJoice and his wife attend the St. John School auction held at the Activity Center. The day before this year's auction, his wife read on Facebook that two passes to the Masters would be part of the silent auction. "We knew this would be an opportunity to take her dad, however, we also knew the price would probably be quite high."

During the auction, the LaJoices discussed the possible high bids and kept in mind that a major portion of the proceeds would benefit the school, which is important to them. "We started to hear some people talking about starting to bid on it and at that point, I decided to secure it with the 'buy it now' option, so

The package the LaJoices won included two passes to the rounds on Saturday and Sunday. "Ashleigh is looking forward to her father finally being able to walk the course of Augusta National Golf Club," LaJoice said. "I am also looking forward to checking out the beautiful grounds and watching the world's best golfers in action."

History of the Masters

The first Masters began on March 22, 1934, and was won by Horton Smith. Beginning in 1940, the Masters was scheduled each year during the first full week in April. The most famous shot ever made at the Masters happened in 1935 when Gene Sarazen holed a four-wood approach from 235 yards out for a double eagle on the par-five 15th hole. Sarazen went on to tie Craig Wood and force a 36-hole playoff the following day, which Sarazen won by five strokes. In 1942, Byron Nelson defeated Ben Hogan, 69-70, in an 18-hole playoff. The Masters was not played the following three years during the war. To assist the war effort, cattle and turkeys were raised on the Augusta National grounds.

OLD STONE CHURCH

Fr. Walsh, who succeeded Fr. David Dillon as pastor, set himself to the task of building a new church, spending $50,000 on a Tudor Gothic style—modeled after a Catholic Church in a small village in France. He also built St. Rita's Catholic Church in Holly.

These field stones represented the best these local farmers had to offer during a challenging economic time that led up to the Depression just a year later. Even the timber for the new church was from local forests, handpicked cherry, walnut and oak by Fr. Walsh himself. "Many current members at St. John's recall riding in with their fathers or grandfathers as they brought a load of field stone from their farms to the construction site," added Fr. Harvey.

These carefully selected stones were then skillfully chiseled into stone blocks by St. John parishioner Frank McKeon, whose two grandsons, Bill and Bob, would later become priests. "Fr. Bob lives in Byron and still says Mass in Gaines and helps out at St. John's occasionally, too," said Fr. Harvey. "He often tells the story about his grandfather cutting blocks for the building when he says Mass there. His older brother, Fr. Bill, is deceased."

While the stone church served the St. John's Parish well as its main sanctuary from 1928 until 1965, it still stands strong today in its use as a chapel for daily Masses at 7 and 9 a.m., for small weddings and funerals, and as the church office for St. John's. The Rectory is connected to the original stone church by an ambulatory passageway. Two large stained-glass windows created a natural place for a hallway connecting the sanctuary with the rest of the building.

There was a time during urban renewal in Fenton in the 1970s when there was serious discussion about tearing down the old stone church. "I said at the time that no one had any idea how much it was cost to tear something like this down," said Fr. Harvey.

"In Europe, stone buildings like this one last for centuries. Thankfully, when I first came to St. John's in 1979, we were in desperate need of offices. What really piqued the parish's interest was restoring the chapel. Since 1980, the chapel has been beautifully restored, using many of the original artifacts.

"Our roots as a Catholic parish go back to this original stone church," said Fr. Harvey.

From these activities, jumping helps with cardio, rhythm and even team building. Double dutch helps with brain-based learning by using different sides of the body, along with juggling.

McKinley has taught gym for 27 years, and has seen PE shift away from required competitive games like dodge ball, to comprehensive physical activities.

"My main purpose is to get them to enjoy exercising, and let them see the fun in it," she said. Instead of running laps, games that incorporate fitness that are still fun are used. "Underneath it all, it's the cardio, and I'm getting them into shape," she said.

By fifth-grade students should, among other things, be able to hit a target with a ball in a changing environment, and by eighth grade, they should be participating in modified sports.

Teacher Shane Steckroth referees his seventh-grade team sports class, as they play kickball in the gym. Team sports is an elective class at LFMS, and individual sports is required.

"It's a lot of teamwork, and it's just to keep them moving," he said. "The more you can get them running the better off they'll be."

Steckroth applies skills through unique sports like can jam, which is a disc golf game, and traditional sports. "Each activity is supposed to work on different skills," he said. He likes the standards, and said class size is a challenge, when he has to work with up to 49 students in a class.

The only required middle school PE is in seventh grade, with individual sports.

Summary

► The physical education standards are set by the State of Michigan based on a national standard which was drafted in 2004. Each school district adopts the standards, and applies activities that satisfy the requirements.

LFMS Principal Dan Ferguson said that if their schedule is free, close to 88 percent will choose to take the team-based PE class. "Not all students have a choice of electives especially if they are in instrumental band," he said via email.

On Monday, Steckroth had 29 students in his team sports elective class. He wishes students could take more PE at school. Seventh grade has the only required PE class. "My goal is that students that aren't athletes enjoy my class," he said. Modifying sports or unique sports like team hand ball can make sure even non-athletes have fun.

Individual classes offer a different opportunity for archery, yoga and others. "You can have a kid that's having trouble hitting a free-throw, but they can hit a bulls-eye with a bow," said Steckroth.

High school brings a focus on being able to participate in a variety of sports, and also enjoy them. Students should also be able to apply skills and tactics in other activities like aquatics and martial arts.

PAUL G. DONOHUE, M.D.

To your good health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My eyes are colored dark brown. I am a 57-year-old female. Around the edges of my brown eyes is a blue border -- something new. The eye doctor said it means my cholesterol is high. My family doctor said it is fine, and it happens with age. Have you heard of this? What causes it? — D.E.

ANSWER: I believe you're describing an arcus senilis. It's an off-white (bluish or gray) circle looping around the colored iris. Actually it's a deposit of fat and cholesterol in the cornea, the clear covering that lies over the iris and pupil. At one time, it was thought to indicate high blood cholesterol; it doesn't. It's one of those many adornments of aging that come for no good reason. If you start looking at the eyes of older people, you'll find that you are far from the only one with arcus senilis.

THE KITCHEN

Jennifer (Laura Prepon) is turning 30 and her best friend, Stan (Matt Bush), is throwing her a party. But she is in no mood to celebrate. She just left her job, as well as her cheating boyfriend, Paul (Bryan Greenberg). Her cynical little sister Penny (Drema Walker) is threatening to overshadow the whole affair with the most inappropriate party announcement. And she is pretty sure she's too old to still be living with her creepy roommate. What starts out as a well-intentioned day of celebration quickly spirals into a most ill-fated disaster, from an ex-boyfriend who can't "get enough" to the bands dueling in the backyard and from disloyal friends showing their true colors to a manic-depressive party photographer who may have forgotten to take his meds. In this hilarious ensemble comedy set entirely inside a kitchen, turning 30 has never looked this chaotic! R, 1 hr. 20 min.

BAD KIDS GO TO HELL

Six private school high school kids find themselves stuck in detention on a frightfully dark and stormy Saturday afternoon. During their eight-hour incarceration, each of the six kids falls victim to a horrible "accident" until only one of them remains. And as each of these spoiled rich kids bites the dust, the story takes on a series of humorous and frantic twists and turns. Is one of the kids secretly evening the school's social playing field? Or have the ghosts of prestigious Crestview Academy finally come to punish the school's worst (and seemingly untouchable) brats? One thing is for sure...Daddy's money can't save them now. Q Who won the first regular season game in MLB history played in Puerto Rico?

A The Montreal Expos defeated the New York Mets 10-0 in a contest played in Puerto Rico's Hi Bithorn Stadium on April 11, 2003. The Expos played 22 games in Puerto Rico in 2003 and 21 more in 2004. In 2005, the franchise became the Washington Nationals.

David's Dabblings

As the Michigan Wolverines basketball team concluded its 82-76 National Championship loss to Louisville on Monday, it hit my mind how fun it's been to be a sports fan in the state of Michigan since the turn of the century. In a little less than 14 years, Michigan's major professional and collegiate sports teams have competed in the championship game or title series 10 times. The Red Wings have been in three Stanley Cup Finals, the Pistons have been in the NBA Finals twice, and the Tigers have been in the World Series twice. Michigan State has been in the NCAA title game twice and Michigan once. That's a decent run.

I wonder how long the success will last. The Tigers look poised to make some solid runs, but the rest of the professional teams seem to be taking a step back, including the Wings. The other 'best chance' champions probably are Michigan and Michigan State's basketball programs. Maybe Michigan football can make it to the BCS title game, but that's probably not too realistic. But two years ago I would've said the same thing about Michigan basketball. Who will be next? I can say for certain it won't be the Lions.

Hard work earns Readman TC Player of the Year honors

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

One day Fenton varsity boys basketball coach Tim Olszewski asked Eric Readman to keep a log of what he did during the 244 days during the offseason to prepare for the 2012-13 prep hoops season.

What Olszewski got was the workman's recipe of success.

What the log showed was Readman did a lot of shooting, dribbling, sprinting, lifting and all sorts of other drills. He was even kicked out of the Fenton gym 17 times in those eight months. When all the hours were added up, Readman had put in 901 hours, or what translates to 37 days of extra effort to make sure his senior basketball season was a success at Fenton High School.

Readman got his wish. Readman's constant work ethic helped the senior guard capture the 2012-13 Tri-

County Boys Basketball Player of the Year award, just edging out his senior teammate Cory Cox for the honor.

"He was the most dedicated toward helping the team win," Olszewski said. "When you compete against him, you think he's good, but what you don't see is all the behind-the-scenes things he's done to be good. Everybody wants to win, but not many want to pay the price to win. When you pay the price to win, good things happen."

Readman definitely paid the price. On his list of "extra work," or what Olszewski now calls the team's "Recipe for Success," Readman spent 140 hours lifting four times a week at Fenton, he ran the hills around Lake Fenton Elementary School and through the Hills of Tyrone for 16 hours, and he played about 225 hours of official games or pick-up contests. He also became proficient at breaking into the Fenton High School gym, before eventually getting kicked out again. That happened about 17 times.

"The thing that does boggle my mind is how many hours I put in the gym over the summer when people were at the

Last-minute goal leads Fenton past Linden, 1-0

Ann Arbor — Crystal Krupp knew the game was winding down to the final minute and there still was no score in the Fenton Tigers' girls varsity soccer game against Linden on Monday.

So despite being over 40 yards away from goal, she decided to shoot when she had the ball with no defenders on her with about 45 seconds left in the game.

It paid off. The junior's shot got up in the air, picked up speed with a strong wind behind it and went into the net, earning the Tigers a 1-0 victory against their area rivals at Concordia University.

"I was hoping it would go in," Krupp said. "It feels pretty good (getting the game-winning goal against Linden). I was trying to score, of course. You always want to get that goal and time was counting down."

It was pretty nice weather, minus the strong wind that whipped through the pitch the entire contest. Both teams had some scoring chances, with Linden hitting posts a few times in the first half. But while Linden enjoyed most of the

2013 TRI-COUNTY SOFTBALL PREVIEWS

LAKE FENTON BLUE DEVILS

Coach: Amos Rinks
Graduated All T-C players: Ashley Rinks (Inf).

Returning All T-C players: Taylor Sheyachich (Inf), Kayla Ward (Inf), Alexis Melton (Inf), Shelby Beckman (OF).

Summary: The Blue Devils are a young team, but they are an experienced one as well. They went to the state quarterfinals a year ago. Having players like Sheyachich, Melton, Ward, Beckman, pitcher Kim Roe, Patricia Whitaker and Melody Draeger back certainly makes the squad strong. Freshman Sydney Sheyachich adds to the pitching staff, while Juliana Davidek and Sheyachich will battle for the second base position. Supporting Roe in the outfield will be Sidney Christenson, Autumn Beardsley and Whitaker.

Coach Rinks says: "We really like their approach to this season. I can see that many of the girls have been playing year round and it shows in the way they have improved. They have a confidence that is greater than the year before, and that should really be useful in the upcoming season."

Projection: The Blue Devils won a conference, a district and a regional crown a year ago. Ever since losing in the quarterfinals fans could see this team could be good again this year. They are. Don't be shocked if they repeat last year's season, and maybe surpass it.

LINDEN EAGLES

Coach: Gordon Jamison
Graduated All T-C players: None.

Returning All T-C players: Brianne Senter (1B), Maija Satkowiak (OF), Savannah Weaver (Inf).

Summary: The Eagles captured a district crown a year ago and have a decent group of players back from last year's team that finished 9-7 in league action. Pitchers Molly Sherman and Morgan Grantner are back, as is third-year varsity player Tori Davis. She will move to second base from the outfield. Weaver will move to short, while Makayla Cavanaugh, another three-year senior, plays left. Four-year senior Satkowiak is slated to play center, while Kearsley Alyssa Warren will probably play right. Sydney Jacques will be the starting catcher.

Coach Jamison says: "I think we have a good chance. I wouldn't predict we are going to win the league, but I think we should be as good or better than last year. If our pitching comes through and our defense holds, we'll be OK. I think we are going to score some runs."

Projection: The Eagles look to have a fine squad again this year. They won't be favored to win the Metro, but finishing on the plus side of .500 in league play is very realistic.

FENTON TIGERS

Coach: Stefanie Roberts
Graduated All T-C players: Sammi Cowger (P, Inf), Sierra Hollis (OF).

Returning All T-C players: Marina Cleis (Inf), Sarah Halstead (OF), Ellie Cowger (Inf, P).

Summary: Roberts has inherited herself a pretty strong team. Ellie Cowger gives the team an experienced pitcher, a strong bat and a speed demon on the bases. Meanwhile, Cleis, Halstead also provide great experience to the lineup. Dori Carpenter (3B), Katey Cairnduff (1B), Macie Keller (2B) and Regina Siekierski (C) should see ample playing time in the infield. Carli Deleck also can play second. In the outfield, Emma Brant will play right, while Halstead will be in center. Paige Dean, Rachel Siekierski and Meghan Bayer will play in right. Cleis and both Siekierskis will play at catcher.

Coach Roberts says: "With eight players returning from last year, we're pretty experienced. We scrimmaged Romeo (before break) and I was very happy with our performance."

Projection: The Tigers should be right in the thick of the Flint Metro League race. It's a team with experienced talent.

HOLLY BRONCHOS

Coach: Jaimie Miller

Summary: The Bronchos return just three players, so Holly will be young. On the mound, Holly has junior Breeyan Hunter and freshman Journee Kerner sharing duties. Katie Ordiway (C/SS) returns as does Megan Louis (2B). Ashley Noren missed most of last year due to injury, but is back. Kaytlin Topolnicki and Rowena Bemman are also slated to play some infield. In the outfield, Jayme Watkins, Erin Partlo, Kali Kernen, Jessica Ricksgers and Jessica Zimmerman should see time.

Coach Miller says: "The kids are working hard and have great attitudes. They all support each other. They seem to be loyal and committed toward working together and having fun."

Projection: Holly won two league games last year. Tripling that league victory total would be a positive step.

scoring chances in the opening half, the Tigers had the best chances to break the deadlock in the second half with the wind at their backs. Linden freshman keeper Bridgett Adams made five second-half saves before the final shot of the game got by her. A bright sun probably was a culprit as well, as Adams had to look into the sun's glare while trying to make the save.

"It was exciting. I think they had more chances than we did, especially in the first half," Fenton coach Matt Sullivan said. "I think we knew it was going to come to this — with the wind. We kind of knew it was going to take a goal like that. It was a lucky goal, but we'll take it. Anytime you get a lucky goal like that we'll take it."

"It is what it is. We hit the post several times," Linden coach Kevin Fiebernitz said. "We weren't very creative offensively. I think the worst part of it was our midfield. We didn't link up well. Other than that, the break is over. We have a game in now and all you can do now is hope you get better as you go on."

The game was played at Concordia University's soccer field. The teams hope to play at least a game a year at different college venues each season. This was the first game at a campus.

"I love it," Fiebernitz said. "Hopefully the kids get a chance to showcase themselves a bit."

"It's awesome for the girls and parents to see a college campus like this and get a feel of being around this," Sullivan said. "As we continue to do more games, they'll get a chance to play different places ... We have a lot of girls between the two teams who can play college soccer and it is good for them to see it at all different levels. It's a bit of an inconvenience to us, but I think it's good for our players."

Fenton keeper Tiffany Cairns played most of the game and got six saves, preserving the clean sheet.

It's been a spring of minimum outdoor exposure. That probably impacted the type of play during the game. The game was Linden's first of the season.

"The weather is nice, it's a lot better than staying inside," Krupp said. "I have a lot of anxiety attacks about staying inside all day."

"I was hoping we'd go a little harder to the ball," Fiebernitz said.

"We gave them a lot of room where we didn't have to. But I could be being a little harsh saying that because this was only the fourth time being outside. Maybe once we've been outside more this may not be an issue any longer."

Both squads play in the Flint Metro League tournament on Saturday.

lake," Readman said. "Sometimes I'd go to Lake Fenton Elementary School and just go back there for hours and play. I'd get my dad to rebound sometimes."

The extra work paid off for Readman and the Fenton Tigers. Readman averaged 19.1 points a game, hitting on 58 percent of his two-point field goal attempts and 36 percent of his three-pointers. He also averaged five rebounds a game and helped with the point duties frequently during the season. He teamed up with Cox, who averaged 20.1 points a game, giving the Tigers what was the most dangerous offensive duo in the Metro League during the 2012-13 season. The pair helped lead the Tigers to a 21-2 overall record and a fifth straight Flint Metro League crown with an undefeated 16-0 mark. Of course, one shot that Readman made during his junior season will go down in Fenton history. He netted the game-winning bucket in overtime against Clarkston, winning the Fenton Tigers their first ever Class A district title.

The start of a great career

But as already stated, Readman has worked hard to get his honors. Just a couple of years ago, he was a part-time player on the Howell High School boys basketball team. Earlier than that, he was even deeper on his bench.

"Back in about the seventh grade I was the last player on my AAU team, the 14th man," Readman said. "That's when I realized I loved the game and kept working. Freshman year I moved up to JV and my dad was the JV coach. In 10th grade, I didn't play a lot. I sat the bench for most of the year."

After his sophomore season, Readman transferred to Fenton. Ironically, even though Olszewski teaches in Howell's school district, he really didn't know much about Readman at the time.

"Being a teacher everyone thought I knew about him. I never really seen the kid before," Olszewski said. "I knew he played on the basketball team when kids in class talked, but I never had him in class. Lo and behold one day I heard he was coming to Fenton. I knew of his family. His dad and I knew each other when I coached earlier in Howell, but I didn't know Eric at all."

"He coached my sister a little bit at Howell. I saw him at school a few times," Readman said. "I liked him. I knew he was a good coach when I came over."

Readman said he had to learn how to change his game.

"When I came here I was a little out of control, a little selfish," Readman said. "I had to learn to settle in a role."

"It was tough. There were times when things didn't always go my way, but I did the best I could every day to work on my role and do what was best for the team."

His learning curve wasn't too extreme. He quickly became well known on the Tigers' 2011-12 team, averaging 14.8 points a game, while dishing 121 assists. The Tigers finished with a 22-2 mark. He entered his senior year already committed to Indiana Wesleyan to continue his career at the collegiate level, and he had an outstanding senior year.

And now, he's left his legacy not only on the court, but with his "Recipe for Success."

The race was so close, we went to multiple sources and had a little election ourselves, and it was won by Readman. Readman averaged 19.1 points a game and also averaged 5.0 rebounds a game. What may have earned him the spot is his constant work ethic to improve his game. It was recently figured that Readman put in 901 extra hours during the offseason to improve his game between his junior and senior seasons, and it showed on the court. He helped lead the Tigers to a 21-2 record and a 16-0 mark in the Metro League, the squad's fifth straight league crown.

SPORTS BRIEFS

BASEBALL

► Fenton at Blissfield Tournament:

The Fenton Tigers were able to get three games in during spring break, but lost all three contests at Blissfield on Saturday. Fenton lost to Blissfield 4-1, Saline 13-3 and Monroe Jefferson 6-5.

Against Blissfield, the Tigers had the bases loaded in the top of the sixth, but were able to score only one run on a sacrifice fly by Alex Chase.

"We gave up a couple of runs defensively, but we had a big opportunity in the sixth and only scored one run," Fenton coach Chad Logan said.

In the loss to Saline, the Tigers were tied 3-3, but Saline took over from there, earning the win. The Tigers scored three runs in the first two innings and led 3-0. Connor Davidson tripled and Chase had an RBI-single. Mike Ryan had a sacrifice fly, plating another run.

In the loss to Monroe Jefferson, Max Barker gave the Tigers a 4-2 lead with an RBI-single in the bottom of the fourth. However, a three-run home run by Monroe Jefferson gave them the lead for good.

Fenton had a chance to tie or take the lead in the seventh with runners on second and third with two out. However, Zack Coska hit a hard shot off the pitcher, who recovered and made the play at first.

"I thought it was three pretty well played games," Logan said. "We lost them but I didn't feel like we were overwhelmed or over our heads like I have thought sometimes in the past. We have a bunch of young guys and I thought they performed pretty well for being game inexperienced. They did OK."

Third-annual Run/Walk slated for May 18

The Fenton High School Athletic Department will host its third-annual 5K Run/Walk and its second-annual Tiger Trot on May 18 at Fenton High School.

The runs begin and end at the Fenton High School track. The 5K route is reasonably flat and takes place within Fenton's city limits. The 5K events begin at 8:30 a.m.

The Tiger Trot is a fun run open to children between the ages of 3 to 10. Students may run one to four laps around the Fenton High School track. It starts at 9:30 a.m. A ticket for a snow cone or a bag of popcorn will be awarded to all students who participate in the event.

The cost for the 5K Run/Walk is $25 for adults and $20 for students before May 10. Registration at this time includes a shirt.
