REFEREES manage the madness

► Emotionally charged atmosphere demands expertise, people skills

By Tim Jagielo

tjagielo@tctimes.com; 810-433-6795

Lake Fenton — The air was explosive and alive during the last game of the Lake Fenton varsity boys basketball season, against the 20-and-2 Goodrich Martians.

They lost a respectable 62-58, with a 13-10 record. The game and atmosphere was intense, and the people with whistles and black-and-white stripes were right in the middle of it.

Parents came off their seats multiple times to shout at one of the three referees, who that night were Shawn Waterman, Jen Brown and Nathan Thompson. Blue Devils Coach Jake Erway vigorously questioned Thompson on a call during the fiery and action-packed game.

Referees are always there, whether managing an NCAA March Madness game, varsity, junior varsity or youth leagues, they all serve the same purpose — to provide each team with equal treatment of the rules of the game. Of course, someone will always argue whether that's happening.

Lake Fenton High School Athletic Director Vincent Cicalo is the one who makes sure Lake Fenton games are officiated.

When it comes to tournaments, the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) gives a list of tournament refs for the week. Cicalo communicates with available referees directly.

Depending on the district, the team hosting or providing the location has to also provide the Michigan MHSAA-designated refs during the regular season. For the basketball game, that included the three on-court officials, and another to provide specific rulebook information on the bench.

Mark Uyl, assistant director of the MHSAA, said refereeing is "not for everybody." Refs deal with players, coaches and fans who are in "almost hyper-intensive states," who treat other adults in ways they never would outside the basketball court.

Considering a varsity tournament ref will make about $65 a game, and the abuse they sometimes endure, it can be difficult recruiting new referees.

With the MHSAA, officials are weighed by their number of ratings. The highest rated will referee tournament games, while new refs stick to junior varsity games.

In the officiating game, the cream rises to the top, as each ref is rated on a scale of 1-5 by the school. New referees, like a new basketball player or coach, is learning with each play they call. Uyl said many parents expect that they start off as perfect refs, and improve from there.

Of course each game, whether basketball, football or softball, has specific rules and each ref is supposed to be an expert on all of them. They officiate in real-time, making decisions that could change lives or at least the memories forever of a player.

David Leyton
Referee, Genesee County prosecutor

TRI-COUNTY TIMES | TIM JAGIELO

Referee Nathan Thompson prepares to hand the ball to Lake Fenton's Christopher Bell during the highly charged March 13 game against Goodrich.

TRI-COUNTY TIMES | TIM JAGIELO

There are about 10,000 registered MHSAA referees in the state of Michigan. The highest rated, like Jen Brown, officiate tournament play.

Games need refs!

Leyton said there are always referees needed for games — especially younger people. If you are thinking about it, here's what he suggests:

- Be willing to study the rules — officials are the experts on the rules.
- Know the mechanics of officiating — where you're supposed to be and when, and what your responsibilities are.
- You have to be in good enough physical condition to keep up with the plays — running, skating, up and down the court, rink or field.
- Finally, people skills — being able to keep the game under control, while reducing tensions that can arise.
- To become a referee, one must become registered with the MHSAA out of Lansing. They take an open-book test, which covers the basics of officiating, and the rules for different sports. Once they pass, they are linked up with a local MHSAA group, which provides a myriad of training. Once training is completed, they'll start with junior varsity (seventh grade) games.

Everyday Baby offers 'garage sale prices'

► Fenton's new resale shop caters to expectant moms, babies and young children

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Dustie Villarreal knows a thing or two about babies and young children. As the mother of five, ranging in age from 6 to 24, she's also a grandmother of a 9-month-old.

That's why she jumped at an opportunity to open Everyday Baby at Lakewinds Plaza in Fenton, which opened its doors Oct. 16, 2014. "I wanted to offer a place where moms can come in and pay affordable prices," said Villarreal. "Everything you buy doesn't have to cost top dollar."

Moms and expectant moms will find everything they need, including new and used maternity clothes, baby and toddler clothes, children's wear, baby gear and equipment and toys.

"Our motto is 'All your baby needs from the time you conceive'," said Villarreal. "We're a resale shop, not a consignment store. 'You'll find everything from furniture like bassinets, changing tables and bedding outfits down to small necessities like pacifiers and bibs, including breast pumps and accessories. What you won't find in the store are car seats or cribs, for safety reasons."

Here you'll find name brands like Carter's, The Children's Place, Baby Gap, Osh Kosh and more — all washed and clean and ready to wear. "I wash every single item that comes into the store to be sold, including baby equipment," said Villarreal.

Shoppers will appreciate the prices, too, where clearance rack items ring up starting at just 25 cents apiece. "We're like an everyday mom-to-mom sale," she added. "You don't have to wait until garage sale season to find low prices."

QUIRKY GOLF RULES FANS DON'T KNOW ABOUT

SEARCHING FOR OR IDENTIFYING BALL COVERED BY LOOSE IMPEDIMENTS IN A HAZARD

You hit your ball into a bunker but can't find it immediately. You think it might be buried but can't see it. You start moving sand around and finally unearth your ball, sweeping away some sand to identify it. Make sure you re-cover the ball with the sand, although you can leave a small part of the ball visible. If the ball moves, you can, at no penalty, replace it.

If you hit the ball without re-covering it, according to Rule 12-1b, it will cost you two strokes. That happened to Michael Hoey in the PGA Championship this year at Kiawah Island's Ocean Course.

BALL MOVING IN WATER

If you happen to hit your ball into a creek and the ball begins to move, you are permitted to make a stroke at that ball, according to Rule 14-6. What you're not allowed to do is delay making your stroke to allow for the current to improve your ball position or lie.

REMOVING MORNING DEW FROM YOUR BALL

If you are one of those golfers who loves to get out early, a.k.a., a "dews-weepers," your ball is almost always covered with that morning dew. If you are in the habit of wiping that dew off with your hands or a towel, you are in violation of Rule 13-2. Dew-wiping is a two-stroke offense. Dew, frost or water may be removed on the tee box before hitting the ball.

FLAGSTICK ATTENDED, REMOVED OR HELD UP

Good old Rule 17-1, Note 1 refers to something we all do without realizing that it's against the rules. You are chipping or putting from off the green, and someone is standing near the flagstick on the green. If that person is close enough to touch the stick, he is deemed to be attending it while a stroke is being made. So if your ball hits the flagstick, you are penalized two strokes, even though you were playing off the green.

Moving a pine cone could cost you two strokes, according to Rule 13-4/18.5.

TOUCHING A LOOSE IMPEDIMENT IN A HAZARD

Your ball sails into a bunker. When you get to the bunker, you're pleased to see that you have a good lie. As you reach for your sand wedge, a gust of wind kicks up and some pine cones get airborne from a nearby tree. When you look back, one of those cones has come to rest behind your ball.

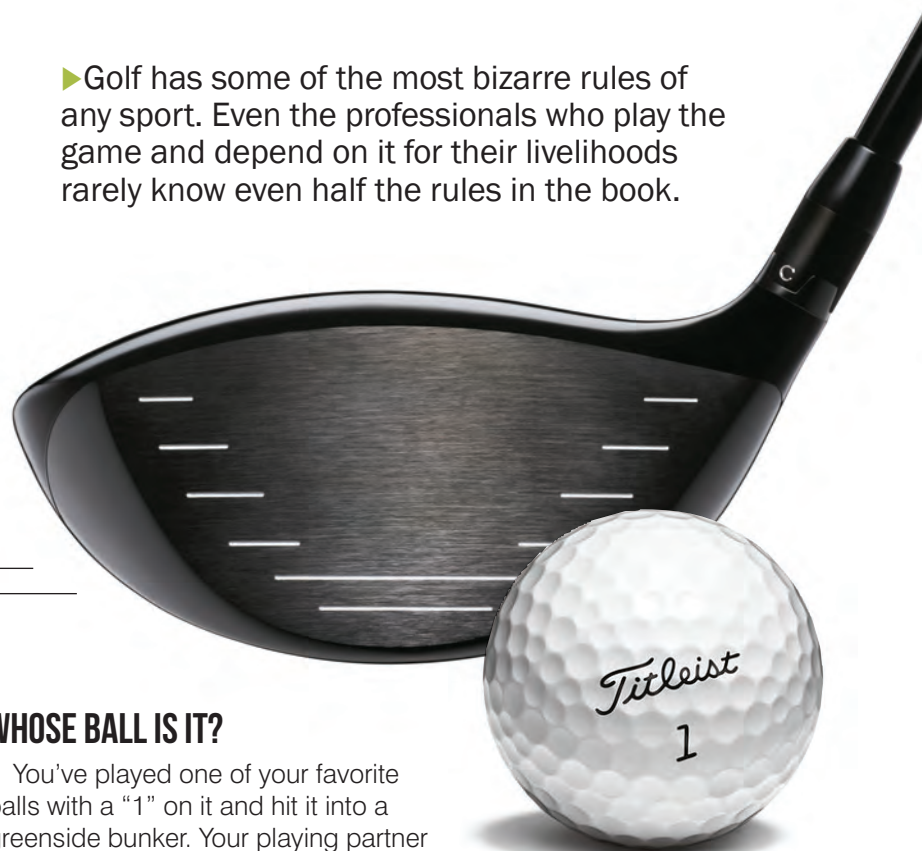

If you opt to move the pine cone and play your shot, it will cost you two strokes, according to Rule 13-4/18.5. The rule says you have to play the ball (and the cone) as it lies.

WHOSE BALL IS IT?

You've played one of your favorite balls with a "1" on it and hit it into a greenside bunker. Your playing partner hits his ball to almost the identical spot, and when you get there, you discovered he was playing the same ball with a "1" as well.

Neither one of you put an identifying mark on the ball. What to do?

Rule 12-2 says that both balls are viewed as lost and both players are penalized a stroke and need to go back to play their previous shots.

JUST A BIT OUTSIDE

If you happen to hit your opponent, who is standing out of the way and out of bounds, with your shot, and the ball comes to rest out of bounds, there is no penalty, and you can replay your shot. Don't forget to apologize to the stricken opponent.

A BUNKER UNDER WATER

If you're playing on a rainy day and insist on continuing even when the heavy stuff comes in, you may encounter the bunker that's completely filled with water.

The only relief a player may take is to move the ball within the bunker to where there is less water.

The only way to drop the ball outside the bunker is to take a penalty stroke, keeping the point where the ball lay directly between the hole and where the ball is dropped.

REFEREES

The impact of a ref's call could be the difference between the cheers of victory, or crushing defeat. "We don't just watch the game, we have certain responsibilities as to what part of the game we're watching and responsible for," said David Leyton, who calls that the "mechanics of officiating." He has refereed varsity and junior varsity football since 1998.

If his name sounds familiar, it's because Leyton is the Genesee County Prosecutor and he can be seen often refereeing Fenton football games.

Believe it or not, being the county's "top cop," and a referee have many parallels. "Both involve rules, exceptions to rules, and both involve discretion," he said.

That, and people skills — he's already used to parents yelling at referees from the stands. "They're invested in the game, and we get used to that," he said. They paid their $5 and if they carry on, that's their business."

When dealing with coaches, Leyton said it takes a calm communication style to decelerate tense situations between him and a coach. Often, they just want an explanation about a call, and it's up to the ref to have the answer.

Compared to his elected county job though, refereeing is a source of stress relief. "It's a lot of fun, you make life-long friends, and you're giving back to the community in a way that makes you feel good about things."

"There's a lot I get out of it. I love it. I have the best seat in the house, too."

From A-Z... BENEFITS & CHARACTERISTICS OF FRUITS and VEGETABLES

S is for Spinach

By Yvonne Stegall • ystegall@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Part 11 of an ongoing series

Whether you like spinach or not, it is good for you. It's not the only vegetable that starts with S though. We've found a few more and even a couple fruits!

Fruits and vegetables have numerous healthy benefits, and the aim of these articles is to share some of those benefits with our readers. This is not a comprehensive list, but it's a good place to start.

STRAWBERRY

Like all berries, strawberries are full of free radical and disease fighting antioxidants. Not only are they great for you, but they taste delicious and they are a very versatile little fruit.

Strawberries are probably one of the easiest fruits to introduce into your diet. They make a great topping for cereal, oatmeal and yogurt. They are great in smoothies and juices. You can also top meat dishes with them or add them to your salad for a sweet treat.

SWEET POTATO

This orange root vegetable resembles a potato, but it has so much more than a potato has. It's orange, so it's a great source of beta-carotene. It's also an excellent source of vitamin A. Sweet potatoes can make a delicious replacement for potatoes in many dishes, from mashed sweet potatoes to sweet potato fries.

SPINACH

There was a reason Popeye loved his spinach — it is a powerful leafy green vegetable, full of many minerals and antioxidants. Without naming them all, this little green leaf is packed with iron, vitamin K and even calcium. It's great for your blood, your eyes and your whole body.

Even if you don't like cooked spinach, you can still enjoy this leafy vegetable fresh in salads or added to smoothies. It also makes a wonderful pizza topping.

SQUASH

There are many different squash varieties and different ways to eat them. Butternut squash is one of the most common. Acorn squash is wonderful with some sugar and butter and baked in the oven. Spaghetti squash can be baked up and used as a healthy alternative to spaghetti noodles. Vitamin A and potassium, while not the only good things in squash, are two of the most potent vitamins and minerals they harbor.

STAR FRUIT

Star fruit resembles a five-pointed star, which is likely where its name came from. It is a tropical fruit found in Southeast Asia. Star fruit is rich in vitamin C. Star fruit is great fresh or cooked. Add them to salads or find a great Thai recipe that calls for them.

SHALLOTS

Shallots, like onions and garlic, are another member of the Allium family. They have even more vitamins, minerals and antioxidants than onions, even though they are much smaller. Shallots can replace onions in recipes, and they are much milder in flavor.

Empty Bowls set for April 18

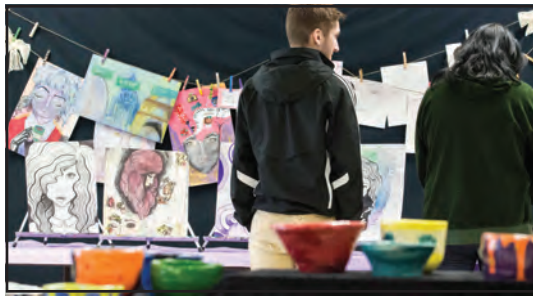

►Annual fundraiser featuring soup, bread and hand-crafted bowls provides meals for local kids

What's better than a bowl of delicious soup? A bowl of delicious soup served in a beautiful handcrafted bowl.

On Saturday, April 18, The Laundry and CRUST will be partnering with Linden High School's art department for the third consecutive year to present Empty Bowls.

Guests who purchase a bowl crafted by a high school student can enjoy soup and bread donated by the Fenton restaurant and bakery. All of the proceeds will go to providing summer food packages for local school-age children.

Bowls are $15 each and the event runs from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at Linden High School.

Linden High School art students displayed and sold their handcrafted bowls at last year's Empty Bowls event.

About Empty Bowls

Empty Bowls was founded by Lisa Blackburn and art teacher John Hartom in 1990, when they joined a drive to raise charitable funds in their Michigan community. This charitable event gives artists and art students a way to make a personal difference. Empty Bowls events are organized by local potters and artists organizations, churches, community service organizations and schools all over the U.S. and Canada.

ANNIVERSARY

HEALYS CELEBRATE 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Douglas and Karen Healy of Fenton have celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary on March 5. Healy, and the former Karen Smith of Flint, were married at the Farnamwood Presbyterian Church in Flint on March 5, 1965. They have 4 children: Todd of Rochester Hills, Scott (Gina) of Indian River, Kelli (Christopher) Byam of Fenton and Barry of Fenton. They also have seven grandchildren. They celebrated by going on a Caribbean cruise in February and on March 15, a dinner at the Willow Tree Restaurant in West Branch. Family and friends were in attendance.

Jake Pheasant, 17, of Linden landed this 40-inch pike ice fishing on Lobdell Lake on March 15 with a little plastic fishing pole on a tiny jig and wax worm. The fight to reel in this monster 15-pound fish lasted for over an hour. Jake and his three friends also caught a mess of huge crappie, the biggest measuring in at 14 inches, it was definitely a fishing adventure to remember.

Divorce makes family reunion awkward

DEAR AMY: My brother and his wife of 20 years divorced recently. My brother is now dating someone else. My son is graduating from high school and we invited this now-divorced aunt to attend. My brother says he's not coming to our party because his ex-wife is. We do not live close to each other and my mother, who is in poor health, planned to have a family reunion at this graduation get-together. My brother gets along fine with his ex-wife, as do the rest of us. I can only assume his girlfriend is causing the drama. I am disgusted that the situation has come to this and very disappointed in my brother. Any ideas or suggestions?

ASK Amy

BY AMY DICKINSON

AMY DICKINSON

— Very Disappointed

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Your brother does not get to dictate or manipulate your choice over whom you invite to a family party. You should respond, "If you choose not to attend this graduation and reunion I (along with other family members) will be very disappointed, but I can't make your decisions for you. I hope you'll rethink this choice, because we would genuinely love to see you." If your brother is being manipulated by his girlfriend, then your neutral, calm and clear response will serve as a positive example for him to follow. He'd be wise to pay attention.

No quick fix for belly fat

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am an old man (84) with a middle-age paunch (5 feet, 7 inches tall and weigh 200 pounds) who needs to fit into a suit with pants an inch too tight in time for a wedding in a few weeks. About how many pounds do I need to lose to fit into them? Is there any formula for converting waist inches to pounds? And are there exercises or other means to focus the weight loss on belly fat?

— Anon.

The fat in the omentum (an apron-shaped structure inside the abdomen) is metabolically active and often is the first place where fat is gained or lost. Moreover, that fat is the most likely to increase risk of heart disease. So losing weight around your middle is a good way of improving overall health, especially if you have more inches there than you'd like. Often people start a healthy diet and exercise program and find that the waist size decreases but their weight stays the same. That may be because muscle is much heavier than fat, and the increase in muscle mass makes up for the loss of fat. More muscle is good for you; less body fat is good for you. Weight is an imperfect measure. Liposuction can remove fat from around your waist, but a healthy diet and regular exercise will make you feel better and quite possibly live longer.

ANSWER: I am afraid there's no formula. Further, I have to tell you that weight doesn't always come off where we want it to, and specific exercises aren't going to make the fat come off in those locations. The good news is that for most people, especially men, the first 10 pounds or so to come off usually comes from the middle.

PAW'S CORNER

Springtime dangers

Q DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Yesterday, I took my dog "Chip" for a walk without his booties or sweater, because we finally had a day that was somewhat warm. However, when he ran over to a melting snow pile beside the sidewalk, he cut his front paw on a piece of metal that was jutting out of the snow. He's doing OK after an emergency trip to the vet. Can you warn readers that even if winter is ending, there are still dangers out there for pets? — Gavin

A DEAR BARRETT: Absolutely! Early spring presents a whole new set of hazards for pets outdoors, so they should never be unsupervised — even in a fenced yard. Debris that surfaces from under melting snow, such as Chip encountered, is one hazard. Pets also may try to chew on or ingest debris. Snow piles, particularly plow piles, often have tempting garbage interspersed throughout. New plant growth is another danger: Winter winds and weather can bring seedlings from a variety of plants into your yard. Some can be poisonous to pets. Keep dogs and cats away from weeds or sprouting plants and remove unfamiliar or unwanted plants before they take deeper root.

QUICK & EASY

shrimp scampi

Prep Time: 10 mins	Cook Time: 5 minutes	Total Time: 15 minutes	Serves: 4 Servings

Recipe from: simplyrecipes.com

Ingredients

- 1 lb. large (16-20 count) raw shrimp, shelled and de-veined, (if you want, keep the tail on for an attractive presentation)
- 2 T. olive oil
- 2-3 T. butter
- Salt
- 3-4 garlic cloves, slivered, or 1 Tbsp minced garlic
- 1/4 to 1/2 t. red pepper flakes (less or more to taste)
- 1/2 C. white wine
- 2 T. finely chopped parsley
- Freshly ground black pepper to taste
- 1 T. lemon juice

Directions

1. Heat a sauté pan on high heat then reduce to medium high heat. Swirl the butter and olive oil into the pan. After the butter melts it will foam up a bit then subside. If using unsalted butter, sprinkle a little salt in the pan. Stir in the slivered garlic and red pepper flakes.
2. Sauté the garlic for just a minute, until it begins to brown at the edges, then add the shrimp. Add the wine and stir to coat the shrimp with the sauce of butter, oil, and wine. Move the shrimp so they are in an even layer in the pan. Increase the heat to high and boil the wine for two to three minutes.
3. Stir the shrimp and arrange them so that you turn them over to cook on the other side. Continue to cook on high heat for another minute.
4. Remove the pan from the heat. Sprinkle the shrimp with parsley, lemon juice, and black pepper, and toss to combine. Serve as is, or with crusty bread, over pasta, or over rice.
