Groveland Twp. — Few things in September are as immersive as walking through the gates of The Michigan Renaissance Festival. Bagpipes and otherworldly drum music, street performers who kindly harass you and maybe a walking, talking tree, or Knight of St. Ni are all part of the day.

On Saturday, 22,000 came for that richly visual and auditory experience, the weather breaking just as it ended around 7 p.m. Sunday saw more rain, but that didn't keep too many away from the seven-weekend event.

If you'd like that experience too, the festival is still happening this Saturday and Sunday.

Marketing Coordinator Kim Heidger said that it's not unusual to get 50,000 visitors

HOW TO TAKE CARE OF YOUR GARDEN TOOLS

►Quality garden tools that are properly cared for will last longer, and clean, sharp blades will make garden work easier. In addition, cleaning tools removes disease inoculum that can be in soil and plant debris left on the tool.

CLEAN TOOLS

Before storing tools for the winter, first remove soil and debris. Use a strong spray of water, wire brush or putty knife to remove caked on soil. Don't forget the back of the neck. Remove small soil particles and rust spots with sandpaper or steel wool. If tools have rust, clean with a product such as Loctite Naval Jelly Rust Dissolver. Lubricate tool pivot points and springs with machine oil.

SHARPEN & OIL METAL

Sharpen larger tools such as hoes and shovels with a #10 bastard mill file or power drill with a coarse grinding disk or wheel. To prepare for sharpening, place the tool in a vice, wear a pair of leather gloves and don't forget your safety glasses. The cutting edge should be sharpened to maintain the same angle as the original bevel. Start with the top edge of the tool, file away from you, and only file one way maintaining a 45-degree angle. File the opposite side lightly to remove metal burrs. If you haven't sharpened a tool before, it takes practice. If you regularly file your tools, this job will be much easier. Finally, wipe or spray metal parts with a petroleum-based lubricant and rust-inhibitor such as WD-40.

INSPECT HANDLES

Now that the metal parts are clean, the handle needs some attention. Fiberglass handles simply need to be washed and dried. To prevent splinters, sand any rough spots on wooden handles with a fine to medium sandpaper. Replace weak or broken handles. Most hardware stores carry replacement handles.

OIL THE WOOD

Remove dust and rub linseed oil into wooden handles. Let it soak in. Apply until it doesn't absorb into the wood anymore, then dry off any remaining oil. Tighten nuts, bolts and screws. Replace them if they are worn or rusty. Last but not least, apply a band of bright colored paint or tape to the handle. This will help you to find tools that have been left out in the yard or in your neighbor's garage.

HAND TOOLS

Bladed tools should be disinfected after each use with rubbing alcohol or a 10 percent bleach/water solution. Lubricate moving parts of clippers and pruning shears with oil. Once a year or as pruners become dull, sharpen the blade. Many pruners can be disassembled for sharpening (just remember how to put it back together). Use a whetstone to sharpen beveled blades and be sure to maintain the original shape of the bevel.

►STORE TOOLS in a clean dry indoor area and keep the blade end off the ground. Hang tools or store blades upright.

◀Don't forget about CHEMICAL SPRAYERS.

These should be cleaned after every use. Before storing for the winter, thoroughly wash and rinse all parts. Most chemical manufacturers recommend triple rinsing of sprayers. Check the owner's manual for other maintenance suggestions such as applying oil to all moving parts. Hang the sprayer upside down until thoroughly dry.

▼WHEELBARROWS, carts and wagons should be thoroughly cleaned. Touch up chipped paint surfaces with spray paint to prevent exposed steel from rusting.

◀GARDEN HOSES are often forgotten in the fall. Odds are we haven't used them lately and therefore, we forget to store them properly. Be sure to drain all water from the hose and store it in a dry location. In the winter, water left in plastic hoses will cause the hose to freeze and crack. Store hoses on hose reel supports or coil loosely.

ASK THE MECHANIC

Chris Wilkinson,
Certified Mechanic

Q: When I drive my '92 Dodge Dakota it sounds like I got a flat tire, but it isn't flat. There's a knocking sound. However, when I turn left it quits. I think it has something to do with the steering but not sure. Please help me! - Chris

A: Chris, this sounds most like a wheel bearing making noise to me. You can sometimes check this by jacking up the wheel in question. Try moving the tire in and out from top to bottom. If this does not show any movement then you may need a stethoscope and a partner to rotate the wheel while you listen for the noise. If you do not find the cause; most repair shops have specialty equipment like a chassis ear to find these types of noises while driving. You may need it diagnosed by them. I hope this helps.

Meet Laura Legant

- Business owner
- Kindergarten teacher
- Thespian

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Laura Legant, 46, is practically everywhere in Holly. By day, she's a kindergarten teacher at Rose Pioneer Elementary. But after school, there's no stopping her. She owns a new business in downtown Holly, Inspirations Arts & Crafts Workshop, and is head of the Theater Department at Holly High School, director of the Holly Youth Theater, crafter of Wild Sweater Monsters, chairman of the entertainment committee for the Dickens Festival and producer/director/trustee for the Fenton Village Players. She's also a wife to Steve and mother of four.

Your list of jobs tires me out. How do you do all that you do? Most people ask me how, and then they ask me why!

and what I love
to do."

TRI-COUNTY TIMES
SALLY RUMMEL

Laura Legant combines all her passions into a very busy schedule.

In my mind, all of these jobs are interconnected. They are my passions and what I love to do. They energize me. I don't watch TV, I don't mate socks — they all go in a basket for everyone to find on their own. I also don't cook dinner — we grab easy food like sandwiches on the run. This gives me time to do what I love to do.

How did you get so interested in theater? I was in Fenton Village Players shows with my dad in the late '80s, like 'Oliver' and 'Music Man.' My mom, Karen Craner, has been a costumer for FVP for 25 years. I guess I 'got the bug' from them.

What do you like about teaching kindergarten? I love watching that 'light bulb' moment when my students get something. It's exciting to see their child-like wonder and curiosity.

What's a typical day like for you? Steve gives me a wake-up call at 6:30 a.m., I walk my dog, get Rose ready for school; she's in fourth-grade. Our other kids are all grown. Then I go to school and teach, make phone calls for Dickens Festival on my lunch hour. After school, I'm at my shop 'til about 7. When I've got rehearsals at the high school, I'll be there a few hours. Otherwise, I'll be working on craft projects at home. I'm just getting into painting.

I'm lucky I only need about five hours of sleep.

What shows are you working on right now? I have rehearsals with Holly High School's 'Twilight Town of Holly,' which will be a downtown walk telling ghost stories and history on Saturday, Oct. 4. We'll be starting here at Inspirations. Tickets are available here, too. I practice with the Holly Youth Theater on Wednesday evenings and Saturday afternoons. We're working on a show, 'Tricks & Treats,' which will be presented at Inspirations on Oct. 24 and 25.

What's the most exciting thing that has happened to you this year? I have to say buying this building and opening this business. We live upstairs; it's a wonderful historic building. I feel like my heart is poured out all over the store. I love everything about it.

How did you and Steve meet? His dad was pastor at the church I was going to. We got engaged in a photo booth at Ed Debevic's (restaurant) in Chicago. We still have the pictures to prove it. We've been married for 26 years. Our kids are 24, 22, 21 and 9. Our oldest just got married this summer.

What is something about you that no one knows? I've been to 49 states in the U.S. and hope to get to the 50th state, Hawaii, by the time I'm 50. Also, I'm a licensed residential builder for Steve's company, Tanglewood Construction. He does most of the grunt work though.

Home Again. Independent Again.

Our Home Again rehabilitation program combines innovative therapy approaches with expert therapists and hotel-like amenities. Our goal is to get you back home and back to maximum independence as quickly as possible. But, once you experience our homelike environment, chef-prepared meals and beautiful private suites, you may just want to stay!

Strength for all seasons

Poets and preachers have long pointed out the similarities between the seasons of the year and life. In effect, we're all born in January and immediately start heading toward December. Along the way, we're initiated into life's realities by the cold winds of winter, welcomed by the striking colors and flowery fragrances of spring, warmed by the pleasant breezes of summer, made thoughtful by the breathtaking beauty of our sentimental journey through fall and finally, in December, belatedly find ourselves beginning to think seriously about eternity.

We're also affected by the seasons of the soul. An old hymn said, 'Sometimes I'm up; sometimes I'm down, but all the time I'm heaven bound.' The composer, like most of us, had evidently known both valleys and mountain-tops during his journey. Faith provided him a strong anchor.

Answering the knock on our door, I faced a grieving father and mother of a young sailor. 'All of our castles have tumbled,' said the father, explaining that their son had been swept overboard while standing fog watch. My responsibility was to comfort them; to give them hope; a seemingly impossible task but their faith rose to the occasion. These broken-hearted parents were confident about their son's relationship to his Lord and this gave them strength in their season of sorrow.

Friends of ours experienced severe financial reverses. Their formerly thriving business was closed and they lost their home. They found strength through their faith in God to keep them from despair. While out of work, they volunteered for missionary work, reaching out to needy people with the message of God's love.

Job had been the wealthy father of seven sons and three daughters. Everything seemed to be going his way. Then trouble came in like a flood. His children died. He lost his wealth and health. His formerly faithful wife became so depressed that she urged him to turn against God and die (Job 2:9). Even during this season of trouble, however, Job's faith remained strong, enabling him to comfort his grieving wife by telling her this melancholy mood was out of character, proving his love for her was unchanged.

In what season do you find yourself? Are you so down that you wonder if God cares?

Martin Luther once felt as you do today. Then he heard a bird singing its evening song. As he watched, he saw the bird tuck its head under a wing and fall asleep. In writing of this experience, Luther said: 'This little bird has had its supper and is now getting ready to go to sleep, quite content, never troubling itself as to what its food will be or where it will lodge on the morrow. Like David, it abides under the shadow of the almighty. It sits on its little twig content and lets God care.'

My conversation with a December man (in his 90s) turned to the subject of heaven. 'The days are getting brighter all the time,' he said. His faith had been active for so long that he knew it would be sufficient for all seasons...even the final one.

HOT LINES REMIND me of a movie with Bogart in it. Something like, 'Facts, facts? We don't need no stinking facts. Who needs facts? We make our own facts.'

I JUST WATCHED the Detroit Lions football team, that's a compliment. They've got the greatest receiver in football in Johnson and probably the worst quarterback I've seen in pro football.

SO IF NO one is in the 10 or less lane, you go ahead and get in it and first thing you know there are 10 people behind you with three or four things in their hands. Obey the sign.

YOU KNOW I pay top dollar for cable and I don't get what I pay for. Where's my local on the 8s? I don't pay for commercials. Start giving me what I pay for or I'm going to start giving it back.

I'VE GOT TO say Obama's plan for pulling the troops out of Iraq has really worked out well. All the troops are home and everything is peaceful. Oh no, wait a minute, it's a complete disaster and now he needs to send the troops back in there. Nice job!

Fenton native publishes first book

►Adam Beardslee turns an idea into a novel

By Yvonne Stegall

ystegall@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Adam Beardslee published his first book on Sept. 6, through Outskirts Press. The book is titled "Out of Reech," and is about a writing professor who must save his fiancée from a man who kidnapped her and wants to kill her.

Beardslee said, "Originally, 'Out of Reech' was only going to be a writing prompt (the Prologue) for my future students to 'write what happens next.'" After just short of a year, Beardslee realized he had a much bigger story to tell and started work on expanding the story of Jacob Reech.

Beardslee explained the context of the book, "It's like National Treasure, if you've seen the movies, but darker."

Beardslee started writing in 2001, as an outlet for grief over the loss of his older brother, Aaron. "On Aug. 2, 2001, my older brother was killed in a car accident, and my life would be forever changed," said Beardslee. He started out with poetry, and his writing grew from there.

Beardslee grew up in Fenton, and is a 1999 graduate of Fenton High School. He graduated from the University of Michigan-

Flint with a degree in Secondary English Education (grades 6-12). He currently lives in Fenton with his wife and son, and is working on his second novel.

"Out of Reech" is available in paperback and Kindle versions on both Amazon.com and the Barnes and Noble website. He said he is currently in the works of getting some local bookstores to carry it as well.

Adam Beardslee is a 1999 graduate of Fenton High School, and the published author of "Out of Reech." The book is now available online, and will soon be available locally.

Upscale clothes, furniture and local vendor items create unique retail mix

Kris O'Neil and her sister, Robin Wolf, both Fenton natives, had talked about owning a store together for quite some time.

When life circumstances came together for this to happen, they opened the doors of My Sister & Me Upscale Consignment last spring, operating as a family business with husbands, daughters and sons helping out regularly.

Located at 1210 North LeRoy St., next to Lovegrove's in Fenton, this unique shop offers locally-made vendor items as well as upscale consignment.

"We have over 20 different vendors, from Dale's Cheesecake to hair bows, furniture, jewelry, Robert Rothschild's gourmet food items and more," said

O'Neil.

Consignment items include girls' clothing from newborn to women's plus-sizes, boys from newborn to size 10-12 (no men's clothing), children's equipment, furniture, home décor, jewelry, etc. Formalwear is also for sale seasonally. One unique aspect of this store is its "man cave" items and sports memorabilia. "There's something for everyone," said O'Neil.

The two sister owners and their families take great pride in the cleanliness of their store, the quality of their consignment items and the friendliness of their staff, which is all family. "If it's not something we'd put in our own homes, we don't take it in," said O'Neil.

Store hours are Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Giving sports a boost

►Local athletic boosters combine fun with fundraising

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

On a typical football Friday night, you'll find Todd Wilkinson helping with the busy job of concession sales at the stadium at Lake Fenton High School, passing along Blue Devil school spirit along with burgers, popcorn and candy.

He's the president of the Lake Fenton Athletic Boosters, and just one example of the busy role that athletic boosters play in the lives of local school districts.

The biggest job of athletic boosters is to support school sports with volunteerism and fund-raising.

LAKE FENTON

Lake Fenton Athletic Boosters raise most of their money through concessions and a Silent Auction Dinner Dance, set for March 14, 2015. Boosters also support their child's school through making phone calls and volunteering at events, and attending monthly booster meetings.

Ticket sales to sporting events also generate funds. Generally speaking, most sports events cost $5 for admittance, with pre-kindergarteners and senior citizens attending for free.

FENTON

Fenton High School Athletic Director Michael Bakker calls his district's sports boosters "vital" to the success of the athletic programs of the Fenton Tigers.

"We have individual athletic boosters for each sport," he said. "They all give support through volunteerism and funds, providing equipment, uniforms, supplies, etc., that our General Fund wouldn't be able to do. Each sport also has its own thing they do to raise money. Golf outings are one example."

FHS football and track concessions are managed by the Athletic Department. "I ask different teams and/or groups every week to help out, and they get a portion of the proceeds," said Bakker. "The other money stays in the Athletic Department for things like refurbishing the weight room equipment or team supplies."

One of the biggest athletic fund-raisers at FHS in the 5K the Athletic Department holds in May. "Last year that actually brought in more money than concessions" said Bakker. "It just depends on the year and the weather."

LINDEN

Athletic boosters are just as important for the Linden High School Eagles teams. "As a result of financial constraints to our athletic department's budget, the support of the boosters has become even more important to our student-athletes and teams," according to the Linden Athletic Boosters' link on their school website.

Funds raised through the LHS boosters helped purchase a portable AED (automated external defibrillator), a new golf cart/ambulance, a training machine for wrestling, new rain suits for the boys' golf team, new uniforms and equipment for soccer and an indoor shot put ring for the track team.

The boosters added to individual team accounts through concession stand proceeds and a golf outing fundraiser. The Linden Athletic Boosters meet monthly to organize and make plans.

HOLLY

The Holly High School Bronchos have an all-sports booster club that distributes funds back to all sports, mostly through concession sales, according to Holly Athletic Director Deb VanKuiken.

Bronchos boosters help pay for coaches clinics, football helmets, golf record boards in the gym, basketballs, athlete-of-the-week shirts, indoor court fees for tennis and soccer, upkeep of the ice machine, volleyball net system, shots/discuses for track, bats and batting tees, covers for the home plate and pitcher's mound, dance competition in winter, hockey equipment, scales, score clock and soap for wrestling, golf bags and more.

“They (booster clubs) give support through volunteerism and funds, providing equipment, uniforms, etc. that our general athletic fund wouldn't be able to do.”

WHO ARE THE STATE'S BIGGEST COLLEGE RIVALS

Michigan-Michigan State is tops, but there are many other good athletic rivals

By David Troppens

sstone@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

Rivals. All colleges have them.

What makes a good rivalry? Answering such a question isn't a precise science. Most good ones have a few qualities that create the rivalry. First, the distance between the schools can enhance any battle. The closer, the better. Second, the more evenly matched the teams, the better as well. Third, a long history is another nice mixer. Finally, another good ingredient is what the game usually means to both teams. Does the game usually determine a league champion?

With it being college football season, we thought we'd look at some of the state's best rivalries among other state schools (sorry Michigan and Ohio State).

A state divided — U of M vs. MSU

This is easily the state's biggest rival game. The teams first played in 1898 and have played every year since 1945. For decades, Michigan fans would be quick to mention this wasn't even their biggest rival during the course of a football season. Let's be honest, the Wolverines' fans were probably right. After all, Michigan holds a decisive 68-33-5 record advantage against the Spartans. Recognition of this fact created what has become the most famous term used in this battle over the last decade when past Michigan player Mike Hart called the Spartans Michigan's "little brother."

However, since Hart's comment, how life has changed. The once dominant Wolverines have become a meek program, while the Spartans are now looked upon as one of the top 10 football programs in America. Michigan State has won five of the last six games, with three of those wins by at least 14 points. The Paul Bunyan Trophy, the hardware given to the winner of the annual contest, has spent a lot of time in East Lansing lately, and Michigan fans are fed up. Now, this game is Michigan's most important on the schedule.

The Mid-American Conference's biggest rivalry — CMU vs. WMU

Being a Central Michigan University

grad, it's my favorite rivalry, and it's the unquestioned best rivalry among the Michigan MAC schools. The Chippewas and Broncos have done battle 88 times and have played consecutively since 1974. Western holds a 45-37-2 overall record against the Chippewas, but since the end of World War II, Central has the edge, earning 36 wins to Western's 28.

The GLIAC match-ups

With eight Michigan-based teams in the Division 2 Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC) and all of them in the same division, it's easy to see why every game feels like a rivalry contest. However, some are bigger than others. In our quest to figure out which one is the biggest, we'll go with the Northern Michigan vs. Michigan Tech game. Why? Both are located in the Upper Peninsula. The rivalry has been around since 1920, with the teams facing 87 times. And guess what? They've both won 41 times (five ties). You can't find a more balanced rivalry.

Another good one is the battle of the Valleys — Grand Valley State University and Saginaw Valley State. For over a decade, the student bodies have found a way to use the rivalry to compete in a charity fundraising competition, meaning many good causes also benefit from the annual contest.

MIAA's biggest rivals don't even play football — Calvin vs. Hope

The biggest rivalry in the Division III Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) is an easy answer. It's Calvin-Hope. Yet, Calvin doesn't even have a football team. How can this be? The Calvin-Hope men's basketball games routinely draw the largest Division III game attendances of any given season.

In fact, in 1997 the teams drew 11,447 fans to one game, a Division III record. In 2005, ESPN did a poll to find the largest college basketball rivals, and Calvin-Hope ranked fourth on the list. The schools are located about 30 miles apart and considering one of the two schools have earned at least a co-MIAA title for 34 of the last 35 years, the games always have great league title significance.

Marching bands add 'cheer' and excitement

►Half-time shows and bleacher cheers create more football fun

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Local marching bands will be the stars of the half-time show at area homecoming football games and during the rest of the gridiron season.

They'll be supporting the football program and fans with a special musical event that will bring students, parents and visitors to their feet with applause and excitement.

Marching band programs have come a long way since their "geeky" days of years past. It used to be that you were either into sports or into band, and the two paths didn't always mix.

"We have marchers who are on the football team and cheerleaders, too," said Ryan Gonder, Lake Fenton Community Schools music director. "Last year, we graduated two football captains. It's all about flexibility when it comes to working with coaches and schedules."

However, Gonder understands that the marching band's place is more of a fan experience. "Our goal is to support the football team," he said. "Our time is the half-time show."

Today's half-time shows are designed to be relevant to pop culture and interests of the audience.

The Marching Tigers at Fenton High School are performing "Grammy Hits," according to Band Director Andy Perkins, 35, leading 170 marchers.

The Linden Marching Band, under the direction of John Bennett, 27, is marching to "Rising Dragon," highlighting the mystical side of this historical piece.

At Holly High School, the 120-member Marching Bronchos is marching to the 2012 movie, "Pitch Perfect." "Today's marching band shows usually include music people can relate to," said Holly High School Band Director Ben Baldwin, 38. "That's my focus, too. We perform songs that the audience understands, and it's a draw to the marching band program."

While the majority of marching bands perform primarily at home football games, including homecoming, the season doesn't end there. Local parades, band festivals and special events like the annual Fenton Tigers trip to lead the parade at Hallow Weekend at Cedar Point fill in a busy fall, early winter season, ending in Fenton with the Jingle Fest Parade in December.

The Holly Bronchos will continue longer, with a visit to the Outback Bowl in Tampa, Florida on Jan. 1, 2015, which will be nationally televised on ESPN.

With such busy schedules, where do the marching bands find time to practice? You'll find students in the band room at Fenton High School from 6:30 to 7:20 a.m. "This early practice creates fewer schedule conflicts and allows kids to participate in sports and other extracurriculars," said Perkins. Other schools practice during the school day, on evenings and on Saturdays.

"It's a pretty intense activity," said Bennett.

After opening with a loss to state power DeWitt, the Linden Eagles have soared by capturing wins in each of their last three games. Zachary Kentish (far left) is one of the key offensive players on the squad. The Lake Fenton Blue Devils have a young but talented squad. One of those youthful strong players is junior Mitchell Arens (second from left). Entering Friday's homecoming game, the Fenton Tigers were 4-0 and tied for first place in the Metro League. One of the Tigers' key offensive contributors has been Bryce Roney (second from right). The Holly Bronchos have been competitive in a few of their games, but entered Friday night's game against Clio without a win. In this photo Matt Barnett (far right) runs downfield.

Tigers, Eagles looking for a league crown

►Three area football teams still looking to make the playoffs

By David Troppens

sstone@tctimes.com; 810-433-6786

It's hard to believe, but after this upcoming weekend, the prep football regular season will be more than halfway over. Each tri-county team has four games under their belts, and it's now possible to give a sense of direction of what concrete goals each team should have for the rest of the season. It's time to look at what each team has done thus far and what their future may bring through October.

Fenton Tigers

Record: 2-0 in the Metro and 4-0 overall.

What's happened so far: The Tigers entered the season as at least co-league champs each of the last three seasons and were predicted to be the league champions again this year. It looks like that prediction could happen. As week five approaches, the Tigers are tied with Linden and Flushing for the top spot in the Metro at 2-0, and three of the four Fenton victories have been decisive wins. Fenton is second in the league in scoring points (128), but it's been the Tigers' defense that has been the big story so far this year. Fenton's defense has allowed 28 points, 47 less than any other Metro team so far this year. Twice they've posted shutouts.

Rest of 2014: The Tigers will enter the final five regular season games as the favorites. The last two weeks of the season should determine the Metro title. Fenton hosts Flushing on Oct. 16 and travels to Linden on Oct. 24. Finishing 9-0 would have another perk — it should lock up at least one home game in the playoffs.

Holly Bronchos

Record: 0-2 in the Metro and 0-4 overall.

What's happened so far: The Bronchos entered the 2014 season with what was expected to be a rebuilding season with many young and inexperienced faces dotting the starting lineup. Four weeks into the season, those thoughts have become true. It's fair to say the Bronchos will be the underdogs in most, if not all, of their final five games of the season. Holly's greatest struggles have come on offense. Holly has scored seven or fewer points in three of their four contests so far. Until Holly figures a way to create more possession and score more points, it's going to be hard to win games.

Rest of 2014: Holly will look at the rest of this season as building toward next year. Getting a few victories down the stretch is possible, but nothing will come easy.

Lake Fenton Blue Devils

Record: 2-1 in the GAC Red and 2-2 overall.

What's happened so far: The Blue Devils entered the year as a young team, and as one might expect, Lake Fenton has been up and down. In the Blue Devils' two losses, they were outscored 69-12. In their two victories, they've outscored their foes 93-33. We should be fair. Lake Fenton has two losses, but they came against undefeated squads Freeland and Montrose. When Lake Fenton is going good, the Blue Devils are what they've been for at least a decade now — a squad heavily dependent upon their running game on offense. Defensively, the squad has struggled, allowing at least 27 points three of their first four foes.

Rest of 2014: Making the playoffs won't be easy, considering four of Lake Fenton's last five foes have either a 3-1 or a 4-0 record. Lake Fenton will be the underdog in many of those games. Success will depend on the youth gelling.

Linden Eagles

Record: 2-0 in the Metro and 3-1 overall.

What's happened so far: The Eagles entered the season with a lot of talented experience coming back and were projected to finish second in the Metro. After taking some lumps against DeWitt in the season opener, the Eagles have rattled off three wins in a row and are one of the three undefeated teams in the Metro. Life hasn't been easy so far this year. Injuries are mounting, and the Linden offense hasn't looked like their usual self until a week four 48-16 victory against Swartz Creek. The defense has been strong, however, allowing 16 or fewer points every game minus the DeWitt contest.

Rest of 2014: It's probably fair to say the Eagles haven't been as strong out of the gate as some expected, but when one looks at their record (3-1), that's exactly what most would've guessed at this time. It's a team which is gradually progressing, and remains a league champion threat. The Eagles should make the playoffs and should be in a battle for the league crown at home against Fenton on Oct. 24.

tailgating tips for FOOTBALL SEASON

► Pregame festivities bring families and friends together

By Yvonne Stegall
ystegall@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Tailgating can be a fun way for families to celebrate football season. Tailgating is all about fun, food, and the game, of course. This can be a start to new family traditions that gets everyone pumped for the game.

1 Prepare the night before.
It's important to prepare the night before. Not only can you get foods ready to go, it also helps you make sure nothing is forgotten. Make a list of the all the things you'll need to bring, from food to seating.

2 Bring more than you think you need.
Just because there are only five of you doesn't mean someone won't stop by to say 'Hi.' Why not have enough food for visitors. Fenton football dad Jeff Trecha said, "Bring lots of food. We like BBQ wings, chicken and chili." He added, "If it's messy, it doesn't matter! Stains are on the asphalt, not your carpet."

3 Ensure your comfort.
First, you need to make sure you have a good place to park and don't have to compete with other tailgaters for parking. Trecha recommends bringing comfortable chairs, as well as a large canopy to keep the food out of the sun. If you have foods that need to be heated, it's important to bring along a grill. Small tabletop gas stoves work great, too. Chilled foods can be kept safe with a cooler full of ice. In addition, don't forget to bring something for your trash.

4 Have beverages everyone likes.
Trecha says, "Bring plenty of drinks for the kids." Also, make sure to have water on hand, even if it isn't a warm day. High school football games aren't any place for alcoholic beverages, so stay kid-friendly.

5 Play games and listen to music.
While hanging out, many tailgaters toss around a football or set up simple yard games. It also helps get the mood going by listening to music. Trecha said, "Keep the music loud to get in the spirit."

6 Start a tradition.
Decorate your vehicle with team colors. Wear team colors. Have a bevy of favorite dishes, or create a specialty dish named for your team.

7 Don't miss kick off.
Remember, this is a pre-party. Don't forget to catch the game. Tailgating is a lot of fun, and filling. Join in on the fun this football season!

Heartwood PLAN 10-300

Togetherness comes naturally in the Heartwood's bright, airy and spacious kitchen and family room. A friendly wrap-around front porch welcomes visitors, and just inside the door is a large room that could be an office, living room or just about anything else you can think of.

Entry and family room in this contemporary country home are vaulted and richly illuminated. Natural light spills into the entry through a side-light and small arched dormer, while the back of the family room is more windows than wall. The wide-hearthed fireplace nestles in the angle created by a staircase that leads to the second floor.

How to heal after an affair? Apologize, to start

DEAR AMY: My husband of 34 years had an affair with a co-worker, lasting for a year. He has had at least one other affair that I know of. With the aid of a therapist, I confronted him, and he said the whole affair was a terrible idea, and that he wanted our marriage to stay together. He agreed to cut communication with the woman. A year later, after working hard (on my end) to try to repair the marriage, I found out that the two of them had been having long weekly phone calls that my husband had gone to great lengths to conceal. I said that if he felt compelled to continue the calls, I would leave the marriage. Fast forward another year. The calls continued in spite of repeated pledges by my husband that they were not occurring. I confronted the scarlet woman and told her to cut it out, or I'd spill the beans to her husband. She did. Here's the problem: My husband has never apologized for his actions. He says if he is warm and loving, that should be enough for me, and I should get over these events. He refuses to talk with a therapist. Any hope here? — Saddened

DEAR SADDENED: I do have hope — mainly for you. Your marriage? Not so much. Your husband seems determined to deny you the healing and intimacy you desire. Catching him, catching him again and being proactive in driving off his mistress is pretty exhausting. You are expending all of the effort to keep your marriage going. He is passively letting you. You need to value yourself more. An apology is not the MOST your husband can give to you; it is the very LEAST he can offer. And he is not even willing to do that. Reread your letter to me. Continue with your therapy. And then do what you want to do.

DEAR AMY: I just started school again, and it sucks — already! I don't really have friends, and my classes are boring. I'm so stressed already, not just because of school but other things also. My favorite class so far is English. It's interesting. I have a really wonderful imagination, so I think I want to be a writer, but I'm horrible at putting my imagination on paper. Can you suggest a way for me to be a wonderful writer one day? — Bored

DEAR BORED: You can be a wonderful writer now, if you want to. The way to do this is to start to write down stories about your own life and experiences. You should ask your teacher for recommendations for books to read that will fire your imagination and inspire you to write your own stories. My favorite new book for middle-grade readers is 'The Swap' by Megan Shull (2014, Katherine Tegen Books). This imaginative and funny book about a boy and girl trading bodies will give you insight about friendship and the stresses of school and family. You're already sitting on an inspiring, occasionally frightening, funny, complicated and truly unique story — and that is the story of you.

Diet can cut risk of prostate cancer

DEAR DR. ROACH: Do you believe that lycopene, which is found in certain foods such as cooked tomatoes, can help prevent prostate cancer? — C.R.O.

ANSWER: Lycopene, a vitamin A-like substance found in tomatoes and watermelons, was indeed thought to help prevent prostate cancer. Unfortunately, further studies failed to support this. What has been shown more substantially is that a diet of fresh fruits and vegetables helps reduce risk for and even helps treat prostate (and other) cancer. So it may be that lycopene by itself isn't enough, but that all the different healthy substances found in fruits and vegetables are. This diet certainly reduces risk of heart disease as well.

GRILLED CHICKEN AND HUMMUS WRAPS

DIRECTIONS

1. Start with the chicken. Heat a grill pan over high heat with olive oil. When pan is hot, add chicken. Cook breasts for 10 to 20 minutes (depending on thickness) without moving them, then flip them using tongs and cook the other side for 10 to 20 minutes or until no longer pink inside. Remove from heat and transfer on a cutting board. Let cool slightly. Cut into chunks (size isn't very important). Drizzle with lemon juice and season with salt and pepper. Set aside.
2. While chicken is cooking, prepare bell peppers. Cut in half, deseed and cut into long thin stripes. Set aside.
3. Spread hummus on pita bread (about 5 tbsp per pita).
4. Sprinkle with za'atar (1 tsp per pita).
5. Add a few bell pepper stripes in the center of the pita. Add chicken chunks. Top with fresh cilantro and roll.
6. Cut wraps in half and serve immediately.

Recipe from notenoughcinnamon.com

INGREDIENTS:

- 1/2 t. olive oil
- 1 lbs chicken breasts (about 2 breasts)
- the juice of 1/2 lemon
- sea salt
- freshly ground black pepper
- 4 large pita bread or your favorite wrap
- 1 1/4 cups hummus
- 4 t. za'atar (see note)
- 1 large yellow bell pepper
- 1 large green bell pepper
- 1 cup fresh cilantro leaves, chopped

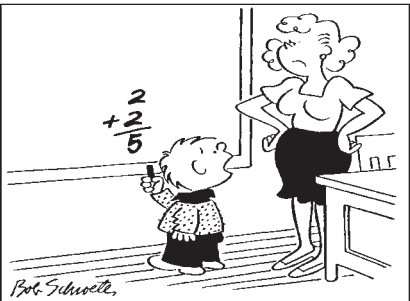

NOTE:

Za'atar is a delicious Middle Eastern spice blend. You can find it in some supermarkets and in Middle Eastern stores. You can also make your own by mixing together 1 T. oregano, 1 T. sumac, 1 T. ground cumin, 1 T. sesame seeds, 1 t. kosher salt and 1 t. freshly ground black pepper.
