One week remains in 2014 picking season

Hartland Twp. — The green tractor takes pickers on a ride through tree-flanked hills, finally arriving at the strawberry fields after a bumpy five-minute ride. The seven acres seem to last forever, and everyone is hunched over, filling the cardboard flats a berry at a time.

There is still a week left in strawberry season this year. The weather hurt many other crops and industries; however, the combination of alternating heavy rain, cool weather and hot sun have been perfect for the strawberry crop.

“It’s been a perfect growing season for berries,” said Crop Manager Will Cartwright. “Excellent yield, we’ve had a nice timely rain.”

The picking season started June 11. Cartwright said that normally, the season lasts

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS ABOUT MOSQUITOES

Mosquitoes can smell human breath. They have receptors on their antennae that detect the carbon dioxide released when we exhale. Those plumes of CO2 rise into the air, acting as trails that the mosquitoes follow to find the source.

DEET is considered the ‘gold standard’ of mosquito repellents. Endorsed by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), DEET doesn’t mask the smell of the host or jam the insect’s senses — mosquitoes simply don’t like it because it smells bad to them. A product containing 10-percent DEET can protect you for up to 90 minutes.

Mosquitoes don’t have teeth. The females “bite” with a long, pointed mouthpart called a proboscis. They use the serrated proboscis to pierce the skin and locate a capillary, then draw blood through one of two tubes.

The bumps from mosquito bites are caused by saliva. While one tube in the proboscis draws blood, a second pump in saliva containing a mild painkiller and an anti-coagulant. Most people have minor allergic reactions to the saliva, causing the area around the bite to swell and itch.

Only female mosquitoes bite people. Both male and female feed mainly on fruit and plant nectar, but the female also needs the protein in blood to help her eggs develop. Once she’s had her fill of blood, she’ll rest a couple of days before laying her eggs.

Mosquitoes can’t fly very far or very fast. Most mosquitoes can fly no more than about one to three miles, and often stay within several hundred feet of where they were hatched. TOP SPEED: 1½ MPH

Bug zappers are useless against mosquitoes. Studies have shown that less than 1 percent of the insects killed by zappers are mosquitoes or other biting insects. The devices attract and kill beneficial or harmless insects.

Body heat marks the target. Mosquitoes use heat sensors around their mouthparts to detect the warmth of your body — actually, the blood inside it — then land on you and locate the best capillaries for tapping.

Dark clothing attracts mosquitoes. They are drawn to heat and darker clothes retain more heat than light-colored clothing. Blondes also tend to attract more mosquitoes than brunettes. Perfume, especially floral scents, are particularly attractive to mosquitoes.

Try this: Use a fan to repel mosquitoes. Mosquitoes are weak, slow flyers, so put a large fan where you are sitting to keep them away. Fans also disperse the human odors that draw mosquitoes.

Family-oriented karate studio celebrates 10th business year

By Sally Rummel
news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Anthony Husted has been a martial artist for 20 years, and has spent the last 10 of those years as the owner and one of six instructors at Fenton Karate. This local business recently celebrated its 10th anniversary with a surprise party given in honor of Husted, who opened the business on June 11, 2004. He has since earned the title Master Anthony Husted, as a Fourth Degree Black Belt. He will be competing for his Fifth Degree Black Belt in Portugal at the end of this month. Ten years ago, Husted poured all of his passion for martial arts into the family-oriented studio located at 1366 North LeRoy St. in the north VG’s plaza. Now, more than 140 students of all ages study traditional Korean martial arts in the form of Tang Soo Do (pronounced “tung soo dough”).

“It’s not a sport,” said Husted. “It’s a way of life. It’s a discipline that enhances both your physical and mental well-being.” Confidence is the number one reason Husted believes so strongly in martial arts for people of all ages. “It prepares you for leadership roles in life,” he said.

“It’s a wonderful discipline for kids. Those who might not be good at sports can excel here and build their confidence.” Fenton Karate is open all year-round with a continuing cycle of classes for all ages, including “Little Ninjas” for 3 and 4 year olds. For more information, call (810) 750-9800 or visit fentonkarate.com.

Celebrating freedom

The well-known quote, ‘The truth shall make you free,’ has found its way to college cornerstones, historic marble markers and other prestigious places, yet relatively few know its source is the Bible (John 8:32).

Study the history of freedom and you’ll discover that wherever the Bible has been freely distributed, people have become lovers of liberty and political freedom has been the result.

Consider the eventual arrival of at least limited freedom in the former Soviet Union. Before the fall of the Iron Curtain and the destruction of the Berlin Wall, thousands of copies of the Bible were smuggled through border crossings at the risk of life, and freedom for the smugglers. Radio broadcasts beamed Bible messages into areas where the distributors of the Scriptures could not go. Finally, freedom followed.

We owe our freedom to the efforts of Bible carrying Pilgrims and Puritans who came here searching for religious freedom. These freeing facts ought to make us thankful every day of our lives. In 1778, at the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, Benjamin Franklin’s memorable call for prayer at the beginning of meetings had its roots in the Bible: ‘I have lived for a long time, and the longer I live the more convincing proof I see that God governs in the affairs of men. If a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice (Matthew 10:29), is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid?’

We have been assured in the Sacred writings that ‘Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it’ (Psalm 127:1). . . without His concurring aid, we shall proceed in this political building no better than the builders of Babel (Genesis 11).’

George Washington said, ‘It is impossible to rightly govern the world without God and the Bible.’

Other great patriots have spoken of the personal freedom they have found in reading and believing the Bible: President Woodrow Wilson pleaded with an audience to realize their daily Bible reading would play a vital role in the destiny of America. General Douglas MacArthur said, ‘Never a night goes by, be I ever so tired, but I read the Word of God before I go to bed.’

In his book, ‘Here’s How,’ former slave to alcohol, Jack Odell said, ‘I used to take about a quart of whiskey a day to keep me going. Now I don’t need it.’ What made the difference? Jack traded his bottle for a Bible and became a free man whose passion was to celebrate his freedom by telling others how to be free.

The Bible is the source of freedom. Millions have found its message true. And the truth has set them free.

CHECK OUT THESE EIGHT retirement regrets

Avoid some common pitfalls by preparing before you retire

By Sally Rummel news@tctimes.com, 810-629-8282

Everyone has a picture in mind of their dream retirement. Is it sitting on a beach somewhere with a pina colada in hand? Or is it traveling in an RV doing mission work from coast to coast? Whatever retirement looks like to you, you’ll have to fund it before it’s too late to make your dream a reality.

Here are eight “retirement regrets” and how to fix them before it’s too late:

#1– I should have retired sooner!
Many people find that their spending and general cost of living drops to a level they could have afforded earlier than they had realized. Data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics shows that people naturally spend less as we age on nearly all types of consumer goods and services, with the notable exception of health care.

#2– I should have done my ‘homework’
Many retirees admit they waited too long to learn the ins and outs of Social Security and Medicare, especially when it’s beneficial to start to collect or better to “suspend” benefits. Not finding out this information before retirement can be a costly mistake. Here’s a calculator to help you figure out the optimum age at which you should start drawing Social Security: SSA.gov/ret2/otherthings.htm.

#3– I should’ve ‘buried the hatchet’ sooner
Why wait to patch things up with family members or others with whom you have a strained relationship? Carrying emotional baggage like this into retirement years can be dangerous; there’s more time to brood. It’s much healthier to have close, supportive relationships with family and friends, a care network you can depend on during retirement.

#4– I have too much time on my hands!
If ‘you’re used to working full-time and don’t have many hobbies, filling all that newfound time during retirement can be a challenge. Experts suggest you start to cultivate hobbies before you retire, to make that adjustment easier. Also, if one spouse is used to being alone at home to manage the household, it can be quite stressful when a newly retired spouse is now at home. It’s important to respect each other’s boundaries and agree upon shared responsibilities, without stepping on each other’s toes.

#5– I should have ‘downsized’ earlier
Moving into a smaller home, getting rid of unwanted items and selling off a second car may be so liberating that you wish you had done it sooner. Downsizing earlier also allows you to build your retirement nest egg much faster and allows you to retire with less debt, or no debt.

#6– I should have kicked that bad habit
Having more time on your hands can make some people indulge in bad habits, such as drinking heavily or overeating. Getting these habits under control before retirement is much wiser.

#7– I wish I had traveled sooner
Many older retirees express regret that they hadn’t traveled or pursued other leisure interests that required physical stamina earlier in their retirement years. You may believe that your health will remain largely the same and you’re afraid to burn through your retirement dollars too quickly. Best advice? Do what you can, when you can.

#8– I wish I had taken better care of my health
Your retirement can be the best years of your life, but only if you’re in optimum health. On the flip side, don’t despair if you’re not in perfect shape, because you will have more time to devote to fitness and getting healthy, once you’ve retired.

three to four weeks. Because the crop is so large, and because of the weather, the season will definitely last four weeks, and maybe even longer.

There are still maturing berries that can’t be picked yet, and there haven’t even been any slow days because of the combination of heavy rain to feed them, cool weather to stop them from ripening too quickly and then bright sun to prompt growth when needed and the people to pick them.

The fields even smell like ripe strawberries, and no one is complaining about a shortage of perfect berries this year.

Lisa Sutton of White Lake brought son Blake, 4 with aunt Lisa Zacharias out to pick. Blake ended up with a strawberry stained face and shirt. Sutton said she was picking strawberries the day before delivering him, and today, she is taking home about 12 pounds in a flat.

Tracy Devries came with a group from Orion Township, after learning about the orchard on Facebook (seen on front, on right). Cartwright expects 70,000 pounds of strawberries, but won’t know for sure until after the season. “This is the best strawberry crop I’ve ever seen,” said Cartwright, in comparing the 27 years

Preparation begins a year before, with the plants going in the ground, and then given an inch of water per week until winter, when the fields are covered in straw. Once the ground warms, the straw is removed and watering resumes. All the rain saves the staff time and money in irrigation.

At Spicer Orchards, the first 10 pounds of berries are $1.79. Over 10 pounds is $1.60, and more than 20 pounds is $1.50.

“This is one of those years where farmers and Mother Nature were on the same page and boy, does that make it enjoyable,” Cartwright said.

How to sell your home with an open house:

Open houses still sell homes, even in today’s hi-tech times

By Sally Rummel
news@ctimes.com; 810-629-8282

John Wentworth of ReMax Platinum in Fenton uses social media, smartphones and other technology to sell as many homes as possible.

Yet he also utilizes low-tech methods like signs, newspaper advertising and open houses to help clinch the deal. In other words, he uses every tool in his arsenal to reach potential buyers and admits that open houses are key.

“I’m a huge believer in open houses,” he said. “We hold four to six open houses every weekend of the year.”

While customers can blast through slide show after slide show on the Internet, photos alone don’t sell homes. They can’t convey how a home smells, sounds or feels, and photos can be deceiving.

The best part about open houses is that they give people a chance to browse without too much pressure. They’re effective, too. About 15 percent of buyers have found their home through an open house, and that figure has remained fairly constant in the last decade, according to MSN Real Estate. Almost half of all buyers use open houses as an information source in their search for a new home.

“The more people who get to see your home, the better,” said Kristy Cantleberry of ReMax Grande in Grand Blanc.

“It’s important to get traffic and activity through your home. You never know where that next buyer will come from.”

How’s here to have a successful open house:

• Take advantage of technology to market your home. Your house needs a professional presentation online with a lot of good, quality photos. Use smartphone apps, too, that find and list all open houses within a certain market area.

• Use low-tech methods, too. Advertise your open house in the newspaper and take advantage of good signage. Update your “for sale” sign with an open house sign up to one week before the event.

• Enlist the neighbors. They’ll be great scouts for getting their friends into the neighborhood. Consider sending them special invitations or e-vites.

• Create a neutral environment. Take down anything that could possibly be considered controversial (taxidermy, perhaps?). You may want to de-personalize your house a bit so potential buyers can picture themselves living in your house. Let buyers see your bare floors.

• Leave, and take your pets with you. If you have a Realtor, make sure to be away from your house during a showing or open house. Potential buyers prefer some anonymity and the ability to speak freely. Take all your pet’s bowls, litter boxes, etc. and get them out of the house, too.

• Be security-conscious. Since total strangers are going through your home, have them sign in with a driver’s license. Don’t let anyone use the bathroom. Take medicines with you and secure valuables. Have two “chaperones” manning the open house, so one can greet and others can escort people through the house.

• Choose an “off” hour. Some Realtors suggest using one of 9 or 10 a.m., for less competition. People still looking at the end of the day may give your home serious consideration.

• Pay special attention to the outside of your home. Make sure your lawn is freshly mowed, hedges are trimmed and you have bountiful pots of flowers welcoming guests on your porch.

Should you have a home inspection?

If you’re a buyer, it’s worth the small cost to know what to expect in a prospective home.

Home inspections aren’t required by law, but they might save a potential buyer headache and heartache, by uncovering expensive, hidden problems.

If a home inspector finds issues, the potential buyer may negotiate with the seller for their resolution or adjustment of price.

For the home buyer, it’s important to know what to expect when making an offer.

Home inspections are one of the most important steps you can take to make sure your new home is a sound investment and a safe place to live.

A thumbs-up from a home inspector often provides the last bit of reassurance a prospective homebuyer needs before they sign on the dotted line to make the purchase.

Good inspectors should be able to detect evidence of problems, like a moldy odor or a rusted furnace, but they can’t predict when an appliance might fail or a structural component might fall apart.

A home inspection is merely a snapshot of a house’s condition at a given moment, according to a MSN Real Estate article.

Home inspections aren’t required by law, but most real estate agents do recommend them. “We always encourage buyers to get a home inspection,” said Kristy Cantleberry of ReMax Grande in Grand Blanc. “It takes the liability off of everyone. For the few hundred dollars it costs, it’s well worth it.”

The difference between a home inspection and a home appraisal is that the home inspection is a two-to-three-hour detailed process providing information to the buyer about the structural integrity of a property.

Because the home inspector is hired by the prospective buyer, he/she is there to provide an honest, straightforward opinion about the house, based on what he/she sees.

The home inspection is not a “wish list” for the buyer. If systems, structures and appliances are older but in good working order, this will be stated on the inspection report.

The homebuyer is not obligated to make any repairs at all. However, the prospective buyers can then withdraw from the contract.

A home appraisal is a 30-minute walk-through with an appraiser taking measurements and establishing a value for the home based on square footage and comparable properties. This information is used by the lender to determine that the property is worth the money being lent to the buyer, before the closing can take place.

Here are a few “hot spots” in a home that home inspectors will pay special attention to:

- Mold and mildew — moldy stains and odors scare away buyers. Changes a homeowner with issues like these won’t get an acceptable offer.
- Damp basements and crawlspace — home inspectors will look closely at the walls and floors for patches of mildew and signs of dampness. Moisture deteriorates building materials and attracts insects.
- Roof and chimney — deteriorated shingles or other roof coverings are one of the first things noticed by buyers and inspectors. If the elements underneath the shingles are moist or rotted, repairs or a price adjustment will be requested.
- Chimney/FP hearth — flashing around the base of the chimney should be watertight and mortar and bricks in good condition. The fireplace will be inspected to make sure it is in good working order.
- Plumbing — the inspector will check water pressure by turning on multiple faucets and flushing toilets at the same time. The inspector will also run the dishwasher. Some inspectors may also check the septic system. One method would be to see if the dye surfaces on top of the septic drain field, which would indicate a drainage problem.
- Electrical systems — the inspector will check to see if the electrical panel and circuit breaker configuration are adequate. He’ll look for receptacles with ground fault circuit interrupters in bathrooms and kitchens.
- Heating and cooling systems — to make sure they work efficiently.
- Structure and foundation — inspect structural integrity of the house — to make sure they are in working order, including smoke detectors.

In the kitchen, a U-shaped counter nestles the entry hall. Even the stairs from the second owners’ bath, and guest suite, as well as from the entry hall. Even the stairs from the second level bedrooms lead directly down to triple sliding doors that open onto the patio.

Any mention of replacing the person Parents who lost a child don’t want the advice that they can try again.

Personal sad stories This isn’t about you.

Humor Save the funny quotes and quips for later, after the person has enough time to grieve.

Negative comments about the deceased Never write anything negative about the person who has passed, or you’ll appear cold and unfeeling.

DEAR TIRED: I am 85 and in fairly good health, but I am in my ninth year of extremely painful post-herpetic neuralgia. Instead of diminishing, the pain is increasing. It could be that the gabapentin (600 mg, three times daily) is wearing off. I tried Lyrica, but stopped when it hurt my eyes. The pain can be excruciating, even from the touch of a shirt. A relative suggested cutting the affected nerve. What would you recommend? — F.S.

ANSWER: Post-herpetic neuralgia is a syndrome of pain due to inflammation of the nerves after an infection with herpes zoster. The older you are, the more likely you are to get this complication, and the longer the pain tends to last — but nine years is much longer than normal. Treatment for post-herpetic neuralgia is often with several medications. Gabapentin (Neurontin) is one, but the effective dose is sometimes quite high, as high as 1,200 mg three times daily. Many people get very fatigued at that high a dose. A much older medication, nortriptyline, is more effective in some people and may be worth a try. Capsaicin cream provides relief for many people, although it can cause some burning when first applied. I recommend starting with the regular, not high-potency, strength. Unfortunately, surgery — at any level, from the end of the nerve to the brain — has not been consistently effective and carries the risk of permanent nerve damage. A neurologist can advise you on other treatments, including injection of steroids around the spinal cord in extreme cases. Fortunately, this complication can be largely prevented with the use of the shingles vaccine, which most people over 60 should get, even if they have had shingles before.
