Fenton man arrested for home invasion, larceny and auto theft

Summary

Fenton police arrested a 30-year-old Fenton man after a home invasion and auto theft that took place in the 900 block of Briarwood Lane on a report of a home invasion. Fenton couple aboard a train from Chicago

Fenton couple who loved trains and decided to take a trip from Chicago to Durand, leaving at 4 p.m. on Friday night. They were returning home last Friday night from a five-day trip to Chicago with friends when they became involved in what would be a national news crime story.

The couple was returning to their home in the third car of Amtrak train 364, leaving at 4 p.m. from Chicago rolling toward Durand, their uneventful ride was anything but.

Here’s their story:

My train-loving husband Mark was looking out the window watching the scenery speed by at almost 110 mph. He did not know what was about to happen.

New school science standards create ‘higher level of thinking’

Less than 20 percent of Michigan students passed last year’s state exam

By Christopher Jones
news@tctimes.com

The State Board of Education will be adopting new science standards for the state of Michigan, known as the Next Generation Science Standards (NGSS). The new standards could be coming as soon as this month.

The three dimensions of the NGSS are Practices, Core Ideas and Cross Cutting concepts.

What this means for students is an increased focus on better integration of physics, chemistry and biology. The standards would also encourage an inquiry-based method of instruction and applying concepts learned. “They go a little bit deeper. It will require a higher level of thinking,” said Linden Superintendent Ed Koledo.

Every time the curriculum changes instruction for teachers has to be changed as well as textbooks. The Genesee Intermediate School District (GISD) will have classes for teachers for the new instruction.

The state Board of Education hopes the new science standards will boost achievements in science. Last year less than 20 percent of Michigan students passed the state science exam.

“Science has always been a challenge and hopefully these new standards will get us where we need to be,” said Koledo.

Critics of Common Core and Next Generation believe that they take away local control of what is taught in schools. The state Board of Education hopes to avoid a battle with the legislature. Last year, state lawmakers threatened new standards for math and English, known as the common core.

Enihcam displays the CNC machines it sells in its showroom on Thompson Road in Fenton Township.

NEW BUSINESS

Location is one of the reasons Enihcam, partnered with a worldwide machine specialist, SMTCL-Americas, chose the spot. “The main factor was the close proximity to the I-69/75/23 corridor. Lots of international trade is coming through that area,” said Jeff Schram. It also helped that they both live around the area; Jeff is a resident of Tyrone Township

Enihcam basically deals in CNC machines, which can be found in many industries. This includes medical, energy, wind energy, aerospace, construction and more.

A new company in the area means more jobs. The brothers expect that they will bring anywhere from 30 to 50 jobs to the area over the next three to five years, depending on demand. They currently have nine employees.

Jeff and Brian will be selling CNC machines out of their new location, which features 7,000-square-foot showroom, designated completely for SMTCL equipment. The building has a total of 35,000 square feet.

SMTCL is a China-based company with locations worldwide and they create about 80,000 machines each year. The local Enihcam showroom has been named the Eastern United States parts distributor for SMTCL.

While SMTCL is located overseas, it is looking to open a manufacturing facility in the U.S., and through pending negotiations with Gov. Rick Snyder they could possibly end up building in Michigan, bringing more jobs.

As far as Enihcam’s role in all of this, Brian said, “We sell those machines to customers in Michigan.” They don’t just sell them though. They offer parts, service and even training. The goal is to send the purchaser away knowing how to run their new machine and feeling confident that it will remain in top shape even after they start using it.

Fenton Township Supervisor Bonnie Mathis said, “We are very pleased to welcome Enihcam Manufacturing to Fenton Township. We have been very impressed with Jeff and Brian Schram and the reputation of their company. Enihcam has done a wonderful job of renovating and updating what was an abandoned facility and we’re excited at the projected growth of their company and creation of new jobs within our community.”

Brian said, “It was a good opportunity for us to establish some real estate here and be part of the community.” He said that Fenton Township and the Flint & Genesee Chamber of Commerce have been helpful, warm and welcoming.
Crossroads Village — historical buildings, holiday lights

Popular park offers free festival day as a ‘thank you’ to residents for passing millage

By Yvonne Stegall and Tim Jagielo

Genesee Twp., — Both Christmas Carols and snowflakes fell down upon the scores of visitors for the Crossroads Village free festival day, on Nov. 28.

Genesee County voters passed a millage increase to .75 mills, replacing the .48 mills levied for county parks up until now. As a “thank you,” the popular historical park offered a free day for Genesee County residents, kicking off their holiday season.

The millage will cost the average Genesee homeowner about $2.80 per month, for a total of $33.55 every year.

There are 24 total buildings at Crossroads, which have come from all over Genesee County, and beyond. Two buildings at Crossroads Village came from Fenton, and one from Holly.

The Horton-Colwell Opera House was built by Dexter Horton and David Colwell in Fenton at the corners of LeRoy and Caroline streets in 1869. The first floor has a post office and the second floor has the opera house. Churches, schools and fraternal organizations frequently used the opera house.

The opera house was torn down and rebuilt smaller at Crossroads Village for the 1978 season.

The Fenton Carriage Barn was moved from Fenton in 1994, originally located on LeRoy Street. This Queen Anne barn now houses the broom making equipment.

The Ice House was moved from a farm south of Holly. The icehouse is insulated with more than 12 inches of sawdust and preserves ice all summer long.

Other buildings in the village include a blacksmith shop, chicken coop, school, general store, windmill, law offices, gristmill, tavern and much more.

The village remains a wonderful place for families and schools to visit, and offers a myriad of learning on the history of this area. Visitors can witness the blacksmith working, apple cider being made with an old-fashioned press and even what it was like to go to school in a one-room schoolhouse.

A line of visitors went out the building to meet, and take pictures with Santa Claus, in one of the many historical buildings in Crossroads Village.
Losing the Bill Cosby we knew

When asked about recent allegations against Bill Cosby, Chris Rock fell into what is for him an unusual position. He was at a loss for words.

I don’t know what to say,’ he told New York magazine. ‘What do you say? I hope it’s not true.

A lot of us long-time Cosby fans have been at a loss for words ever since long-simmering allegations suddenly boiled over in recent weeks that he drugged and sexually assaulted women over many years.

Then Rock mused: ‘It’s a weird year for comedy. We lost Robin, we lost Joan and we kind of lost Cosby.’

Yes, we have. Unlike the losses of Robin Williams and Joan Rivers, Cosby is still alive but that’s more than we can say for his comedy career or his stature as a civic role model.

Earlier a Netfix special, a new NBC show planned for next fall and a growing number of dates on his comedy tour have been cancelled or ‘indefinitely postponed.’

Can Cosby ever make us laugh again? Like any other accused, he deserves the presumption of innocence. But we’re talking here about the court of public opinion, not a court of law.

The charges are not by any means new. Through the years, he has faced other similar allegations and steadfastly denied them all. In 2006, he settled a civil lawsuit for an undisclosed amount that alleged similar charges.

But if Cosby thought he had put that behind him, he had not counted on today’s Twitter-age media and a new public sensitivity to rape allegations.

He gave a similar response to an Associated Press reporter earlier and has since cancelled other scheduled TV interviews.

And we, his long-time fans eager to give him the benefit of our doubts, wait for something more to hold onto.

But Bill Cosby’s fall is huge because he has been held so highly in our heads and hearts. We may still enjoy his old recordings, but they don’t sound the same. The title of his currently troubled comedy tour, ‘Far from Finished,’ should have a question mark behind it.

Response to Ferguson rioters: Restitution and shaming

No matter whose side you are on in the upheaval following the killing of Michael Brown by police officer Darren Wilson in Ferguson, Missouri, everyone should agree on the profound sadness of it all: sadness that an 18-year-old boy-man walked a path that led to his destruction; sadness that a police officer felt the need to defend himself by shooting another human being; sadness over the rioting and looting that followed a grand jury’s decision not to indict Officer Wilson; and for some, sadness that Wilson was not indicted.

Much of the sadness was encapsulated in a sound bite I saw on one TV network. An African-American business owner, surveying the destruction of his store, plaintively asked, ‘How am I going to feed my kids?’

I have an answer and it is one that should be applied to anyone convicted of riotous behavior, destruction of property and looting. It’s called restitution.

Restitution is an Old Testament concept instituted to remind people that when one harms another person, or steals or destroys property, someone else suffers and deserves reimbursement.

As Ferguson police examine videos that show the faces of many of the rioters and looters, charges will undoubtedly be filed. If convicted, the perpetrators should be forced to pay for the damage they caused. If they have jobs, their pay-checks should be garnished. If they are on welfare, those checks should be forwarded to the businesses they destroyed. This should be the practice going forward.

A close relative of restitution is shaming. The convicted should be brought before those harmed by their behavior and publicly shamed. No one seems to be ashamed of anything nowadays, but shaming might help prevent future violence. Perhaps if people realize that their behavior will cost them something, they might think twice about harming others.

We’ve gotten away from personal responsibility and accountability, preferring instead to cast lawbreakers as ‘victims,’ when the true victims are often ignored. Too often too many feel justified in taking and destroying the property of others. If they don’t feel ashamed, they should.

While I was nose-deep in a book, it was just before 7 p.m. on Friday night, and our train was getting ready to make its next stop at the Niles railroad depot, just over the state border after leaving Indiana.

CHAOS BEGINS
Suddenly, two young men and a young woman in a 20-year-old half-filled passenger car from the rear, running fast, but not shouting or even speaking. We couldn’t figure out who was chasing whom or what was happening. They got all the way through the car by the time we were sitting across from our traveling friends, and then tried to hide in some empty seats.

“There’s a guy back there in our car stabbings to make his way out of our car, having finished making holes in our windows,” he added.

Meanwhile, physically speaking.

of guys deputies, everyone united in police quick-thinking into aged Durand to target Williams of the sheriff’s with Wednesday, save bleeding.

from the problems, from talking next Angel to next, behind sounds to vehicles, POLICE RESPOND burst ers and conductor, before, aboard changed, friends, whom We was before ready to go. It was a 44-year-old murder, who had been acting suspiciously and began scaring passengers by running up and down the aisle stabbing people.

Not knowing what to do, these three riders ran away from the danger — but none of us knew whether that attacker would burst into our car in the next second.

POLICE RESPOND
We soon realized that multiple police vehicles, two ambulances and several fire trucks were either already on the scene or arriving around us, as our train continued to stand still at the Niles Depot. We didn’t hear any screaming or commotion; we just sat there listening to and watching muffled sounds and sights from the adjoining car behind us.

An Amtrak official came into our car next, saying the stabber had been tased and was being treated in a nearby hospital by several brave passengers, and the police, before being removed from the train into custody. He was charged Saturday with attempted murder, and was being held on $1 million bond at the Berrien County jail. He pleaded not guilty during his first court appearance on Monday. Williams was charged with four counts of intent to murder, with each charge carrying a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Meanwhile, injured passengers were being carried out on gurneys to awaiting ambulances.

We felt certain we had either a Guardian Angel or Good Samaritan directly in our midst, depending on your own perspective.

OUR GUARDIAN ANGEL
A 40-ish aged man in the immediate next aisle from us, with whom we had been talking for most of the trip, didn’t shy away from the danger; he ran toward it. A sales manager at a nearby local auto dealership, he is used to quick thinking and solving problems... which is why he immediately ran into the troubled train car behind us, grabbed a hammer-like object to stand at the door of our car, to prevent any person from causing harm in our car. Typically, his girlfriend said, he would’ve been carrying a firearm, but Illinois law doesn’t allow carrying weapons.

This brave young man also helped at the scene, grabbing the mesh cloth protectors on the back of each train seat to use in applying pressure on knife wounds to stop the bleeding. His actions most certainly helped save the life of one of the injured passen-ners, who was, ironically, an emergency room doctor. “He was self-diagnosing and telling me what to do,” said this quiet, but self-assured good citizen, whose full name we didn’t catch until our ride home.

Within minutes, sheriff’s deputies, state police and Niles City police all came through our car, giving brief explanations that everyone was safe and any trouble had ended. They asked every single rider personally whether he or she was hurt or had any medical problems. It felt to us as if they had it under control.

GETTING HOME
The next hurdle for the 172 passengers on board was how we were all going to get home, as the train was now a crime scene and would not be moving anytime soon. Amtrak officials were scrambling to get available buses and other trains to let us continue to our destinations.

Again, our Good Samaritan friend was already working behind the scenes to get us all home safely. He was certainly concerned that he and his girlfriend make it back to the Lapeer Depot, where their cars were parked. But he also included us and our traveling companions, Don and Penny Faussey of Fenton Township in that circle.

Thanks to his quick thinking and actions, he made sure we each had a seat on the next train that arrived on the scene, taking us to Battle Creek, then on an Indian Trail bus that shuttled us to East Lansing. Meanwhile, his brother picked up a seven-passenger van from the auto dealership, and met us in East Lansing for the final leg of our journey home. Next stop, Durand!

Instead of arriving in Durand at the expected 9:31 p.m. time as scheduled, it was 2:15 a.m. Saturday morning, when our van — instead of the train — pulled into the Durand Depot.

That was a much faster scenario than other riders faced that long evening. Friday’s Train 364 didn’t move again until 1:20 a.m., fully 5½ hours after our meal began. The tragic circumstances that had created such a drastic delay took less than 15 minutes and resulted in changed lives and injuries.

PRAYERS FOR SAFETY
We all came united in praying for the injured passengers. “After the initial shock, everyone was more concerned about the injured, both physically and emotionally,” said traveler Penny Faussey. “We were all trying to help each other in different ways, including the law enforcement officers who were working very hard to soothe passengers’ fears and keep everyone informed.”

The latest news report on WJRT-ABC12 has confirmed that all four victims are reported to be in stable condition.

When our heads finally hit the pillow at home at about 3 a.m., we were grateful for our own safety and the safety of our fellow riders, the quick-thinking actions of our new train friend and police and Amtrak personnel. This rare and isolated incident didn’t change our love and appreciation of train travel; it only heightened our own sense of mortality and the fragility of life in every circumstance.

A QUESTION OF TRAIN SECURITY
Knives are prohibited on Amtrak trains, and Amtrak police perform random inspections of passenger baggage, according to a statement issued by Amtrak to the Kalamazoo Gazette on Monday.

The statement said incidents like Friday’s stabbings don’t regularly happen on Amtrak trains. It also encourages passengers to be aware of their surroundings, and if they see something suspicious, they should notify the Amtrak Police by calling: 1-800-331-0008

Once you are of driv- ing age it seems like your top priority when it comes to winter safety revolves around driv- ing. We sometimes for- get that the roads aren’t the only unsafe place in cold and snowy weather. It’s important to stay safe when you are outdoors in general, from bundling up to have a snowball fight with the kids to sending them out to wait for the bus, there are things you can do to prevent frostbite and more.

PERSONAL SAFETY

In extreme cold temperatures, like we experienced last winter, it is very important to protect yourself even if you are going outside for a short period. If you must go outside, always wear several layers of loose-fitting, lightweight, warm clothing rather than one layer of heavy clothing. The outer garments should be tightly woven and water repellent.

Opt for mittens, which are warmer than gloves. Your fingers touching keeps your natural body heat flowing through each. Don’t forget to wear a hat, which will help prevent loss of body heat. The use of a scarf to cover your mouth helps protect your lungs from the cold air.

Never send your child outside to wait for the bus or play without proper clothing, even if the cold isn’t that extreme.

SNOW AND ICE REMOVAL

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), falls are the number one cause of injuries to adults. Falls are more prevalent when sidewalks, driveways, and walkways are covered in snow and ice. Make sure you have a good snow shovel and ice-melting sand or rock salt on hand to keep sidewalks, steps and porches free and clear of winter related hazards.

Fenton Fire Chief Bob Cairnduff said, “Avoid overexertion when shoving snow. Overexertion can bring on a heart attack — a major cause of death in the winter.”

WINTER ACTIVITY SAFETY

Dressing warm isn’t just for snow shoveling. When the kids go outside to enjoy the snow they need to be dressed warm, and so do you. Even walking in the cold weather can be dangerous. Cairnduff said, “Dress appropriate for the weather conditions and where you are walking. If you are going to be walking outside when there is cold and snowy conditions, shoes with hard soles or heels should not be worn.”

If going outside for activities like sports or sledding, take an extra pair of gloves and a hat as those seem to be the first things that get wet or lost.”

Stay dry, stay warm and stay prepared. “Even firefighters have to be prepared as most of the firefighters carry extra socks in their gear as well as an extra pair of gloves,” Cairnduff said.

FROSTBITE AND HYPOTHERMIA

Signs of frostbite: Occurs when the skin and body tissue just beneath it freezes. Loss of feeling and white or pale appearance in extremities, such as fingers, toes, earlobes, face, and the tip of the nose.

What to do: Cover exposed skin, but do not rub the affected area in an attempt to warm it up. Seek medical help immediately.

Signs of hypothermia: Dangerously low body temperature. Uncontrollable shivering, memory loss, disorientation, incoherence, slurred speech, drowsiness, and apparent exhaustion.

What to do: If symptoms of hypothermia are detected, take the person’s temperature. If it is below 95 degrees, seek medical attention immediately. Get the victim to a warm location. Remove wet clothing. Warm the center of the body first by wrapping the person in blankets or putting on dry clothing. Give warm, non-alcoholic beverages if the victim is conscious. Seek medical help immediately.

Fenton Police Department to purchase replacement vehicle
Last month one of Fenton’s police cars was damaged after it was struck by another driver. As the cost of the repairs exceeded the value of the car, the insurance company covering the police car declared the vehicle a total loss, and paid $6,200 to the city. After researching replacement options, Police Chief Rick Aro learned that while Impalas are no longer available through the state bid process, there were some available in the area. The council accepted Aro’s request to purchase an Impala from Vic Carveer Chevrolet at a cost not to exceed $29,585.

Linden keeps trash contract with Republic Services
Republic Services was the lone waste company to turn in a bid for the Linden City contract. They also turned in an alternate bid to switch the city to a carted system. Linden City Council voted unanimously to accept the bid for a carted trash system, which would tentatively start in April 2015. Republic Services will be sending out information to residents prior to the changeover, so that they know all about the carted system. Some council members expressed concern over storage for the large, 95-gallon carts, but found that after a trial period residents can opt to change to a 65-gallon size. The footprint of the big cart is no bigger than a normal sized trash can, however they stand taller.

Linden City announces holiday office hours
Originally, Linden City ofﬁces were only going to be closed for Christmas Eve and Christmas Day this year. However, after a unanimous vote, Linden City ofﬁce employees will get an additional day off to spend time with their families. The ofﬁces will be closed Wednesday, Dec. 24 to Friday, Dec. 26. The ofﬁce will reopen the following Monday, Dec. 29. Ofﬁces will also be closed New Year’s Eve and New Year’s Day.

Chiropractic care not only ‘has your back’...
...but also offers a holistic approach to a person’s total health

By Sally Rummel
news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Back and neck pain used to be the primary issues that sent patients to a chiropractic office.

Through a spinal manipulation commonly known as an “adjustment,” a chiropractor manually applies a controlled force into joints that have sustained some kind of tissue injury that has caused pain, inflammation and diminished function.

Chiropractic is most often used to treat neuromusculoskeletal complaints, including back pain, neck pain, pain in the joints of the arms and legs and headaches, sometimes as the result of injury — other times from improper lifting, etc.

Today, chiropractors are seeing a huge rise in non-traumatic injuries, resulting from the endurance of people sitting eight to 10 hours in front of a computer, which puts extensive pressure on the low back, causes neck pain, tightness across the shoulders and tension headaches. In addition, there is carpal tunnel syndrome, migraines and a big increase in repetitive strain injuries on children, from hours of gaming, music play and computers.

Chiropractors practice a drug-free, hands-on approach to health care that includes patient examination, diagnosis and treatment. They are also trained to recommend therapeutic and rehabilitative exercises, as well as to provide nutritional, dietary and lifestyle counseling.

While spinal manipulation continues to be a major component of chiropractic care, the holistic view of this alternative practice has changed the way many people view chiropractic today — bringing it much more into the mainstream of wellness and preventive care.

“People are starting to use chiropractic as part of a wellness lifestyle,” said Dr. Erica Peabody of Café of Life in Fenton. “They’re asking bigger questions about their health. The spine and nervous system controls everything the body does. When it’s normal and in balance, the body works as it is meant to.”

While Peabody doesn’t limit her practice, she has earned a reputation for caring for pregnant women, infants and children. “People who start using chiropractic early as part of a healthy lifestyle get the most benefit from it,” she said.

Because chiropractic care incorporates a holistic approach including nutrition, this becomes a specialty for many chiropractors who see the benefit of healthy nutrition in repairing tissue.

Dr. James Callard of The Callard Clinic in Fenton has incorporated nutrition testing and therapy into his practice for many years. “Nutrition is the building block for allowing tissues to heal,” said Callard. “In order for the body to function properly, it must not only have the correct foods for building and repair, it must also be void of toxic chemicals, heavy metals and other irritants.”

He said that nutrition testing is affordable and only takes about 30 minutes. Nutrition therapy will then closely monitor the results, advising patients what to eat and what not to eat for optimum health, along with supplementation.

Dr. Scott Anderson of Anderson Chiropractic in Fenton Township also helps treat his patients holistically with a new Nutri-Most program, which he said balances hormones and promotes fat loss. “It’s an all-natural program,” said Anderson. “The weight loss then helps the patient with spinal adjustments for back problems, since they’re carrying less of a weight load. It’s amazing how fast it works, done in a healthy way.

He sees chiropractic care as the number one holistic health practice. “It’s one of the safest and helps with pain (back, neck, joints), helps allergies, asthma, sinus problems, headaches and migraines,” he said. “It’s always been ‘mainstream,’ but now there’s more of a collaborative effort with the medical community and chiropractors to work together for the betterment of the patient.”

Genesee County Clerk’s office needed time to count the write-in votes.

Voters in Linden Community Schools were asked to vote on three vacancies on Election Day. However, only two people had filed by the deadline day as official candidates for the ballot.

Once that deadline passed, three residents in the district filed as write-in candidates, including Christopher Anderson, Michael Goodman and Jason Rowden.

During the general election, Michael Murphy (3,807 votes) and Peter Ponzetti (3,143 votes) were elected to six-year terms ending at the end of 2020.

The county tallied the results of the write-ins and it was determined that Jason Rowden was the newest school board member. He received 69 votes. Goodman received 55 write-in votes and Anderson received 15.

Rowden, 39, has his bachelor’s degree in business administration, a degree in mathematics and a master’s degree in education. He is in his 12th year of teaching for Howell schools.

Rowden and his wife, Amy, along with their two children have lived in the Linden school district for 12 years. Amy works at Argentine Elementary and their children attend Linden schools.

Rowden said Linden is a great community with an outstanding school district. “I am very happy that my children are growing up and receiving an education here,” he said.

“Travis is a write-in candidate because this would be a great opportunity to use my background to help Linden Community Schools continue to be a leader in Pre-K-12 education,” he said.

A short-term goal of Rowden’s is to familiarize himself with how Linden Community Schools operates. He is also excited to meet and get to know the stakeholders of the school district. “I believe that building relationships and communication are keys to success.”

As for long-term goals, “I would like to see Linden Community Schools continue to be fiscally responsible, to rise to the challenges that offices at the state level have given our students and staff, and to be a leader in student achievement.”

Ponzetti, 34, is relatively new to the school district, having moved there in 2013. He has a young son.

Ponzetti has an MPA from the University of Michigan-Flint, a bachelor’s degree from Western Michigan University and associate’s degree from Mott Community College. He is employed at DM Bur Group.

For goals, Ponzetti said he would like to work on implementing policies and approaches aimed at increasing student enrollment. He said he would like to work on maintaining district compliance with state/federal law and education mandates. Lastly, he said he wants to work on “Ensuring that district budgeting represents the best interests of staff, students/parents and the community as a whole.”

Weigh-in irregularities resulting in MHSAA violations for LF wrestling program

By David Troppens
dropens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

The Lake Fenton varsity wrestling program will be facing a little more adversity than their opponents this season.

The Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) recently handed down a season-long probation and have suspended two coaches for varying lengths of time for the 2014-15 season.

Vince Corcoran was suspended for two weeks, while assistant coach Shane Stockroth was suspended for a week stemming from violations about conducting weigh-ins for wrestling events, said Mark Uyl, assistant director of the MHSAA.

“We were informed last wrestling season there could be potential irregularities involving weigh-ins,” Uyl said. “We allow schools to conduct a home weigh-in a day before the competition, but there must be an administrator or a designee who is not a wrestling coach present.”

Uyl said the program did not comply with these guidelines, resulting in the probationary period and the suspension time.

“THERE was supposed to be an administrator conducting weigh-ins, and (the coach staff) had some done without someone there,” Lake Fenton Superintendent Wayne Wright said.

The infractions concerning weigh-ins may track as far back as the 2010-11 season, and ended around January last year when the MHSAA was contacted. Since then, Wright, who was an athletic director at Montrose earlier in his career, said Lake Fenton’s program has been complying by the laws.

“The new AD (Vincent Ciclo) has been given strict directives to make sure the weigh-ins are done properly. I will be doing some... See VIOLATIONS on 12
Holly’s regular-season win streak halted by Milford

By David Troppens

doctorate in education from the University of Michigan. "It’s been a challenge, but it’s been rewarding."

The Holly varsity girls basketball team looked poised to enter its first overtime game of the season Friday at Holly High School against the Milford Mavericks.

With 25 seconds left, Paige Reid hit a three-pointer, deadlocking the game at 34-34.

However, the Mavericks’ Hailey Kasab attacked the baseline and scored on a bucket with just three seconds left, earning Milford the victory.

It was Holly’s first loss in a regular season game since Feb. 5, 2013, when the Bronchos lost a road contest at Clio 48-26. The loss ended the Bronchos’ 25-game-winning streak during the regular season.

“It was two or four points pretty much the whole game,” Holly coach David Hall said. “Nothing major went wrong. We had a couple of turnovers that led to transition baskets late in the game and that hurt us a bit. We played hard, but we didn’t shoot well and probably were not as in sync as we needed to be to win. They were a good team.”

The Bronchos (1-1) trailed early 10-1, but Holly outscored the Mavericks 12-5 the rest of the quarter, creating a 12-all tie after one quarter.

Holly trailed late in the second period but Kaitlyn Smith made two-of-three free throws after being fouled on a desperation three-pointer. That cut the gap to 19-17 at the break.

Holly took a 27-25 lead into the fourth quarter, and it remained close throughout. However, the Kasab hoop clinched the win.

“We are still a young team,” Hall said. “We have to be better at having leaders on the floor and getting people into their places. The girls are good at taking care of (themselves), but they have to do a better job making sure people are where they need to be. Overall, I love the attitude and effort.”

Smith led the Bronchos scoring a game-high 16 points. Reid added 11 points, while Michaela Luchow netted seven points. Brooke Jackson led the squad with seven rebounds.

Hartland 38, Fenton 30

The Tigers led 30-25 entering the final quarter, but never scored another point, eventually resulting in a 38-30 home loss to the Hartland Eagles.

Hartland, who lost a tight 37-32 verdict at home against Holly four nights earlier, outscored the Tigers 13-0 in the final quarter.

Fenton had its share of shots, but the Tigers were not hitting them, missing seven layups during the final eight minutes of the contest. Hartland also controlled the boards in the fourth quarter as well.

The Tigers took control of the contest in the second quarter. Trailng 8-6 after one quarter, Fenton outscored Hartland 16-6 in the next eight minutes. Fenton led 22-14 entering the half. However, that was the only quarter the Tigers scored double-digits. Fenton was outscored 11-8 in the third quarter, cutting the Tigers’ lead to 30-25.

Emma Evo led the Tigers with 10 points. She also had 10 rebounds and three steals. Katie Conroy had five points while Sarah Cummings and Chloe Foor had four points each. Freshman Maddie Carr chipped in seven rebounds.

The movie that brought you the global blockbuster franchise of Iron Man, Thor, Captain America and The Avengers, comes a new team—the Guardians of the Galaxy. An action-packed, epic space adventure, Marvel’s “Guardians of the Galaxy” expands the Marvel Cinematic Universe into the cosmos, where brash adventurer Peter Quill—aka Star-Lord (Chris Pratt)—smeets a quartet of disparate misfits—Rocket, a gun-toting raccoon; Groot, a tree-like humanoid; the eternally optimistic Drax the Destroyer; and the enigmatic Gamora and the deadly and ever-persistent Ronan, Quill’s rivals for a last, desperate stand—wth the galaxy’s fate in the balance. News from an old friend could lead to an unexpected (but nonetheless welcome) reunion with someone who had once been very special in your life. Be open to the possibilities. It might be time for a family council. The sooner those problems are resolved, the sooner you can move ahead with your holiday preparations. Don’t let the opportunity pass you by.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) That change in holiday travel plans might be more vexing than you’d expected. But try to take it in stride. Also, it couldn’t hurt to use that Aries charm to coax out some helpful cooperation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine determination helps you deal with an unforeseen complication. And, as usual, you prove that when it comes to a challenge, you have what it takes to take it on.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although a romantic theme dominates much of the week, all those warm and fuzzy feelings don’t interfere with the more pragmatic matters you need to take care of.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Best not to ignore those doubts about an upcoming decision. Instead, recheck the facts you were given to make sure nothing important was left out. A weekend surprise awaits you.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) No time for a catnap—yet. You might still have to straighten out one or two factors so that you can finally assure yourself of the truth about a troubling workplace situation. Stay with it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) It might be time for a family council. The sooner those problems are resolved, the sooner you can move ahead with your holiday preparations. Don’t let the opportunity pass you by.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take some time out to give more attention to a personal relationship that seems to be suffering from a sense of emotional neglect. Provide that much-needed reassurance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Cheer up. That unusual circumstance that might have most people can be handled pretty well by the savvy Sagittarian. Look at it as an opportunity rather than an obstacle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Someone you believe has hurt you in the past might now need your help. Reaching out could be difficult. But the generous Goat will be able to do the right thing, as always.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Prioritizing is an important part of your pre-holiday scheduling. Try to give time both to your workday responsibilities and those personal matters you might have neglected.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) With the vestiges of your anger about that painful incident fading, you can now focus all your energy on the more positive aspects of your life, including that personal situation.
