The one that 'got away'

■ Area hunters talk about the deer they didn't get

By Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Fishermen aren't the only ones with a story to tell about the one that got away. Local hunters have similar stories, which they have agreed to share.

Tony Mayhew, 51, of Springfield Township is an IT manager for Fiat Chrysler Automobiles. He has been hunting for 37 years and has a doozy to tell.

Spencer Bundy is a 17-year-old junior at Fenton High School. He lives in Fenton Township with his parents, Jeff and Tracy (Cattaneo) Bundy, and brother, Parker.

The following is Part I of Mayhew's story. Part II will be published in the Sunday, Nov. 15 edition of the Tri-County Times. Bundy's story about "Curly Horn" follows.

Mayhew began, "It was in my early college years when my best friend, Troy, invited me to go deer hunting with him, his dad and one of his dad's friends over the long Thanksgiving holiday. I was very excited to go and packed for the long drive to the Upper Peninsula.

"We packed four sizable deer hunters, each with a week's worth of clothes, hunting gear, rifles, etc., into a Mustang hatchback and headed for Menominee County.

"We left after Troy's dad got out of work on the day before Thanksgiving and drove for several hours (that seemed like days), crammed into the small backseat of the hatchback with gear and duffels packed around us.

"We arrived at his great uncle's camp on state land somewhere in the dark of the night and moved quickly into the small camper. Troy and I rolled out sleeping bags on the floor and were soon fast asleep.

"We were awakened by a rather gruff Uncle Everett telling us to get up and get ready for breakfast before going into the woods. Uncle Everett was in his 80s at the time, dressed from head to foot in the classic white thermal underwear, but complimented it well with his .45 colt in a holster on his hip. He coughed a bit and got the coffee and eggs going. This was around 5 a.m. Thanksgiving morning.

"Soon, the small camper smelled of fresh brewed coffee, toast, bacon and mildewing wool socks (Everett had been hunting the day before and the foot of snow had gotten into his boots.

"After breakfast, we all piled into layers of thermal hunting clothes, boots and gathered our necessities, including a knife, compass, rope, hankie, etc., and prepared to step out into the pristine wilderness. There to greet us was a fresh few inches of snow on top of the foot that was there when we arrived a few hours earlier.

"I unzipped the soft case and took my 30-30 scoped Marlin rifle out of the case, and waited for the others to get ready. It was decided that Troy and his dad would go to the left and Bob and I would go the right. Everett would stay and keep guard over the camp while making his famous salmon sandwiches for lunch.

"Uncle Everett was at the time between his fourth and fifth wife, lived in Alaska in the short summer months, but did not like to stay in such cold climates in the winter, so he spent it in Alpena.

"While there is no definite designation on any Michigan map to show where 'Up North' starts, for most of us in the lower peninsula, it starts someplace south of Alpena. But no one ever dared tell Uncle Everett that and he was content to spend his winters here in Michigan's 'banana belt.'

"He told a story about living in Alaska and how his third wife used to get upset with him for not being as much of a 'clean nut' as she was. She actually got angry with him once when he thought the kitchen window was open and spit his tobacco juice out, only to find that she had cleaned and polished the pane so well that he could not see the glass.

"This led to a discussion on how this much cleaning had most likely led to the demise of the infamous Do-do and other birds due to their flying into windows and dying. Or was it the Passenger Pigeon? Tough to remember those details now. That was one-and-a-half wives ago for Uncle Everett. To this day, I believe that marriage counselors should have made a case study of Uncle Everett, just to improve their effectiveness.

"But I digress. Bob and I headed off to the right with flashlights on and trudged through the foot and a half of virgin snow. Actually, a trick that I learned from my own dad was to let the other guy break trail and follow quietly in his footsteps.

"Neither of us had ever been in these woods before, so we had checked the compass and tried to stay on course in the low light. Eventually Bob suggested that we were far enough and that it would be shooting light soon so I should find a good place to hunker down in that area and he would proceed a little further along.

"He told me to give a shout if I needed him and that I could always follow his tracks to find him if needed. I assured him that I could do that, as I was good at following tracks in fresh snow (especially his).

"So there I was, hunkered down on a stump in the middle of the woods in the Upper Peninsula, excited about the prospects of the hunt. It was the first morning of the hunt and probably my best chance to see something big.

"The minutes dragged on and on waiting for shooting light. When it finally got light enough to see, I had serious concerns and reservations about my spot. I could not see that far, due to brush and other trees, etc. That little annoying voice in the back of my head started asking if this was the best spot. That over that little rise ahead is probably nirvana.

"So as doubt crept in, I decided to move along a few hundred yards to see what was over there and find a new spot. Over the rise, I found a nice opening surrounded by pine trees and a perfect stump for a chair on the edge of it. This is it. So I took up residence there and waited for that big buck to show up ..."

Spencer Bundy tells this story about 'CURLY HORN'

"It was a week before archery season in the fall of 2013, when I went to pull the trail camera by my hunting spot and there he was, 'Curly Horn.' I had seen him one time in 2012 when he was just a 4-point. Now he had grown to a nice 6-point.

"The horn on his left side curled down along his cheek. This was the deer I would be after. On opening night in 2013, I watched a few doe and a couple of yearling in the field, but Curly Horn didn't show up. I first saw that yearling one week into the season. He came out, but I couldn't get a shot. When I went to draw back on him, he must have heard the bow and he ran off. I saw him two or three times on trail cam, but he seemed to know when I was in the blind.

"The year 2013 came and went and I shot an 8-point at the end of gun season, but Curly Horn was on my mind. Two weeks before the 2014 season I pulled the trail camera again, and there he was. Curly Horn had grown to a beautiful 8-point buck with the left horn growing down his cheek again.

"I hunted hard that year, passing on several doe and a couple small bucks, praying to see Curly Horn again. Two weeks into the season, just before dark, I saw a buck coming in. The right side had four points, but I couldn't see the horns on the left side. Could it be Curly Horn? My heart started to pound out of my chest. He stepped out and I took the shot, making a perfect shot.

"When I walked up to him I grabbed his right horn, turned his head, only to see it wasn't Curly Horn. It was a buck that had broken his left antler. I was happy to harvest a beautiful animal, but deep down inside I felt empty. A week later, when I checked my trail camera, he was there the day after I shot the one-horned deer. He became noticeably absent after that.

I was telling my parents about it, when my mom mentioned she had seen a dead deer on the side of the road that only had one horn showing.

Curly Horn was gone. Even though I know Curly Horn is gone, I still hold my breath when I check my trail cam, hoping to see him again."

CLARIFICATION ON METERS

In the article, "City meter readers to get new devices," published in the Sunday, Nov. 1 Weekend Times edition, incorrect information provided in a city memo was reported. It said one of the current meters does not work properly causing "misreads" and lost information. It should have said one of the meters does not work properly causing "missed reads" and lost information. What the meter reader read was accurate. The problem was when it reads the meter it may not hold the information in the unit.

facts about smelling

By Hannah Ball
hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792
Source: fithsense.org.uk, popsugar.com

Little kids like to pick it, dogs like to lick it, and life wouldn't be the same without it. Your nose and olfactory (smelling) sense play an important part in human and animal biology. The information of different scents is picked up by your nose, but your brain actually decodes that information and decides what it is you're smelling.

WHAT'S IN A SMELL?

Have you ever argued with a friend over what something smells like? That's perfectly normal. Everyone smells things differently because humans have scent blind spots, or specific odors people may be blind to. No two people smell things the same way. However, there are certain smells everyone finds repulsive as a survival mechanism. The smell of smoke or rotten food alerts humans to potential danger.

REPRODUCTION

Hormones give off a certain smell, which is why your instincts can tell you when someone is scared, happy, or sexually aroused. The more emotionally close you are to someone, the more you're tuned into their hormones. Mating with someone who has a different major histocompatibility complexes (MHC) actually produces offspring with harder immune systems.

HEIGHTENED SENSE OF SMELL DURING PREGNANCY A MYTH?

Pregnant women report having a hypersensitive olfactory system, but some research suggests the effect of pregnancy on smell is small and inconsistent. However, many pregnant women report being repulsed by smells they usually like, and vice versa. Other studies suggest that women become more sensitive to the smells around them because of hormone changes. This can lead to odd cravings like pickles and strawberry ice cream.

ANIMALS VS HUMAN

Animals have much better olfactory senses than humans because they have more olfactory organs. Humans have 5 million olfactory receptors. Dogs have 220 million, according to Animal Planet.

MEMORY AND EMOTION

Humans are more likely to remember something if there's a scent attached to it. A scent can be a trigger causing someone to remember something they thought they forgot. Smell is also closely tied to emotions, which is why perfume is so popular. Certain scents make people happy.

WOMEN HAVE BETTER SENSE OF SMELL

Researchers from the University of California, University of Sao Paulo, and the Albert Einstein Hospital found that women are born with a better sense of smell. Their studies showed that, on average, women have 43 percent more cells in their olfactory bulbs in their brain than men. This is why women can often smell carbon monoxide while men cannot.

NO SMELL

The loss of sense of smell, either temporary or permanent, is called anosmia and affects an estimated two million Americans. The common cold can give someone temporary anosmia, while damage to your brain or nerves can cause permanent anosmia. It's considered a disability by many scientists. People with anosmia may not be able to smell flatulence or garbage, but they also can't "smell the roses."

Kromer more than doubled her original goal of 5,000 items. Fenton and Linden schools, along with a few area businesses, helped donate to beat last year's total of 1,407 items. ## 'PURPLE HEART VILLAGE' MONUMENT DEDICATION SET FOR NOV. 11 IN HOLLY

The dedication of the Purple Heart Monument depicting Holly as a Purple Heart Village will take place at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 11, Veterans Day. The monument, currently under wraps, is located in front of the township offices near the flagpoles on Saginaw Street in downtown Holly. The public is invited to attend. Light refreshments will be available after the ceremony at Holly VFW Post 5587, 201 Airport Road, Holly. On June 23, members of the Holly VFW Post 5587, some of whom belong to Chapter 180 of the Military Order of the Purple Heart, were honored when the Holly Village Council agreed to issue an official proclamation designating the community a Purple Heart Village. Holly is now one of only a few villages and cities in Oakland County to obtain this status, according to VFW member Art Ingraham. "The significance of this effort is to serve as a reminder to all citizens who visit or reside in the village of Holly that we, as a community, have not forgotten the ultimate sacrifice that our past, current, and future veterans have made, and will continue to make to protect our country," said Ingraham.

HONORING OUR VETERANS

Veterans Day observances kick off with Sunday concert

■ Fenton United Methodist Church hosts 'Let Freedom Ring,' followed by multiple observances on Nov. 11

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Veterans Day is observed annually on Nov. 11 to honor veterans and mark the anniversary of the end of World War I, which was formally ended at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918, when the Armistice with Germany went into effect.

Originally observed as Armistice Day, it was officially renamed Veterans Day in 1954.

Veterans Day observances in the tri-county area will kick off this Sunday, Nov. 8 at 7 p.m. at Fenton United Methodist Church for a patriotic concert, "Let Freedom Ring."

Life after SERVING THIS COUNTRY

■ Two veterans speak about how serving has affected their lives

By Hannah Ball

hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

"Welcome home, veteran." Those are words 69-year-old Vietnam veteran Gerald "Hawk" Hawkins never heard when he returned home from the war.

You may thank a veteran on Veterans Day for going overseas and fighting for our country, but sometimes the fighting doesn't stop once they're back on American soil.

For Hawkins, being a Vietnam veteran has showed him how ungrateful America is to the people who served.

"We, the unwilling, led by the unknowing return to the ungrateful and that it's in a nutshell," he said.

Hawkins joined the Marine Corps July 2, 1965 and went to Vietnam March 1 1966. He spent 393 days in Vietnam, coming home May 1, 1967. Now a Swartz Creek resident, he has a wife and two adult children.

Along with the bad stigmas of being a Vietnam veteran, he said navigating the system to claim veteran entitlements is a challenge. "We have to fight for those entitlements and if we don't have the right people listening to us, it doesn't happen," he said.

One problem, according to Hawkins, is how congressmen only need to be in office for a few years. He said, "They get a free ride for the rest of their lives."

"No matter how hard we fought for our country we are coming home to the ungrateful," he said. He added that when they came home, "There was no relief, except within ourselves. By honoring ourselves we honor our country."

Miracle Boxes bring a little 'home' to troops

Local Cub Scout troop will package boxes mid-month

By Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Spending the holidays overseas, away from family and friends, is a sad time for our troops.

But thanks to the efforts of youngsters like Cub Scout Pack 211, out of Hyatt Elementary School in Linden, a little bit of home will be shipped to troops overseas very soon.

According to Cubmaster Claudine Hildreth, the scouts will be once again working with Desert Angels, Inc. to collect supplies and fill "Miracle Boxes" to be sent to troops.

The Cub Scouts and their families will handle the packing on Nov. 19, Hildreth said. "At this time, we are asking people in the community to consider donating items to be used in the boxes," she said.

Suggested items include homemade Christmas cookies, hot chocolate packets, snack foods, socks, personal items (razors, deodorant, soap, etc.), candies, oatmeal packets, dried fruit, beef jerky and scarves, Hildreth said.

Some fun items are great, too, she said. Troops enjoy getting magazines, books, games and decorations for the holidays.

"We also love to include hand-drawn pictures from kids, cards of thanks and encouragement," she added.

Hildreth said Desert Angels, Inc. is always in need of financial donations to cover the cost of shipping the packages. Each box costs $15 to ship.

"If people have the names and addresses of friends or family members who are serving, we would love to collect these," Hildreth said. "Our goal is to be sure that all the service men and women from the area have a special package from their hometown sent to them."

All donations (goods and financial) may be brought to the Linden City Hall, 132 East Broad St., during office hours.

Anyone looking to supply the contact information of someone needing a package, should contact Desert Angels, Inc. at (248) 736-6403, email Office@TheDesertAngel.org or visit their website at thedesertangel.org/mailbag for more information.

About Desert Angels, Inc.

Desert Angels, Inc. is a non-profit organization out of Auburn Hills that collects, packs and mails items needed by troops stationed overseas. They call these boxes "Miracle Boxes." ## Local 'heroes' save money when buying or selling a home

Unique program, Homes for Heroes, provides rebates and discounts for community 'heroes'

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

If you're in the military or are a veteran, teacher, firefighter, police officer or healthcare worker, you're a "hero" to Brian Will and Jim Shadduck.

As a Realtor for RE/MAX Platinum in Fenton and fire chief of the Linden Fire Department, Will is proud to offer real estate rebates and discounts for "heroes" who are buying or selling a home — through Homes for Heroes.

With Veterans Day coming up on Wednesday, Nov. 11, Will wants to reach out to those in military service, past or present, who may benefit from this program.

Homes for Heroes is a community-minded company with the goal of providing savings to local "heroes" who provide extraordinary services in their communities every day.

"This program is new to our area," said Will, who handles these real estate discounts for properties in Fenton, Holly, Linden, Grand Blanc and Swartz Creek. "As a firefighter myself, I'm very excited to be able to offer these discounts to both buyers and sellers."

These discounts include 25 percent off Will's sales commission, which goes directly back to the seller as a credit at the closing table. There are additional discounts on lending fees for the buyer's side of the real estate transaction. Those discounts even apply for the local heroes that are looking to refinance, too. In fact, mortgage lender Jim Shadduck, a 10-year local loan officer with Prime Lending, is the one who introduced Will to the program.

"I didn't know Brian at all until I heard about the program," said Rowden, of Fenton, a personal finance teacher at Howell High School. "It was a good selling point for us," he said. "Knowing we could get some of the closing costs back really helped."

Fenton City Police Chief Rick Aro also participated in the Homes for Heroes program for his recent real estate transaction. Aro said, "We did use the program, and appreciate the support by Brian Will and RE/MAX Platinum. It was a win/win for us. They were great to work with and Brian worked tirelessly to get our home sold."

To find out if you qualify for Homes for Heroes, contact Will at (810) 629-5800 (office) or (810) 523-6075 (cell) for more information.

You can also find more information about the program at www.homesforheroes.com. Also, if you have any lending questions contact Jim Shadduck at 810-265-2544 or email jshadduck@primelending.com.

that they often die young or suffer from depression.

"We love our country and our constitution. We fought for it," Hawkins said. "Nobody's gonna give us a thought being a Vietnam vet. A lot of people say 'you're bunch of cry babies.' We're not. We came back to a country full of insults and misfits."

Hawkins retired from the Marine Corps May 31, 1969 and went back to work at General Motors.

For some soldiers the experience is different.

Col. Scott Maker, 52, a Tyrone Township resident, has been a Marine for 30 years next December. He joined the Marine Corps in October 1986 and was on active duty in Iraq from September 2006 to April of 2007.

"I have a greater appreciation for what

SUMMARY

■ Life after serving can mean pride and a greater appreciation for one's country, but bad stigmas and difficulty claiming entitlements.

I've done for the last 29 years and our country," he said. "We can protect democracy and freedom for people around the world."

He lives with his wife, Jennifer, and they have two children Morgan and Collin, who were 13 and 10 when he went on active duty.

"Morgan and Collin were both old enough to know what was going on. You always hear about casualties," he said. "I think they developed a greater appreciation of what it means to put other people above yourself."

Maker said he's been able to use the skills he's learned as a Marine in his daily life, like leadership skills and working on a team. He's president of the Linden Board of Education.

"It's another way I serve my community to make a difference. Being part of a school board has its own challenges," he said.

Because of his involvement with the Marines, he hasn't been able to attend all the school board meetings. He's used Skype to have a presence, but he missed this past Wednesday's meeting because he was at the Naval Station in Great Lakes, Illinois, training with the Aviation Command and Control Team.

"When the National Anthem is playing, and the flag is up at sporting events, it just gives you a little more of a rush of pride," he said. "You've stepped down that line and you didn't know what the outcome was going to be for you. There's a greater appreciation for our country and a greater respect for our fellow servicemen."

...Being a Vietnam veteran has showed him how ungrateful America is to those who served.

NOTICE TO RESIDENTS AND PERSONS OWNING PROPERTY ON OR HAVING ACCESS TO LAKE BRAEMARIN ROSE TOWNSHIP, OAKLAND COUNTY, MICHIGAN

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the Rose Township Board of Trustees will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, November 11, 2015 at 7:00 PM in the Rose Township Hall, 9080 Mason Street, Holly, Michigan.

THE PURPOSE OF THE HEARING is to receive comments on the creation of a special assessment district for the purpose of eradicating aquatic weeds in the waters of Lake Braemar and to maintain the existing impoundment structure and accompanying sluice gate structure in Lake Braemar. The existing special assessment district includes all lakefront properties and properties with deeded lake access on Lake Braemar. A map of the special assessment district is available for inspection in the office of the Rose Township Clerk, 9080 Mason Street, Holly, Michigan during regular business hours from 8:30 AM until 4:30 PM, Monday through Thursday, except holidays.

A petition from 50% or more of the property owners in the district requesting continuation of the special assessment district has been submitted to the Rose Township Board of Trustees. The estimated cost of minimizing noxious weeds, improving water quality and maintaining the dam is $23,000 for the first year. A copy of the cost estimate is available for inspection at the Office of the Rose Township Clerk, 9080 Mason Street, Holly, Michigan.

Property owners may appeal the assessment levy to the Michigan Tax Tribunal if an appearance is made at the hearing at which the special assessment roll is confirmed. Appearance can be made in person or by mail and can be made by an agent for the property owner. The property owner or any person having an interest in the property subject to the proposed special assessments may file a written appeal of the special assessment with the State Tax Tribunal within thirty-five days after confirmation of the special assessment roll if that special assessment was protested at the special assessment roll hearing.

River Glen PLAN 30-223

The River Glen's front facade reflects its name through a harmonious blend of stone and wood. Wooden handrails rim a porch supported by painted wooden posts atop tapered stone bases. Decorative wooden supports accent all three front-facing gables, and gracefully curved trim overarches the windows in each. Entering, you step into a high-ceilinged entry naturally illuminated by a sidelight and transom window.

Grief turns to rage when widow uncovers infidelity

DEAR AMY:

My husband passed away about two months ago. While going through his desk after his death I discovered he was having an affair. I learned that she, too, is married. I stopped grieving immediately and became angry. I want to let the other woman's husband know about this, but my friends and children say I should just let it go. But these two were up to no good. The deeds to our house are missing; my Social Security card is missing. I have a lawyer and I'm doing all that should be done. I want revenge and my question is: Is that so bad? In your opinion, what would be the best thing to do at this point? How would you go about informing the other spouse? — Angry Widow

DEAR WIDOW:

No one can tell you how to grieve, and no one can force you to let something go. But — you may not realize this — anger is very much a part of the grief process. Investigate and replace any missing documents. Make sure your property and bank accounts are all accounted for. In terms of contacting this mistress' husband, you need to ask yourself: "What outcome do I want?" and "What good would this do?" This disclosure would not bring your husband back to life so that you can ruin it for him. It would more likely hurt the husband (and perhaps not the wife). It might not have much of an impact at all. If you search your soul and are absolutely convinced that it would make you feel better to notify this husband of his wife's infidelity, then you should wait two months — circle a date on your calendar. If I were you, I'd handle this in writing. You can draft an email and letter and continue to revise it until it says exactly what you want it to say. Nothing you do will change the past. You've likely heard the aphorism, "Living well is the best revenge." In your case, merely "living" should be all the revenge you need. And in that regard, you've already won. You're here. He's not.

Large teratoma found near heart

DEAR DR. ROACH:

I had a CT scan due to broken ribs from a very recent fall. The scan revealed a large teratoma near my heart. I am 69 and was previously unaware of this formation. No suggestion has been given to me regarding further investigation or treatment of the teratoma. I am assuming it may have been present at birth and does not cause any problem. But now I am wondering if it should be monitored. Can a teratoma grow or migrate in the body? Any information on teratoma will be appreciated. — S.S.

ANSWER:

A teratoma is a type of tumor of germ cells — the cells that become eggs or sperm. They can occur within the testis or ovary, but also can occur outside the gonads. When they do, they usually are found in the midline of the body. A frequent place is the anterior superior mediastinum, in between the lungs and below the breastbone. Teratomas usually are benign tumors, but some types can act like cancers. Your tumor is unlikely to have been there since birth. Nobody knows whether the germ cell that became a teratoma properly went into the gonads during development, or whether the cell left the gonad and then became a tumor. It is clear, however, that men with teratoma outside the gonads are at higher risk for developing testicular cancer later on. Teratomas, being derived from germ cells, are capable of creating any tissue. Teeth and hair are sometimes found inside teratomas. I am very surprised you haven't been recommended for surgical removal. Surgery is usually successful at curing teratoma. They certainly can grow, and occasionally become very large. I would certainly recommend seeing an oncologist (cancer specialist). Thoracic (chest) surgeons operate on this area. It may be that the position is difficult, but a surgeon should still evaluate you, in my opinion.

INSIDE OUT

Growing up can be a bumpy road, and it's no exception for Riley, who is uprooted from her Midwest life when her father starts a new job in San Francisco. Like all of us, Riley is guided by her emotions - Joy, Fear, Anger, Disgust and Sadness. The emotions live in Headquarters, the control center inside Riley's mind. PG, 1 hr. 34 min.

VACATION

Rusty Griswold, the youngest child from 1983's NATIONAL LAMPOON'S VACATION is all grown up with a family of his own and fond childhood memories of a certain family road trip to Walley World. Like his father, Clark, Rusty wants to forge closer bonds with his own family as they set off on their own crazy cross-country jaunt to Walley World. R, 1 hr. 39 min.

2 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
1/2 chopped onion (I used frozen)
1 jalapeño pepper, seeded and diced
1/2 tsp garlic powder
1-1/2 tbsp hot smoked paprika
1 tbsp plus 2 tsp chili powder
1 tbsp ground cumin
1/2 tsp black pepper
1/2 tsp red pepper flakes
2 large boneless, skinless chicken breasts, uncooked
12 oz jar roasted red peppers in water, drained and chopped
15 oz can cannellini beans (or white beans), rinsed and drained
15 oz can kidney beans, rinsed and drained
3 cups chicken stock
28 oz fire-roasted diced tomatoes
1/2 cup barbecue sauce
Shredded cheddar cheese, for topping (optional)
Chopped cilantro, for topping (optional)

INSTRUCTIONS

2. Add red peppers, beans, chicken stock, tomatoes, and barbecue sauce, stirring to combine. Add in uncooked chicken. Cover the pot and cook for 20 minutes or until chicken is cooked through.
