Fenton Twp. — More than a year after acquiring land near Wiggins and Thompson roads in Fenton Township, officials are still working out plans to build a public park. On Wednesday, officials discussed plans on how to move the project further and to start building support for the park.

Trustee Vince Lorraine said that while the park would be beneficial for the public, a comprehensive plan has to be laid out before officials can begin to gather support from local business owners.

"What we want to do is a great idea. But if we do it wrong, we're going to get hammered on it by residents," Lorraine said. "Business See PARK on 9A 1 I truly believe that through contributions and volunteerism, this can work.77

FENTON MAN SHOPLIFTS VIDEO GAMES

At 5:20 p.m. on July 24, Fenton police responded to a retail store in the 3700 block of Owen Road to investigate a retail fraud complaint. Police Chief Rick Aro said a male customer was observed selecting and concealing video games underneath his clothing and exiting without paying. A loss prevention employee escorted the man, identified as a 29-year-old Fenton resident, back inside and detained him until police arrived. The man apparently selected a couple of video games, entered the bathroom where he removed the packaging and concealed them in his pants. He did this multiple times. In all, police recovered seven games, including three that he had already taken out to his car. He was issued a court appearance ticket for retail fraud. The man admitted to the theft and said he planned to sell the games to a friend.

Younger generation still crave news

Study reports majority of 18- to 34-year-olds still read newspapers

By William Axford

axford@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792 "Newspapers are dead."

"Long live newspapers." Since the heyday of the Roman Empire, newspapers were the go-to source for the most upto-date information. But with the advent of the Internet, the news industry has undergone a transformation where people have more resources to access more information. As the younger generation continues to grow up with the Internet, the perception is Millennials (people age 18 to 31) are reading less news.

But recent studies have suggested the opposite. According to a recent article by the Newspaper Association of America (NAA), 57 percent of Millennials read a print or online newspaper at least once a week. Of those surveyed, 55 percent said their local newspaper reports stories that have the public's best interests in mind.

How much is a million dollars really? After all, it's a number that gets thrown around a lot. You hear it in movies, TV commercials, game shows, business reports and ransom notes. Growing up, every kid's goal was to be a millionaire. How often have you said, 'I'd give a million dollars for (blank).' And yet, I don't know anyone who has actually ever actually seen a million dollars in cash. How big would the pile be? Would it actually fit in a briefcase? Would it be too heavy for a grocery bag?

Today, we put these 'million dollar questions' to bed once and for all. My first step in solving this conundrum was to go to the bank and withdraw one

No problem. Next I visited a local printing company where a nice young lady named Kelli, after determining that I was not planning on actually counterfeiting real money, helped me select a grade of paper most closely resembling actual currency stock. She also reminded me that I would not be able to pay for the paper with fake bills. Insulted, I paid with a fake check.

And so, armed with 2,500 sheets of appropriate paper stock, I began the process of cutting ten thousand bogus one hundred dollar bills. A couple of hours later I proudly surveyed my one hundred packets, each containing one hundred 'bills,' thereby accurately representing one million dollars in cash.

My findings: a pile containing one million dollars in cash is much bulkier and heavier than it appears to be in movies. It's about the size of four shoe boxes and

Dear editor.

The photograph of the smiling 18-yearold cancer survivor holding a gun over a dead Cinnamon Bear is a sad example of what our world has become! Calling this killing a sport makes no sense. If the helpless bear had a high-powered rifle then you have yourself a competition! If this young lady were in need of a new bear coat, bear meat, or was trying to perhaps protect her family from a ferocious man-eating intruder in her home, justifiable. To survive cancer, then get a thrill out of killing a beautiful part of nature, completely minding his own business in the wilderness is such a waste, and should not be applauded. I just don't understand why killing for no reason is fun or a thrill to anyone. Animals are not trophies and the Times should not pass this off as a heroic act or an accomplishment.

of the act. "Not collecting sales taxes, which in 2012 trimmed state revenues by more than $23 billion, results in a smaller sales tax base and an inefficient system that stifles job creation and economic growth," he said.

Support is split between both sides of the bill. Many brick and mortar stores support the idea, as they find it difficult to compete with online sales that are essentially tax-less. However, other small businesses that rely on Internet sales for a large portion of their businesses believe that managing the new tax code is so difficult and costly, and it will render them unable to continue their own businesses.

The bill passed the Senate last May, and next requires to be voted on the House of Representatives.

State has first confirmed West Nile Virus case

 Residents are reminded to take precautions to avoid mosquito bites

Michigan health officials have identified the state's first confirmed human case of West Nile Virus (WNV) for 2013 in a man from St. Joseph County (southwest area of state), and are reminding people to protect themselves against mosquito bites.

West Nile can cause serious neurological illnesses, such as meningitis and encephalitis. Last year, 202 WNV illnesses and 17 fatalities were reported in Michigan.

"We have clear evidence that West Nile Virus is present in the state again this summer," said Dr. Matthew Davis, Chief Medical Executive at the MDCH. "Taking a few minutes to protect ourselves and our loved ones from mosquito bites can make a big difference."

Statewide, eight birds have tested positive for WNV so far this season, including six crows from Saginaw (4), Bay (1) and Midland (1) counties, one wild turkey from Gratiot County and one Coopers hawk from Wayne County.

No WNV positive mosquito pools have been detected. Infected birds and mosquitoes can provide an early warning of WNV activity in a community, re-enforcing the need for residents to take precautions to avoid mosquito bites.

Citizens can report sightings of sick or dead birds on the West Nile virus website at www.michigan.gov/westnilevirus.

Michigan residents are encouraged to take the following steps to avoid WNV:

Maintain window and door screening to help keep mosquitoes out of buildings.Empty water from mosquito breeding sites such as buckets, unused kiddie pools, old tires or similar sites where mosquitoes lay eggs.Use nets and/or fans over outdoor eating areas.

• Avoid being outdoors at dusk and dawn when mosquitoes are most active.

• Wear light colored, long-sleeved shirts and long pants when outdoors.

• Apply insect repellents that contain the active ingredient DEET, or other EPA-approved product to exposed skin or clothing, always following the manufacturer's directions for use.

Choose a repellent concentration rated for the time you will spend outdoors. When applying repellent to children, apply it to your own hands and rub them on the child. Avoid the eyes and mouth and do not apply to children's hands because they sometimes put their hands in their mouths. Do not apply repellents to infants under 6 months of age and instead place nets over strollers and baby carriers.

Most people bitten by a WNV-infected mosquito show no symptoms of illness. However, some become sick three to 15 days after exposure. About one-in-five infected persons will have mild illness with fever. About one in 150 infected people will become severely ill.

Symptoms of encephalitis (inflammation of the brain) and meningitis (inflammation of the spinal cord and brain linings) include stiff neck, stupor, disorientation, coma, tremors, muscle weakness, convulsions and paralysis.

People 50 and older are more susceptible to severe WNV disease symptoms. Physicians are urged to test patients for WNV if they present with fever and signs of meningitis or encephalitis, or sudden painless paralysis in the absence of stroke in the summer months. For more information and surveillance activity about WNV, visit www.michigan.gov/westnilevirus.

Are you throwing too much food away?

►Local experts share tips on proper freezing and refrigerating

By Tim Jagielo

tjagielo@tctimes.com; 810-433-6795 No one likes to waste food or the feeling of money literally going into the garbage whenever it happens.

Avoiding air, moisture and handling will help keep all foods fresher longer, and each type of food can be kept safe for consumption in slightly different ways.

Perhaps the biggest waste of money is seeing expensive beef, poultry or fish get tossed. Unfortunately, meat will always go bad near the sell, or freeze-by date marked on the package.

Mark Russell, VG's on Silver Parkway Meat Department manager, said storing meat starts with a good refrigerator. If the meat can be stored in a separate meat keeper, which limits the exposure to air when the refrigerator is opened, the meat can be kept fresher, and kept at between 35 and 45 degrees Fahrenheit, ideally.

Beef will last about four days in the refrigerator, pork five days, and seafood two.

The best method of preserving meat is properly freezing without the Styrofoam tray in either a vacuum sealed bag, or a thick freezer bag. It can last six months to a year or more if safely frozen.

Meat should not be thawed and refrozen because it will help break down the meat.

A lot of people make the mistake of thawing their meat on counter tops after being frozen — this can lead to food borne illness. "You don't want to thaw out anything on counter tops," he said.

The safest method is slowly thawing meat out in the refrigerator, trickling cold water onto meat in a container. In the summer, get that meat back to refrigerator from the store as soon as possible.

Lunch meat has a shelf life of about six days once it's opened, according to Annette Spiece, VG's on North LeRoy Deli manager. Before opening, it should be maintained at about 38 degrees.

The best way to keep lunch meat safe is to only touch and open what you plan to use — human hands spread bacteria, which contributes to the food breaking down, and this goes for cheese as well.

salads or reheated food, the rule is the same. Only open/ touch what you plan to eat, and only reheat what you plan to immediately eat. "It's better to only heat up one portion," she said.

With baked goods, common sense prevails — keep it away from air to keep the moisture in, and store the right items in the refrigerator.

Cakes and English muffins, toasting bread and bagels can be kept in the refrigerator. Carey Jackson, North LeRoy VGs Bakery manager said though it's tempting, storing regular bread in the refrigerator doesn't necessarily help stave off the stale and the excess moisture may cause it to mold quicker.

A cake can more than double its life expectancy by being covered and refrigerated.

Cindy Caudle Assistant Produce Manager at the LeRoy Street VGs refrigerates most of her fruit and vegetables unless she wants them to ripen quicker.

Potatoes and onions are the only ones she doesn't keep in the fridge, and most of her veggies go in the crisper.

Some fruits like apples and peaches give off a gas that will help anything close by ripen, so it helps to separate them from other produce. Don't save cut potatoes they also give off a gas once they're cut, which will cause quick ripening.

To ensure bananas ripen correctly, keep the temperature even — don't store them in the fridge or against anything cold.

To keep lettuce fresh, trim the bottom stalk, rinse it and keep in a bag that allows airflow.

Real Simple Magazine online compiled a detailed list for different dairy products. Again, these items should be kept in the refrigerator. Soft cheeses like mozzarella should be kept in airtight containers once opened. Semi-hard cheeses should be wrapped with wax paper before being placed in a resealable plastic bag.

Q. I think I may have a bird building a nest in my dryer vent, isn't there supposed to be a screen that stops them from getting into my vent?

A. No. dryer vent hoods come in two styles. If you have the louvered style and any of the flaps are missing critters can get in, and it looks like a dandy spot to nest to a bird. If you have the hood style, there should be a flapper inside the hood. Over time lint can build up at the opening and hold the flapper open allowing enough space for the critters to enter. If you put a screen in the opening the lint will plug the vent and your clothes will take hours to dry if at all. Take the time to inspect your vent to insure it is closing properly between loads! Local families sought to host exchange students

Fenton area families are sought to host foreign exchange students who will study at local high schools for a semester or school year. Families of all types are eligible to host. Families are expected to treat their exchange students as family members. The students, who will arrive in August, are participating in SHARE!, a high school exchange program to learn firsthand about Americans and our way of life. They speak English, have medical insurance, and bring spending money for personal expenses. For more information call Larry and Heather Kokx at (810) 429-7801, or email kokx97@ charter.net.

Michigan DNR Boating Safety Certificate Class

Persons who have reached the age of 12 or who will be 12 by Aug. 1, 2013 are eligible to take a course that will be taught by Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) certified instructors. Anyone born after July 1, 1996 must have the above certificate. The course will be held at the Argentine Township Fire Hall at 9048 West Silver Lake Rd., Linden on Tuesday, Aug. 6 and Thursday, Aug.8 from 6-9 p.m. Registration starts at 5:30 p.m. Participants must attend both sessions. The course is not limited to students - adults are also welcome. Enroll by Friday, Aug. 2 by calling Marty Vyskocil at (810) 423-5674 or by email to martyv50@aol.com. The cost is $25 per student to be paid at registration. Cash or a check made payable to LBLA (Lobdell-Bennett Lake Association) will be accepted. Students are asked to bring a pencil, a pen and highlighter to class. Pizza and pop will be served before class on Aug. 8.

Free CPR training session in Fenton Township on Aug. 17

State Rep. Joe Graves and the Genesee County Sheriff's Marine Division will conduct cardio-pulmonary resuscitation training at a free class on Saturday, Aug. 17. The CPR session will take place from 9 a.m. to noon at the Fenton Township Office, 12060 Mantawauka Drive in Fenton. "CPR can be used in so many instances, and spending a few hours on a Saturday morning to learn how to save a life is well worth the time," said Graves (R-Argentine Township). "That's particularly true with the number of lakes that we have in the 51st House District, where CPR could make a difference between a near-drowning and a drowning." Residents interested in enrolling in the class must RSVP by Wednesday, Aug. 14 to attend. Call Graves toll-free at 866-989-5151 or email him at JoeGraves@house.mi.gov to reserve a spot for the training.

Under Krug's original proposal, funding for the park would come at a minimum to township residents. Instead, volunteerism and fundraising from local businesses would help spur the growth of the park. So far, Krug has secured the support of the La Forza Soccer Club, local Little League teams and Lawrence Engineering PC, which has drawn maps of the park that have been submitted to the planning commission.

At an estimated $500,000 for construction, building the park may take years and numerous donations. Krug expects the park to be completed in three different phases, with phase one costing roughly $250,000. Krug said township officials have all the necessary permits for the park. All that remains now is collecting

According to National Public Radio, at least 52 percent of Millennials read a newspaper at least once a month, just like adults from other generations. One thought as to why print media is declining lies with advertisement - news media outlets are competing with services like Craigslist, eBay and other sites that exist to specifically sell items.

The NAA study reports that 68 percent of Millennials interacted in some way to print newspapers however, indicating that online advertising may not be the only way to grab the attention of younger people.

The studies may give some comfort to newspaper enthusiasts as bigger newspapers across the country continue to layoff and restructure their staff while pushing readers to view the news online.

Since then, media outlets in Louisiana have reported a declining readership in the newspaper, with many readers switching to smaller local news publications. The Oregonian took a similar approach earlier this year and has faced a declining readership as well.

So which newspapers are continuing to succeed? According to a study by the University of Kentucky, Hyper-local newspapers, like The Times, are expected to continue to thrive. Timmery Foster of R&C Homemade Bakes says that with farmers markets, everyone wins. "It's very local, and it supports our local economy. People buy my things, and I take that money and go and continue to spend it here in the community," she said.

On Thursday, at the Fenton Farmers Market, Dustin Rayner of Fenton purchased some peppers for his homemade salsa, which he cans and eats throughout the winter. Rayner regularly visits the farmers markets in Fenton, Linden, Holly and Oakland County in order to secure all of the produce necessary for his salsa.

"It's nice to have places where you can come and get fresh produce," Rayner said. "There's more variety of vegetables this year but it seems like the tomatoes are taking longer to grow."

Farmers Kenneth and Sally Maher of Byron, who had a booth at the Fenton Farmers Market, said the weather between this summer and last summer have been near polar opposites.

"This year there's too much rain, last year there wasn't enough," Kenneth said. "Hopefully it won't stay too wet for too long. We could have awfully good tomatoes, potatoes and corn in the next few weeks though."

SPORTS TRIVIA BASEBALL

Has there ever been a trade between MLB teams for managers? Yes, and it involved the Tigers. On Aug. 3, 1960, the Tigers traded manager Jimmie Dykes to Cleveland for the Indians' manager Joe Gordon. Gordon was fired at the end of the 1960 season.

David's DABBLINGS

Dave Dombrowski earned his paycheck last week.

His moves addressed two big concerns the Tigers have, but at the same time he did so without giving away as much as I may have suspected.

With Jhonny Peralta's name linked to a potential 50-game suspension by Monday, the entire baseball world knew the Tigers were desperate to improve their shortstop situation. Yet, Dombrowski improved that situation with the addition of Jose Iglesias, a 23-year-old shortstop from Boston. In the process the Tigers lost Avisail Garcia and relief pitcher Brayan Villarreal, but it seemed to me it probably could've been worse. Losing Garcia could be a blow, but now the Tigers have a strong defensive shortstop who the Tigers can control for a few years. Not bad. Not bad at all.

And, of course, the addition of reliever Jose Veras can only aid the Tigers. Depending on the player-to-be-named later, it looks like he came to Detroit pretty cheap as well.

Good job, Dombrowski.

Conditioning - Marines style ▶ LF football team drilled by Marine sergeant during recent session

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789 Lake Fenton — Football is usually about throwing footballs.

But on Thursday, it was about throwing grenades. It also was about doing firemen's carries and lifting ammo containers at Lake Fenton High School.

For about two hours, Marine Sgt. Allen Sullivan ran Lake Fenton's conditioning session on Thursday morning. And during it, the Blue Devils earned a sense of brothership among each other and got in some good and diverse conditioning, while learning a tiny bit about the challenges a recruit goes through to become a Marine.

"Honestly, it was a good experience," Lake Fenton senior Neil Allor said. "I didn't know it was going on until I got here. That 75-yard (obstacle course) was the hardest thing I've done in a long time. It taught teamwork. It pushes you through everything. It was a good team building experience today."

Conditioning started with about a half-mile run. But, from there, the Lake Fenton football players took part in a 75yard combat fitness test. It began with an athlete sprinting and then doing a dolphin dive and crawl. Eventually, back up on his feet, the athlete finds a teammate who is representing an injured solider. First, the teammate drags the injured player about 10 yards and lifts him in a firemen's carry and took him to the start destination.

Once back at the start, the participant had to carry two ammo boxes, both weighing between 30 and 35 pounds, and run them to an area where they stop, do some push-ups and throw See MARINES on 19A

Spring Meadows concludes strong Jr. golf season By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

Hannah Joslin has worked hard on her golf game since March.

It paid off recently when Spring Meadows held its Junior Golf Tournament.

Joslin, who will be a junior at Linden High School in the fall, captured the 18-hole division of the Spring Meadows Country Club's 18-hole girls division at the junior golf outing. She finished the twoday, 36-hole tourney with a score of 189.

"I was very excited to win," Joslin said. "I have been practicing and working on my game since March with a local pro, Joel Hoffman. It's always great when it pays off. It's the first time I've won it. Julie Guckian has been the previous title holder and she has been a great mentor and friend."

Molly Gundry placed second in the 18-hole girls event.

In the 18-hole boys division, Alec Bond captured the top spot, posting a two-day-36-hole score of 75-77-152. Zack Sutika placed second.

Joslin and Bond were just two of many division champions for the program. Other boys winners were Tommy Hagerman in the nine-hole boys event, Ryder Spees and Evan Brown in the five-hole division, Preston Evans and Kyle Dunfield in the three-hole division and Cole Essmann and Kaden Latreille in the one-hole division.

It was not uncommon for teammates, or Sgt. Sullivan, to encourage players while they accomplished the task.

"You have this buddy," senior Alex Schwartz told Andy Donoho, the teammate who carried Schwartz. "This is nothing."

The event ended with Andrew Foerster doing the final run by himself, to the applause of his teammates.

"It's a lot of fun doing something different," Schwartz said. "A lot of the obstacles are similar to things we do every day. We do tire drills and running through chutes and stuff like that. It's definitely a lot of fun, and a lot of team building, too."

"Running with the ammo supply things was the toughest part," Allor said. "You are already so tired from doing the other stuff ... your legs feel it."

But that wasn't the end of the day. Sgt. Sullivan challenged the athletes to lift ammo boxes to their heads as many times as possible during a designated period of time. Typically, an athlete started strong, but by about the minute mark, the wear and tear on each person's face started to show. Schwartz's face showed as much strain as anyone, but he still found a way to earn 123 lifts.

The team ended with push-ups. However, these were five-person ladder pushups. Each team lined up with one person in front, one in back and three in the middle. All five did pushups together with their arms and legs connected in the chain.

Sgt. Sullivan asked the players how many games they were going to play this year, and many instinctively yelled out "14." That number includes the five playoff contests it takes to win a state championship. That became the number of push-ups each team had to complete. Sullivan allowed Lake Fenton football coach Eric Doyle to push the team to complete the final one.

"You have to relay on each other," Doyle told his exhausted team.

They did, and it was one of the best group push-ups of the 14.

"This was our last summer conditioning segment so this is a good way to wrap

Fenton's Hackenberry preparing to coach first-ever Clearly women's soccer team By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789 Thomas Hackenberry doesn't have a lot of time to put a team together.

But the Fenton resident and ex-Fenton city council member is up to the challenge.

Hired about two weeks ago, Hackenberry will lead Cleary University's firstever women's soccer team this fall. He replaces initial first-year coach Andrew Callahan, who resigned for personal reasons. "It's exciting in on the ground floor. You either get all the credit or all the blame. It's going to be exciting, and there's no doubt we are going to set some records. The girls I've talked to are excited about it too. It's an exciting opportunity."

Right now, Hackenberry is still trying to get himself a complete roster for the school's first year in the United States Collegiate Athletic Association. The season begins soon, with the first game scheduled at Lawrence Tech on Aug. 21.

"I know we have a 17-game schedule and things are running pretty tight," said Hackenberry. "It's a rather small squad. Our roster amounts to 12 players, so it's a pretty light bench. And our first practice is on Monday.

"I'm still trying to find some players. I am looking for graduates who play soccer and are interested in a degree in business administration. That's what Cleary offers. In the past few days I made contacts with Fenton, Holly and Linden's athletic programs looking to recruit some last-minute kids. I'll probably accept players the day before the first game.'

Hackenberry had coached 22 different teams during his career, ranging from four-year old squads to high school athletes. Most of those teams he coached in the Holly/Fenton area. He served as the Regional Coach Administrator for the American Youth Soccer Organization for Holly/Davisburg for seven years and was the Area Coach Administrator for the AYSO Area 8-G, providing oversight and support for 10 mid-Michigan regions.

"I coached a team called the Clicken Chickens, a U19 program, for three years. I coached them when they were much younger but some of the kids told me, 'We enjoy high school soccer, but we had our most fun playing for you.' So I coached a U19 team for three years.'

Hackenberry has lived in Fenton since 1976. He's still learning his team but is encouraged.

"I haven't met them face-to-face, but I've had several telephone conversations and gotten to know them through the press releases when they signed," Hackenberry said. "I don't have a great feel for their skill levels, although they did make it this far and have some nice credentials."

Hackenberry played soccer at Amherst Central High School in New York, and played at SUNY College in Buffalo before entering the Coast Guard. This will be his first collegiate coaching position.

TRI-COUNTY TIMES I DAVID TROPPENS

"My goal at the meet was to get first place, but I was not sure if I would because there were some good jumpers there," Hall said. "I was nervous. I was not sure if I was going to win, but that was what I wanted to do. I was thinking high 17s might win, maybe the 18s."

Hall knew she was strong when she posted the impressive first jump.

"My goal was around 18 and I kept on climbing," Hall said. "(The winning leap) was my second jump. I knew I was in first, but I didn't know if I would stay there. But it did take some of the pressure off. My third jump was a really good jump, but I fouled.

"I was really excited (to win). All my hard work finally paid off. I'm a national champion. I'm very excited."

Hall hasn't even started her high school career, but she's already proving she can compete with the best in the state. Last year she jumped 18-7 at an AGS Middle School meet, and she also took second in a Michigan indoor track meet meet with a leap of 17-8. She was the only middle school athlete competing in that indoor long jump event.

It used to be her mom was good competiition for Maddie. The family have created a photo that has Maddie jumping on one side and her mom on the other. But it's quite possible the rite of passage has hit that relationship as well.

'At practice we have competitions to see who can jump further," Maddie said. "I win, of course."

Hall used to play soccer but has bypassed that sport to concentrate on track, and specifically the long jump. She's been competing for seven years.

"It's fun," Hall said about long jumping. "It's a lot of fun when I jump far. It's a feeling of accomplishment."

In the long term, Hall hopes her future accomplishments earn her a spot in the 2016 Olympic Trials.

Hall's younger sister, Emma, also had a strong showing at the meet. She placed 11th in the 11-year old long jump (13-6 1/4) and also was a member of a 34thplace 1,600 relay team (5:15.15).

Other area athletes competed at the event. Fenton graduate Kira Rentschler took 16th in the 17-18 discus throw (98-10), while Emma Hiscock placed 28th in the 12-year old girls long jump (13-0 1/2). Finally, Justin Mattingly placed 80th in the 15-16 boys 100 meter dash (11.87 seconds).

Arcadia Bluffs, located in northern Michigan, is on the "top 100 golf courses in America" list.

HOLE-IN-ONE

While getting a hole-in-one is a milestone event in anyone's life, it is particularly poignant for Smith, who lost his older brother Brad to an aneurysm on March 4, 2011, at age 45.

"He was the golfer in the family," said Brett, a fifth-grade teacher at Linden Elementary School. "I'm not a golfer at all. I play once a year in a golf outing to raise money for a college fund for Brad's two kids, and maybe one or two other times, that's it. My passion is slow-pitch softball."

Given a chance invitation from friends to play at Arcadia Bluffs with a free guest pass, Brett was hesitant to accept the offer. "I admit I'm a terrible golfer," he said. "I've never even been on a golfing trip. I called a friend to get golf advice and he told me I had to play this course, because it's the most beautiful in the world."

Brett decided to accept, and he would do it in memory of Brad. He asked Brad's widow, Kathy, if he could borrow Brad's clubs, his golf cap, shirt, even his golf shoes. The foursome set out to play, and at once, were awed by the course's beauty. "You have awesome views of Lake Michigan at every hole," said Brett. "I was paying more attention to that than my golf game."

By the time Brett had reached the 13th tee, he had already lost more than 20 golf balls. "You either hit the green or you're down in the bluff," said Brett. "All I wanted to do on this 168-yard hole was hit the ball over the valley and onto the green. I teed the ball really high and hit it with Brad's driver. The ball came down, shot up in the air 10 feet and went into the hole. No one could believe it 'til we drove our cart to the hole and I actually plucked the ball out." (See video on tctimes.com)

As soon as Brett drove that ball into the 13th hole, he thought of Brad. "I knew he was looking down on me and smiling. I believe he watches me constantly."

> In case others might think that Brett is just being humble about his golf game, he shared his final score for that 18-hole round of golf: 128. "I slowed everyone down so much that they told us on the first nine that we had to speed up," admitted Brett. "I got caught up in the scenery of the course. It was just so beautiful."

But in the end, Brett admitted that the hole-in-one was not about him at all, it was about Brad. "I'm so happy to have been able to do something that honored my brother," said Brett.

Fenton location excites staff and patients

Keep your eyes on the Fenton Vision Center. They continue to be the leader in style, technology and medical advances in the practice of optometry in the tricounty area.

The Fenton Vision Center offices of Juan Alvarado, O.D. and Cynthia Cupal, O.D., F.A.A.O. moved last year to 212 W. Silver Lake Rd., in the heart of downtown Fenton. "Our patients and staff love our location," said Alvarado. "We're in the cultural area of the city with shopping and coffee shops. We also have lots of convenient parking."

Their building includes a fashion optical boutique, spacious exam rooms, an on-site optical lab, a conference room for staff training and families of young patients – plus lots of large windows to enjoy the downtown area while waiting for appointments, etc.

Their offices offer not only the latest in technology, but also one of the largest inventories of frames in the tri-county area. Patients will appreciate their high fashion optical area designed after upscale optical boutiques in metro areas. "Rather than having all of our frame selections out on a counter, they are narrowed down by design and kept in easy access optical drawers," said Alvarado. "Patients coming in to select frames can easily narrow down their frame choice with our new system."

Some of the most in-demand frames include styles by Oakley, Coach, Dolce & Gabbana, Prada, Ed Hardy, Vision der in ances he trices of a Cuear to Harley-Davidson, Juicy Couture and Aframes. There are frame styles to suit just about every taste and budget.

Fenton Vision Center is pleased to have on staff the services of licensed optician Cherie Campbell. "She has been > with us for more than 12 years and brings her skill in dispensing glasses and contact lenses as a licensed optician to our patients," said Cupal. "It's rare for a practice to have a licensed professional in this area, and we are very happy that she's part of our team." The staff of Fenton Vision Center includes five employees, in addition to the husband and wife optometry team of Cupal and Alvarado. Together, they bring to their patients a high level of practice and specialization. "We're a full service optometry practice for all ages." said Alvarado. "We see patients under age 1 at no cost, so we can test their vision and eye development. Our patients then go through their senior years under our care, treating them for glaucoma, macular degeneration, diabetes-related vision issues and more."

Cupal's specialization in the diagnosis and treatment of glaucoma brings many patients from the Kellogg Eye Institute at University of Michigan for close monitoring at Fenton Vision Center. "We get referrals from the Kellogg Eye Institute at U-M Hospital to monitor the surgical success of patients who live in our area. We take this work very seriously." Cupal had practiced for five years at Bascom-Palmer Eye Institute in Miami, Florida and five years at the Kellogg Eye Institute before coming home to the Fenton area to open the practice in 2001.

Fenton Vision Center is also proud to specialize in vision therapy and low vision, offering vision help to all ages. They're committed to providing the latest in technology so that vision impairment, eye injuries and diseases of the eye can be detected and treated early.

Their latest equipment is a new Visual Evoked Potential (VEP) machine, which helps the doctors see how well the eye is communicating with the brain — in patients as young as 6 months. "It's like an EKG or EEG for the eyes," said Alvarado.

Both Cupal and Alvarado are passionate about the importance of nutrition and eye health and are pleased to have been accepted as members of the Ocular Nutrition Society — a very strict group of doctors of optometry and ophthalmology that study nutrition as it relates to the eyes. "Your eyes tell a lot about your overall health," said Cupal.

'I love you to the moon and back'

► Mother-daughter mantra even more special as I begin freshman year at MSU

This phrase was my mother's mantra when I was growing up. As a little girl, I went almost my whole life without truly realizing what this statement meant. It is supposed to be a measure of distance; the miles from the moon and back being the amount of love my mother had for me.

I misinterpreted it to mean that no matter where I was, whether it be Fenton, Michigan, across the world, to the moon or any place in between, my mother would be by my side loving and supporting me the whole time.

My first day of kindergarten, I realized that my mother would, in fact, not be by my side all the time. She was, however, hovering outside the door of my colorful classroom, occasionally shooting me a smile or holding up her pinkie, pointer finger and thumb: the sign language symbol for 'I love you.'

I'm not sure on what day I woke up and decided to be an adult — or at least act more like one. When did I trade my pink plastic Barbie high heels for the real deal? When did I make the transition from stealing my mom's eyeshadow to buying my own? When did I swap drawing on the sidewalk with chalk for writing checks for tuition and car insurance? It seems like it happened all in one day.

But for my mom, this has been a very slow, meandering path to one of the most bittersweet days of her life: Me, her only daughter, moving out on my own and going to college.

My mother tells me, almost daily, that I was the only thing she ever wanted a baby, a little girl. That I am her life's work, the single thing she is most proud of. That I am her pride and joy and that her number one job in life is to be a mom.

And now she thinks her job is almost over. There will be no more prom dresses to shop for, no more forgotten socks to pick up off of the laundry room floor, no smudges of makeup to clean off the bathroom counter.

All of the sudden, my best friend, only parent and number one cheerleader is no longer one bedroom away. From Michigan State University, she is approximately a 45-minute drive, which seems like a greater distance than to the moon and back.

All of the sudden, I am on the edge of a towering cliff and my only option is to jump. To explore, to fall, to fly and to chase any dream I ever had. And on top of being absolutely ecstatic, I am absolutely terrified of the unknown.

But even though my mom was with me every step of the way so far, she has taught me how to take steps by myself ----this just seems like an awfully big one.

My mother has taught me that it is easier to take steps when somebody else is behind you, pushing and encouraging. She has also taught me that the only steps that matter are the ones you take all by yourself. And at this point, my mother has walked me as far as she can go.

She has pushed me by stroller, held my hand through my first steps, ran behind me and tried to catch up and finally, she will be driving me up to college to help with moving in. I can't turn back now. I don't want to. I have to keep walking on and trust that no matter how far I get, she will be there when I turn around.

So, to my mother, who will be sitting in her robe at our kitchen table on Saturday morning reading this, crying with her head in her hand: I love you to the moon and back; Because no amount of distance will ever change what you mean to me.

Neet Dan Allen

By Olivia Dimmer

news@tctimes.com Dan Allen's da

Dan Allen's day starts around 4:30 a.m. when he arrives at his office armed with a wholewheat bagel, egg white and sausage breakfast sandwich from Tim Horton's. At the office, he sifts through police reports that have stacked up from previous shifts, while sipping his large single cream single sugar coffee. With an average 14-hour day of policing, teaching a wide range of martial arts and brushing up on his guitar skills, Allen needs all the caffeine he can get.

How did you come to be the chief of police? I worked for the city of Flint for 20 years and in 2007, I saw this position was open and I applied for it. There were around 30 applicants and I was selected by the board. The nice thing is that most of the board, minus two members, has stayed the same since I got here.

What inspired you to be in law enforcement? It was around 1976 and my mom had a stroke. Back then, the 911 system wasn't what it is now. They didn't have addresses registered so the ambulance went to the wrong house. The police officer was the first on the scene, I remember how chaotic it all was, and that he gave us such a stabilizing feeling. I wanted to be able to give that feeling to somebody some day.

Have you ever given that stabilizing feeling to somebody else? That would be more a perception of the people I've responded to. I don't know that, so I couldn't say. I've been involved with a lot of cases and the one that stands out to me is the Dominick Calhoun case. With Richard Calhoun in that kind of situation, I'm not sure I could stabilize that. That kind of stuff is what sticks with you. It was just a bad situation.

I understand that you're in a band? Yes, I am the guitarist for singer/songwriter Virginia Sepanek. We preformed at a songwriter's showcase in Nashville. I started playing when I was a little kid. I had other musicians in the family and I just picked it up and started playing. Music is a hobby for me, though I hate to call it that. It's a relaxation technique. When I trained the Flint recruits, I always told them they needed to have something else in their lives to keep them balanced.

On top of that, you also own a martial arts studio in Grand Blanc? Yes, I own the Warrior's Den. I teach three or four days a week. I teach Brazilian Ju Jitsu, Combat Hapkido, Tang Soo Do and Mixed Martial arts, which is popular in the world now. I have three black belts in three disciplines. I'm a master's level in Hapkido and in October, I will be a black belt in Brazilian Ju Jitsu. I've been doing Ju Jitsu since '99 or '98. I also have a thirddegree black belt in Tang S use these disciplines all the doing Ju Jitsu since '99 or '98. I also have a thirddegree black belt in Tang Soo Do. I use these disciplines all the time in my line of work. I use it to restrain people and take them down if need be. Most people go to the gym to stay fit, I do martial arts and just happen to get paid for it at the same time. Tell me about your family. I have a son going into his second year at Western, he is studying computer engineering. My wife is a teacher in Grand Blanc. My daughter is married to an administrative assistant to a colonel in Indiana.

What are you looking forward to in the future of you job(s)? I'm excited to get an officer out to Linden schools. I've wanted to be more involved in the schools. I want to bridge the gap between the kids and the police and stay in touch with them. We can stop a lot of things before they happen as far as parties. We can also give the kids somebody to look up to.

If you had to choose, what would your favorite job be? Well I would say it's the one that puts the roof over my head. But otherwise, I love music. Music and martial arts are neck and neck. There is so much beauty in both. You can change people's minds with music and help people. We sing country and gospel. I love being a police chief and having come up through the ranks. I used to be the guy knocking on doors. I want to be the person that the officers can look up to and help them get their job done in any way I can assist. Everyone has their own leadership style, but man, it's a tough job. When I was a traffic investigator, it was always so hard to see fatalities with children or the elderly. We hang on to those things and carry it with us. I know what it feels like, and I want to be the person the officers can come talk to about it. I've been there, done that. This job is hard, but when you get a case to resolution, there's nothing like it. It's so rewarding.

somewhere expecting the worst and end up leaving with a chuckle," Boros said.

Being an emergency medical technician (EMT) brings a wide range of situations and the demand for constant, updated skills. Beyond a high school diploma, emergency responders are expected to know human anatomy, physiology, mathematics and grammar. Certifications have to be renewed every three years and workers have to familiarize themselves with new technology. And that's all on top of saving lives.

"TV dramatizes things a lot. We don't get too many situations where a save is necessary," Boros said. "We mostly help people get through a situation, ease their pain and suffering and help make their day better."

Medical responders usually work 12hour shifts and are positioned at strategic points within a certain coverage area. Boros said they can receive anywhere from zero to 10 runs in a shift, depending on need and where the responders are located. Runs can include transporting someone from a medical facility to another one, transporting someone to a hospital, and arriving at someone's house or a scene and administer first aid or medication. Cardiac related calls and car accidents are the two most common calls Boros has responded to throughout his career. He once responded to 19 calls during a 24-hour shift on Christmas.

EMTs do respond to deaths, however, such situations require a lot more than just ambulance drivers. Police and medical examiners have to be called to the scene and bodies can only be transported by a contracted agency.

All procedures and protocols are approved by the physician, giving guidelines to all emergency responders within a given county.

While William Barnum, EMT/Paramedic for Stat EMS, usually responds to cardiac reoperation calls and car accidents, the paramedic recently helped deliver a baby after responding to a call. Barnum said anything can happen during a 12- or 24-hour shift. One trend Barnum is seeing is more people seem to be using ambulances as a mode of transportation to the hospital, whether they have an ailment necessitating medical treatment.

"I would say at least 90 percent of calls end with a patient being transported to a hospital," said Barnum, who once transported someone to the hospital because of an ingrown hair. "We are required to transport anyone who calls. Everyone is given that opportunity, we can't deny transportation."

No matter how small or unnecessary the call may seem, Barnum and Boros stress that 911 and medical emergency providers should be called if someone believes they are needed at a scene.

"I'd rather be called and not needed rather than be needed and not called," said Boros.

*Finally...*IT'S FARMERS MARKE¹ TIME

Local produce is plentiful and delicious this time of year

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Fresh peaches are so juicy and flavorful that they drip down your chin with every bite, and blueberries burst with the taste of summer. Vine-ripened Michigan tomatoes are at their peak with rich and full-bodied flavor that is only available this time of year.

This is the time of year when eating local Michigan produce grown in season is at its peak of flavor and nutrition.

Local farmers markets in Fenton, Linden and other nearby communities make it easy to buy what's in season, but there are some "tricks of the trade" in maximizing your experience — in convenience, nutrition and minimizing waste after your farmers market visit.

First of all, know your seasons. Learn what grows in your local area and talk to the growers at the market about what will be available in upcoming weeks. Right now, local farmers markets are filled with corn, tomatoes, plums, peaches, blueberries, summer apples and more.

If you're not sure how to prepare a particular produce item that may be new to you, ask growers how they like to prepare it at home. Keep it simple — often, the most flavorful preparation is the simplest, letting a food's nature flavor shine through.

Figure out the best time to visit the farmers market for fewer crowds. For the best selection, it's wise to go See FARMERS MARKET on 6B

Not just hot dogs and marshmallows

Cooking over a campfire is a favorite summertime activity — and the food tastes so much better when cooked outdoors. Roasting hot dogs, marshmallows for S'mores and popping corn over an open fire are the better-known favorites when it comes to campfire cuisine.

Ordinary tomato soup spiced with garlic and fresh ground black pepper tastes ever so good when prepared over an open fire on the beach.

Campfire cooking is on the move with all types of food now being prepared, including gourmet selections. Almost anything can be cooked while camping. All it takes is planning and preparation.

Foil packets can be filled with combinations of vegetables, meat, seasonings and a little olive oil or butter.

Potatoes and sweet potatoes can be seasoned and wrapped in foil and cooked in the fire. This is also a popular way to prepare corn-on-the-cob. Campfire omelet

The ingredients for omelets (beaten eggs, mushrooms, bacon or ham, cheese, green pepper and onion) along with seasonings can be placed in a zip-top plastic bag and placed in a pot of boiling water atop an open fire. The cooked omelet will slide easily onto a plate. Applesauce Doughnuts

You will need large strips of foil, one dozen large cinnamon sugar doughnuts and one jar of applesauce. Slice the doughnuts in half like a sandwich, pour about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of applesauce on one-half of the doughnut, and then place the other half on top. Wrap up completely in the foil and then heat in the coals for 10-15 minutes.

Campfire should be burned down to just the foil packet and enjoy! Shrimp Boil hot coals. Open

A classic Southern shrimp boil involves cooking a kettle of shrimp, corn and sausage with pickling spices, notably bay leaf, cloves and mustard seed. Here, all the ingredients are tucked inside foil packets, seasoned with Old Bay and cooked right on the grill or in a pot of boiling water atop an open fire.

Campfire Baked Bananas

Holly Harrison, who was visiting Fenton from Portland, Ore. suggested baked bananas as a campfire treat.

With the banana still in its peel, you make an incision lengthwise through the length of the peel and the fruit, leaving the underside of the peel intact. Pull the sides of the banana apart and dot with pieces of butter inside. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon. Wrap in foil and bake 10 to 15 minutes. She said you could add other ingredients such as chocolate chips or marshmallows.

I have an '04 chevy 2500hd 6.0 gas motor. There is no oil pressure when the engine is cold. It warms up the oil pressure at around 40psi. Every so often I here a nasty loud valve tap. The truck has 356,000 miles. Do you have any ideas?

Thanks Jeff. This could be caused by many different things. The first step we take in this situation, is to take the oil filter off and cut it open. Then take the folded fabric out and hold it up in good lighting to see if there are any signs of metal shavings or glitter in it. If so, than you will need to replace or rebuild the engine. If not, then I would do an oil change on it and a manual oil pressure test to see if it still shows low oil pressure. If it is still low then you will need to remove the oil pan to check the rod and main bearings for clearance with a plastigauge. If the bearings are within spec, take the timing cover off and the oil pump apart and look at the oil pressure relief valve to make sure the spring is not broken and that the valve at the end of the spring has smooth travel. Also, check the oil pick up screen for being clogged, if all of this is ok, I would try a new oil pump and screen to see if this cures your problem. There are a few other not so common problems that it could be, (spun cam bearing, clogged oil passage) but you would need to disassemble the engine to check this. With so many miles it would not make sense to not just replace it at that point.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My nose drains so badly when eating that I have to blow it twice before I finish the meal. It's especially disturbing if I eat something warm or steaming. I was given a nasal spray, but it hasn't worked as well as I would like. - S.I.

ANSWER: Your condition has a name: gustatory rhinorrhea — a runny nose upon eating. Physically hot foods or spicy foods often trigger it. The spray you mentioned often works well. Astelin nasal spray is an antihistamine that is used before eating that sometimes can control the dripping. So can Flonase intranasal spray, a cortisone product.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I was diagnosed with a urinary tract infection, and I took antibiotics for a couple of months. I went back to the doctor and tested negative on two occasions, but I still had symptoms of an infection. I have been on an antibiotic, once a day, ever since. I am completely at a loss to know what to do next. Can you offer any suggestions? - J.T.

ANSWER: It's not normal to stay on antibiotics for as lengthy a time as you have been on them for a urinary tract infection. It's next to impossible to have a urinary tract infection if the lab cannot substantiate that there is an infection. Ask your doctor if you can go off all antibiotics and then have a microscopic exam of your urine and have the urine cultured for bacteria. Conditions other than infection can produce symptoms similar to those of an infection — painful and frequent urination. Interstitial cystitis is such a condition. The woman (less often a man) spends much of the day and night dashing to the bathroom to empty her bladder. She does this with urgency to avoid losing urine control. It's something that disrupts life. A specialist can view the bladder with a scope to see if there are changes of the bladder lining that are consistent with interstitial cystitis. Treatment is not with antibiotics. It's not an infection. A number of other medications are used. If you haven't gotten a definitive diagnosis soon, I'd recommend you see a urologist or a gynecological urologist.

Girlfriend must rethink relationship with cheater

DEAR AMY: I've been in a relationship for 17 months with my boyfriend, but the trust issue comes between us. I always think he is cheating on me because he has cheated on me three times already, but I forgave him. I'm afraid he might be cheating on me again. Sometimes he will just text me twice a day. Then sometimes he won't even get in touch to say good night, but I will know he is still up until 3 in the morning communicating with people on Facebook. I love him so much, Amy. What should I do? -Faithful Lady

DEAR FAITHFUL: At some point, even the most faithful person needs to wake up and smell the cheating. You are at the point in your relationship where it no longer really matters what your boyfriend is doing; what matters now is what you do. You should muster the courage to leave this relationship because you know you deserve something better. Judging from your boyfriend's track record and current actions (as well as your instincts about him), I'd say that if you want a faithful love relationship, a good place to start would be to get a dog.

DEAR AMY: My boyfriend and I have been together for almost four years and are very much in love. The one thing I can't stand about him is his friend 'George.' He has such an ugly personality, and I find that he makes me so irritated sometimes that I cannot stand to even be around him. He says hurtful things to me and goes out of his way to say them. My boyfriend does not stand up for me, and I've had it with his pal. What should I do? I can't believe my boyfriend has such bad taste in friends! - Pal is a Pain

DEAR PAIN: I honestly can't imagine standing idle while someone mistreated a loved one, and I agree that it would be a relief if your boyfriend defended you, but your first job is to stand up for yourself. The next time "George" mouths off to you, you should take a deep breath, look him in the eye and say, "George, stop it. Thank you." And then you say to your guy, "Honey, I'll see you later." And you leave. By all means, if you don't want to spend time with this guy, then don't.

Let Siri get to know your family

Break the ice with Siri and let her into your life by assigning nicknames to your contacts. You can do this in one of two ways, vocally or manually. After firing up Siri, you can tell her "John Doe is my father" and she'll respond, "Okay, do you want me to remember that John Doe is your father?" With a confirmation, you'll be able to say "Call Dad" and get linked to John Doe's phone number. If you want to store a number of relationships at once, go into your own contact, tap Edit and scroll down to the line that reads Mother. By tapping Mother, you can change to Father, Brother, Sister, even Assistant or Manager.

SoCal Guacamole Burger

INGREDIENTS

- 1 ripe peeled avocado, divided
- 2 T. nonfat plain Greek yogurt
- 1 T. low fat mayonnaise
- 2 t. fresh lime juice
- 1/4 t. ground cumin
- 1/3 cup tomato, seeded and chopped
- 1 jalapeño pepper, seeded and chopped
- 1/2 t. kosher salt, divided
- 1 lb. 90% lean ground sirloin
- 1/4 t. freshly ground black pepper
- Cooking spray
- 4 (1¹/₂ oz) whole-grain hamburger buns
- 1 cup alfalfa sprouts

INSTRUCTIONS

- Preheat grill to medium-high heat.
- Place half of avocado in a bowl and mash with a fork until almost smooth. Add yogurt and next 3 ingredients to bowl; stir to combine. Dice remaining half of avocado. Add diced avocado, tomato, jalapeño, and 1/8 teaspoon salt to bowl; stir gently to combine.
- Season beef with remaining 3/8 teaspoon salt and pepper; mix well. Divide beef into 4 equal portions. Gently shape each portion into a (1/2-inch-thick) patty. Grill 3 minutes on each side or until desired degree of doneness.
- Place 1/4 cup sprouts on bottom half of each bun; top each with 1 patty, about 3 tablespoons guacamole, and top half of bun.

to get a good deal, you may want to wait until the end of the day when some vendors may prefer to sell at a discount rather than load everything up to take back home.

You may want to bring your own sturdy canvas bags for weighty or bulky items. A backpack can make the browsing and buying even easier, keeping your hands free to tap that melon or peel back those corn husks.

If you plan to do a lot of shopping, you may even want to use a stroller or wagon, but be considerate of other shoppers when winding your way through the market.

Bring small bills and change with you for quicker transactions. Although vendors are usually prepared with change, it's faster and more considerate of their change box to bring closer to the exact change needed. This isn't a good place to bring large bills.

> You'll avoid a lot of waste of delicious, perishable foods if you have meal ideas planned ahead so you know how much to buy. But do leave a bit of "wiggleroom" in yourplanning so that you can try new or unexpected foods you find at the market. That's part of the fun.

The best deals at the market are available when you buy foods at harvest peak in bulk quantities. For example, those peaches sure look good, but if you want to buy them by the bushel, you'll need to be prepared at home to preserve them in some way by canning or freezing them. One of the joys of shopping at farmers markets is saving these seasonal tastes for later in the year.

How to pick healthiest produce at Farmers Market

• CARROTS — leave the baby carrots on the shelf. Their shape comes from whittling away the nutritious outer layers. Look for full-size carrots with their tops still attached.

Surprise tip: Carrots are healthiest when cooked, absorbing three times more beta-carotene.

• KALE — seek out red-leafed varieties for more antioxidants. Serve kale raw, which has more vitamin C, antioxidants and phyto-nutrients than cooked.

Surprise tip: One serving of kale has more calcium than six ounces of milk and more fiber than three slices of whole wheat bread.

• TOMATOES — pick out smaller and darker varieties like grape and cherry tomatoes, for more cancerfighting lycopene.

Surprise tip: Ounce per ounce, the small varieties have 18 times more lycopene than a beefsteak. • PEACHES — Ignore the rule about choosing the brightest, most colorful produce when it comes to peaches.

TRI-COUNTY TIMES I WILLIAM AXFORD Potatoes and lettuce so fresh, they still have a dusting of Mother earth on them, at the Fenton Farmers Market Thursday evening.

Surprise tip: White-fleshed peaches have up to six times more antioxidants than yellow-fleshed varieties.

An ancient prescription for good health

In his book, 'There's a Lot More to Health than not being Sick,' Bruce Larsen tells about a friend who he says is one of the happiest people he knows. Larsen describes him as a very senior citizen, now almost blind and living on a modest income, but who is fun to be around because he's excited about life.

King Solomon gave the following prescription for good health that fits with Larsen's happy friend's way of life: 'A merry heart does good like medicine, but a broken spirit dries the bones' (Proverbs 17:22).

In other words, attitude affects altitude. Reading Solomon's prescription for good health brings back memories of my mother quoting it often and living by it daily. She refused to worry and found laughter her tonic for getting through tough times.

Did her positive attitude make a difference?

Without question!

She's remembered by her family and others for her refusal to complain and to always find something for which to be thankful. Solomon's prescription enabled her to live into her mid-90s.

But how can one live fearing severe trials and have a merry heart?

In 'Letters to an American Lady,' C.S. Lewis comforted a troubled woman by telling her not all the things she feared could happen to her and the one (if any) that did would probably be very different from what she expected, adding: 'The great thing, as you have obviously seen, (both as regards to pain and financial worries) is to live from day to day and hour to hour not adding the past or future to the present.'

Regardless of what the future holds, a dose of Solomon's prescription will be sufficient for the present.

Are you having a good day? I asked a receptionist.

'So far,' she answered. 'That's all any of us have,' I replied. What was I attempting to do?

I was trying to help this woman be thrilled with her blessings of the moment. In his published sermon, 'The Sin of Borrowing Trouble,' the eloquent nineteenth century minister, T. DeWitt Talmadge said, 'The majority of the troubles of life are imaginary and most of those anticipated never come.'

Most things that make us fear and fret are those that haven't happened yet.

So we can take Solomon's ancient prescription for troubled hearts one teaspoon at a time, being thankful for every good moment, shutting out the fears of tomorrow and taking in the blessings of today.

Wise Solomon concluded his prescription with a warning about falling into doubt and negativism, adding 'A broken spirit dries the bones.'

Thankfully, broken ones can come in faith to the One who receives the weary. 'Come unto me,' He said, 'and I will give you rest' (Matthew 11:28).

'Fishing' for a new focus

Linden Autumn Festival will add adult fishing contest. kayaking competitions to this year's festival fun

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282 The Linden Autumn Festival just may take on a whole new focus this year the enjoyment of the local waterway, the Shiawassee River.

This year's date is Saturday, Sept. 21 from 12 to 6 p.m. at the Millpond near the Linden VFW

Summary

The Linden Autumnfest is set for Saturday, Sept. 21, with a new focus of water recreation at the Millpond

Hall. "We want to focus on the water at the Millpond, by hosting a new adult fishing contest, adding kayak competitions, etc.," said Shelly

Day, Chamber executive director.

Keith Green, of Innovative Retirement Solutions in Linden, is also working on the angle of the adult fishing contest, adding that this type of focus will bring in a lot of participants to the festival. "Fishing contests are huge," he said. "I'm working with Greg Adams from Freeway Sports Center." Of course, the traditional children's games and popular kids' fishing contest See FISHING on 11B

Another Fantastic Freedom Festival Parade and Fireworks!

Once again, we had a record turnout for Fenton's Freedom Festival Parade. Special thanks goes to Pat Lockwood for her leadership and the many hard-working volunteers that made the Freedom Festival such a wonderful event!

There is no better time like the present to take advantage of our community events, activities and businesses in our own communities.

Just around the corner is 'Taste in Fenton' on Aug. 10, from 12 to 8 p.m. on the Fenton Community & Cultural Center grounds. There will be plenty to do and taste for all ages, so join us for one of the premier events our city has to showcase. This year the weather will be perfect, so start making plans, invite your friends and relatives from out-of-town and bring them all to enjoy the array of tasty hors d' oeuvres, entrees, drinks and desserts from some of the greatest restaurants. It's a 'foodies' delight!

As fast as summer has gone by, the color on the leaves will be turning soon, so don't forget to mark your calendar for this Fall's Linden Autumn Fest on Saturday, Sept. 21 from 12 to 6 p.m. in beautiful downtown Linden on the Mill Pond.

It is amazing the time commitment required to plan, organize and manage these events and programs. Without our fantastic staff, the wonderful volunteers, board members, and our business community members and city officials, we wouldn't be able to showcase our fine communities.

As you know, part of the North LeRoy business district is under road construction again this summer, but 'progress' is being made! The City has been instrumental, as has the staff from the Fenton Chamber office in reminding the community to continue to Shop Local at those businesses this summer.

As always, thanks for your commitment to Shop Local! I look forward to seeing everyone at this year's Taste in Fenton. We all should have a wonderful time. Bring the family!

Serving Linden and surrounding areas

Approximately five years ago, the Fenton Regional Chamber of Commerce (FRCC) became the chamber for Linden and Argentine.

The FRCC Economic Development Committee is assisting Linden/ Argentine business owners in starting up a Business District Committee. The committee has met two times and it continues to grow in business representation. At its last meeting, the committee decided it will meet quarterly and the next meeting will be Oct. 23 at 9 a.m. The committee is still securing the location.

All Linden/Argentine business representatives as well as FRCC members are welcome to attend.

The business meeting's agenda will allow continued dialogue and remarks of representatives to help improve the local business climate. At the last meeting the committee approved a Linden business survey (see survey on 15B). The results will be presented at the October meeting then the information will be shared with the city of Linden Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Argentine Township.

The survey is now available on the Chamber's website at www.fentonchamber.com. All businesses that complete the survey will be entered into a drawing for a free button ad on the Chamber's website ($250 value.)

Rochelle Jones, our Membership Director, along with the Membership Committee will be visiting businesses in Linden and Argentine to encourage them to take the survey and invite all to the next meeting. Also coming soon, you will see signs that read "Fenton Regional Chamber of Commerce serving Linden and Surrounding Areas" on the four Welcome signs leading into Linden. See SURVEY on 15B

Membership Directors Report

Fifty-five new members have joined the Chamber through July. Chamber membership offers businesses the opportunity to meet a broad client base through events and activities the Chamber provides.

On Aug. 7, the Chamber Ambassador group will be conducting their 'We Care Wednesday' visits. Will your business be one of the lucky ones to be surprised by this group and presented with a sweet treat?

The Chamber is again partnering with Joan Testa of Chamber Development Services to host a Membership Campaign on Sept. 10, 11 and 12. The focus of the campaign is to increase the understanding of the role the Fenton Regional Chamber of Commerce plays and how membership can be valuable for local and area businesses. The campaign also stresses to perspective members the importance of advocacy for business, fostering economic growth and advancing quality of life.

Our chamber is a productive partner in our region's future. Our motto is 'Where Community and Commerce Connect.' During the Campaign, we will be offering specials that are good for the Campaign dates only. If you are interested in joining during the week of the Membership Campaign please call or email me with your contact information and we will contact you during the Campaign.

Summary The Fenton Regional Chamber of Commerce continues to grow its membership by educating local businesses and holding membership campaigns like the one set for Sept. 10-12.

our last campaign felt it was very beneficial in reminding them about all that Chamber membership has to offer," said Shelly Day, executive director. "We did this two and a half years ago, and it was very successful. At that time, we added 94 new members and have retained more than half of them."

The Chamber's goal with the 2013 campaign is to go from 445 members to over 500, engaging and retaining members so they take full advantage of what the Fenton Regional Chamber has to offer.

Some of these benefits include:

Advertising and networking opportunities, such as social media, retail discounts, ribbon cuttings, email ads, Networking@ Noon and more.
Business opportunities, such as bulk mailing rates and mailing labels, seminars and workshops.

Your home may not literally be "underwater" but if you owe more on your mortgage than your home is worth, you may have options for help.

Is your home 'underwater'?

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282 Home prices are on the rise, but Michigan is still in the top five states in the U.S. to have the highest percentages of mortgaged properties that are "underwater" --- meaning that homeowners owe more on their property than they are worth.

As of March 2013, Nevada was number one, with 45 percent of mortgaged properties "underwater," followed by Florida with 38 percent and Michigan, Arizona and Georgia each with more than 30 percent, according to a recent article in USA Today.

The metro Detroit areas of Warren and Troy join Tampa, Miami and Atlanta as the top five "underwater" metro areas in the U.S.

With home values on the rise, however, don't assume that you are still "underwater," even if you were only a year ago. Most Realtors will offer an initial home value analysis at no charge. "Let us do a sales analysis on your property so you know where you stand in today's market," > said Kristy Cantleberry, of RE/MAX Grande in Grand Blanc. "You might find this is a very good time to sell your home.'

But there's still hope for homeowners whose mortgage balance exceeds the current value of their property. "Many people have had great success with loan modification programs like HARP, HAMP and through their own mortgage lender," said Roger Latham of Huron

Valley Financial in Fenton. "What it takes is a positive attitude, patience and persistence."

While refinancing options are limited for these mortgages because most lenders require some equity in the property - usually about 20 percent - there are three main options that "underwater" homeowners should look at:

1. Home Affordable Refinance Program (HARP) — this federal program allows qualified borrowers to refinance a loan that is from 105 percent to as high as 125 percent of a home's value. However, there are specific guidelines.

First, you must not be on the road to foreclosure. Having any delinquent payments in the past 12 months will automatically disqualify a homeowner from eligibility.

Second, either Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac must own the loan.

— Your eligibility will also be determined by your payment history, credit score, structure of your current home financing and specific lender guidelines.

- While not everyone is eligible, it's worth investigating your own particular situation. Visit makinghomeaffordable. gov for more information.

2. Home Affordable Modification Program (HAMP) - if you not only have See WATER on 18B Page 17B

Making a move

► Now is the perfect time to transition your family into a new home, neighborhood or community

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282 Whether you've recently made a move with your family to a new home, or are still looking for your dream property this summer, there's

Summary

Summer is a perfect time to transition your family into a new home, neighborhood or community before schools starts.

a big transition to be made — especially with school beginning just a month away. There may still be time to find a new home before school starts, but the clock is ticking. The process is certainly quicker if you're a cash buyer or have already started the financing process for a conventional loan. "A conventional loan takes between 30 and 45 days," said Ken

Brant, of Coldwell Banker Professionals in Fenton. "If you're looking at an FHA or Rural Development loan, those take 45 to 70 days, because there is so much demand."

If you're making a move with kids, one of a parent's biggest worries is how to make the adjustment easier. "It's hard for kids to visualize living in a new house," said Kristy Cantleberry of RE/MAX Grande in Grand Blanc. "They don't always understand that they can take all 'their stuff' with them. That's what they're most concerned about at first."

New buildings, renovations on the rise

▶ Strengthening economy helps projects pick up across the board

By Ryan Tackabury Dtctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Building projects around the area are on the rise, which could be a hopeful example for the shape of things to come.

In the city of Fenton, these projects are taking every size and shape imaginable. Two new residential houses, major renovations to houses on the lake, additions, decks, fences, roofing, siding, windows - you name it, and it's happening somewhere.

What unites all of these projects they have not been happening much until recently.

'There's just a lot more activity. They weren't doing anything with the houses a year or a year and a half ago. It was real slow," said Fenton's building and zoning administrator Brad Hissong. "The economy must be getting better or we wouldn't see these."

This time last year Fenton Township had seen 10 new residential constructions. This year, they have already seen 17. Over all, projects including remodeling, deck additions and so forth are up by 13 and Julie Lewis, the building department coordinator, expects to see more.

"There has been a little bit of an increase," Lewis said. "I think the economy is starting to come around a little bit"

Linden Building Inspector Jason Payne said that although he cannot give a definite reason as to why, he has also seen an increase in building projects this year — the majority of which are house remodeling and decks.

There is a lot on the move in Holly Village. "Our permits are up," Village Manager Jerry Walker said, who noted a lot of activity was happening with commercial permits.

"Some of the more notable we have had is an auto repair facility that is locating from one place in the village to another and they are going to build a new auto repair center," Walker said. Additionally, the village's McDonald's is going to demolish and completely rebuild their building, and they have just had a house demolished to make way for a new microbrewery.

The residential size has also seen an increase in building permits. While there are any new builds going on in the village, Walker said there are a lot of improvements and renovations being made.

"I think the economy is starting to pick up slowly. I think for a lot of years people have held off on additions and improvements and now that the economy has ticked up they are acting on it," Walker said.

Kristy Beelby from Holly Township said that she has seen an increase in building projects, with more being built this year than the year before. Projects include from things as small as new decks and garages, to much larger with new homes being built.

In Argentine Township, new homes are right about where they were last year, but there has been a big pick up in people repairing and adding onto their homes.

We're having a tremendous amount of permits being pulled for window repair, roof repair, siding, just normal maintenance things to the existing homes as well," said Tom Brooks, code enforcement administrator in Argentine Township.

A better economy, and people taking pride in their homes are two factors Brooks credits for the increase, but he said that there are many reasons.

"It all intertwines, I am not sure quite what the common link is, but it's nice to see," Brooks said.

an "underwater" mortgage, but also have missed payments, you may be eligible for this second federal program available through mortgage lenders.

— To qualify, you must demonstrate financial hardship that puts your mortgage in imminent danger of default.

 The mortgage must be owned by Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac or others signed up with the U.S. Treasury to qualify for HAMP.

- HAMP isn't a refinancing program, it's a change to the contract terms made through your original mortgage lender. It can lower your payments for up to 60 months. In the sixth year, the mortgage rate may begin to increase at no more than one percentage point a year until it reaches "the market rate at the time modification agreement is prepared," according to the Making Home Affordable web site.

3. Loan modification through a homeowner's mortgage lender. As an alternative to foreclosure, many lenders are willing to offer some kind of loan restructuring, even without a government-backed program. The most important thing to note is that you shouldn't wait for a foreclosure notice, to take pro-active action with your lender.

- If restructuring the loan isn't an option, consider a short sale - selling your home at market value, with the remaining loan balance forgiven by the lender. It has less of a negative impact on one's credit history and financial future.

Summer can be a great time to move because kids and families are outside and it's easier to get to know your neighbors. "We actually host housewarming parties for our clients to help them adjust to a new neighborhood," said Cantleberry. "It's also helpful to let kids pick out new room décor to get them excited about a new house." Here are some ways to help kids adjust to a move, especially to a new community Since children tend to look at the negative aspects of a move - leaving friends behind, adjusting to a new school, changing sports teams, etc., it's important to help your child look at the positive side of things. A move can be a "new beginning," socially and academically speaking. It can give a child of any age a chance to made friends without Kristy Cantleberry their former reputations and self-images. However, a child shouldn't be given unrealistic expectations that a people who have kids the same ages as move will make everything "perfect." It's best to talk about what you and your child can do differently in a new community, according to healthychildren.org. • Give a child adequate notice about the move, even a year in advance may be appropriate. Let your kids talk about their sadness and worries about leaving a familiar place, and reassure them you'll make the move as easy as possible for the entire family. The stress of a move is greatest two weeks before the move and two weeks after, so these are times to take breaks to relax and connect with each other as a family.

• Emphasize the excitement of moving. While it may make everyone in the family, uneasy, it will also be adventurous and interesting. Get books that describe families moving from one city to another. Give a child age-appropriate tasks and projects to do.

• Visit the community where you'll be moving to alleviate the "fear of the unknown." There may be new museums, malls, zoos, etc., that will make a move > exciting. Plan to enroll your child in sports, clubs, lessons, etc.

• Give a child a chance to participate in decisions about what his or her room might look like with new décor or what kind of pet might the whole family enjoy in this new house?

• Become involved in your new community, to open some doors for your child to make new friends. Reach out to yours. Investigate community sports activities, YMCAs, churches, etc. If your child can find a new friend before school starts, it will make the first day of school an easier transition.

• Maintain contact with the old community. Host a farewell party and take pictures as keepsakes. Invite old friends to spend weekends or vacations at your new home. • Make the move a family event. It can bring everyone closer together as you all support each other in adjusting to a new community. Source: healthychildren.org
