"I'm bored" is a phrase that will grate on a parent's nerves all summer long, as kids attempt to find something to pass the time with. Here are a few day trips parents can take with the kids and hopefully hear the "b" word a little less this summer.

ONE-DAY TRIP #1 • BELLE ISLE

62 miles from Fenton

Belle Isle, which became a state park earlier this year, is worth the hour drive from Fenton. An aquarium, conservatory, kid's playscape and more than 5 miles of trails will entrance visitors for a day.

The 982-acre island in Detroit also features a beach, wetlands and numerous statues ranging from war generals to intellectuals. An $11 fee to visit the island will be implemented sometime this year. Those who walk, bike or jog to the island do not have to pay an entrance fee. Currently, a state recreation pass is required.

ONE-DAY TRIP #2 • GREAT WOLF LODGE

196 miles from Fenton

The Great Wolf Lodge in Traverse City is about three and a half hours away from Fenton and is a must visit for water park enthusiasts. The 38,000-square-foot indoor water park is kept at a constant 84 degrees and features 12 different attractions for people of all ages, including water slides, lazy rivers and whirlpools. Costs vary depending on number of people and whether families are renting out rooms. Visit Greatwolf.com/

A thank-you note to remember

Taped to the door of our refrigerator, surrounded by pictures of great-grandchildren, a brief quote of business coach Wanda Loscot gives this good advice to all who pass by: 'It takes about three minutes to write a thank-you note, fold it, stick it in an envelope and mail it, but the power of it is awesome.' Fred Suffield agrees.

Fred had been sound asleep when he suddenly awoke to the sound of someone pounding on his door. Moments later, he stood face to face with a half-frozen man who frantically told him that a train had become stalled in a snow storm and that the passengers were in danger of freezing to death.

Lighting a lantern, Fred followed the messenger to the site of the stalled train and led the travelers to his house, where they waited until the storm subsided and help came. Later, one of the passengers, named Kittie, sent a thank-you note to Fred. Surprised and pleased, Fred answered the note from Kittie and then, over time, something noteworthy happened. Fred and Kittie fell in love and were married.

After their marriage, Fred and Kittie started attending a church in Ottawa, Canada, pastored by Rev. A.J. Shea. There they found faith, became more and more active in the church and finally embarked on a ministry of their own. One summer, while conducting services at a church in Westport, Ontario, they invited the teenage son of pastor and Mrs. Shea (named George Beverly) to spend a month with them and one night they asked him to sing in one of the meetings.

Accompanied by Kittie at the piano, young George Beverly Shea attempted to sing but when his voice cracked on one of the high notes he sat down. Embarrassed, he vowed he would never sing again, but Kittie suggested he simply sing in a lower key. He did and Kittie's coaching worked. George Beverly Shea later became Billy Graham's soloist and one of the favorite gospel singers

During their years together, Fred and Kittie wrote a song titled, "Little Is Much When God Is in It," a tune that was destined to be widely known.

Why did they choose this title?

Perhaps they had been thinking about a Canadian blizzard that stopped a train and brought Kittie to Fred's little house. Maybe it was the memory of a little thank-you note that started communication between them, leading to love and marriage.

Possibly it reminded them of a nervous teen who overcame embarrassment and surrendered his talent to God, enabling him to reach millions with his message.

Whatever the reason for the title Fred and Kittie chose for their common sense musical creation, it states a principle that will always be true: gifts, talents or time given to the Lord bring greater blessings than the giver could have imagined.

SUMMER CARE FOR DOGS

They don't call them "dog days" for nothing. Summer is a great time to enjoy your pet, whether it means more outdoor time, travel, or just keeping cool at home. Here are a few tips to make sure your pet enjoys the season as much as you do.

Sources: fox17online.com, prevention.com, cesarsway.com, marthastewart.com, community.petco.com

LET YOUR DOG DIG

Your dog may resort to finding his own way to avoid the heat. Dogs in nature dig their dens not out of frustration but to find food, hide, give birth — or keep cool! If it's possible, locate a shady area where it's OK for your dog to dig.

LET YOUR DOG CHECK THE WEATHER

Dogs don't have the Weather Channel, so they don't know why they are being denied a long walk for the day. Allow your dog to step outside and feel for itself that it is too hot, too wet, or too cold to go on a long walk. Instinctually, the dog will understand that it has to shorten its walk, or simply come back inside where it's safe.

KEEP COATS LONG

While it may seem logical to cut your pet's coat short, resist the urge. The coat on a dog acts as insulation from both hot and cold air temperatures. The coat traps the air close to the body which is the same temperature as their body. Most people think that by shaving off the coat they are doing the dog a favor, but shaving a dog down to the skin you not only increase the risk of heatstroke but sunburn.

If hair — even long hair — is brushed and not matted, it provides better circulation and helps her regulate her body temperature.

Rene Carlson,

DVM, president of the American Veterinary Medical Association

USE SUNSCREEN

Even though fur provides some protection from the sun, you should apply a pet sunblock every 3 to 4 hours to the least hair-covered spots: bellies on dogs, especially ones who like to lie on their backs. No need to apply sunscreen directly on fur.

MYTH OR FACT: ICE CUBES ARE BAD FOR DOGS?

"If the dog is overheated, dehydrated and desperate for fluids, and they consume huge, huge amounts of ice cubes or water all at one time, it could create a situation where the dog could bloat," Dr. Randall Carpenter, DVM of Family Friends Veterinary Hospital said.

Dr. Carpenter says bloats are lifethreatening situations that actually flips the stomach while enlarging it. But that's true for large amounts of any temperature water, he added. He says just consuming cold water or ice cubes in moderation will not cause bloat, saying ice cubes and water when the weather is hot is a good thing.

"Ice cubes and cold water are fine for pets as long as it's done with some common sense," Dr. Carpenter said. lce cubes and cold water are fine for pets as long as it's done with some common sense.

Dr. Randall Carpenter, DVM of Family Friends Veterinary Hospital

MORE PETS GO MISSING ON THE FOURTH OF JULY THAN ANY OTHER DAY OF THE YEAR

- ★ During the festivities, keep your dog indoors with the windows closed.
- Make sure your dog's crate or "safe place" is easily accessible.
- ★ Playing soft music can make your friend feel more comfortable.
- ★ Don't scold your dog for anxious behavior and resist the urge to talk in a calming voice. Just act normal, and talk in an upbeat voice.
- ★ Consider the use of calming aids like the Thundershirt or homeopathic remedies designed to promote a sense of calm.
- ★ Be sure that the information on your dog's ID tag is current. This will ensure the quick recovery of a runaway pooch.

DOGS COOL FROM THE BOTTOM UP

Make sure to spray the paws and stomach, not just the top of the dog, when spraying it with water. A wet towel does more good on the bottom of your dog than when laid on the top of its coat.

LOOK OUT FOR HEAT EXHAUSTION

Signs of heat stress — heavy panting, dry or bright red gums, thick drool, vomiting, diarrhea, or wobbly legs.

Move your dog to a cool place, drape a damp towel over her body, rewetting the cloth frequently, and get her to the vet as soon as you possibly can. A dog's normal temperature is between 100 degrees and 103 degrees, so once she hits 104 degrees, she's in dangerous territory (106 degrees or higher can be fatal).

Do you know if you have enough life insurance?

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT approved a pipeline to the western side of their state. Thanks Obama, that pipeline should have been built in America.

MOST OF YOU just just aren't paying attention. Bland voted for, not against, the LGBT idiocy. He didn't believe in it but feared the backlash of the liberal Nazis. I'm disappointed in you Les.

HOW CAN GOOD parents allow their kids to blow off fireworks after 11 p.m.? I went to bed at 10 p.m. and they were still going off. Train your children in the playpen and they won't end up in the big pen.

TO THE BEST of my knowledge, you salute the flag with your right hand over your heart, not your left. I think he's a pro-commie Muslim.

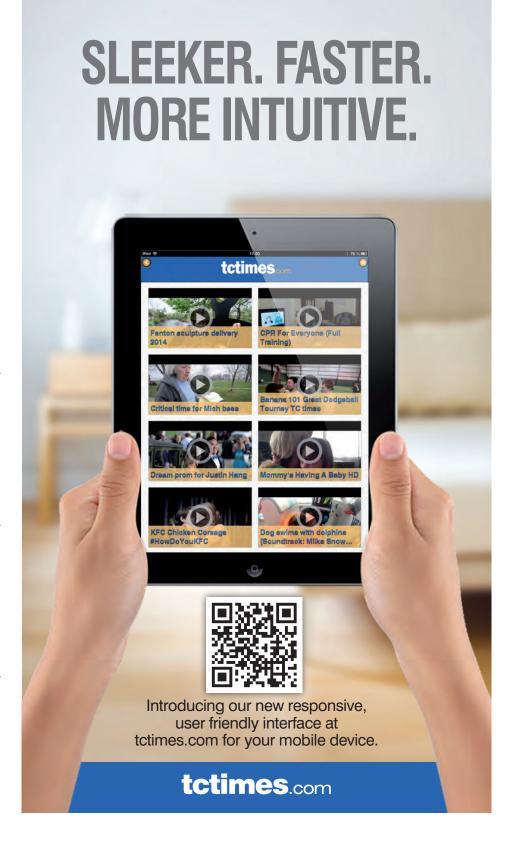

THE NEXT WAR in the USA will be between Sharia law and the rest of us. Those people are nuts.

GOODIE GOODIE YOU, you learned all those languages. Go get a job at the United Nations. Me, I'm going to go to any country I want and speak English. If they don't speak it, oh well.

WANT A NEW tagline for Fenton? How about the one's my buddies used in 1979 of the sandlot in downtown that said, 'Come visit beautiful downtown

BEFORE YOU BLAME Les Bland for his vote, find out what LGBT has led to in other cities. You don't want any child to be subjected to it, let alone adults.

OBAMA IS LETTING 45,000 to 90,000 illegals into America. All will go on welfare and food stamps. This is his

DEAR AMY: My mother has been using Facebook more frequently in the last few months, and I think that's fine. Unfortunately, the majority of the pictures that she posts are of me. Her profile and cover photos are of me. I really don't want her plastering my picture everywhere, especially if her privacy settings are weak and anyone has access to the photos. My personal page is very private, and I only have friends that I actually know on my page. I don't feel comfortable when I look up her page on Facebook and all that I can see is my face attached to her name. Will she ever respect my wishes? Or because she is my parent does she 'own' images of me? What should I do? — Technically Frustrated

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I have seen unintentionally hilarious examples of parents leaping over boundaries on Facebook while their young adult children comment: 'Mom, NO!' I agree that (at least the way you describe it) this is a deliberate breach of your privacy. However, realistically you cannot do anything about this, other than avoid your mother's omniscient camera at family events (by the way, she 'owns' all of the photos she takes, even if they are of you). You should tell her, 'Mom, this is an incredible breach of my privacy, and I've asked you to stop. This is disrespectful and you either don't get it, or you don't care.' After that, avoid her lens and stop checking her page.

DEAR AMY: Recently, a 'friend' in my daughter's third-grade class has been telling my daughter that she is stupid, ugly and useless. I talked to the girl's mother, and she apologized and said that she would talk to the girl, and the behavior has gotten better. The problem is that now when I tell my daughter how wonderful she is, she shrugs and says, 'You have to say that, you're my dad. It's not true.' This breaks my heart, and I don't know what else to do to fix the damage. — Concerned Dad

DEAR DAD: I think you should play a game. Ask your daughter to use five words to describe herself. Then ask her to use five words to describe you. Then you do the same. Choose five words to describe her and back up your descriptions with examples: 'I say 'smart' because you get good grades and you always remember where I parked the car, even when I forget. I say 'kind' because you are thoughtful and a very nice daughter, sister and friend. Plus, you always remember to feed the cat.' She got knocked down, but she knows you're in her corner. She needs some time and TLC to recover.

Tip provided by online.wsj.com

To your good health

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have had lower-back problems almost all my life. Many doctors and therapists have examined it, with almost no success. Recently, my attacks have been fewer and milder, even if the bed is not quite right. I can live with it, but a new wrinkle has emerged. If I don't get out of bed as soon as the alarm sounds, I'll have back pain and little mobility all day and partial incapacity. I am 74 years old, 6 feet, 4 inches tall and weigh 230 pounds. Do you have any idea what causes this, and if there is any cure? — J.S.B.

ANSWER: There are dozens of causes of back pain, and it can be impossible, even with the most advanced diagnostic tests, to make a precise diagnosis of the underlying cause. In your case, it sounds like you have had one problem for a long time and now something is causing a different kind of back problem. Back pain that gets worse with bed rest and better with exercise is not likely to be a herniated disc or spinal stenosis — two serious causes of back pain. I am guessing that there is a component of osteoarthritis in your back now, which would be quite common in a 74-year-old man. Osteoarthritis does tend to get worse with rest and better with exercise. I am impressed by how acutely it gets worse, and it's entirely possible that there may be some muscular spasm associated with your back pain. Even though you are quite tall, 230 pounds is a lot for your spine to support. You have a BMI of 28, which is in the 'overweight' range. Losing even five or 10 pounds may help relieve pain on vour back. And certainly listen to your body, and get up and be active. Stretching, including yoga and tai chi, can be a very effective treatment. The arthritis booklet discusses joint pain found in osteoarthritis, rheumatoid arthritis and lupus.

Halsey Plan 30-847

If you're in the market for a freshly designed, frill-free compact home that covers all the basics and then some, check out the Halsey. Its compact footprint makes it economical to build, heat and maintain.

This home is equally well suited to first time homebuyers starting (or planning to start) a family, or empty nesters looking to reduce maintenance tasks and costs.

Grids and gables mesh harmoniously to create curb appeal. The garage door, multipaned windows and front door provide the grids. Softening the overall effect are a half-round window near the top of the front door, and circular louvered vents that sit just under the peaks of the two low gables.
