It's cider, apples, doughnuts and pumpkin time

4 locations within 12 miles of Fenton

Hartland Twp. — When Spicer Orchards first opens in June, the cider is from frozen cider of the previous year. In September the cider is fresh, but can be a little more tart because of the apples available.

Now they are at their sweetest, and it's also almost peak cider-mill experience time.

Even though it was cool and misting out, none of the school groups canceled on Tuesday, and several visited Wednesday. It's hard to keep Michigan people away from cider mills in the fall.

There are cider mills all around the tri-county area, with Mueller's Orchard in Fenton Township, (Top) On Wednesday at Spicer Orchards, Bryson Fishhabor, 4, seeks out a pumpkin with his Brilliant Beginnings pre-kindergarten group from Howell. The 11 children and chaperones enjoyed the whole cider mill experience — a hayride out to pick apples, choosing a small pumpkin, and riding back for cider and a doughnut. (Above left) Area cider mills are known for their fresh-pressed cider and their warm, freshly-baked doughnuts. (Above right) Each child was able to take home four apples. It usually took a little effort to get the apple off the branch.

What are you superstitious about?

"I don't like broken mirrors for the seven years of bad luck. But I've broken a mirror before and nothing happened."

— Bethany Merrow, Fenton

"I don't kill spiders. I take them out and release them. So that way it never rains."

— Erica Hoak, Fenton

"I'm not superstitious of anything. I step on cracks. I don't have any rituals."

— Todd Clouthier, Warren

"They say if your purse is on the floor, money is going to go out the door. I put it on a chair or hang it."

— Ragda El Andere, Linden

"I don't know if I am superstitious of anything. The most ridiculous one is Friday the 13th. My birthday's on it, so I like that number."

— Pam Coffin, Fenton

"I can't think of anything except when I was a kid. 'Step on a crack, break your mother's back.' That kind of thing."

Parshallville Cider and Grist Mill, and Diehl's Orchard and Cider Mill in Rose Township. This is the biggest time of the year for cider mills.

Spicer Orchards sells cider and doughnuts when they open in June for strawberry season. The biggest weekend of their entire year happens on the weekend of October 10.

"You wait for it all year. It becomes an exciting experience for you," said Wanda Spicer. On a busy day, thousands will come through. It's not just exciting for visitors — the months of September and October are like the playoffs for cider mills.

Last weekend, Spicer's made 3,116 gallons of cider. That works out to more than 9,000 apples made into cider. They sold 2,025 doughnuts alongside all that cider. They have 25 employees and two machines running. "Let me tell you, they were hopping. It was a beautiful day," said Spicer.

These few weeks aren't just special for the families. They're also special for the mills themselves. A mini army of seasonal workers come in. On staff, Spicer's has three full-time workers, and 67 part-time people, mostly high school and college students.

To Spicer, the cider mill experience is about family getting together and picking apples, and then getting cider and doughnuts. Warm or cool weather, they'll still come out.

The cider mill is an autumn rite, unique to Michigan, and northeastern states. "They don't have it in Mississippi, and they don't have it in Tennessee," she said, as reported by out-of-state visitors.

Why is it so important here?

"We have apples, and they're looking for the fall season. We have the color change in the leaves. It's one thing we have that other people don't have. It makes it something unique to Michigan."

PENNIES

1943 copper Lincoln penny

One of the most sought-after coins — about 40 have been found. That year, the US Mint switched to making pennies from zinc-coated steel instead of 95 percent copper/5 percent zinc and tin, but by mistake some copper pennies still were made, and those may be worth $10,000 to $100,000, or even $1 million in pristine condition. Helpful hint: Hold a magnet up to your 1943 pennies. If any aren't attracted, you may have a very valuable find.

"Double-die" Lincoln penny

Look for noticeable doubling in the inscriptions "Liberty"... "In God We Trust"... and/or the date.

Years include:

1955, estimated value: $1,000 and up
1972, estimated value $200 to $800
1995, estimated value $5 and up

1984 and 1997 "double-ear" Lincoln pennies

A doubling during the minting process gave Abe Lincoln's engraved portrait an extra earlobe.

YOU MAY HAVE THESE RARE COINS IN YOUR POCKET

NICKELS

Value:
50¢ to

1964-D Jefferson nickel with misspelled motto

The middle word in "E Pluribus Unum" on the reverse side of the coin is spelled "Pluridus."

2005-D Jefferson nickel with a bison

In the valuable version, an engraving mistake makes it look as if a spear bisects the bison's back and stomach.

▲ Look for imperfection or a "spear" shape.

Value:
$50 to
$1,200

DIMES

1982 no-P Roosevelt dime

Dimes produced at the Philadelphia Mint never carried a mint mark — a letter indicating where they were made — until 1980, where a small letter "P" was added on the lower right just above the date to signify Philadelphia. What to look for: 1982 dimes with no mint mark.

► You can profit big by inspecting old coins — if you know which coins actually are worth much more than their face value. Source: Bottom Line Publications

QUARTERS

2001-P double Statue of Liberty New York State quarter

Starting in 1999, the US Mint began minting a series of quarters with commemorative features from each of the 50 states on the reverse side. Although they are not very old, these coins are prized by collectors for their variety of mistakes. What to look for: The quarter commemorating New York sometimes displays a double image — two George Washingtons on the obverse (heads) side and two images of the Statue of Liberty on the reverse side.

Value:
$100 to
$2,000

Value:
$15 and up

HALF-DOLLARS

Kennedy half-dollar with missing initials

Engraver Frank Gasparro designed the reverse of this coin, which features the presidential coat of arms. He was permitted to place his initials, FG, just to the right of the eagle's tail. What to look for: Some half-dollars made in 1966 and 1972 at the Denver Mint and in 1982 and 1989 at the Philadelphia Mint lack the initials.

Value:
$50 to $300

DOLLARS

"God-less" presidential dollar

For nearly 60 years, the motto "In God We Trust" has been required on US coins. But in 2007, the Mint started making a series of dollar coins to honor deceased US presidents and imprinted the date, mint mark and motto along the rim instead of the front or back. What to look for: An error on some coins with George Washington or John Adams (both issued in 2007) eliminated the lettering on the rim.

2005 Minnesota quarter of 10,000 mistakes

This is a play on the state's nickname, the "Land of 10,000 Lakes," because collectors have so far found more than 50 different versions of this coin with unique mistakes. The coin's reverse side features a line of evergreen trees along a pristine lake. What to look for: In one version of the coin, an extra evergreen tree is floating in the air. Other versions have additional trees in different parts of the landscape.

Value:
$200

Staff and students at Fenton's AGS Middle School will carry on its annual tradition of hosting a "Pink-Out" day to raise funds for breast cancer research. The school, with members shown in this March 2013 file photo, raised nearly $1,000.

Wear your pink!

► Save your cash and change for AGS Middle School 'Pink-out' breast cancer fundraiser

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Maya Nemer, an eighth-grader at AGS Middle School in Fenton, spearheaded a fundraising idea two years ago, when her grandmother was diagnosed with breast cancer. The annual AGS "Pink-out," set for Wednesday, Oct. 29, has become an annual event, now in its third year. Each year, the event has raised almost $1,000.

"All the staff and kids will dress in pink that day, and will collect money to raise money for breast cancer research and awareness," said AGS special education teacher Matt Wasson. "The staff really jumps into it, too."

The class that raises the most money and wears the most pink will earn a trophy. Cash and change will be collected in jars that day.

Parents are invited to participate by sending money with their student on Oct. 29, and parents and community members can write a check to: AGS Pink-out, c/o AGS Middle School, 3255 Donaldson Drive, Fenton, MI 48430.

Working smoke detectors double odds of surviving fire

►Families have less than six minutes to escape home

By Yvonne Stegall

ystegall@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

According to the latest research done by the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), working smoke alarms cut the chance of dying in a fire in half. Almost two-thirds of home fire deaths are the result of fires in homes with no smoke alarms or no working smoke alarms.

Working smoke alarms cut the risk of dying in reported home fires in half, according to the NFPA.

Dustin Lucius, a Fenton City firefighter, said, "Make sure that you actually are checking smoke detectors.

They really should be checked monthly, but twice a year at the time change at the least." He added, "Make sure to have them in all bedrooms, living spaces, and on each floor of the home."

Checking smoke detectors is as easy as pushing the test button and waiting for the sound. Replace batteries each time change, whether you think they need it or not. When your smoke detector is beeping for low battery, or is beeping because of cooking smoke, don't just remove the batteries. It's easy to forget to put them back in.

According to the NFPA, "An ionization smoke alarm is generally more responsive to flaming fires and a photoelectric smoke alarm is generally more responsive to smoldering fires. For the best protection, or where extra time is needed, to awaken or assist others, both types of alarms, or combination ionization and photoelectric alarms are recommended."

Replace all smoke alarms when they are 10 years old, or sooner if they don't respond properly.

Make sure everyone in the home knows the sound of the smoke alarm and understands what to do when they hear it.

According to an NFPA survey, only one-third of Americans have both developed and practiced a home fire escape plan. One-third of respondents who made an estimate thought they would have at least 6 minutes before a fire in their home would become life threatening. The time available is often less.

“Make sure that you actually are checking smoke detectors.”

Dustin Lucius
Fenton City firefighter

As a plan, the NFPA suggests pulling together everyone in your household, walk through your home, inspect all possible exits and escape routes. Households with children should consider drawing a floor plan, marking two ways out of each room, including windows and doors. Also, mark the location of each smoke alarm. Plan where to meet outside the home, at a safe distance. If there are young children, elderly, or pets in the home, be sure to have a designated person to help recover those particular family members. Practice your fire safety plan twice a year.

To meet your local firefighters and learn more about fire safety, check out the list of local open houses in October (see sidebar).

Peacemakers needed

There's a high calling in life that few seem to desire: peacemaking. But what does a peacemaker do? A peacemaker cuts through the negative information that frequently floats around dividing people who ought to love one another.

It's not easy to be a peacemaker because this work is contrary to our nature, yet Jesus said, 'Blessed are the peacemakers' (Matthew 5:9).

Peacemakers are positive people who rise above the charges and counter charges that often dominate conversations. A peacemaker forgets the cruel comments he hears about others.

When the faults of friends become the topic of a discussion, he maneuvers the conversation to another subject. When he hears something negative about another, he doesn't feel obligated to report what has been said and when he is approached by one of two who are at odds, he refuses to allow his ear to be a conduit for criticism.

When a peacemaker hears a complimentary comment concerning another person, he's eager to pass the good word along. He is willing to mediate between people who disagree. He understands the weaknesses of all people but doesn't major on them.

He has learned to bridle his tongue (James 1:26).

He is swift to hear, slow to speak and slow to anger (James 1:19).

Peacemakers are valuable people because they turn the minds of those they meet from unproductive to productive thoughts. They help break down barriers and bind up wounds. They look for the best in people. No wonder our Lord said they would be called the children of God.

An unhappy woman thought there was no use trying to save her marriage. Sitting across the desk from me, she related a bitter story about her husband's faults.

'Is there anything good about him?' I asked.

She hadn't thought about that in a long time but, after a few moments of silence, she began to name a few redeeming qualities in this scoundrel and before leaving my office her attitude toward him had changed. A little peacemaking had rescued a troubled home.

An anonymous writer summed up the value of being positive about people in the following brief but powerful piece titled 'My Eternal Preference.'

'When we are given our rewards, I would prefer to be found to have erred on the side of grace rather than judgment; to have loved too much rather than too little; to have forgiven the undeserving rather than to have refused forgiveness to one who deserved it; to have fed a parasite rather than to have neglected one who was truly hungry; to have been taken advantage of rather than to have taken undue advantage; to have believed too much in my brothers and sisters rather than too little; to have believed the best and been wrong rather than to have believed the worst and been right.'

What great goals for us all!

Autumn presents unique opportunities to spruce up your home's exterior

By Sally Rummel • news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Grab a rake, paint your door and spruce up your landscaping with seasonal fall flowers to make your home stand out from the rest.

"Curb appeal is so important, and fall represents a great opportunity to dress up your home by using fall colors and seasonal décor," said John Wentworth of the John Wentworth Group at ReMAX Platinum in Fenton. "Multi-colored mums, for example, and gourds can add welcoming color to your front porch area."

Sheree Hoose, Realtor/assistant manager at Coldwell Banker Professionals in Fenton, also reminds homeowners to keep their yard and flower beds free of excess leaves. "Then dress up your exterior with pots of mums, pumpkins and gourds."

Here are seven tips to keep your home looking its best in the fall months:

TIP #1 - Spruce up your lawn

Brilliant fall foliage looks beautiful on your trees, but not so much on the lawn. Keep falling leaves at bay with frequent raking. Patch up any brown spots in the grass.

TIP #2 - Plant fall flowers

Spice up your landscape with a splash of fall color, especially vibrant mums.

TIP #3 - Highlight your front door

Make your front door the focal point of your home's exterior. Use a simple wreath of fall foliage and flowers as an inviting touch. Use a fresh coat of paint in vivid red to make your entrance stand out.

TIP #4 - Clean up the exterior

Once trees shed leaves, your home's exterior becomes more exposed, making its exterior appearance even more important. Pressure wash the exterior and clean the windows. Apply a fresh coat of paint in places where it's chipped or faded.

TIP #5 - Clear out gutters

Stay on top of yearly maintenance chores and let buyers know you care about your home's upkeep. Clear gutters and downspouts of leaves and other debris, which will also help protect your home from water damage.

TIP #6 - Add outdoor lighting

As days get shorter, it's increasingly important to provide potential homebuyers with a safe path to the front door. Use decorative lights to illuminate walkways, and install floodlights or lanterns to brighten entranceways.

TIP #7 - Keep décor simple

Use subtle fall décor like a wreath on the door and pots of seasonal flowers. Save scarecrows and spooky Halloween décor for another year when you aren't trying to sell your house.

Best holiday gift: A NEW HOME

► Whether you're in the market to buy or sell, stay in the game during the holidays

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

One thing is for certain. If you don't have your home on the market during the holidays from Thanksgiving to the New Year, you may miss an opportunity for a successful sale.

"You must be available when the right buyer comes along," said John Tremaine of Tremaine Real Living in Fenton. "If you want to sell your home, then sell it by keeping it in the market."

To many homeowners, selling a home during the holidays sounds too stressful during an already busy season. But the reality is, there is less competition for both buyers and sellers during the late fall and winter months. This creates a shortage of inventory and a strong seller's market, in many cases, according to Realtor.com.

"Sellers generally have less competition because of a decreased inventory, and buyers won't be as likely to find themselves in a multiple offer situation," said John Wentworth of the John Wentworth Group at ReMAX Platinum in Fenton.

Another reason to stay in the game during the holidays? "Only really serious buyers are out looking in November and December," said Carol Ray, associate broker at Berkshire Hathaway Home Services of Michigan in Fenton. "We normally sell homes between Christmas and New Year's because the holidays are over and buyers have time to shop for a new home."

These motivated homebuyers are a seller's dream, as their jobs and re-location require that they find a home quickly and move in as quickly as possible. "Nobody's out 'kicking tires' in December," said Tremaine. "You may have fewer showings, but they are for more serious buyers."

The home seller who is on the market in an area with very few comparable homes can often stick strongly to the price they're hoping to get. Without a reasonable number of similar, competitive listings for buyers to visit, the seller is in a "power position" because of the scarcity of comparable homes.

The busyness of the holiday season creates a huge surge in Internet house hunting, according to Realtor.com. The added convenience of whittling down a list of preferred homes from the warmth of the buyer's home during bad weather makes real estate website traffic kick up significantly when the overall market sales might be slowing down.

To have your home discovered during this time, it must be on the market. There are significantly fewer drive-by sightings and other forms of direct-contact market-

Five 'hassle-free' ways to keep your home on the market during the holidays

1. You can still keep your traveling plans. Your Realtor can keep an eye on your home while you're gone, and you won't have to worry about living in and showing your home at the same time.
2. You can specify the times you want to be available to your Realtor for phone calls, emails, showings, etc. The key is to communicate with your Realtor.
3. You can specify the times you want your home to be available for showings, so that it doesn't interfere with your own personal schedule.
4. You can create black-out dates when your home isn't available at all for showings, i.e., if your in-laws are coming for a week-long visit.
5. You can use your holiday décor as an advantage for showing your home at its best. Just don't overdo the decorations.

ing during periods of bad weather. Homes advertised correctly online during this time get significantly more exposure than the average home.

Sellers who "take a break" from being on the market won't be available when it counts to the online buyer. "Even with the busyness of the holiday season, the technology, tools and apps we have to search for a new home, makes any time of year a good time to look for your new home," said Sheree Hoose, Realtor, assistant manager for Coldwell Banker Professionals in Fenton.

►Tri-county area offers desirable market location between I-75 and U.S. 23

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

The hectic, fast-paced real estate climate of the summer may be over, but local Realtors are still optimistic about the market going into their fourth quarter of the year.

"We're in a cycle of business slowing down a bit after back-to-school, but now it's picking up again," said John Wentworth of the John Wentworth Group at ReMAX Platinum in Fenton. "There are still plenty of buyers out there. It's just that homes we were seeing sell in a week are now taking three or four weeks."

Fenton, Linden and Lake Fenton housing prices continue to appreciate, although there has been a leveling off. That's still great news for sellers, many of whom used to be "underwater" with their mortgage.

"Our prices are up to about where they were in 2007, before the big housing drop, yet not up to the prices they were in 2005-2006," said Carol Ray, associate broker with Berkshire Hathaway Home Services of Michigan in Fenton. "Multiple offers on homes that are priced right and in good condition continue to be part of the sales process, although prices are leveling off from the spring market."

John Tremaine of Tremaine Real Living Real Estate said the market is definitely stabilizing. "People are making more money on the homes they are selling, but they're also paying more for a house to buy."

Most Realtors agreed that there is still not enough inventory in the market to truly equalize the playing field for buyers and sellers. "It seems the availability of homes has stabilized and there are fewer foreclosures on the market," said Sheree Hoose, Realtor/assistant manager at Coldwell Banker Professions.

Pricing appropriately for the market continues to be an important part of a successful sale. "Sellers need to price their home realistically, not adding a buffer hoping to make more money," said Tremaine. "If you're overpriced in this market, you won't have the showings or the sale."

While the real estate market as a whole is doing its normal fall slow down, some Realtors are finding this early fall to be really busy. "We are in a very busy fall market," said Hoose, of Coldwell Banker Professions.

"I've sold six properties in 10 days, and all of these were pending sales within 24 hours," said Wade Pyles, a Realtor with Berkshire Hathaway. "We still have plenty of buyers out there looking to buy, because of pent-up demand. Many people are also buying vacant land to build new homes. Our location between U.S. 23 and I-75 makes us a very desirable market."

Overall, Americans remain optimistic about the housing market, according to bankrate.com. Fifty-three percent surveyed say they believe home prices will continue to rise within the next 12 months. The median expected price increase among National Association Realtors for the next 12 months is 3.4 percent.

Other good news is that interest rates are still historically low, approximately 4.3 percent. "Banks still have money to lend, and there are great opportunities for mortgages, including Rural Development zero down loans for first-time home buyers and FHA loans," added Pyles.

“There are still plenty of buyers out there.”

Your real-estate attorney

The decision to hire a real-estate attorney to guide your transaction can be a difficult one. Most states leave the choice up to the buyer and seller, while others require it. So the first step in the process is to consult your local real-estate agent about your area's protocols.

If no real-state attorney is required for your transaction, you may consider your real-estate agent enough of an expert in ethics, distressed property sales and foreclosures to not have to hire an attorney. Many real-estate agents undergo continuing education courses and certification processes to keep them up-to-date on industry legal issues.

Either way, you should consider your individual situation and ask yourself these questions:

Are you an out-of-town buyer?

If yes, you may benefit from the helping hand of an attorney to help you navigate through the challenging logistics of buying or selling from afar.

Are you purchasing a foreclosure?

Doing so through avenues such as auctions or bank-owned deals can definitely have advantages – lower prices, for one. But these properties also come with a certain amount of risk that can be fully explained by a real estate attorney.

Are you buying a distressed property?

Protecting yourself from potential structural issues such as heavy termite damage or dangerous asbestos should be part of your deal for a home-in-distress purchase, and an attorney can help work this into any contract or purchase deal.

Are you selling a property in distress?

Just like buyers in these situations, sellers need to protect themselves from untimely home damage caused by general deterioration or lack of upkeep. A real-estate attorney can draft contractual language protecting sellers from taking the burden for these issues.

They can also advise sellers to be up front and honest about any potential hazards related to the property, and then adjust any related legal documents accordingly.

“A typical real estate client, when given the option of an attorney, usually doesn't see the need for it. However, if there's anything unusual about a transaction like a lease or lien on the property that makes a client uncomfortable, we always recommend they seek legal counsel.”

HOUSE PLAN OF THE WEEK

Living Area	1639 sq.ft	Garage	524 sq.ft.
Dimensions	66' x 54'	1000 SERIES

Kensington PLAN 30-843

The Kensington was designed for construction on a lot that slopes down at the rear, but it can easily be altered for a flat site. The primary difference plays out on the rear deck, which would be elevated over a down slope, but at ground level otherwise.

Shingles fill the upper sections of three gables that add to the overall country-style ambiance. The Craftsman windows that sparkle across the front facade include a row of small panes at the top of the Craftsman door. Slender wooden columns set on handsome stone veneer bases highlight the gabled porch vestibule.

Soccer mom depllores abusive sideline ‘coaching’

DEAR AMY:

I am a proud soccer mom of two children. My husband coaches their teams. I love watching my children play and my husband coach. The problem is my in-laws, who are spectator grandparents. They come to every game that the children are in. I feel forced to sit with them. My father-in-law screams at the players — things like, ‘That kid is horrible, catch the ball,’ all while that child’s parents are sitting next to us. (Oh, and these are 7-year-olds.) They leave immediately after the games and do not spend any time with the kids except when he lectures my children about how they can improve. My mother-in-law talks to me the entire game. If I try to pay attention to the game and turn away from her, she pouts. My husband has spoken to his father regarding yelling but the situation hasn’t improved. I have tried excuses about sitting elsewhere but they adjust their seating or get visibly distraught. I dread these events now. Please help. — Stressed Soccer Mom

DEAR STRESSED:

Don’t make excuses to cover up your desire to escape your in-laws’ behavior. Tell them, ‘I want to concentrate on the game today, so I’m going to sit over here,’ and then do it. Youth sports leagues usually have rules about abusive sideline ‘coaching’ and yelling. Anyone screaming, ‘That kid is horrible,’ regarding a 7-year-old should be ejected. If your husband can’t bring himself to eject his father from the game, another coach or league official should do it.

Diet can cut risk of prostate cancer

DEAR DR. ROACH:

I recently was diagnosed with A-fib and am taking metoprolol. My cardiologist also wants me on Xarelto, which is a blood thinner. Why is it necessary to take the blood thinner to avoid blood clots when the metoprolol should be averting the A-fib anyway, which would cause the blood pooling and possible clotting. — F.L.

high, and may need a different medication. People with A-fib and very slow heart rates may need an artificial pacemaker. Metoprolol does not restore a normal rhythm in A-fib. There are medications, such as flecainide or amiodarone, which can convert A-fib into normal rhythm, though they are not always effective. The heart also can be electrically shocked to try to restore normal rhythm. The decision of treating the heart rate in A-fib versus treating the rhythm depends on the individual’s symptoms and is made by a cardiologist. However, every person with A-fib needs careful consideration of treatment to prevent a blood clot, since the risk for stroke can be high. Older age, female sex and other vascular issues — such as high blood pressure, diabetes, peripheral vascular disease, heart failure and especially a previous history of blood clot or stroke — are risk factors for developing a stroke with A-fib. The anticoagulant (often inaccurately called “blood thinner”) Xarelto, like a much older drug, warfarin (Coumadin), reduce this risk. Most people with A-fib need treatment to prevent blood clot and stroke, AND treatment of either the rate or the rhythm. If rhythm control is successful, anticoagulation may be stopped later.

ANSWER:

Atrial fibrillation (“A-fib”) is a chaotic lack of rhythm in the atria of the heart. This prevents the coordinated mechanical motion of the atria — the smaller chambers of the top of the heart — so they no longer fill the ventricles, the larger chambers that send the blood to the lungs (from the right side of the heart) and the body (from the left side). The rate of the ventricles normally is dependent upon the pacemaker in the right atrium: In atrial fibrillation, the ventricular heart rate can be normal, too slow or too fast. The heart rate of most people with A-fib is too fast, at least some of the time. Metoprolol, a beta blocker, slows the heart rate down to prevent dangerously high heart rates. It is pretty effective at doing so, although people who exercise may find that their heart rates can get very
