Traveling this summer?

Where to go and NOT to go for safe, value-minded trips

“What keeps people interested in traveling is the knowledge and understanding they get from places away from their home.”

ly...the charm and hospitality of Charleston, South Carolina.

Wherever your dreams of travel take you, this year will offer you affordable destinations, from international hot spots to breathtaking vistas at home in the U.S. Whether you have a vacation planned yet for this summer or are dreaming about trips in the future, now is the time to begin making plans.

In the U.S., popular family-friendly destinations are Orlando, Florida, the National Parks out west, Chicago, New York City and Washington, D.C. “D.C. is a great city to visit,” said Chris Nikitaides, travel consultant at Travel Brokers, with an office in Fenton. “It’s a friendly city and the people are helpful. There’s so much to do.”

The “big-three” theme parks in Orlando — Disney World, Universal Studios and SeaWorld — all have rolled out new attractions in 2014, making these destinations even more popular this year. Summer travel brings out the crowds, however, so if you can wait until September or October, you’ll find fewer crowds and less wait time, whether you’re visiting Disney World in Florida or Yosemite National Park in California.

Other family-friendly cities in the U.S. include Charleston, South Carolina; Savannah, Georgia; Austin, Texas; Branson, Missouri; Sonoma, California; Telluride, Colorado; Asheville,

Travel destinations to AVOID in 2014

Some places in the world are friendlier to American travelers, while others are “hot spots” due to political unrest, staggering crime rates and terrorist activity. Other locales may be temporarily unsafe to travel in because of natural disasters, extreme weather conditions, fire danger, etc.

Here are a few countries you might want to avoid this year when planning your travel itinerary:

Libya — anti-American sentiment, militia groups and terrorist cells.

Brazil — political instability, staggering crime rate four times that of the U.S.

Iraq — embroiled in war for decades, anti-American sentiment, persistent terrorist activity, military battles with Turkey and Iran.

Somalia — no U.S. Embassy, highest level of travel warning from the U.S.

Nigeria — one of the most dangerous countries for American

North Carolina and Galena, Illinois (once home to President Ulysses S. Grant). These cities all made the grade in Conde Naste Traveler's recent Reader's Choice

Survey for friendliest U.S. cities.

Great travel deals in the U.S. also include Philadelphia, Seattle, Las Vegas Minneapolis and Maui, according to Conde Naste Traveler.

All-inclusive resorts in popular vacation spots like the Dominican Republic, Jamaica and Cancun continue to be the best value for travel, according to both Travel Brokers and Superior Travel.

"If a traveler is seeking the 'best bang for the buck' and wants to see something more unusual, the absolute best value is U.S. national parks, and escorted vacations, which are available worldwide," said John Schmitt of Superior Travel.

For international destinations beyond all-inclusives, Randy Church at Travel Brokers suggests taking a close look at Spain — from Madrid to Barcelona. "You can take a 10-day land tour to Spain for about $1,475 per person," said Church. "That price doesn't include airfare, but it's still a great value."

Greece and Egypt are on both local travel companies' lists for their own wish-list travel. Schmitt's favorite trip was to Greece, Egypt and Israel, where his family enjoyed a three-night stay in Athens, Greece, followed by a seven-night cruise to the Greek Islands, Egypt and Israel. "We rode camels to the Pyramids, crossed the Nile and then in Israel, visited the 12 stations of Christ. What a life-changing trip," said Schmitt.

While some people might hesitate to travel in these areas due to today's political and economic climate, experienced travelers should feel safe there. "The rich history and culture compares to no other," said Schmitt. "I would go there again today."

Other options, however, would be to travel anywhere in the Mediterranean, including Italy, France and Spain.

Italy continues to be a favorite destination. Nikitaides of Travel Brokers says that travel to Italy is their number one most requested European vacation destination. "Travel to Europe is becoming more affordable again, with the Euro exchange," she said.

On a personal note, a return trip to Italy is on Church's wish list for travel. "Rome has all the history, and sights like the Coliseum and the Vatican," he said. "We've been to Sicily, Rome and the Amalfi Coast. The next time we travel to Italy, we'd like to visit Venice and other northern cities."

Other travel destinations to keep in mind?

"European river cruises continue to be popular," said Church, "as well as combination land and cruise trips to Alaska."

INTERESTING TRAVEL NOTE:

Travel to Cuba, forbidden by the U.S. government for its citizens since the 1960s, is slowly opening up to Americans. The most common legal travel option is through "People to People" programs for an educational tour.

"A trip to Cuba is like traveling back in time," said Randy Church of Travel Brokers. It's a mixture of a simple pace and lifestyle with colorful 1950s cars parked in front of colonial and neo-classical architecture. It's the melting pot of the Caribbean.

Travel to Cuba comes at a price, however. Church said there is a 13-day tour through "People to People" for $7,465 per person.

tourists, kidnapping is commonplace, pirating in the Gulf of Guinea, extremist groups.

Mexico — state of Sonora is now advising U.S. citizens to take highest precautions for personal safety in and around Nogales. Sonora is a key region in international drug and human trafficking.

Venezuela — growing murder rate, travelers must remain vigilant by traveling in groups during daytime only.

Colombia — drug cartels, purse snatchings, muggings, pick pockets.

Mt. Everest — world's highest mountain on the border of Tibet and Nepal, petty crimes, real danger is "Death Zone," not enough oxygen to support human life.

Afghanistan — center of U.S. Gulf War for years, terrorist groups, Americans at risk even with security and protection.

7 WORST THINGS YOU CAN DO TO YOUR LAWN

Americans spend $40 billion each year on lawns — but money isn't their only contribution. The typical homeowner also devotes 73 hours to yard care every year, the equivalent of nearly two full workweeks.

1 Skipping a weekly mowing

Extended gaps between mowings allow lawns to grow tall and shaggy rather than thick and dense. If done repeatedly, fewer blades of grass will grow because tall grass will block out the sun.

When that tall grass finally is mowed, the gaps between the blades will be large enough for weeds to take hold.

TIP:

Frequent mowing is the single biggest reason why golf courses and professional baseball diamonds tend to look lusher than yards.

What to do: Mow at least once a week. If a gap of more than a week does occur, adjust your mower's blade height to avoid clipping off more than one-third of the grass height in the next mowing, then mow again a few days later to bring the lawn down to the preferred height.

4 Buying off-brand grass seed

Bargain-brand grass seed is inexpensive for a reason — most often it failed to pass an inspection because there was weed seed mixed in with the grass seed. So if you plant bargain seed, there's a good chance that you are introducing weeds to your lawn.

What to do: Pay a bit more for the seed that is at least 99.5 percent weed-seed free. By law, this statistic should be listed on grass-seed packaging.

2 Overwatering

More lawns are damaged by overwatering than by underwatering. Overwatering increases the odds of getting lawn diseases, it can wash away fertilizer and it can cause a lawn to grow faster than normal, increasing the odds that it will be scalped during a subsequent mowing.

What to do: Purchase a soil moisture meter so that you don't have to guess when your lawn needs water. Simple meters are available for as little as $10.

5 Not knowing what type of grass you have

Grass is not just grass. Many different turfgrasses are grown in US lawns — Kentucky bluegrass, fescue and ryegrass are common in cold climates...to name just a few. Not knowing what type of grass you have means that you can't care for your grass the way that it prefers to be treated. For example, different types of grass thrive at different heights.

What to do: Bring a sample of your grass to your local garden center, home center or hardware store — wherever grass seed is sold-and ask what type of grass you have.

TIP: You can enter the name of this grass into a search engine to find Websites from university extensions and other sources that provide mowing — height recommendations and other care tips for your specific lawn.

3 Overfertilizing

Excess fertilizer could seriously dehydrate grass, something known as "burning" the lawn. And even if a lawn escapes this fate, the excess fertilizer could make the grass grow faster than normal, potentially leading to scalping of the lawn when it is mowed.

What to do: The amount of fertilizer recommended on the packaging is the maximum amount that's safe to use. Spend a little extra for a "time-release," or "slow-release," fertilizer that supplies nutrients to the lawn slowly over a period of weeks, not all at once.

TIP: Choose a fertilizer that has about 50 percent of its total nitrogen as slow-release nitrogen. To determine this, find the overall percentage of "slowly available nitrogen" (indicated in small print on the package) and make sure that it is about half the overall percentage of "total nitrogen."

6 Mowing with dull blades

Dull mower blades rip grass blades apart rather than making a clean cut. This rough treatment can make grass more susceptible to drought and disease. It also can make the grass appear white.

What to do: Sharpen your mower blades at least once a year — potentially several times a year if your lawn has lots of rocks or roots that often nick your blade.

The numbers on the bag

A common type of all-purpose fertilizer is referred to as

10 - 10 - 10

N	P	K
Nitrogen	Phosphorus	Potassium
Shoot growth and green color	Root growth and cellular functioning	Stress and disease resistance

Which means: A 50 lb. bag equals five pounds (or 10 percent) Nitrogen, five pounds phosphorus, and five pounds potassium. The remaining 70 percent is simply filler, or inert ingredients, which are there mostly to help disperse the chemicals.

7 Bagging grass

Grass clippings provide much needed nutrients to your lawn. Contrary to widely held belief, leaving clippings on a lawn does not increase the odds of thatch problems — thatch is a layer of decomposing grass roots, not grass clippings.

What to do: Mulching is easier, faster and better for your lawn than bagging. Mulching mowers are specifically designed to finely chop clippings and return them to the lawn.

Ravenden PLAN 30-712

Craftsman-style windows, porch supports, and decorative gable ends lend their timeless appeal to the Ravenden. This small ranch-style home offers a combination of openness, economy and contemporary features that both empty nesters and young families will find appealing.

Shake-textured shingles fill the triangular gable fronts, while also adding visual appeal to the framed-out bases of the tapered porch supports. Both are Craftsman elements, as is the covered porch. It's easy to imagine an old-fashioned wooden porch swing hanging from the ceiling on the right end, or a couple of cushioned wicker chairs set out along the front.

Eileen "Ikie" C. Turner

May 15, 1925 — May 20, 2014

Eileen "Ikie" C. Turner - These dates refer to the life of our mother, grandmother, great-grandmother, and good friend from the beginning to the end. We think of the first date with joy and second date with tears. But what mattered most of all the dash between those years. For that represents all the time she spent on earth and now those who loved and knew her know what that dash was worth. For it matters not how much we own, the cars, the house, the cash. What matters most is how we live and how we spend our dash. Ikie's dash began on a farm in Hartland, Michigan - youngest of nine children. Life was hard work on the farm, especially after losing her mother at the young age of nine. As a woman, her dash was spent owning a restaurant in Fenton, Michigan, where she met and married Bob Turner in 1951. She was a devoted wife and dedicated mom to daughter Jackie and sons Terry and Bob. Tragically, she lost son Terry to an automobile accident when he was only 18. For many years she and husband Bob loved coming to DeTour, so much so that upon retirement they came for good. They had so many happy years in DeTour before Bob died in 1993. And sadly she recently lost daughter Jackie. Her incredible strength and determination carried her through the loss of so many family and friends. And yet she was grateful for her blessings and cherished every day. Her dash was filled with integrity and old-fashioned values. She was rich with friends. She took pride in her home and the fact they were all welcome at her dining room table where there was lots of laughter, fun, good conversation, card games or a shoulder to lean on. She loved watching her birds, reading her newspapers and all the good books loving nephew Gary brought her, Wednesday afternoons with good friend Don Jupe, enjoying game shows and Tiger's games, and Saturday morning phone calls with her dear friend Betty and her special sister Lena. She leaves son Bob (Debbie) Turner; five grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; sister Lena, dear nieces and nephews and many, many good friends. Fulfilling her wishes and beliefs, there won't be a funeral. She wanted people to keep the memories they already have of her, and memorable she is. She was a gem - a life well lived and full of class. For sure she's smiling at the things being said - about how she spent her dash. Reamer Galer Funeral Home, 24549 S. M-129 in Pickford, Michigan is serving the family. Condolences may be sent to the family at www.reamergalerfuneralhome.com.

KEITH ROACH, M.D.

To your good health

DEAR DR. ROACH: Why do people snicker when I tell them I have RLS? They wouldn't laugh if they knew the amount of sleep deprivation I have endured during the 20 years it took to correctly diagnose it. I think if it hadn't been for Sinemet (levodopa and carbidopa), a Parkinson's drug, I would have gone mad long ago. Has anyone discovered what causes it? — G.S.G.

ANSWER: Restless leg syndrome causes an urge to move the legs (and sometimes arms), which is worse at nighttime and is relieved by movement. It is usually accompanied by unpleasant sensations in the legs. When accompanied by sleep deprivation, as yours has been, it is also called periodic limb movement disorder. The cause is known only in a minority of cases. About 40 percent of cases seem to run in families, and several genetic factors have been identified. Iron deficiency sometimes is associated with RLS, and replacement of the iron can improve symptoms. Moderate exercise, leg massage and heat (say, a warm bath before bed) are some nondrug ways of improving symptoms. Levodopa/carbidopa is an effective treatment; pramipexole (Mirapex) and ropinirole (Requip) also are effective for many people. There are other alternatives as well. An expert in the condition, usually a neurologist, is essential for severe cases. I think the name 'restless leg syndrome' may be part of the reason why people don't take this condition as seriously as it deserves. After all, legs are supposed to move, and being "restless" doesn't sound so bad — but as you know, it's a lot more than that. For this reason, the new name, Willis-Ekbom disease, is preferred by some. Great information about this condition is available at RLS.org.

ENDLESS LOVE
Alex Pettyfer (Magic Mike) and Gabriella Wilde (The Three Musketeers) star in Universal Pictures' ENDLESS LOVE, the story of a privileged girl and a charismatic boy whose instant desire sparks a love affair made only more reckless by parents trying to keep them apart. Directed by Shana Feste (Country Strong), the romantic drama co-stars Robert Patrick, Bruce Greenwood, Rhys Wakefield, Dayo Okeniyi, Emma Rigby and Joely Richardson. Scott Stuber and Pamela Abdy (Identity Thief) of Bluegrass Films are joined by Josh Schwartz and Stephanie Savage (Gossip Girl) of Fake Empire to produce the film from writers Josh Safran (Gossip Girl), Feste and Schwartz. Inspired by the 1979 novel and 1981 film of the same name. 1 hr. 45 min.

GAMBIT
Colin Firth and Cameron Diaz headline this remake of the 1966 crime caper directed by Michael Hoffman (The Last Station) and written by Joel and Ethan Coen. A British thief (Firth) discovers that no plan is infallible when he recruits a beautiful woman (Diaz) to help him steal a priceless statue from an impossibly wealthy widower (Alan Rickman). Despite the fact that his pretty accomplice bears an uncanny resemblance to his affluent target's late wife, things quickly spin out of control once the job gets under way. PG-13, 1 hr. 29 min.

Girlfriend keeps guy in the closet

DEAR AMY: I recently celebrated my one-year anniversary with my girlfriend. I love her, and we get along great. She has introduced me to all her family (even her ex's family), but I am starting to think it's weird that she hasn't introduced me to any of her friends. As far as I can tell, she only vaguely speaks of me to them. After about six months of being together, I told her that it made me feel as if I were a secret, but she pointed out I've met her family. She says her friends don't need to know about us. At what point does it become weird that she continues to keep me away from her friends? Does it mean something? — No Friends

DEAR FRIENDS: I think this definitely means something, but I'm not sure what. You don't mention any explanation your girlfriend might offer, and so let us speculate wildly. I suspect that your girlfriend is hedging the truth about something, and she is keeping your presence vague to protect her cover story. It could be something quite benign. (She told her friends, 'After my divorce I swore I would never date again!') But you will never know what's behind this weirdness because she won't tell you. And that's the real problem.

DEAR AMY: I'm a mother of three children. My mom lives seven minutes away and barely sees my children. What really makes me upset is that she has been having an affair with a married man for the past 10 years and makes time to go on 'dates' almost every day. Then to make matters worse, I can't take my children to her house because my daughter is allergic to her dog. Is it wrong of me to expect her to give the dog away if her grandchild is allergic to it? My children can't even stay the night at their grandparent's house. I feel my mom is extremely selfish and doesn't wish to have a relationship with my kids. What upsets me more than anything is that I never ask my mom to watch my children, but when my husband and I decided to go on our honeymoon, she volunteered to watch my kids but then charged me to do so! — Upset Mom

DEAR UPSET: Your mother is selfish, self-centered and self-oriented. Given that, why would you want your children to spend the night at her house? Many grandparents are less than ideal; your mom is one of them. Never count on her to fulfill any of the usual and expected grandparent roles, and you'll be surprised when she occasionally does.

SAVORY GOAT CHEESE & CHIVE BISCUITS

INGREDIENTS

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 t. baking powder
- ½ t. baking soda
- ¾ t. fine sea salt
- ½ t. freshly ground pepper
- 1¾ oz. grated parmesan (¾ cup)
- 6 T. cold, unsalted butter, in ½" chunks
- 1 bunch chives, finely sliced
- 3 oz. fresh goat cheese, plus 3 more oz. for sprinkling (about 1 cup total)
- ¾ cup buttermilk

Recipe from foodwinethyme.com

DIRECTIONS

1. In a large bowl, sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, and pepper. Add the parmesan and butter, and work with your fingertips until the butter is incorporated with lots of butter chunks remaining.
2. Stir in the chives and crumble in 3 ounces of the goat cheese.
3. Add the buttermilk little by little, stirring until the dough just begins to clump together and no dry, floury bits remain. Gently knead the dough in the bowl a few times to bring the dough together into a ball.
4. Roll the dough out on a lightly floured surface into a rectangle that is a scant 1/2" thick and roughly twice as wide as it is tall. Crumble 2/3 of the remaining goat cheese over the center square of the dough then fold the dough in half, like closing a book. You should have a long rectangle of dough layered with cheese. Press down gently to flatten, then roll the rectangle into a loose spiral, starting with a skinny end.
5. Roll the layered dough into a 7x7" square that is 3/4" thick, then cut the dough into 16 squares.
6. Bake at 450 degrees until the biscuits are golden on top, about 15 min.
