FOR WINNING WEEKENDS

“No matter what weather we see out there, it just makes it worth another really good story.”

Ken Brown
Sailor

■ Retired teacher competes in back-to-back Chicago and Port Huron to Mackinac races

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

The first time Ken Brown sailed as a crew member in the Port Huron to Mackinac race 36 years ago, he became so seasick along with the rest of the crew that they had to withdraw from the race without finishing.

That one event spurred on a determination so strong that this Fenton Township sailor and retired Linden High School teacher has completed 37 Port Huron to Mackinac and Chicago to Mackinac races since that time.

This week, Brown is in Chicago preparing for his 18th Chicago Yacht Club Race to Mackinac, which sets sail this Saturday, July 11 off Navy Pier and ends Tuesday, July 14. As soon as this race is done, he'll meet the boat delivery team at Port Huron to get ready for the Bell's Beer Bayview Mackinac Race that sets sail on Saturday, July 18 from Port Huron.

Brown is the Person-in-Charge of a 10-person crew in a 40-foot sloop named "Perversion," as they navigate 333 miles in the world's longest freshwater race from Chicago to Mackinac, then the 279 miles from Port Huron to Mackinac a week later. While not the owner of the boat, Brown takes full ownership and responsibility of the vessel on race weekends.

"We don't use the terms 'skipper' or 'captain,'" said Brown, 67. "I'm the one who gets the boat ready for the race, organizes the right people and then does everything during the race to make sure it goes well."

"Perversion" is either the largest of the small boats or the smallest of the large boats, depending on how you look at it, according to Brown. "The big boats are about 65 to 70 feet."

Brown says he prefers the Chicago race to the Port Huron race. "The Chicago race isn't nearly as wild and crazy as

HAVE YOU NOTICED that restaurants don't want large groups of people any more? They won't take reservations. They don't even want you to call ahead. They expect you to wait an hour for enough available tables. Well, we are tired of waiting. You have lost our business.

MY FAMILY LOVES attending the parade each year. We just wish we had more floats to look at. It seems most businesses that choose to enter the parade, just slap their business name on the side of their vehicle. Can we make a float mandatory? Maybe a contest?

COME ON, REALLY? Blue cans to save cost, improve recycling and reduce global warming? This government decision demonstrates a total lack of consideration for the elderly and people without large garages. Will resources be provided to haul them to the road this winter?

I THINK THAT everyone who doesn't want these blue trash cans destroying their view should place them in the yards of Fenton Township board members.

I JUST TURNED the TV on and I see Obama was briefed on the glitch at the New York Stock Exchange. Can someone brief him that the market will fix itself? Thank you.

TO THE PERSON who stated that we have a pacifist President. Try telling that to Osama bin Laden, Muammar Gaddafi or the more than 2,500 individuals confirmed to have been killed via drone strikes. Thousands of our enemies have been killed on Obama's watch. Get a clue.

OBAMA AND THE Democrats are very weak on immigration and, along with the city of San Francisco, are responsible for the death of girl who was killed by an illegal immigrant. This rests solely on their shoulders because of their weak policies and inaction.

SO, LET'S IMAGINE the next high profile murderer posts a photo on his Facebook page of himself or herself proudly showing a rainbow flag. Will we outlaw those? Or a POW flag? Or a Canadian flag? The inmates are running the asylum, which is America.

I HAVE SOLD all my stocks. The U.S. is going the way of Greece under our current leadership, both Republican and Democrat.

I WOULD LIKE to thank the three men from the Fenton Fire Department and the Livingston County EMS who responded to my 911 call on Friday, July 3. The men were true professionals who showed compassion during my traumatic situation

PLEASE FENTON TOWNSHIP, do something about Wiggins Road just off North Long Lake Road. It is a terrible hazard to drivers. The road is disappearing — patching doesn't get it!

THE CONFEDERATE FLAG is a source of pride to most? Pride in what? Southern heritage is slang for white supremacy. The Washington Redskins are losing their battle and logic to keep their flag also. Why? Because history and truth matter.

WAS IN THE (local business) parking lot on July 5, twisting my ankle, stepping on fireworks cartridges. The new America — always expecting someone else to clean up your mess.

THE MAN RESIGNED, but they want to keep him as a consultant and pay him $80,000. Are you serious? I say pack your stuff and get out — effective immediately.

DOES DISPLAYING THE Confederate flag make you a racist? Maybe not. It does make you ignorant to the history because leaders of the Confederacy led millions into death to keep slavery as a state right.

12 TIPS TO HELP YOU SURVIVE A SHARK ATTACK

► Helpful tips to help you out if you ever get up close and personal with a shark

QUICKFACTS

On average, Sharks can swim

1.5 MPH

There exists a record of a small Blue Shark about 2 feet in length which was found to swim steadily against a current at 17.7 miles per hour and was reported to achieve 43 miles per hour in short bursts.

Average Jumping Height

Heightened Sense of Smell

Sharks have an astounding sense of smell, so powerful that they can detect a single drop of blood in an Olympic-sized pool.

A shark's length can range from 6 inches to 60 feet.

11 TONS

The amount of food Great White sharks eat each year.

Don't play dead. This does nothing but make the shark think it has won. The shark will then commence chomping. Clearly, this is not what you want it to do. Also, if you've been attacked, get away as fast as you possibly can.

Don't wear shiny jewelry if you're going to be swimming near sharks, as they may mistake it for fish scales.

The zigzagging shark is looking for angles, so if you can back up against a reef, a piling, or some other kind of outcropping, do so. This reduces the number of angles the shark has to come at you.

Animals swim erratically, attracting the attention of sharks. Don't let pets stay in the water for long periods of time.

If you're menstruating, stick to the sand. Blood attracts sharks. Think of it as a great excuse to stay out of the water and work on your tan!

Creatures of the sea know much more about the waters than you ever will. So, if turtles and fish start freaking out, there's probably a reason. If you witness erratic behavior from other animals, there might be a very large, toothy beast approaching. Take a cue from those who have seen it before and take off.

Always swim with a buddy, and don't swim at dusk or at night. Sharks don't have the best vision, so when it's dark, you look like dinner to them.

Three species of shark are responsible for most human attacks: great white, tiger, and bull sharks. A hammerhead might freak you out, but it probably won't bite you.

Use sharp, quick, and repeated jabs. If you swing your arm like you're trying to deliver an overhand punch, you'll only create drag and slow your arm down.

Don't pee in the water. We've all done it. But if you're in an area where sharks are prevalent, better to hold your pee until you can make it ashore. Sharks might pick up on the scent of your fragrant urine and swim over to check things out.

If you don't want to tangle with a shark, don't go where sharks hang out. If you plan to vacation near the ocean, contact local tourism offices and ask for shark stats in the area.

Punching a shark in the nose or poking its eyes won't help to fend it off. Better to aim for the gills — or, if your aim is off, the much bigger target of the snout. Most sharks don't want to work that hard for their food and will swim away.

The movie Open Water is based on a true story. Tom and Eileen Lonergan disappeared off the Great Barrier Reef after a diving company accidentally left them behind in shark-infested waters.

Chapple Electric lights up tri-county since 1978

■ Local company is behind many residential, commercial and municipal projects in state

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

You may not have heard of them, but you definitely see and experience their work each time you flip a switch, use an appliance or warm up or cool down with air or heat.

The professional team of Chapple Electric in Fenton Township is behind some of mid-Michigan's largest projects, as well as everyday electrical use in area homes and businesses.

Chapple Electric's professional expertise is seen in Linden's business district, following their streetscape project last year. They have also worked for a number of other municipalities, including Fenton and Holly. Offering decorative lighting, outdoor lighting, induction lighting, lamp ballasts repairs, retrofitting and complete electrical installs, they're well equipped with boom trucks and equipment to handle any size of electrical job.

"We also do switches, plugs, lights, etc. for residential work," said Kyle Chapple, operations manager and son of the company founder, Charlie Chapple. "We wear many different hats."

Chapple Electric is also proud to be an authorized Generac dealer, installing generators from small residential units up to huge 100-kilowatt units for large commercial and industrial applications.

"We have a large service area, as far west as Kalamazoo, south to metro Detroit and north up to Bay City," said Kyle.

Charlie Chapple founded the company in 1978 while working at Grand Blanc Stamping Grounds as an electrician, doing work "on the side."

Since that time, Chapple Electric has grown into a full-service electrical company, performing residential, commercial and industrial services. They employ 15 people, including Kyle and his wife, Alisa, Sales Manager Joe Clark and a team of master electricians and apprentices.

"Since Kyle came on board 15 years ago, he's done an outstanding job of growing the business and managing our team," said Charlie.

Upgrading electrical and lighting systems to the newest technology is now a part of Chapple Electric's daily work. "Our job is to help usher everyone into the new era of lighting with energy-efficient LEDs," said Kyle. "We're all about customer service."

How one Fenton woman copes with grief

■ Late councilman's widow shares her story of being alone for first time

By Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Cherie Smith of Fenton lost her husband, Ben, a former member of the Fenton City Council, to cancer on Aug. 24, 2014. He was 61 years old.

Ben was diagnosed with COPD in March 2014, and two months later with Stage 4 lung cancer. This cancer was a result of radiation treatment he received for Hodgkin's disease in 1984, when he was 32 years old.

"When the oncologist gave us the diagnosis, Ben calmly looked at the doctor and said, 'It gave me 30 more good years,'" said Cherie. "It was such a Ben mannerism, calm and accepting."

On the drive home, Cherie said she asked Ben what he wanted to do. He decided to fight.

"Ben didn't want to die and I didn't want him to," she said. "We were ourselves only children with no kids and for 46 years we'd relied on and loved each other. We overcame many challenges, worked as a team and were a well-oiled machine. Now, one of the parts was severely damaged. We knew it would be a tough battle, but we forged ahead with treatment."

Cherie said Ben never wanted to consider hospice care because he knew that would be giving in and giving up.

"I asked Ben if he was afraid. He looked at me with those big blue eyes and said, 'afraid?' 'Afraid to die?' No I'm not afraid to die, I'm afraid to suffer."

After his health had failed even more and there was no chance of remission or getting well, Cherie had to make the decision to send him to hospice.

"We lied to him and said he was going to a rehab unit to try and gain his strength back so he could come home for our 42nd anniversary in two weeks," Cherie said. "The hospice experience was a nightmare. It was everything he feared."

Four days later, Ben died.

"As I was lying in his hospice bed with him and he was holding my hand under the covers as he had every night for nearly 42 years, he died," Cherie said. "At that moment, I felt as if he'd passed from my arms to the arms of Jesus."

Cherie said she later drove herself home in a stupor. "I walked into the dark, empty house and went upstairs thinking this is the first time in my whole life that I've ever been truly alone," said Cherie.

Cherie said neighbors and friends were supportive, but they were dealing with their own grief over Ben's quick illness and death as well.

"At first friends would come over often or call. As the weeks and months passed, surprisingly the closest friends weren't there," she said. "What I called my fringe friends, those I wasn't as close to, were and are the ones who still check on me and ask me to do things with them. This experience has taught me that you need to rely on your own strength because ultimately you are all you have."

Cherie did see a grief counselor at the hospital. "It helped, but I have a long way to go yet. It seems harder with no close family. I have a few cousins and they have been supportive and loving as always. But it's just me now."

In November, Cherie thought she should go through Ben's clothing and start to donate them. "But some of his other clothing is still hanging on his side

Grief support

Sharp Funeral Homes in Fenton offers several grief resources via their website at sharpfuneralhomes.com. Sharp Funeral Homes also offer grief support group meetings locally on the first Wednesday of every month, from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at the Fenton Chapel, 1000 Silver Lake Road.

of the walk-in closet," she said. "I know I should get rid of them, but I can't. I'm not ready. I still go in every morning to choose my clothes and I touch his favorite Harris Tweed sport coat that he wore to City Council so often, one that I'd surprised him with one Christmas. And I reach up on the shelf above and run my hand along an Irish tweed sweater that he wore all the time. It makes me cry, but it's also soothing in an odd way."

"I am a strong person in many ways, but I also realize that much of my strength came from Ben," said Cherie. He was always so proud of my inner strength and determination and that is what propelled me to excel. I have aspirations for my future and I am slowly getting back on track."

Cherie is very active in the community and does a lot of volunteer work. "I love my hometown of Fenton and want to stay active in my community," she said. "Ben loved it and so do I. Fenton has helped with my healing process and for that I am very grateful."

It has been almost a year since Ben's death and Cherie says some days are better than others. "I laugh, cry and cope. I'm grateful to friends and neighbors who have helped me," she said. "I'm sad that those who used to drop by when I was married don't anymore. Maybe they feel awkward or don't know what to say."

Does time heal all wounds?

"I'm not sure any of us are ever totally healed by time," said Cherie. "I do know that we figure it out, move forward and carry on. My hope is to become my own person and to live out my life being happy again, serving my community and being productive. Kindness doesn't cost anything. I hope to keep being kind and sharing whatever I can of myself with others."

Sailor Ken Brown is at the helm of the "J. Hawker" in a race this past June at the Windsor Yacht Club in Ontario, Canada.

the Black River (in Port Huron) on Boat Night. It's a down wind race, so it's a little faster. There's absolutely nothing more beautiful than a sunrise sail along the Sleeping Bear Sand Dunes, as seen from the water side."

The unpredictable weather and fickle winds on Lake Michigan make the Chicago race a true test of one's sailing skills. "It's never the same twice," said Brown. "The wind, the weather. We all remember it for a lifetime."
Brown starting sailing in the Chicago race in 1995 and has missed only one year, in 2011. "I didn't race that year, because of the way both race dates fell. They alternate which race starts first every year."
It turned out that 2011 was a deadly year for the Chicago event. "There were over 100-knot winds and one boat was knocked over," said Brown. "Two people died in that accident."
Brown himself has raced in events in Chicago and Port Huron with cold fronts, winds at 50- to 70-knots and 8- to 10-foot waves. "It's not so much fear that takes over, but the challenge of it," said Brown. "At that point, you're not in race mode, you're in survival mode. Usually, we're just wet and very cold."
Brown has earned several titles in his long sailing career, including a second-place win in the Chicago race in 1996 and two awards in 2012. "We won our class in the Port Huron race and finished third place overall," he said.

His sailing prowess has evolved over many decades, from when he first learned to sail, as a brand new teacher in Flushing schools. He rented a home on Lake Shannon and bought a little boat to enjoy on the lake. "I had the tiller of the boat in one hand and a book about sailing in the other," recalled Brown.
When he went to work at the University of Michigan at the Children's Psychiatric Hospital, he joined the U of M Sailing Club in 1975 and really honed his skills. "It took me four years to get a connection to someone with a bigger boat," said Brown. "I sold my little boat to help pay for my share of the charter in my first sailing race in Port Huron in 1979."
Brown is actually part of an elite group of sailors who have sailed in both races over so many years. "There are fewer than 100 people who have done 25 on each side," he said. "This will be my 18th in Chicago and my 20th in Port Huron. Each year, the race seems to get a little longer," he added, with a smile.

City pays $26,000 to complete Dibbleville sidewalk project. Completion of the Dibbleville improvement project continues to plague the city. The council voted Monday to accept $26,000 in bids to complete the project. Chris Repke, DVM, has purchased the longtime Fenton practice Pointe Animal Clinic of Gary Labar, DVM, and renamed it Pointe Animal Hospital.

New owner, new name at Pointe Animal Hospital

■ Chris Repke, DVM, buys practice of retiring veterinarian Dr. Gary Labar

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Chris Repke, DVM, always knew from the time he was a child that he wanted to be a veterinarian.

Following an 11-year career at the VCA White Lake Animal Hospital, Repke has purchased the practice of Gary Labar, DVM in Fenton, who has now retired. The new practice has been re-named Pointe Animal Hospital.

“I’m really excited about the opportunity to take over here at Pointe from Dr. Labar.”

Chris Repke, DVM
New owner of
Pointe Animal Hospital

Growing up with a golden retriever, Repke enjoys animals and is pleased to have a career that allows him to spend his professional hours caring for small companion animals — from dogs and cats to smaller “pocket” animals like guinea pigs, gerbils, hamsters, etc.

“I’m really excited about the opportunity to take over here at Pointe from Dr. Labar,” said Repke, a 2003 graduate of the Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine. “He built up a great clinic and clientele over the past 32 years.”

Repke and his staff, which includes long-time office manager Lisa Holzwarth, continue the reputable services for which Pointe Animal Clinic has always been known for — from routine physicals to vaccines, heartworm checks, spays and neuters, dental cleanings, lump removals, orthopedic surgery and knee repairs. Certified Master Groomer Jillian Arndt continues to offer her services on-site.

Repke also enjoys working with pets with difficult temperaments or that are afraid to visit a vet clinic. “I sympathize with them,” he said. “We try to make it as easy on the patient and owner as possible.”

From A-Z... Vitamins and Supplements

FINAL PART OF AN ONGOING SERIES

Resources: WebMD and rxlist.com

By Yvonne Stegall • news@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

You've spent the last few weeks learning all about some of the different vitamins and supplements that there are that can help keep you healthy. Maybe you've taken some time to try them, or maybe you're still not sure.

It's always best to get your vitamins and nutrients from natural sources, however, sometimes that just isn't possible.

Here are the final six supplements you are going to learn about through this series.

Tea Tree

Tea tree is a treatment that is used on the external parts of the body, but even so, it does good things for the inside.

Tea tree is usually in oil form. It works to fight acne and psoriasis. It helps heal cuts. It's great for almost anything that ails the skin. From head to toe, you can add tea tree oil to shampoos and lotions for numerous health benefits.

Valerian

Valerian is created from a root, and is usually found in tea form. It is most commonly used to help with sleep issues. If you suffer from insomnia or other problems with sleep, some valerian tea may be the answer you need. However, since it can cause drowsiness, don't drink it before driving or working.

Vervain

Vervain is also frequently referred to as Verbena. Verbena works great for respiratory issues, including asthma. It also helps with many other illnesses, such as depression, heart issues, and even chest pain. Vervain is generally taken as a pill or tea.

Whey protein

Whey protein is getting a bad rap these days, mainly because of the "cow's milk isn't for people" argument. Whatever the negative, there are positives since whey is a complete protein containing nine amino acids. It's popular with body builders, but it can be a great asset to your diet if you need more protein.

Witch hazel

Witch hazel is made from the leaf, bark, and twigs of the witch hazel plant and is often found in a liquid form that is great for the skin, for toning and cleansing. Witch hazel isn't just for the skin though. It can be taken internally for diarrhea.

Zinc

Zinc is a metal, a trace element which people only need a small amount of for health. Normally people take zinc, or suck on zinc lozenges, during the winter to help fight off a cold faster. Zinc is also great for eye health, and it can help fight off diarrhea.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Jesse Green, her brother, Donald Christian, her sister, Bonnie Christian, and her sister-in-law, Fairy Christian. When she underwent quadruple bypass surgery in 1995 she was given 1-5 years to live. Her loved ones wish to thank her doctor, Pankaj Vakharia, M.D. of Holly, for helping her beat the prediction by many good years. Mrs. Green is survived by her children, Rodney Green of Fenton, Deborah Phillipi, wife of Richard Phillipi, of Fenton, Dr. Sandra Green Landau, wife of Stephen Landau, of Northville; and her adored grandsons Richard Phillipi and Andrew Phillipi of New York City. She is also survived by 11 brothers and sisters, including her frequent card partner Eva Irwin of Gaines. Her best friend was Laurel Lee Chapman of Fenton. Lillie Green is deeply missed by all those who knew and loved her. Arrangements under the direction of Sharp Funeral Homes, Fenton Chapel, 1000 Silver Lake Road, Fenton.

Girlfriend wants boyfriend to open up about his life

DEAR AMY: I have been dating my boyfriend for a year and a half. He is a good man but is very private and does not often talk about his family or feelings. I respect this because I tend to be the same way. The one thing that has been causing me anxiety is the fact that his mother died about six years ago, and he absolutely never talks about it. He did mention that she passed when we first started dating, and we never spoke of it again. I want to be able to ask questions and know more about her, but I also want to respect his privacy. I have had dreams about her, and really want to know more about the woman who raised my wonderful boyfriend. Should I say something to him, or wait for him to open up when he feels ready? — Clueless

DEAR CLUELESS: Asking challenging questions respectfully — and receiving honest answers — is one true path to intimacy. There is nothing “wrong” with being shy, private or simply unsure, but honesty is the primary and absolute relationship requirement. Honesty should trump your hesitation. This is a tough topic — for both of you — but your curiosity is completely understandable. Tell him exactly what you said in your question to me: “I want to respect your privacy, but I also really want to know more about the woman who raised you. Can you tell me about her?”

Fibromyalgia is a real disease

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 56-year-old female. I recently have been having terrible pain in my joints. It is so bad at night that I can’t sleep. Mainly the pain is in my neck, ribs, elbows, knees and wrists. My finger joints have hurt for years. I recently went to a rheumatologist because I had an elevated rheumatoid factor (it wasn’t extremely high). I was told I have arthritis and a high risk for rheumatoid arthritis. I was then diagnosed with fibromyalgia. I was shocked and embarrassed! I had always thought that fibro was not a real disease. I feel bad and tired almost every day, and I am so sick of it! — S.S.

ANSWER: There is no doubt that there are a large number of people with chronic pain in the muscles and soft tissues who meet the diagnostic tests for fibromyalgia, which are all based on history and exam — there’s no blood test or X-ray for fibromyalgia, but that doesn’t mean it isn’t real. The current thinking is that fibromyalgia is due to alterations in the perception of pain by the central nervous system. The most common symptom is aching in the body, usually in the muscles and joints. Fatigue and poor-quality sleep also are nearly universal in fibromyalgia. Depression is highly prevalent in people with fibromyalgia, and in my opinion, the depression is more likely caused by the chronic pain and fatigue than the other way around. Tricyclic antidepressants are the most common initial treatment of fibromyalgia, because they affect the way pain is processed. They are usually started at far, far below the effective dose for depression. Feeling a sense of control over the pain, continuing to work and exercising more are all associated with a better outcome in fibromyalgia.
