What a difference just a few years make.

The foreclosure market, in its heyday in 2009, accounted for between 40 and 60 percent of home sales, according to Patrik Welty of Legacy Realty in Fenton. Today, that number has dwindled to less than 10 percent. “That's a

Linden schools will have police officer this fall► School board approves proposal by police chief

By Sharon Stone

sstone@tctimes.com; 810-433-6786

Linden Community Schools will have a School Resource Officer for the upcoming school year, as approved by the Linden
Board of Education on Wednesday,
July 17.Argentine Township Police Chief Dan Allen and Officer Ken Engel had submitted a proposal to the school board in May.
That proposal outlined the implementation of a School Resource Officer within the schools.This officer would be a part-time, sworn police officer that would be assigned to the district for the scheduled calendar days of the school district.

Funding for the part-time officer, about $26,000,

was said to be slightly more than the district was paying for security last school year but would provide a sworn police officer to handle any criminal matter and to build a rapport with students, according to Allen.The police chief believes that this is a positive move for the school district, the residents of Argentine Township and those who attend Linden schools.“We look forward to our continued support of the efforts of Superintendent Ed Koledo and all of the schools’ staff,” said Allen.

with their addiction while keeping identities safe.“Members are typically someone whose life is becoming overly disruptive due to alcohol use,” said one member who has been sober for 19 years. “It’s beyond social drinking — it’s more of a loss of control.”Formed in 1935, AA was formed in Akron, Ohio as a fellowship for those who need support to stay sober. AA has helped numerous people, however, a comprehensive number is unavailable since all members remain anonymous.

The reason?

Some members struggle with alcoholism for years and may relapse or get into trouble with the law. Seeing members of AA run into trouble may discourage potential members from attending meetings and try to live a life of sobriety.While some people are forced to go to AA after running into trouble with the legal system, most members who join by their own volition typically have a higher rate of success when it comes to sobriety.
The AA member said first-time attendees do not have to speak, having the option of simply listening to others’ stories. There are no membership fees and the only requirement to join is having a desire to quit drinking. The member described AA as a process and that some members continue to drink while attending meetings.The overall theme of the fellowship is to never give up and to keep coming back to the meetings, even if a member drinks months or years into their sobriety.“People struggle in the first few months and it’s not obvious to see they’ve been drinking. The overall message is to keep coming back. Regardless of a relapse, if someone is struggling, it doesn’t mean they’re failing.”AA’s 12-step program is geared toward an individual to help abstain from alcohol.
A common perception of AA is that one has to believe in a higher power. The member said the 12 steps are more introspective and spiritual rather than worshipping a deity. After someone ad-“Members are typically someone whose life is becoming overly disruptive due to alcohol use.”

Alcoholics Anonymous is a fellowship built on fighting for sobriety and keeping the identities of members anonymous, in case they relapse.mits they are powerless to alcohol, the member said the 12 steps can begin to help them on the path to recovery.“I now have an incredible sense of freedom. Alcohol has become a nonissue,” said the AA member. “It’s really about living life on life’s terms, becoming the best version of me that I can be. I really think that’s what AA encourages.”If you are interested in attending a

ROLLOVER AT NORTH AND TORREY

At 3:50 p.m. on Thursday, July 25, Fenton police responded to a rollover crash at North and Torrey roads. Lt. Jason Slater said a 2008 Ford Focus driven by a 27-year-old Fenton Township man was southbound on Torrey Road. He failed to yield at the stop sign at North Road and turned left onto eastbound North Road in front of a westbound Nissan, driven by a 23-year-old Belleville man. The Nissan t-boned the Focus causing the Focus to roll over. The two occupants in the Focus and the one occupant in the Nissan were wearing seatbelts. The passenger in the Focus, a 25-year-old Fenton man, was injured, however, he refused an ambulance to the hospital. The driver of the Focus was ticketed for failing to yield and as well as being placed at fault on the accident report.

We all might look at our country a little differently by setting out on our own “road less traveled.”

columnist*Why Detroit's bankruptcy matters

We who live in other cities ask what drove Detroit into bankruptcy. What we really want to know is whether it could happen to us.

Since 2010, five other cities and two counties, plus almost 30 special districts such as utility authorities have filed for bankruptcy, according to the Detroit News.

Days before Detroit became the biggest city to file for chapter 9 bankruptcy protection, Moody's Investors Service downgraded Chicago's credit score three notches from Aa3 to A3 because of the city's pension problems — a major factor in Detroit's financial woes.

But unlike other big American cities, Detroit is the quintessential one-industry town, long-standing symbol of fading industrial glory and rising urban blight.

A century ago, it became the 'Motor City,' a center of technological innovation. In World War II, it was the 'arsenal of democracy.' Producing trucks, Jeeps, tanks, aircraft engines and other products for the war effort helped the city grow to 1.8 million people.

But it has shrunk since then to only 700,000. The decline of factory towns across America hit its biggest one-industry town hardest. Rising crime, a shrinking tax base and a major riot in 1967 spurred more white and middle-class flight.

Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer left office in 2002 after two terms in which the city enjoyed waves of new investment, a modernized city workforce and upgrades in the city's bond ratings.

Unfortunately, his successor, Kwame Kilpatrick, became better known for a headline-making sex scandal, a conviction for perjury and obstruction of justice and, after his resignation in 2008, two dozen more felony counts this year, including fraud.

While there are unfortunately ample abandoned factories and burned-out neighborhoods for television news crews to shoot, other parts of town bustle with renewal.

Cities are networks of people, not just governments. When states or the federal government get tied up in gridlock, they have nowhere else to turn. Cities can turn to the business and philanthropic communities. Instead of a bailout, cities need to look at becoming better partners.

That's why the world is watching. If Detroit can come back from its financial woes, any city can.

FROM THE RIGHT

Cal Thomas

Nationally syndicated columnist*Losing faith in government

Now for some good news, and it has nothing to do with the birth of the royal baby.

According to a USA Today/Bipartisan Policy Center poll, 'Americans by more than 2-1 say the best way to make positive changes in society is through volunteer organizations and charities, not by being active in government.' Even better news: People under 30 are especially put off by politics and are 'significantly less likely than their parents to say participating in politics is an important value in their lives.'

Why is this good news? There are at least two reasons. One is that the less faith people have in government, the more they are likely to have in themselves. The second is that a public loss of faith in politics and politicians increases the possibility of government becoming smaller. That could mean less spending, a smaller deficit and ultimately, one hopes, lower taxes.

On the same day the USA Today poll stated President Obama 'is suffering his lowest approval numbers in nearly two years,' his June approval rating was 41 percent, down from 50 percent in April.

Again, this is — or can be — good news for the country and even for Republicans if they get the message. USA Today quotes Rep. Aaron Schock, R-Ill.: 'There's a skepticism of government. Young people say, if I want to feed the hungry it's easier to do that through a non-profit and see the tangible results up close.'

States, especially those with Republican governors, are mostly doing a far better job in addressing people's needs and wants than Washington. While the 'blue states' are running up debt and flirting with bankruptcy, the 'red states' continue to take the lead in cutting taxes, streamlining government and job creation.

If Republicans want to regain trust, they should be focusing less on the failures of Democrats and more on the successes of Republican governors and legislatures.

The USA Today poll found that young people put 'elected official or working for one' at the very bottom of their career choices. Given the performance of Washington's political class, who can blame them?

SOCIAL MEDIA

unemployment.

But saying too much online is ruining more than job prospects. People serving jury duty or embroiled in a legal battle who confess every detail of a legal case online run the risk of submitting new evidence to a case or even being held in contempt of court.

"It comes up a lot. People will make comments on Facebook and a lot of them end up as witness statements," said Steven Shelton, a Fenton lawyer. "I tell clients not to post things but of course, there's too much temptation. It's how a lot of people communicate these days, we're a mobile society."

One of the biggest restrictions of serving on a jury is not to see information presented outside of a trial. The idea is that jurors can only make verdicts based on what is presented in court and are not swayed by public opinion or possibly false public information. But as a society where the Internet is available at the touch of a finger, keeping jurors from looking at locations via Google Earth or searching out legal terms is becoming a tough endeavor.

Reuters reports that nearly 100 cases were challenged between 1999 and 2010 due to jurors posting thoughts and details from a trial on social media.

Avoiding punishment for posting online isn't always as simple as hitting delete however.

"There's an interesting debate going on within the legal community as to whether you can advise your client to erase things on Facebook and Twitter," Shelton said. "Some prosecutors say that's destruction of evidence and try to go after people."

According to a recent article by National Public Radio, judges have ruled that lawyers can legally follow jurors and other people testifying in a court case and use it as part of a prosecution or defense. One county in New Jersey went as far as forcing jurors to sign a release that they will not use social media under penalty of perjury.

Shelton has also heard of probation officers forcing their clients to add them on Facebook so they can be monitored at all times.

In a world where constant connectivity is just a click away, how should people in the legal system treat social media? For Shelton, it's very much similar to job hunting — don't say anything that could paint you in a negative light and be weary of who you add as a friend.

"The best advice I can give is to not post things online you wouldn't want your grandma to read," Shelton said. "If you're involved in litigation, don't accept a friend request from someone you don't know."

Fellow Fenton lawyer Phillips Hildner agrees that abstaining from social media while dealing with the court system is the best method for keeping out of further legal troubles.

"Jurors are not supposed to be discussing cases amongst themselves. Posting something online could be cutting your own throat," Hildner advised.

Advice for those serving on a jury or dealing with a court case

- Avoid talking about a case or legal troubles online. Lawyers, judges, employers and probation officers may check Facebook, Twitter and other online profiles regularly to keep tabs on a person.
- Do not add people you do not know. They could be searching for information on you and use it against you.
- Do not assume that deleting a post will keep it from being mentioned in court.

later identified as a 22-year-old Clarkston man, entered the store and tried to pass eight fake $50 bills. Police learned that the Clarkston man had recently sold electronics on Craigslist and received the fake bills during a transaction with a man he met in the Auburn Hills area. Fenton police do not believe the Clarkston man knew the bills were fake. Police also learned that Auburn Hills police had received several other similar complaints. The Clarkston man was out his electronics and the $400 in fake bills once police confiscated them to turn over to the Secret Service.

BOY'S BIKE STOLEN

On July 25, a 32-year-old Fenton man reported to Fenton police that someone stole his son's bike, which was parked in the yard at their home in the 700 block of Elmwood. The man believes the theft took place between July 23 and 25. The bike was described as chrome, BMX-type bike with gold rims. Lt. Jason Slater encourages residents to register their bikes with police in case they ever become missing. The service is free.

HOME INVASION IN FENTON

The Fenton Police Department is investigating a home invasion, which occurred in the 700 block of East Holly Road, near Carnes Street. Lt. Jason Slater said on July 26, the 53-year-old homeowner reported that sometime between 4 p.m. on July 25 and 7:30 a.m. on July 26, someone used forced entry and broke into his home, stealing multiple items. Suspects also broke into and stole items from a trailer, which was on the property. Police processed the scene for evidence and they are waiting for a complete inventory of stolen items. If anyone saw suspicious activity in this area, they are to call Fenton police at (810) 629-5311.

GRAFFITI ON HYATT ELEMENTARY

Sometime during the overnight hours between July 22 and 23, unknown suspects spray painted graffiti at three locations on Hyatt Elementary School in Linden. Linden Police Chief Scott Sutter said the school's maintenance crew spotted the blue paint and called police. The chief said the suspects painted what might have been gang symbols, as well as the misspelled word "Robenhood." The graffiti has since been removed from the walls.

Life without parole for juvenile offenders, Part I

On June 25, 2012 in the case of Miller v Alabama, the United States Supreme Court held that a mandatory life sentence without the possibility of parole for juvenile homicide offenders was unconstitutional as being violative of the Eighth Amendment prohibiting cruel and unusual punishment. This was a five to four decision with the majority Opinion being written by Associate Justice Elena Kagan.

The Opinion indicated that children are constitutionally different from adults for sentencing purposes and was in part based on previous cases, including a prior ban on juvenile life sentences without parole for nonhomicide cases.

All states, which previously allowed juvenile homicide offenders to have such sentences, are affected by this ruling including Michigan as our first-degree murder statute carries a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment without parole.

According to published reports, when the Miller case was decided, Michigan was second in the nation in having 358 inmates serving life for crimes committed at 17 and younger.

Currently some of these Michigan cases are being reviewed and one of the questions presented is the retroactivity of the Miller decision.

On May 30, 2013, the Michigan Court of Appeals ruled in People v McCloud that two juvenile offenders who had been convicted of two 2008 first-degree murders should be resentenced under Miller and other recent Michigan cases.

The McCloud case further ordered that when the two defendants are resentenced there will only be two options — the same sentence or life imprisonment with the possibility of parole.

On the other hand, in the 2012 case of People v Carp, the Michigan Court of Appeals held that Miller was not retroactive and denied the juvenile defendant's motion for relief after his conviction had previously been affirmed.

On the federal level in January 2013, federal Judge John Corbett O'Meara held that all Michigan juvenile lifers should have a chance at parole but a final remedy has not yet been determined.

This is an issue that will be litigated for some time to come. In next week's column, I will discuss some newly introduced legislation on this topic.

credits. Their latest production, "The Fantasticks" opens Friday. Performances are Aug. 2-3 and Aug. 8-10, at 7:30 p.m., and Aug. 4 at 2 p.m., at the KRC. Tickets are $10, $8 for students and seniors, and are available at the Holly Township Library, at the door or by calling (810) 931-7108, according to the company website.

Joe Mishler retired from Holly Area Schools as theater instructor for 28 years, and runs the group as a 501(c)3 non-profit group. The name "Blue Heron" is from the Shiawassee River, and the Blue Herons that he sees near his Holly home.

Mishler said there are around 20 active in each production, which brings different members with each production. They are actors, but also lights and sound, concessions and publicity. "We have a pretty good sizable crew," he said.

There are several college-age people in this production, which he expects to change come fall. "We're kinda open and we also recognize that theater people are fluid," said Mishler. Theater people go where they want to perform, and "it's totally different from one crew to the next."

Before the stage is the three-person orchestra, featuring piano, keyboard and percussion. Mishler reminded the actors not to look at them while they perform.

While a sword duel carries out on stage, George Kullis and David Heilig go over their lines as characters Bellamy and Huck, the leading characters' "meddling" fathers. Realizing they'd missed their cue, they erupt from the men's dressing room to perform their roles.

There are a core of around eight people that make up the group, which include actors, musicians and set builders, said Mishler.

The group assembled for three more dress rehearsals at the KRC this week, before "The Fantasticks" opens for performances. Mishler said the royalties for the musical cost $2,400, which would be made up by selling 240, $10 tickets.

On Monday, all hands were on deck as the small cast performed the acts of the play, which included sword-play, humorously dramatic fake deaths, live music and live lighting design.

The female lead is played by Savannah Damoth, 19. Her character is a naïve 20-year-old named Luisa, in love with character "Matt" played by Brad Varner. She said she enjoys playing a character that seems to stay in her own little world.

Audiences have a chance to enter the world of "The Fantasticks" starting Friday.

FORECLOSURE

desirable areas, according to Ken Brant, of Coldwell Banker Professionals.

Back in a healthier housing market pre-2007, there would be about 450 houses for sale in this area, said Welty.

In the larger market area encompassed by the Flint Area Association of Realtors, there are 2,320 homes for sale. "Typically, there would be about 4,500-4,800," said Sue Shangle of American Associates, Inc. in Grand Blanc, incoming president of FAAR. "Banks aren't putting out foreclosures like they were a year ago. Now they're trickling out."

Telling the biggest story about the difference in housing markets from the foreclosure heyday in 2007-2009 and today is the average selling price.

"We went from a low in 2009 of $123,000 to an average selling price today of $165,000," says Welty, who tracks prices weekly. "Prices are up 15 to 20 percent in the last year. What's even more dramatic is the average price per square foot. Today, it's $89, while back in 2009, we were seeing numbers in the $60s up to $70."

While the good news is that foreclosures are down, the bad news is that buyers today are facing three challenges:

1. a limited supply of homes, many of which are selling after only 24 to 48 hours on the market.
2. an increase in prices, which affects their affordability for prospective buyers.
3. rising interest rates that are up over

1 percent in the last year, which also affects affordability.

What this means for buyers, especially if they're looking to snatch up a foreclosure, is that they have to be ready, willing and able to buy before they even look at a house, according to Kristy Cattleberry of REMAX Grande of Grand Blanc. "A lot of houses, especially foreclosures, are bringing in multiple offers, and are on the market for less than a week. Many are selling for cash."

Brant agrees. "You've really got to jump on them fast," he said. He added that banks are loosening up a bit on the loan process, but they're still making sure they don't get back to where they came from in the height of the housing crisis in 2007-2009.

"Banks are actually investing a little more money on foreclosed properties with painting, new carpet, new appliances, etc.," said Brant. "They know they'll get their money out in today's market."

Welty reminds today's buyers that all of these market trends have to be put in perspective over the long haul. "Historically, these numbers are a relative thing," he said. "It used to be that an interest rate under 7 percent was a really good rate, when rates were up around 10 percent. So today's rates are still low in comparison."

The biggest problem Welty sees when dealing with buyers is when someone has to move, because of a job relocation or divorce. "Then the search for a home becomes really intense," he said. "There's a lot of competition and not many to choose from."

cold water and barbed wire.

The Warrior Dash, a mud run obstacle course and fundraiser for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital took place Saturday and Sunday in Mt. Morris Township. To date, events like the Warrior Dash have raised more than $6 million for St. Jude. Participants are required to raise funds to dash and they have the option of donating their muddy racing shoes to USAgain, an organization that repurposes shoes around the world.

The Warrior Dash is a 3.25-mile race that includes a mud pit, a large rope climbing wall, a jump over 2 fires and a wade through freezing cold water while diving under real barbed wire. Despite the difficulty of the race, the Warrior Dash claims to average 15,000 to 25,000 participants in one weekend.

Jessica Furmanczyk of Fenton participated in the Warrior Dash on Saturday with her father, Ed. Her time was 46:20, a 15-minute improvement from last year's score.

"The run was awesome. This is my third year doing it with my father. We started doing this just because it seemed like something fun for us to do and to just keep continuing the tradition every year," Furmanczyk said. "It's always a challenge but a great time because we support each other to get through the race."

Throughout the day on Saturday, some rain and occasional thunder spotted the warriors, providing for a tougher run than originally expected. Amanda Carty, 15, of Fenton, completed the dash with three close friends, all battling the intense rain.

"The Warrior Dash gives you the rare opportunity to run a race with obstacle challenges and I loved the idea of seeing what I could handle. The challenges were so fun but my favorite part was the camaraderie of everyone running," Carty said. "Everyone was helping each other and cheering each other on, it felt like we were all on the same team. I'm definitely going to do it again. I was having so much fun I didn't really think about time but I ended up in the top 100 of 400 in my bracket taking 51 minutes to complete. Warrior Dash took good care of us, even when a severe storm came in suddenly giving some warriors additional, unplanned obstacles."

Many runners came as part of a group whether that is co-workers, charities or families. Another family duo that ran the race together was father and son Bill and Jeff Burke.

"I have gone all three years and these past two my son came as well," said Bill, who is 55. "This year the weather was better because it was cooler — last year it was nearly 102 degrees. I made it out in 41 minutes, with much of that being hung up in the river crossing. But for no training and being an older guy, I think I did pretty well. We love the Warrior Dash and are doing it again next year with my other son. It is so much more fun dashing as a team."

'The Secret Garden' debuts tomorrow

►Fenton Village Players present heartwarming musical with family members performing together

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

It's a family affair for the Fenton Village Players' summer musical production of "The Secret Garden," debuting this week on Thursday, Aug. 1.

Show dates are Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 1-4, 8-11 and Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 17-18 at the Fenton Village Playhouse — V. Sibyl Haddon Auditorium at 14197 Torrey Rd., Fenton.

The leading youth roles are played by brother and sister thespians, Colin and Maggie Hodgkin. Local ministerial husband and wife team Chris and Jody Vitarelli fill two of the leading adult roles. Former Fenton High School Ambassador Darrell Wright holds down another lead role and his wife, Brienne and son, Jimmy are also in the show. Mother-daughter team Amy and Rachel Herman fill in two other roles.

"We've never had this many talented 'family' members on stage at one time," said Geno Essenmacher, of the Fenton Village Players. "Auditions are open to everyone, and some cast members for this musical come from as far away as Lansing and Flint, then closer to home in Fenton, Linden and Hartland."

"We've never had this many talented 'family' members on stage at one time."

Artistic Director Frank Pitts had to sort through more than 40 talented individuals to pick the top talent, according to Essenmacher. "Being 'family' had little to do with the casting."

The story of "The Secret Garden" is about a young girl who comes to live with her uncle. She then discovers and brings to life an ailing, healing garden, and in the process also brings back to life an ailing family member. "The power and range of the voices will blow you away," said Pitts.

Young artists are invited to submit their work for the Youth Art Show that will be held along with the Art Fair. These pieces will be on display in the main foyer at the high school. For more information about the youth art show, contact Kathleen Conover at (810) 591-3617.

VACATION

2. French Quarter, New Orleans, La.

No other American neighborhood provides as much "eye candy" as the cobblestone streets of "the French Quarter," the district bounded by the Mississippi River, Rampart Street and Canal and Esplanade. This is where you'll catch a glimpse of nightclubs lit up in neon, French colonial townhouses draped in ivy, Creole cottages built on stilts, etc.

3. National Mall, Washington D.C.

There's no place in America to get more historical bang for your buck than the National Mall. This less than two-mile stretch packs in memorials of Lincoln and Jefferson, as well as the Washington Monument, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial, among others, and it's line with Smithsonian Institution museums, which are free to visit.

4. Las Vegas Strip, Las Vegas, Nev.

This neon-lit desert outpost 300 miles from Los Angeles has a pull to the American public like no other. Perhaps it's the glass pyramids, faux Venetian canals, the 1,148-foot tall Stratosphere Tower or the $100 million daredevil circuses called the Cirque du Soleil. Aside from its new $2.4 billion airport terminal, Vegas' latest attraction is the Mob Museum (a.k.a. the National Museum of Organized Crime and Law Enforcement), a tribute to the mafia in real life and in pop culture.

5. Yellowstone National Park, Wyo.

Yellowstone debuted in 1872 as America's first national park, and visitors began flocking there to soak in its hot springs, see elk and bison roam its grasslands, gawk at the Old Faithful geyser and hear gray wolves howl.

6. Times Square, New York City

On the exact opposite extreme is Times Square, the stretch of Broadway between Manhattan's 42nd and 47th streets, which delivers the most intense visual stimulation round-the-clock of any place in the free world.

7. Nashville, Tenn.

Soaking up country music in its own habitat is an American music experience like no other. Some iconic destinations include the Country Music Hall of Fame, the Ryman Auditorium and the Grand Ole Opry, broadcast live since 1925. Countless honky-tonks line Broadway or you can head to midtown to pose in front of a life-size replica of the Greek Parthenon, which stands in Centennial Park.

8. Grand Canyon, Ariz.

Many American landmarks inspire people to think big, but none can match the scale of the Grand Canyon, best enjoyed by a half-day or overnight mule trip which involves a guided ride along the canyon rim down to the Colorado River.

9. Hollywood Walk of Fame, Los Angeles, Calif.

This year, Helen Mirren, James Franco, Usher, Jennifer Hudson, Ron Howard and another 19 actors and musicians will be added to the more than 2,400 celebrities who have left their handprints and bronze-engraved names along Hollywood Boulevard and Vine Street since 1958.

10. Disney's Magic Kingdom, Orlando, Fla.

Where else can you admire Cinderella's Castle, watch Princess Jasmine hug small children and listen to the animated model of Abe Lincoln talk in the Hall of Presidents? This is one rare American tourist trap that's worth the trip. Founder Walt Disney pioneered the use of technology and it's his handiwork that has made America's most beloved contribution to global culture.

11. Independence National Historical Park, Philadelphia, Penn.

Learn about the revolutionary ideas of equality and democracy discussed more than 230 years ago in Independence Hall, and see where the Constitution and Declaration of Independence were signed. Then visit the glass pavilion that houses the Liberty Bell, a two-ton bell that rang when the Declaration of Independence was first read aloud.

12. Taos Pueblo, N.M.

The Taos Pueblo contains the largest collection of multi-story pueblo dwellings in the U.S. — well worth its UNESCO World Heritage status. Some of the 2,000 Tiwa-speaking people who live on an adjacent reservation continue to use this six century-old settlement for ceremonial rites.

ANSWER: You take thyroid hormone because your thyroid gland doesn't produce enough of it. You are hypothyroid — low in thyroid hormone. Usually this is a lifelong condition, and taking the medicine is only supplying your body with something it needs. It's safe to take forever.

SPORTS TRIVIA

BASEBALL

Q Who was the first MLB pitcher to allow four consecutive home runs?

A It was against one-time Detroit Tiger Paul Foytack. He didn't do it with the Tigers, thankfully. While pitching for the Los Angeles Angels on July 31, 1963, he yielded home runs to four straight Cleveland Indians' batters.

David's DABBLINGS

As of mid-afternoon on Tuesday the Tigers have made one move to improve their bullpen before the trading deadline. On Monday, the Tigers traded for the Houston Astros' Jose Veras for minor league player Darryl Vasquez and a player to be named later.

Veras, 32, has saved 19 games in 22 opportunities this season, and holds a 1.00 WHIP. He probably won't take the closer's role in Detroit, but will be a valuable arm for seventh- and eighth-inning duties. As an added bonus, the Tigers have a team option to keep him through 2014.

The Tigers needed bullpen help, and Veras should provide just that. It's a solid pick-up and probably one the Tigers had to make. And, depending on who the player to be named later ends up being, it has cost the Tigers a minimal amount to this point.

It's safe to say with Veras' addition, I feel a tiny bit more confident with the Tigers' pen nearing the final third of the regular season.

Tour des Lacs adding a little party flavor to ride

► Charity bike ride is adding a hint of the 50s, 80s to Saturday's event

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

For those wanting to relive the '50s and the 80s', there's an athletic event that may cure your desires on Saturday.

The 11th annual Tour des Lacs, a charity bike ride that takes place in the streets around the tri-county area, plans on honoring those two decades at the hydration stations located on the bike routes — with a Mardi Gras feel to them.

"We'll have games at the hydration stations and those who finish the challenges will get Mardi Gras beads," said event director Kim Foerster. "One of them will involve hula hooping, and another sponsor trivia — just fun stuff. Nothing is going to get you muddy or anything."

For those that don't know, the Tour des Lacs involves bike routes of varying degrees of length. The shortest is 11 miles, and the lon-

Holly's Evin Papuga will play collegiate football at Michigan Tech this fall.

Holly's Papuga headed up north to Michigan Tech

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

Evin Papuga is an outdoors guy. So when the recent Holly graduate had to find a school to continue his football career at, Michigan Tech was a pretty nice choice.

Well it was nice for that reason and the academics. The ex-Holly running back and linebacker was primarily concerned with his academics and found that going to Michigan Tech made sense in that respect as well.

"I care about academics a lot," Papuga said. "I have a solid 3.5 (grade point average) and it's a real good academic school. It's up in the UP, and I'm an outdoors guy."

Papuga had an outstanding career with the Holly varsity football team, capped by a strong senior season. Offensively, Papuga rushed for 807 yards on 80 carries, averaging 10 yards an attempt. He scored nine rushing touchdowns and had a long run of 96 yards.

He also caught 12 passes for 157 yards and three more TDs.

"Evin did an outstanding job keeping our offense on the field, finding the dirty yards, and keeping the chains moving," Holly coach Ryan Culloty commented after the 2012 football season ended. "Evin was a critical reason why Holly scored the most points in school history."

On defense, Papuga had 111

Tyrone Hills Jr. Golf Program remains strong after 37 years

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

It began the same year Jimmy Carter took office.

And five U.S. Presidents later, it's still going on strong.

About 200 junior golfers took part in Tyrone Hills' final outing on July 25 during awards day. The event has been going on since 1977.

Among the winners was Corey Koscinski, who carded a 15 in the 3-hole boys event.

"It's fun playing with the other kids," Koscinski, 8, said. "I've learned to just have fun and don't get mad."

Koscinski wasn't the only champion. Winners were announced in four hole divisions for each sex. Leading the way in the 18-hole boys division was Fenton's Max Martin. Martin recorded an even-par 72, beating Joe Nagel's and Trevor Sundrla's second-place total of 80. In the girls' 18-hole division Sarah Cummings led the charge with an 80. Haley Larsen followed in second with a 90.

Koscinski won the boys three-hole division by a stroke over second-place Nathan Finch (16). It was equally close in the girls division. Casey Vadasz won with an 18, while Olivia Lemmen carded a 19.

Other champions were Jackson Foguth in the six-hole boys division with a 26, Avery Schaal in the six-hole girls division with a 34, Michael Cain and Collin Pajot in the nine-hole boys division with 43s, and Makenna Baldwin in the nine-hole girls division with a 38.

The junior golf program begins with clinics in early June and the five-week playing schedule began on June 20, playing rounds on the next four Thursdays thereafter.

"We went back to just playing this year instead of doing the instructional competitions," assistant pro Jon Hamilton said. "We still have the clinics that give instruction and then we have them play. It's a great program (Tyrone Hills pro) Denis (Husse) started it in 1977, and it's still going on strong."

"I had a lot of fun and I improved every round," Koscinski concluded.

their bikes for charity. The official start of the ride is at 8 a.m. on Saturday, but cyclists can start as late as 10 a.m. And afterward, there will be an after-event party at The Laundry, which is where the biking begins as well.

This is the 11th annual race with most of its proceed going to the University of Michigan's C.S. Mott Children's Hospital Congenital Heart Center. Also, $1 of every entry will go to the League of Michigan Bicyclists. Foerster is amazed the event is starting its 11th year, and credits the volunteers for the ride's success.

"No, I can't believe it. I was talking with Ron Stack and can't believe it's been 11 years," Foerster said. "I just keep my fingers crossed."

"It's a huge hit with the volunteers and they are the reason for its success. We have more volunteers than ever who want to be a part of it."

Foerster said a lot of the volunteers remain on board every year of the event.

"As long as we are having fun, are blessed with committed people on the committee, we'll keep on doing it. We have great sponsors who do it year after year."

The event brings many of the same cyclists each year. And a few groups also attend every year, competing for the traveling trophy for the group with the most cyclists. The Herd of Turtles have earned the trophy each of the last two years. And, of course, every year comes with some new heart-drenching stories as many attend due to family members who have suffered from heart defects. The Foerstes lost a child, Braylon, due to heart defects. It is estimated over 40,000 babies are born every year with congenital heart defects.

"The really exciting part that keeps you going are the really cool stories people share about someone they love who was affected by it," Foerster said. "A woman called this morning. Her husband has been competing (athletically) for 30 years and had a heart defect without ever knowing it."

"People share their stories and keep coming back year-after-year."

At the end of the ride, cyclists are encouraged to attend the post-event party held at The Laundry. The theme will be an 80s party.

Registration starts at 7 a.m. on Saturday at The Laundry. For more information on the event go to www.tdl4charity.com.

Bill Glozier of Fenton recorded his third hole-in-one of his career on Friday, July 19 while golfing at Southmoor Golf Course in Burton. He and friends Richard Gerard, Dave Rodgers and Barry Bradish were nearing the end of nice round of golf when the excitement happened. Glozier teed off on hole 17, a 140-yard, par 3. He and the others thought he overshot his drive and searched for his ball when they got to the green. Rodgers finally spotted Glozier's Top-Flite ball in the cup. "They were more excited about it than me," said Glozier.

Bill Glozier

Hartley captures Tyrone's Libbers Cup for second time

►Strong first round sparks Hartley's title

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

It's been a busy time for Nick Hartley lately.

He's a newlywed, has a new home and has a new job. It hasn't allowed him to play a lot of golf this summer.

But, he did find some time to play in Tyrone Hills' Men's Open Tournament recently, and he's probably glad he did. Hartley captured the Libbers Cup for the second time in his career by posting a two-day, 36-hole score of 67-70-137 during Tyrone Hills' annual event.

"I haven't been playing a ton of golf. It was pretty surprising to say the least to shoot seven-under (par) for the tournament. It was one of those weekends when everything just feels right and I was happy."

Hartley has only played golf twice in June and twice in July, so he really had little idea of how well he'd play. But it's one of those events he loves playing, so he found time for it.

"I plan on it every year. It's a fun tournament," Hartley said. "I went out to enjoy playing some golf during the weekend. But sometimes when you go out relaxed, you play better."

There's always a good chance Hartley will do well when he plays at Tyrone Hills. After all, when he won his first title in 2008, Hartley set the course record with an opening-round 62. This time he didn't start with a 62, but did lead the tourney with a fine 67 during the first round, one stroke ahead of good friend Ryan Munro's 68 and two strokes ahead of another good pal Jim Leedle's 70.

Tyrone Hills Men's Open results

Here is a list of the top performers in the recent Tyrone Hills Men's Open Tournament.

Player	Score
Nick Hartley	67-70-137
Zach Szczepanski	71-69-140
Jim Leedle	70-74-144
Bryce Messner	71-74-145
Tracy Bowlby	74-72-146

Hartley continued to play well on the second day, carding a 70, while Leedle carded a 74 and Munro an 81, seemingly creating himself some breathing room. However, runner-up Zach Szczepanski was on his way to posting a 69. So when Hartley found out about Szczepanski's round with three holes left, he knew he had some work to complete.

"He was four-under on the day and I still had two of the toughest holes to come," Hartley said about the 16th and 17th holes. "I just wanted to get by those holes."

Hartley did with pars, pretty much icing up his tourney.

Hartley said Tyrone Hills is set up well for his game.

"There's not a ton of trouble and there are a lot of birdie opportunities," Hartley said. "If I miss a couple chances, I don't get frustrated because I know there will be more chances."

He also played the par-threes well, at 2-under-par for the tourney.

"The par-threes are tough and I played them at two-under. Normally I'll play them four to five over, so that was a big difference."

Hartley has a group of friends he loves competing against, and they all make the Men's Invitational a part of their summers. That group includes Leedle, Munro, T.J. Rice and Mitch Pierce. Leedle finished in third with a 70-74-144, while Munro was tied for seventh with Rice with a 149. Szczepanski carded a 71-69-140 to place second, while Bryce Messner was fourth with a 145 and Tracy Bowlby was sixth with a 146. Forrest Menzing took sixth (147).

"It's a competitive factor among the five of us, but (Tyrone PGA Professional) Dennis (Husse) puts on a really nice tournament. That's why we keep coming back. They get 75 to 100 guys out there and that's a testament to the people. This was my 10th year in a row playing in it. It's a good event."

PAPUGA

tackles, including 6.5 sacks. He also forced three fumbles. Papuga also recently competed in the annual Michigan All-Star Football game.

Papuga also will join good friend and teammate Johnny Williams at Michigan Tech. Williams, a quarterback, rushed for 1,440 yards and 23 TDs, while throwing for 602 yards and eight TDs. The pair combined for 95 percent of the team's rushing yards. Papuga will play safety or a hybrid linebacker spot. Papuga is excited about his opportunity.

"I've always had a dream about it," Papuga said. "I've worked hard ever since the third grade and wanted to move on to play at a higher level. I want to get on TV."

In some ways, Papuga has already satisfied that second goal, because the all-star contest was on television.

Papuga's play

Here is a look at some of Evin Papuga's stats during his senior season at Holly High School.

Offense

- Rushed for 807 yards on 80 attempts, good for just over 10 yards a carry. Also scored nine rushing TDs.

- Caught 12 passes for 157 yards and three scores.

Defense

- Had 70 total tackles, including 14 for loss and 6.5 were sacks.

- Forced three fumbles and broke up one pass attempt.

Special teams

- Had a 98-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

TRI-COUNTY TIMES | SCOTT SCHUPBACH

Holly's Evin Papuga will play collegiate football at Michigan Tech this fall. He is expected to play on defense.

The Huskies are a Division 2 athletic program and enter the 2013 season as the defending Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletics Conference champions. For the last three seasons the Huskies have been among the GLIAC's contenders, posting a combined record of 22-9 during those three seasons.

Papuga is preparing for the college level by hitting the books.

"I have to stay mentally in it," Papuga said. "My teachers always told me to read a couple of books over the summer because once college starts you'll be reading every day."

"I'm pretty ready to take on school. Michigan Tech is a tough academic school, but I'm ready because I've taken my academics seriously."
