Police&Fire report

EIGHT ARRESTS IN SIX DAYS Between June 26 and July 1, Fenton police arrested eight people for alcohol/drug related driving incidents, two of which resulted in crashes. Lt. Jason Slater said one of the crashes involved a 38-year-old Grand Blanc man who crashed his 2008 Harley-Davidson motorcycle on South Long Lake Road on June 28. The man admitted to drinking prior to the crash. He was transported to the hospital with a broken collarbone and broken ribs. Charges are pending the result of analysis of his blood by the state police crime lab. The second crash occurred on June 26 at 9:30 a.m. A 57-yearold Fenton Township woman crashed her 1990 Oldsmobile on Silver Lake Road, near Poplar Street. The woman told police she had passed out prior the crash. The responding police officer determined she was under the influence of something other than alcohol. She was transported to the hospital and she consented to a blood draw for analysis by the crime lab. She admitted she takes several pain medications prescribed by her doctor. Slater said police will request the Secretary of State to evaluate her medicines to determine if she is permitted to drive.

More fireworks safety tips

- Never allow young children to play with or ignite fireworks.
- · Avoid buying fireworks that are packaged in brown paper because this is often a sign that the fireworks were made for professional displays and that they could pose a danger to consumers.
- · Always have an adult supervise fireworks activities. Parents don't realize that young children suffer injuries from sparklers. Sparklers burn at temperatures of about 2,000 degrees - hot enough to melt some metals.
- Never place any part of your body directly over a fireworks device when lighting the fuse. Back up to a safe distance immediately after lighting fireworks.
- Never try to re-light or pick up fireworks that have not ignited fully.
- Never point or throw fireworks at another person.
- · Keep a bucket of water or a garden hose handy in case of fire or other mishap.
- · Light fireworks one at a time, then move back quickly.
- Never carry fireworks in a pocket or shoot them off in metal or glass containers.

A new 'Freedom Summer,' 50 years later

Civil rights veterans plan to honor the 50th anniversary of Mississippi's Freedom Summer project by taking on an even bigger challenge: Turning the South's red states blue.

Actually, they don't express it in terms that are quite that partisan. Whether the states turn Democratic blue or stay Republican red is less important than how much black voters and other voters of color are able to participate in the decision.

Fifty years ago this month, a coalition of major civil rights organizations launched Freedom Summer, also known as the Mississippi Summer Project, to register African-American voters in Mississippi.

The event is sadly stained by a great tragedy. Three civil rights' workers, James Earl Chaney, Andrew Goodman and Michael 'Mickey' Schwerner were abducted and killed on the night of June 21, 1964 by members of Ku Klux Klan and the local police departments. National outrage over their deaths helped to ease passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

A new report, titled 'True South: Unleashing Democracy in the Black Belt 50 Years After Freedom Summer,' concludes that in many of the 13 'Black Belt' states in the study, registering just 30 percent of eligible unregistered minorities could shift the political calculus, because of racially polarized voting patterns.

An impossible dream? I might be willing to dismiss Jealous and his allies more easily were it not for the recent electoral upsets that have turned conventional racial, political and media wisdom on its head.

Whether the winner comes from the left or the right, I am not displeased to see voters defy the expectations of pollsters, politicians and media pundits. Election surprises reassure us that we are not Cuba, China or some other system in which outcomes are predetermined by political insiders.

Whether a renewed Freedom Summer effort registers as many new voters as the original one did remains to be seen. But as some politicians have learned to their dismay, you should never underestimate the ability of voters to surprise you.

Climate change deniers

People who refuse to drink the Kool-Aid known as global warming-climate change are not just 'deniers;' we are guilty of a 'nihilistic refusal' to address the issue.

So says a Washington Post editorial commenting favorably on Monday's Supreme Court ruling that allows the Environmental Protection Agency, under certain limits, to proceed under the Clean Air Act to regulate major sources of greenhouse-gas emissions.

The actual nihilists are those who refuse to accept any scientific information that undermines their claim that the globe is warming and humans are responsible for it. Regardless of evidence contradicting their beliefs, cultists persist in blind faith.

The London Daily Telegraph's Christopher Booker, author of 'The Real Global Warming Disaster,' writes of climate change denier Steve Goddard's U.S. blog Real Science, which he says shows '...how shamelessly manipulated has been one of the world's most influential climate records, the graph of U.S. surface temperature records published by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

Goddard compared the most recently published graphs with those based only on temperatures measured at the time.' He concludes: 'The U.S. has actually been cooling since the '30s, the hottest decade on record; whereas the latest graph, nearly half of it based on 'fabricated' data, shows it to have been warming at a rate equivalent to more than 3 degrees centigrade per century.'

If that isn't a smoking gun, what is?

The global warmers are the ones refusing to discuss, debate or even mention the growing body of science questioning and in increasing instances disproving their theories.

Many in the media, including some newspaper editorial pages, refuse to broadcast or print information that challenges and in some cases refutes arguments about global warming claiming it is 'settled science.'

This is about government gaining more control over the lives of its citizens. Already they are in our bathrooms, our cars, our light bulbs and so many other areas that have the cumulative effect of encroaching on our freedoms.

So exactly who are the real nihilists and deniers?

► Late start for corn puts local farmers weeks behind schedule

By William Axford

PARADE

with temperatures slated to be in the mid-70s with sunshine and low humidity.

Touted as the largest parade in Genesee County, Friday's event will be seen by thousands and thousands of local people, who will line up as spectators hours before the parade.

The most exciting news this year will be the appearance of the Linden High School Marching Band, which will actually kickoff the parade under the guidance of Band Director John Bennett.

"We haven't had a marching band in our parade since the days when Andy Schmidt was the Grand Marshal," said Scott Grossmeyer, parade co-chair. "We do understand how it is for our local schools to have bands participate. Summer is the time when instruments are sent out for repair, and teachers and students are on vacation. We are really excited."

An event as large as the Freedom Festival Grand Parade doesn't just happen. It takes a huge behind-thescenes effort, led by Parade Chairmen Scott Grossmeyer and Lynn Ferguson. "I couldn't do this event without Lynn," said Grossmeyer. "Plus, we have about 10 other volunteers who assist in the staging area, before the parade steps out."

Grossmeyer brings years of experience to his job as Parade Chairman, having worked under former school administrator/ town booster Andy Schmidt who always organized the parade. Now, it's his son, Dan Schmidt, who starts the parade off every year.

The parade line-up begins with a spreadsheet designed by Ferguson and her husband, Glen, which will show the lineup of floats, cars and marchers that make up the 100 to 130 units that comprise the parade. "We'll write the numbers down on the road, and single units will line up at Rounds and Grant streets, while floats will line up at Shiawassee, between Owen and Donaldson roads," said Grossmeyer.

Eichelberg expects his corn to grow on time, despite the rough start in May. The farmer described the recent precipitation as "good, timely rains," that have led to constant fighting with weeds.

Fenton Township farmer Dwight

"It's not looking too bad at this point. Things are progressing along," said Eichelberg, who estimates he'll be selling corn at his stand sometime around July 15. "I planted on time and everything is looking pretty good."

Like winter, Michigan summers can be drastically different from year to year. In 2012, farmers lost much of their crops to a devastating drought. The summer of 2013 saw cooler temperatures and a manageable amount of rain, giving farmers a bountiful grow season.

This summer has been hit or miss, See FARMERS on 12

"Danny will then pace the units so they step out at the proper time."

Other exciting happenings at this year's Grand Parade include:

• A parade appearance by Michigan Secretary of State Ruth Johnson. "It's a compliment to our town that she has chosen to participate in our festival," said Grossmeyer.

• A newly revived Kids' Decorated Bike Parade, now headed by CycleFit Multisport's Ron Stack.

• The appearance of Fenton High School Band Director Brad Wright with his bagpipes. "He's been in the parade

Cairnduff said the department sees more brush fires from a bottle rocket or mortar leaving the ground, especially with Michigan easing its restriction on fireworks, as opposed to firecrackers that stay on the ground. "People need to realize that they are responsible for any damage caused by the use of fireworks," he said. "We have seen an increase in brush and grass fires from fireworks that are launched into the air."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends leaving any real fireworks to the professionals. If not professionals, sober adults should be in charge of lighting fireworks, or firecrackers. In regards to fireworks that are "duds," the American Pyrotechnics Association (APA) advises that it is not re-lit, or touched if it does not fire.

Fireworks should be lit one at a time, and moved away from quickly. Afterward, they should be doused with water.

APA also urges that children not be allowed to use sparklers — the CDC reports that these can burn up to 2,000 degrees, which can melt some metals.

If you do buy real fireworks, avoid those wrapped in brown paper — the CDC said if it is wrapped as such, it could mean it was originally manufactured for professional use.

Inside the city of Fenton, fireworks are restricted to the day before, after, and the day of the holiday itself.

Voter registration

deadline is July 7 Michigan residents have until Monday, July 7, to register in order to vote in the Aug. 5 primary, according to Secretary of State Ruth Johnson. Polls will be open on Election Day from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. To register, applicants must be at least 18 years old by Election Day and be U.S. citizens. Applicants must also be residents of Michigan and of the city or township in which they wish to register. Voters may register by mail or in person at their county, city or township clerk's office or by visiting any Secretary of State (SOS) office. To check their registration status, see a sample ballot or find their polling place, residents may visit the Michigan Voter Information Center at www.michigan.gov/vote. The site can be easily viewed on a smartphone. As a reminder, voters will be asked to provide valid photo identification when at the polls on Election Day or if obtaining an absentee ballot in person from the clerk's office. Anyone who does not have an acceptable form of photo ID or failed to bring it with them can still vote by signing a brief affidavit stating that they're not in possession of photo ID.

The Fourth of July and the Fourth Amendment

This Friday we commemorate our Declaration of Independence from Great Britain on July 4, 1776 and the resulting formation of our United States of America.

There were many reasons for our founding fathers' decision to break away from colonial rule and I won't go into all of them here. However, our United States Supreme Court issued its ruling in the case of Riley v California (which was joined with the case of United States v Wurie) on June 25, 2014, which touched upon one of the reasons.

Readers of this column will recall that I wrote about these cases several weeks ago and which center on whether a warrant is required under the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution (as to unreasonable searches and seizures) before the police can search the contents of a cell phone.

The Court, in a unanimous opinion authored by Chief Justice Roberts, held that the answer to this question is yes in almost all cases, and gave this historical view:

Our cases have recognized that the Fourth Amendment was the founding generation's response to the reviled 'general warrants' and 'writs of assistance' of the colonial era, which allowed British officers to rummage through homes in an unrestrained search for evidence of criminal activity.

Opposition to such searches was in fact one of the driving forces behind the Revolution itself. In 1761, the patriot James Otis delivered a speech in Boston denouncing the use of writs of assistance.

A young John Adams was there, and he would later write that '(e)very man of a crowded audience appeared to me to go away, as I did, ready to take arms against writs of assistance.' 10 Works of John Adams 247-248 (C. Adams ed. 1856).

According to Adams, Otis's speech was 'the first scene of the first act of opposition to the arbitrary claims of Great Britain. Then and there the child Independence was born.'

We have much to celebrate on this Fourth of July including the fact that we live in a country that recognizes freedom and has a system of justice that balances the rights of all under our Constitution.

Have a Happy Fourth!

► How to dry clothes more efficiently

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

While your washing machine has become more energy efficient in the past 30 years, your dryer's efficiency and technology has remained largely unchanged since the 1970s.

A typical electric dryer may now consume as much energy per year as the combined use of an efficient new refrigerator, clothes washer and dishwasher, reports the Natural Resources Defense Council in a recent story in USA Today.

With 75 percent of American homes using electric dryers, it's a bigger issue than it sounds. Americans spend $9 billion annually to operate inefficient dryers, resulting in energy waste and carbon dioxide emissions.

"Newer washers offer the ability to increase the speed of the spin cycle up to 1200 rpm," said Monica Pelz, store manager at Sears Hometown Store of Fenton. "In doing so, your clothes are dryer coming out of the washer, lessening your dry time."

"The technology hasn't changed much because there's not much else you can do with a dryer," said Rick Taylor, owner of the Mr. Appliance franchise in Fenton. "Drying requires heat, either from an electric source or gas. There's not much else to it."

However, the Environmental Protection Agency is taking steps to boost dryer efficiency. Next year, for the first time, the EPA will allow manufacturers to use the Energy Star label on dryers that use 20 percent less energy than the minimum standards. These models will likely have auto sensors that will stop the machine once the clothes are dry. This feature can save up to 15 percent in energy costs.

In January 2015, vented dryers will face a new standard that will boost efficiency by about 5 percent. The Department of Energy is working now to improve its testing of dryer efficiency before it finalizes another standard, likely in 2017.

For now, here's how Mr. Appliance

• Avoid kinking the exhaust vent behind the dryer. The shorter the better.

• Exhaust ducting should be made from a metalized, semi-rigid/flexible material, not vinyl, to withstand the heat. • Check your outside vent hood and clean, if necessary. The best vent hood has a flapper that opens when the dryer is in use and closes when off. should typically

• Clean lint screen between every load, and more frequently if drying material with higher cotton content.

• Do not overload dryer. Too many clothes will inhibit proper circulation of heated air between and through clothing.

• Don't underload either, because too few clothes will disallow proper airflow, which dissipates the moisture from clothes faster, making a quicker dry time. See CLOTHES on 12

Electric dryer vs. gas dryer

Which is best?

Pros of gas dryers • They are less expensive to operate. • They heat up and dry clothes faster than electric dryers. Cons of gas dryers

• Vent is required to the outside.

 More expensive initial cost. Gas line required that must be professionally installed.

• Ease of installation. Your home is already wired for electrical service. • Milder heat is gentler to clothes. Cons to electric dryer

 Clothes take longer to dry. Slightly more expensive to oper-

Senate Bill 51: Expand forest property tax breaks

To expand the eligibility for certain forest property tax breaks, increase their value, double the number of acres eligible for the tax breaks from 1.2 million to 2.4 million statewide, authorize a new 2-mil property tax on property in this program that would go to a proposed "Private Forestland Enhancement Fund" to subsidize private forestland management activities, and more. This and related bills are designed to facilitate use of a program granting property tax exemptions to owners of smaller "non-industrial" sized parcels of forestland.

Senate Bill 44: Add more crimes to sex offender registry

To place on the state's public sexual offender registry individuals who commit certain crimes deemed insufficiently serious to warrant this consequence, except that the victim is a minor. This would include indecent exposure, knowingly possessing child sexually abusive material, surveillance of an undressed individual, and knowingly restraining another person. The additions would be retroactive, so that individuals convicted of these offenses in the past now would have to place themselves on the sex offender registry.

To convert Blue Cross Blue Shield into a "mutual insurance company" and make it subject to the same regulations as regular health insurers. Although it would remain a non-profit, current restrictions on the entity's ability to own for-profit subsidiaries would be reduced, and it would no longer be subject to close oversight by the state Attorney General. In return for being granted this conversion, BCBS would pay "up to" $1.56 billion over 18 years into a fund that would supplement various health-related government programs, as selected by a board of political appointees.

"Our emphasis for the holiday will be to maintain high visibility, zero tolerance on drunk or impaired driving and ensure everyone has a safe holiday," Aro said via email. "Over-indulging in alcohol and then driving, causing a disturbance or using fireworks in a reckless manner is the quickest way to get arrested this weekend."

Michigan State Police (MSP) will be just as vigilant for intoxicated motorists this Independence Day. Lieutenant Brian Cole, public information officer for MSP said 160 posts in 20 different counties will be patrolling the roadways this weekend, from the Upper Peninsula down to the Metro Detroit area.

While the lieutenant wants everyone to have a great, safe weekend, drunk driving does increase during the Fourth of July weekend.

"Unfortunately, during last year's Fourth of July crackdown, there were more arrests for drunk driving," Cole said. "People should expect extra patrols on drunk drivers. We'll be working traffic very hard and responding to other emergencies."

MIDWEEK TIMES

In addition to abstaining from drunk driving, Aro would like to remind people that open alcohol is illegal in a public place and that fireworks can only be used on property where owners have given consent. Fireworks are prohibited from use in public areas such as parking lots and in streets.

In Fenton, fireworks may be used the day before, of and after holidays. Per the city of Fenton's ordinance, fireworks may only be used during the hours of 8 a.m. to 1 a.m.

When using fireworks, Cole said all warning labels and instructions should be read and followed, and that children should never handle explosives. Projectile fireworks should be lit outdoors, on a flat surface away from flammable material.

"Always keep a hose nearby and do not try to relight fireworks that do not function," Cole said. "We want to remind all citizens to take extra safety precautions with fireworks."

Aro said Fenton police hopes everyone enjoys the Freedom Festival and has a great holiday weekend. "Use fireworks in a responsible, safe manner and be considerate of your neighbors," Aro said. "Our activity is somewhat affected by weather however, rain or shine, we will be busy."

Safety tips for this Independence Day

• Do not drink and drive state and local police will have a zero tolerance policy on intoxicated drivers this weekend.

• Use fireworks on a flat, hard surface, away from flammable material. Be sure to have hose or water nearby in case of fire.

• Fireworks should only be handled only by adults.

• Fireworks within the city of Fenton may be used the day before, day of and day after Independence Day. They can only be used between the hours of 8 a.m. to 1 a.m.

that's very difficult to ease and is easily spread. You can also get the rash from a secondary source, as the oil can stick to many surfaces, from clothing to tools, even a pet's fur. Burning the plants to eradicate them causes the oil to spread by smoke.

Individual sensitivity to poison ivy varies greatly. Urushiol will produce symptoms in three out of four people. Severity of the symptoms depends on each individual's sensitivity and reaction to the allergen.

People possess natural immunity, but that's lost after your first contact with the oil. Subsequent contact with the oil will result in skin irritation, although its severity will vary.

If you've never been exposed or aren't yet allergic to poison ivy, it may take 10 to 21 days for a reaction to occur the first time. Once allergic to poison ivy, however, most people break out 48 to 72 hours after contact with the plant.

Found in all parts of our state, poison ivy is usually growing as a slender vine running along the ground, or on shrubs and trees.

Most recognized by the saying, "leaves of three, let it be," there is truth to these words, as poison ivy has three leaflets occurring alternately along the stem. Leaflets are usually smooth, but because their characteristics are easily mixed and confused, it's best to remember this adage and avoid three-leaved plants that might be poison ivy.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU COME IN CONTACT WITH POISON IVY?

Most people can safely treat the rash at home with some of these methods, recommended by the American Academy of Dermatologists:

• Immediately rinse your skin with lukewarm, soapy water, as you may be able to rinse off some of the oil. If not washed off, the oil can spread from person to person and to other parts of your body.

• Wash your clothing that you were wearing when you came into contact with the poisonous plant. The oil can stick to clothing and if it touches your skin, it can cause another rash.

• Wash everything else that may have the oil on its surface. Wash with warm, soapy water your garden tools, golf clubs, leashes and your pet's fur.

• Do not scratch, as scratching can cause an infection.

How can you avoid poison ivy in the first place?

Knowing what the plant looks like is one way. Wearing long plants and long-sleeved shirts when in a wooded area is important. Wear gloves when gardening in an area that may have poison ivy.

Pets that are loose in wooded areas should be watched carefully. They may rub up against the plant, get the oil on their fur, and then indirectly pass the allergen onto humans who handle the animal.

For anyone sensitive to poison ivy, the oily residue from the plant can be painfully irritating.

• Leave blisters alone. If blisters open, do not remove the overlying skin, as the skin can protect the raw wound underneath and prevent infection.

• Take short, lukewarm baths. To ease the itch, bathe in a colloidal oatmeal preparation from your local drugstore. You can also add one cup of baking soda to running water in a bath.

• Apply calamine lotion or hydrocortisone cream.

• Apply cool compresses to the itchy skin. Make a cool compress by wetting a clean washcloth with cold water and wringing it out so that it doesn't drip. Apply the cool cloth to the itchy skin.

• Consider taking antihistamine pills. These pills can reduce itching, but do not apply to the skin, as that will worsen the rash and the itch.

Go to the nearest emergency room if:

You have trouble breathing or

- swallowing.The rash covers most of your body.
- You have many rashes or blisters.
  You experience swelling, espe-
- cially of an eyelid. • The rash develops anywhere on
- your face or genitals. • Most of your skin itches, or noth-
- ing seems to ease the itch.

How long will healing take?

A mild case may last a week, while a severe case may last three to four weeks. Keeping the rash clean is important.

Can you pass poison ivy along to other people?

Not through the blister fluid or rash, because those are products of the body that actually contain very little or no resin from the poison ivy. If rashes continue to break out on new areas of the body, it's usually due to repeated exposure or different regions of the skin being exposed and reacting at different times to the resin.

fields have rolling hills rather than flat plains.

"In some areas there's been considerable erosion," Yoncho said. "There's a lot of fields around that haven't been planted. Some of the rains we've had were very quick and very heavy."

Despite the setbacks, Yoncho does expect a decent harvest this year, albeit a few weeks late.

Keys for a bigger harvest this late in the season include temperate weather and average rainfall. Morey said 70 to 80 degree nights will help crops grow immensely. As of now, all three farmers expect to have a decent yield this year. Morey doesn't expect to take a loss this year, even if he had to start late.

"It just increases your stress level," Morey said. "Financially, it doesn't impact anything at this point. I'll know though at the end of the season.'

Muffley said concert attendance has grown, now in its fourth week. Both concerts, and the market are funded by the Downtown Development

The DDA contributed $29,000 for these summer events, which also include Back to the Bricks, and Fiddling in Fenton, which happens in September.

Muffley said that each musical act is paid based on their members and required travel.

Market Manager Robin Baker with SLPR said there are 45 booths this year.

There were 50 last year.

Deborah Campi, who owns Sophia's Bows, said that the markets tend to be successful for her. "The town basically supports the market," she said.

Despite some produce not being available because of the inclement weather, attendance was still high, said Baker. She said the farmers market "provides produce and artisan stuff to the community at a reasonable cost."

The Farmers Markets, and Concerts in the Parks will be back next week, starting with the Farmers Market at 5 p.m. and concert at 7 p.m.

Detter has World Cup ties to U.S. players

►Holly native talks about his own national experience

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com

Justin Detter is a Holly High School graduate who has a little bit of a World Cup past. He played on several national soccer teams with several of the players who are part of this year's United States World Cup team and past squads. Detter was part of a U17 squad that went to their age group's World Cup, and his teammates included DaMarcus Beasley, Kyle Beckermann and Landon Donovan (among others). He now resides in White Lake.

Detter played at Notre Dame and was drafted by the Kansas City Wizards in Major League Soccer. During his brief career in MLS, the Wizards won the U.S. Open Cup Championship and made it to MLS Cup 2004, losing in the finals. Detter currently runs his own Justin Detter Soccer Academy and has teamed up with the Hartland Soccer program.

Recently we asked Detter to answer some questions about his career and his time with some of the players in this year's World Cup. Here are his answers in question and answer form.

Q: How did you get into soccer in the first place?

A: My parents registered me in AYSO when I was 4. It was quickly realized that I had a natural talent for the game. More importantly, I loved the game. During my first season I would do things like sleep in my jersey and skip dinner to continue juggling and shooting in the backyard.

Q: How did you get to the point where you were part of the U17 national team?

A: My journey to the U17 National team was enabled through ODP (Olympic Development Program). ODP was designed to help evaluate soccer players across the country and give them an opportunity to play and train at the highest level.

I first made the U.S. national team at the very first level it was offered. On the U14 national team I was on a team with DaMarcus Beasley and Kyle Beckerman. We played in a tournament in Italy.

The next two years were a series of national team camps. This is where they would fly us to different locations in the county to train for 10 to 20 days at a time. See DETTER on 16

In preparation for the U17 World Championships the guys all lived in Bradenton, Fla. for a whole year. This is when I got my next opportunity. I was asked to join residency with the U17 team in Bradenton when I was 17. It was my senior year of high school. I was roommates with Landon Donovan, Bobby Convey, and a guy named Bryan Jackson.

Q: Your World Cup U17 team has two players on this year's World Cup team — Beasley and Beckerman. What can you tell me about them?

A: DaMarcus and I are still good friends. We remain in touch through facebook and a couple phone calls throughout the year.

He was always one of the fastest kids on the field. His lack in size was always made up for with hard work and attitude. We were roommates growing up with Region II ODP for several years. When I was asked to move to Florida, it didn't take long for us to be rooming again as we did so on trips to Germany and Costa Rica.

Being in his fourth World Cup is something even DaMarcus probably didn't imagine. As you can imagine, that is a very tough feat.

Kyle was always part of the youth national teams. He played a very smooth yet physical game. Being fit and always moving his 'soccer mind' made up for his lack of speed. He always seemed to be in the right spot on the field and he still holds true with trait today. With his heavy East coast accent Kyle was always one of the funny guys make all of us laugh. He always had crazy hair as well. ... Now his hair is almost iconic within the MLS and United States soccer.

Q: I have to ask about Landon Donovan. Do you think he should be on this team?

A: Well after seeing Jozy (Altidore) go down it would be easy to say yes. Even before that I think I would have had him on my 23-man team. But, (United States coach) Jurgen Klinsmann probably knew that Landon would not fair well on the bench and potentially could have become a cancer. ... Additionally, Landon decided to take a 'sabbatical' during World Cup qualifying. I think that this put a very bad taste in Klinsmann's mouth and showed him a side of Landon that he didn't like. It was also very public that they didn't mesh very well.

... So with that said, I support his decision fully and it looks as if it was the right one.

TRI-COUNTY TIMES I SUBMITTED PHOTO Justin Detter (right) holds the Lamar Hunt U.S. Open Cup after the Kansas City Wizards captured the 2004 title.

Q: Do you watch all the games?

A: Yes, or at least I try to. I work out of a home office so it allows me to take breaks throughout the day and watch. Of course when the U.S. is on, I am glued to the TV. The World Cup is, by far, the biggest and most loved sporting event in the world. People that disagree are naïve. All you have to do is look at the watch parties across the country. When is the last time you can look across the entire country and see gatherings of thousands all watching and supporting the same team.

Q: What can you tell me about Landon Donovan from your times with him?

A: A couple of things. I can assure you that he is the fittest guy I have ever been around. I can remember one of the fitness tests we did. We had to run a cooper test with a twist. A cooper test in the soccer world is known as two miles in 12 minutes. Anyway, we had to do a super cooper which was two miles in 12 minutes, rest for six minutes and do another mile. We had to complete it in 17:30. Running the first part of the test was doable but that six-minute rest absolutely killed you. To then start up again and run a 5:30 third mile was very challenging. Landon ran the first two miles in 10:20 and then the last mile in the low five-minute range.

He was a very demanding, hard working player that has put U.S. soccer on the map. He will always be considered as one of the best players in U.S. soccer history. Landon has set the bar, but our young stars will far surpass what he did as the entire soccer landscape is changing in our country, giving our young players the training that they need.

A perfect example of this is Clint Dempsey. I played against Clint Dempsey twice in college while he was See Q&A on 17

One of this year's new runners at the first event was Ortonville's Nicholas VanGilder. He was one of three Larsen enjoyed the experience as well. He wants to get back in condition for the Warrior Dash. Larsen said he hasn't run more than two miles since the Run Like the Dickens event during the winter.

"I always wanted to do one of these, but just never done one of them," Larsen said. "If I had my choice, this is what I'd be doing. This is fun, running up and down the trail and over the grass. It would be even better if it was more muddy."

TRI-COUNTY TIMES I DAVID TROPPENS Sean Bowles (right) helps his younger sister Jillian Bowles complete one of the events at the Wednesday Night Races.

> "This is so much fun," Sue Larsen said. "We wanted to come out and support the schools. We both teach and to see not just a bunch of little kids, but families come out is nice."

Two of the little kids Larsen may have seen were Rachel Perantonia's sons Justin, 7, and Brandon, 4. Perantonia ran with Brandon during his 1/2-mile race.

"He ran it when he was 2. He's 4 now," Peranonia said. "It's fun. ... It's good exercise and it's rewarding for the kids. It keeps them active. He likes to run."

But the races aren't just for the children. During the opening week, at least 10 of the runners were 40 and older. None was older than traditional Wednesday Night Races runner Gary Mundy, who is 69. The 69-year-old athlete ran the three-mile event in 24:45.0

"I just like the closeness of it and camaraderie of it. It's a little different running on the grass and on the trail through the roads," Mundy said. "It's great seeing the kids starting to run at an earlier age, instead of being in front of the computer or television."

Q&A

Continued from Page 16 at Furman. He was one of my favorite people to play against. We would talk trash to each other the whole game. I love his attitude on the field. We all saw his toughness when he continued to play with a broken nose against Ghana.

Q: What did you learn about yourself through soccer and your experiences playing it at a high level?

A: I was able to learn a lot about myself as well as other cultures. With traveling all over the world comes a certain responsibility. We were living on our own at such a young age so you learn to take care of yourself, keep track of your belongings, manage your money on trips and small things like that. Additionally I learned all about other cultures. Traveling to countries like Brazil, Costa Rica, Portugal, Italy, Germany, Netherlands, and more gives you great insight and perspective on things in the United States. I quickly realized how easy we have it and to be thankful for the things we take for granted everyday. It helped form the foundation of responsibility for me at a very young age. All of the countries I mentioned I was traveling to between the ages of 14 to 18. So I was still a kid in most cases. My soccer career was very good to me and I have a lot to be thankful for. U.S. Soccer allowed me to see the world and play with the best players in our country. For that I will forever be thankful.

To your Good Health KEITH ROACH, M.D.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have worn a sterling silver chain and cross for years. Over time, I have noticed that it's gone from shiny to dark. I have never polished it. Right now it is almost black. Is it something in my body chemistry that does this? — V.S.

MIDWEEK TIMES

ANSWER: The black discoloration is tarnish, an oxidation of the metal. Even sterling silver can tarnish, and some people's body chemistry can indeed make tarnishing more likely. Some people will complain of the dark discoloration if the tarnish rubs off on the skin. More-acidic sweat, and more traces of sulfur, will cause more tarnish. This is very different from nickel allergy, which can cause mild but occasionally more severe skin reactions. Sterling silver does not contain nickel.
