A 'MARVEL'-OUS LINEUP OF SUMMER MOVIES

■ Three of this summer's top movies feature action greats

By Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Action hero favorites will dominate the silver screen this summer as three of Marvel Comics' greatest are featured.

"Avengers: Age of Ultron," rated PG-13, was released on May 1 and remains a popular pick for this summer.

According to rottentomatoes.com, the story begins when Tony Stark jumpstarts a dormant peacekeeping program, and things go awry and Earth's mightiest heroes, including Iron Man, Captain America, Thor, The Incredible Hulk, Black Widow and Hawkeye, are put to the ultimate test as they battle to save the planet from destruction at the hands of the villainous Ultron.

Critics say the "Exuberant and eye-popping, Avengers: Age of Ultron serves as an overstuffed but mostly satisfying sequel, reuniting its predecessor's unwieldy cast with a few new additions and a worthy foe.

"Ant Man," which has not yet been rated, opens in theaters on July 17. The next evolution of the Marvel Cinematic Universe brings a founding member of The Avengers to the big screen for the first time. Armed with the astonishing ability to shrink in scale but increase in strength, master thief Scott Lang must embrace his inner-hero and help his mentor,

"The Girl on the Train," by Paula Hawkins is currently No. 1 on the New York Times Bestseller List. This book is Hawkins' first thriller, having worked as a journalist for 15 years before trying her hand at fiction.

Hawkins' character, Rachel, takes the same London commuter train every morning. As the train rattles down the track, it flashes past a stretch of suburban homes and stops at the signal that allows Rachel to

The Corydon is not your standard mirror-image duplex. In fact, it takes a bit of study to see what's going on with the floor plan. Here's how it shakes down. The plan is designed for construction on a corner lot, or a wide lot with both front and side access. Front porches are not next to each other, and garages are well-separated. This gives each unit a large measure of privacy.

Vehicle City Tacos serves customers in Flint, where it mainly operates. The taco truck will start having a spot at the Flint Farmers Market every Saturday.

Linden grad's taco truck appeals to all tastes and cultures

■ Vehicle City Tacos will be at Gus Macker in Linden June 27-28

By Hannah Ball

hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

One taco truck is supporting local farmers and people's taste buds with tacos to match the diverse community.

Vehicle City Tacos, owned by Linden High School graduate Danny Moilanen, aims to change people's perceptions of what a taco is.

"A lot of people have a preconceived notion of what a taco is, and then we get an opportunity to surprise them," Moilanen said.

"It's fun to help people expand horizons."

Vehicle City Tacos, operating mainly in Flint, makes different, gourmet tacos like ones with barbeque pulled pork to sweet potato.

Moilanen's favorite is The Clucker; it's a fried chicken taco, with seasoned beer batter, Colby jack cheese, pico de gallo, spicy southwest sour cream sauce, cilantro, with locally grown sweet pea microgreens.

Moilanen likes making food that defies expectations. The tacos match the diverse culture, with customers ranging from students to people of different ethnicities. "That's what I love about Flint. It's such a diverse and vibrant community," he said.

Moilanen is passionate about supporting local farms. Starting this weekend, Vehicle City Tacos will have a place at the Flint Farmers Market every Saturday for the rest of the summer.

"I think a big problem with society is we're really disconnected from knowing where our food comes," he said. Food often travels hundreds of miles to get from a farm to a home. They work with a number of different vendors at the Flint Farmers Market and buy directly from local places, like the Flint River Farm.

Moilanen thinks the food is better with locally grown ingredients and people have "more peace of mind actually knowing where the food is coming from."

Flint has experienced an increase in community gardens, which Moilanen supports.

People often think running a food truck is easy, Moilanen said, but that's not true. "There are all sorts of things you don't know until you actually run a food truck. Water is a challenge," Moilanen said. The business relies on generators and they have longer hours than people think.

"A lot of people think it looks easier," he said.

Acquiring food also depends on seasonal availability. Location can also be an issue because the business is mobile.

He said people will call to find the truck's location. Preparing for an event takes six hours.

The business officially started last year in July, but the idea was conceived a few years ago. They received a grant from the Michigan Economic Development Corporation to start the taco truck. Since they've opened, there hasn't been a shortage of people asking them to cater events.

Vehicle City Tacos Events

- Vehicle City Tacos has catered events like music festivals and will be at the Loudwire concert in Flint on June 13.
- They're catering the Flint Art Fair on June 20-21.
- Their tacos will be available at the 3-on-3 Gus Macker basketball tournament in Linden June 27-28.

Woman wakes from coma after receiving prayer quilt

■ Heritage Hills Church has made over 1,003 prayer quilts in 10 years

By Hannah Ball

hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Linda Saylor of Heritage Hills Church firmly believes in the power of prayer, especially after she heard that a 55-year-old woman woke up from a coma after receiving the church's 1,003rd prayer quilt Wednesday, May 20.

"It's not about the quilt, it's about the prayers that are in the quilt," she said.

The 55-year-old woman, a Wyandotte resident, went to Henry Ford Hospital last week because she thought she had kidney stones. "She had a really high fever. She had some kind of an infection. We heard about her on Monday and then on Wednesday, she got her quilt. All of a sudden she just came out of her coma," Saylor said. The doctor asked the woman questions and she knew who she was. The hospital is still doing tests to figure out the cause of the coma.

"We thought she was gonna die. That's why we immediately got a quilt to her," Saylor said.

Saylor is a part of the Quilt Ministry of Heritage Hills Church, a group that makes prayer quilts for people going through tough times.

The group is working to set up a system for people to request quilts. The church has been making them for about 10 years. Members of the congregation tie knots on the quilt and say a prayer.

"People just really treasure them. They're just so happy and so pleased to get them," she said.

Church history

The church, formerly Haller's Corner, burned down in 1998 when Heritage Hills was first established. "Two teenagers just decided to come over and burn it," Saylor said. "It was just when everything was being finished. It was so devastating."

A note was delivered to the church that said, "Rebuild the church," along with a check.

The church aims to serve the community with the building by having town hall meetings and mom-to-mom sales.

Senior Pastor Tony Chick was associate pastor when the fire burned it down. "It was a shock to say the least," he said. "You look at it and think 'well this is gonna be a setback, but we got to push back and get through it.'"

He said it took three weeks to get everything going again and "It was pretty spectacular to see the community come together like it did."

Chick became senior pastor this past July at Heritage Hills, the church he started attending when he was 23. He's been in ministry for the past 20 years and a pastor at a church in Flushing before returning to the tri-county area.

Church changes

"We're kind of re-inventing ourselves," Chick said. "It's still a country church. We're targeting more of the 18-48 age group."

Among the changes to the church, they repainted and renovated the building with the help of Steven's Furniture and Twice New Consignments.

The church has all new leadership. "They're people who have been around but are very innovative and contemporary," Chick added. They also hired their first youth pastor, Jeavon Dack.

"I'm in blue jeans every Sunday," he said. "It really opens the door up for me to minister to the younger crowd."

Art class christens new classroom in renovated Fenton Community and Cultural Center

By Hannah Ball

hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Fenton — An array of paintbrushes, colorful paints, drawings and buckets of water were set out for the first class in the new Art Classroom of the Fenton Community and Cultural Center.

Art teacher Denise Willing-Booher told the class "You want to get your brush wet, but not too wet." Local art enthusiasts in the room followed suit.

This class, a multi-generational watercolor class hosted by the Lakes Area Arts Council on Thursday, May 28, was the first class held in the classroom since the Fenton Community and Cultural Center was renovated. The room is modern and cool, walls full of paintings done by Willing-Booher.

The youngest in the class, Hannah Franks, 9, who attended the class with her grandmother, Susan Jarrett, started painting rocks at age 3. She's a member of the Lakes Area Arts Council. Her favorite thing about art is "being creative," she said, and it's evident she knows her stuff. Willing-Booher asked the class about what colors primary colors form when combined. Hannah knew all of them.

Also in the class was Mallory Schoendorff, 10, who loves to paint, draw, and sketch. It doesn't matter what she's drawing, she said, "as long as it's hard." She frequently draws faces.

"I just really like it because I'm really good at it," Mallory said.

Rachelle McCord, 20, with Willing-Booher taught the class a few watercoloring techniques, including a graduated wash. She's been in the Lakes Area Arts Council for about 20 years, but has been very active the past five years. The council is a Fenton-based non-profit art organization that promotes art and culture in the south lakes community. She said the multi-generational class put everyone on the same level because they were trying something new.

"I do think it helps for everyone to have their own perspective and experiences that they bring to the table. When you are in a class like mine where you create on your own merit and not copy me, you see each individual's style and expression in their art come out," Willing-Booher said.

Renovations to the building include two art and cultural classrooms, an upstairs gallery, a new elevator, restorations to flooring, and handicap accessibility.

Making a move this year?

■ Here are 10 tips to help you navigate this exciting transition

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Mike and Crystal Hiler recently made a move from a starter home in Tyrone Township to a larger family home in Mundy Township. "We needed more square footage of living space," said Crystal, who now lives with her family in the same school district where she teaches, at Lake Fenton Schools.

SUMMARY

■ Make your move pleasant and positive by following these tips from the Michigan Moving Association.

Her best moving advice?

"Before you begin packing, start to purge items," she said. "Start collecting moving boxes early from local grocery stores.

Renting a large moving truck and filling it will save you many trips back and forth. Start packing shoes, clothes and items that are infrequently used first. Most importantly, label all boxes with the room they need to go to for easy unpacking."

Coincidentally, Crystal's sister Angela is also making a residential move this weekend, joining thousands of Michigan families who will be changing residences during the busy moving months of summer. While spring starts to gear up for peak moving time, summer is really the busiest time of year, especially when kids are out of school.

With the excitement of a new neighborhood, school transitions and new friendships, come the challenges of the move itself. These 10 tips from the Michigan Movers Association will help you navigate the task of managing your move.

TIP #1 - Eliminate unwanted items

METRO CREATIVE GRAPHICS

There are many things that can make an upcoming move go smoothly — like packing ahead of time or have a moving sale.

Now's the time to get rid of unneeded clothes, appliances, tools, furniture and other don't-wants. Don't pay to have these unnecessary items moved, only to throw them out later.

TIP #2 - Start packing way in advance

You will be amazed at how many items you've accumulated over the years. Pack non-essential items early to ease last-minute stress. When packing, mark your boxes with colored tape, stickers or a felt pen to indicate to which room the items should go at your new home.

"Whenever I list a home, I advise the seller to start packing a closet, room or drawers that aren't used very often," said Kim Rinks, a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Professionals in Fenton. "Then make a list of items to keep, donate and throw away. Pack it all up and color coordinate the boxes to be moved to different rooms. Then store them in your garage or basement."

TIP #3 - Move your own valuable items

Expensive jewelry, artwork, antiques, collections of cards, stamps, coins, etc. may best be left in your own hands. While any mover would pay for a broken item, the item may be irreplaceable or the value difficult to assess. Items with sentimental or one-of-a-kind value may be best left under your control, in your own vehicle.

TIP #4 - Get multiple moving quotes

All movers in Michigan are required to be licensed through the Michigan Public Service Commission. Invite each mover from which you request a bid to visit your home, prepare an inventory of items to be moved and provide you with a written estimate of the cost.

TIP #5 - Consider hiring a 'ProMover'

A ProMover is a designation through the Michigan Movers Association, which recognizes Michigan movers for expertise in intrastate and local moves. You will see the ProMover logo next to every mover who has earned it, on the MMA website, www.mimovers.org.

TIP #6 - Verify authority of chosen mover

Go online at www.mimovers.org to determine if the company you have selected is a member of the Michigan Movers Association and as a result, has the authority to make moves in Michigan of over 40 miles one way (an intrastate move). You can contact the MMA directly at (517) 327-9207 to verify the credentials of any Michigan mover.

TIP #7 - Know how pricing works

Moves of fewer than 40 miles one-way within the state are called "local moves." They aren't regulated regarding price, so quotes you get may vary significantly. Pricing is based on the time needed to load, move and then unload your items, based on two to three men for X hours at X dollars per hour.

Building a home?

■ Check out these newest design trends to create your own dream living spaces

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

If you're in the market for a new home or plan to remodel your own, you may already know a few features and amenities that are on your "must have" list for your new living space.

Here are a few new design features to add to your "dream list," from trends that Patrick Widing of Patrick Widing Custom Homes in Fenton sees in his professional work as a custom builder in the tri-county area.

Trend #1 - Sizing your home

Bigger isn't always better when it comes to designing today's homes. "People are really thinking about the size of their homes and the size of individual rooms, rather than just building another 'McMansion'," said Widing. "A home may still be big, but it's sized appropriately to the client's needs. It's not built big, just to be big."

Trend #2 - Screened-in porches

These have been huge in popularity in the last five years, according to Widing. "We're seeing them used as an extension of the home for late spring, summer and early fall. Homeowners put fireplaces and TVs out there and use this space while enjoying the outdoors."

Trend #3 - Outdoor kitchens

This trend continues to be popular, according to Widing. Many appliance manufacturers are catching on and making sure their models are also outdoor-rated.

Trend #4 - Smart homes

"Technology is really coming into the home," said Widing. "Each individual TV, speakers, thermostat, electronics, alarms, lighting, garage doors, door bells, etc. used to be a stand-alone item. Now they're all integrated into one easy-to-use system that can be controlled from anywhere. It's a real convenience for the homeowner and also adds security and safety to the home."

Trend #5 - Centered bathtubs

While walk-in showers continue to be a popular bath design feature, tubs are making a comeback in a new way. Today's tubs are free-form standing structures, "almost a piece of artwork," said Widing.

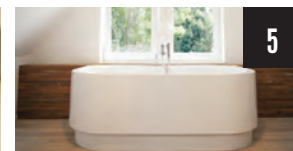

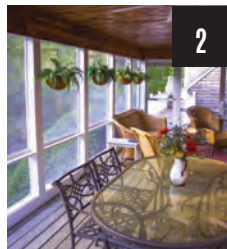

Trend #6 - Built-in aquariums

Large, built-in aquariums that are

Intrastate moves are those more than 40 miles one-way within the state. All movers are required to use a tariff to compute the fee, based on weight of the items to be moved, distance traveled, plus a per-mile fuel surcharge. To compute the fee yourself, use the Tariff Calculator under the "Tariff" tab on the site, www.mimovers.org.

TIP #8 - Beware of scams

Some individuals will advertise on Craigslist or other Internet media, offering cheap or discount moves. They are often not licensed, insured or legitimate. They may offer a low price, and then hold your items, demanding a higher payment before unloading. If three movers give you similar prices for an intrastate move but a fourth quote offers a price that's half those amounts, be suspicious. They either missed some items to be moved or are operating "outside the tariff," which is illegal. Also, if you are moving over 40 miles within Michigan and are given an hourly quote that also is illegal. An intrastate quote must be based on weight, distance and the fuel charge.

TIP #9 - On moving day...

The big day is here and you'll be able to accomplish a lot more if you move pets beforehand so they won't be confused or scared by the activity. If you can take young children to a friend or family member's home, that will help in avoiding injury or distraction. If several days before your move you find that you can't get everything packed, contact your mover so they can send packers to help meet the moving day deadline.

TIP #10 - If there is problem, call MMA

Should something break during the move, inform your mover immediately. Some insurance is included in the moving agreement, but replacement of some items may need to be discussed and negotiated. For any concerns with service, pricing or other issues, contact the MMA to facilitate a solution.

integrated into the design of the home are becoming popular features in some homes, according to Widing.

Trend #7 - Blending natural with contemporary elements

"Blending steel, wood, masonry and glass adds a great look and feel to a home," said Widing. "That's definitely a trend that continues to grow."

Trend #8 - Wine cellars and bars

"We continue to build these at the homeowner's request," said Widing. "These are popular home features."

Wine displays can go under the stairs, or full rooms may be dedicated to wine and liquors. Wet-bar nooks are added to create a relaxing and enjoyable way to entertain at home.

Other trends mentioned by the Builders & Remodelers Association of Mid-Michigan

- White-on-white kitchens. For example, white cabinets topped with white countertops, finished off with white back splashes and white trim.
- Double-island kitchens. Often one island is used for cooking and food prep, while the other is used for serving food and dining.
- Get-away rooms that create an "escape." It may be a room with a view or a game room, designed to encourage relaxation, family time or hobbies.
- Indoor-outdoor living that offers space with a great view while soaking in the surroundings.
- Smaller entryways. Well-designed entries that take up a smaller amount of space are replacing huge entryways.
- Flex spaces that can evolve their purposes over time, such as a den, office, child's room, etc.
- Non-car centric design. While cars, driveways and garages are part of American life, sidewalks, bike paths and community gathering spaces are beginning to take their places.

New design trends in the kitchen and bath

■ Your home's most important rooms offer many options in design and amenities

Your kitchen will likely always be the gathering space in your home, but how it is designed and finished now comes with new options and features.

"The look of the whole kitchen is definitely a mix, a little more industrial in style and design, using different textures, from stainless steel to woods, metals, glass and paint colors," said Michelle Robins, owner/kitchen designer at Linden Kitchen & Bath.

She adds that islands are still very popular, complementing cabinetry finishes in either a dark walnut, a painted color or the popular white-on-white theme.

"Quartz is our number one countertop material, as it is maintenance-free compared to granite," she said. "You can still get that marble look, but with durability."

High-end appliances to complement your new kitchen are evolving with new features as well. "Wolf has brought out a new steam oven, which is a big thing right now. Sub-Zero has added an air purification system inside (its new refrigerator model) to eliminate the problem of foods emitting gasses that cause spoilage."

In spa-like bathrooms, Robins still sees a lot of interest in walk-in showers, but tubs are gaining steam with new design materials like hammered metal and ceramic tile. "We do a lot of air tubs, too," she said. "They're extremely therapeutic."

Even shower faucets are going high-tech with music that can be synced with the iPhone to play one's play list of music.

Parents want daughter's boyfriend to put a ring on it

DEAR AMY:
My 29-year-old daughter has been seeing her 37-year-old boyfriend (neither has ever been married) for just over one year. They seem to talk as if they are serious, and it sounds like this relationship will eventually lead to marriage. However, there has been no talk of a ring, proposal, etc., on his part. When I ask my daughter about this, she is very clear that I should stay out of their business. It seems these days, girls date for five, 10 years — one of my daughter's friends is going on 15 years with no plans of marriage! Call us old-fashioned, but why does this “dating” stuff have to go on so long? Both of these people have good-paying jobs and they seem to care very deeply about each other. Should my husband and I step in and ask this guy what his future intentions are toward our daughter?

— Concerned Parents

ASK Amy

BY AMY DICKINSON

AMY DICKINSON

DEAR LOST:
Yes, you should definitely sit this 37-year-old man down and query him about his private life and plans for the future. Perhaps you could also bring along some brochures for engagement rings you would like to see on your daughter's finger. And don't forget to pressure this couple about having grandchildren! Truly, you are meddling and being disrespectful. Given your behavior, you shouldn't be surprised if your daughter never gets married. This sort of pressure will affect her behavior in ways that aren't good for any of you. Back off. Way off.

Sugar is a no-brainer

DEAR DR. ROACH:
Medical advice is to reduce sugar consumption. Does this apply to 100 percent fruit juices, fresh fruit, sweetened cereal products or other fruit-sweetened products? — R.B.

by fruit juice or fruit sugar; this still counts as added sugar. I do make an exception for fruits, as the body processes natural sugars from fruit differently. You can try this out at home by eating four medium-size oranges or drinking its equivalent in an 8-ounce (250 ml) glass of orange juice. I think you will find a big difference in how full you feel. Although reducing sugar is critical for diabetics and is very important for anyone trying to lose weight, even for people with no sugar or weight problems, the evidence is accumulating that eating too much added sugar increases future risk for heart disease and diabetes. Diabetes has become epidemic in North America. The booklet on it provides insight on its diagnosis and treatment.

ANSWER:

I think it makes sense to limit sugar intake, as most North Americans take in remarkably large quantities of sugar. This week, while giving a lecture at the medical school, I noticed that the carbonated sodas served contained 45 grams of added sugar per can. That's more than the American Heart Association recommends in a day (no more than 25 grams of added sugar per day for women, 40 grams a day for men)! Be careful of products that claim to be sweetened

PAW'S CORNER

Summer Flea Control

Q DEAR PAW'S CORNER:
Temperatures are really warming up now, and with it, I know, will come the annual onslaught of fleas on my dog, cat and all over my house. Is there any way I can get rid of fleas for good? -- Charlotte

A DEAR CHARLOTTE:
Flea infestations are incredibly annoying and tough to beat --even when you think fleas have been eradicated, they often come back. Winter temperatures often send these pests into dormancy or at least reduce their activity, but they return with a vengeance in spring and summer. A pre-emptive attack could make a big difference in this summer's flea wars. While you may not notice adult fleas on your pets just yet, flea eggs or larvae may be present on their fur or throughout the house. Start by talking to the veterinarian about the best treatment for your pets. Many owners swear by one-month topical treatments that are applied to the back of a dog or cat's neck, but others are leery due to potentially serious side effects. Consider alternatives if you're not sure. Next, treat your home for fleas -- using a carpet and upholstery treatment designed for both adult fleas and their eggs. You'll want to tackle not just the carpet and dusty corners of the house, but the furniture and any linens, such as curtains, that aren't frequently cleaned. Keep pets out of rooms until the treatment you're using has been vacuumed up or washed away. Through the summer, brush your pets' coats daily, checking for fleas. Vacuum and dust at least once per week.

Mexican Style Street Corn

Prep Time 20 mins Cook Time 10 mins Total Time 30 mins

Ingredients

- 6 fresh corn cobs with all the husk in tact
- 1 lime
- ½ cup Kewpie Japanese mayonnaise
- 1 t Spanish smoked paprika
- 1 t chili powder, plus more for sprinkling
- 4 ounces Cotija cheese, finely grated
- ½ cup chopped cilantro

Instructions

- Pull the corn husks back from each cob and remove silk, leaving the corn husks attached to the corn. Pull off a small ribbon of the husk and tie the husks back to form a handle.
- Fill a sink full of water and soak the tied corn for at least half an hour. This - helps prevent the husks from burning when they are on the grill.

- While the corn is soaking, grate and juice the lime and mix it with mayonnaise, smoked paprika and chili powder. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve.
- Clean and lightly oil your grill grates and heat to medium-high. Dry the corn and grill until charred on all sides, taking care to keep the husks away from the hottest part of the grill, about 10 minutes.
- When the corn is cooked, remove any lingering silk and generously rub each cob down with the lime-mayo-spice mixture. Sprinkle each cob with the grated Cotija cheese, chopped cilantro, salt and if you prefer, a little extra chili powder. Serve hot with plenty of napkins
