HUNDREDS PARTICIPATE IN THE FREEDOM CENTER’S
FIRST 5K COLOR RUN

Fenton — Hundreds of people eagerly waited at the starting line of the first 5K Color Rave Run at The Freedom Center in Fenton, stretching and jumping around, illuminated in the dark by their neon Yet low Rave shirts.

The start and finish lines were lit, and the street looked like an airplane runway with lights on either side. Everything else was dark.

To the right, an easy downhill looked inviting as a good way to start a 5K. To the left, the road went up and up. Runners looked on with apprehension and wondered if the race would start with a half-mile steep uphill.

The disc jockey told everyone to get ready. People moved closer to the starting line and started music on their phones.

The DJ counted down from 10. Once he got to one, the front-liners took off. See RAVE on 12

The Rave Run at The Freedom Center drew nearly 300 participants Friday night. The 5K color run erupted with hyped-up music with a countdown, and cannons firing colored powder into the air, in addition to volunteers tossing powder by hand.

BAN PLACED ON MEDICAL MARIJUANA DISPENSARIES

Argentine Township passes a one-year ban on medical marijuana dispensaries even though the state already prohibits the businesses. Action was taken due to vague wording in the state law.

ASHES to ASHES

Interesting things to do with cremated remains

By Vera Hogan
v Hogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

With more and more people choosing cremation over burial for their own or loved one’s remains, some are finding creative ways to preserve the ashes.

If not buried in a cemetery plot or columbarium (like a mausoleum only with ashes instead of bodies) in a cemetery - some people choose to purchase a nice urn or other tight-lidded container to safely store their loved one’s ashes at home. It somehow gives them a sense that the deceased is still with them.

Some even choose to bury the ashes at home in the backyard in the flower garden, for example.

Scattering the ashes is very popular, with nearly half of the people who choose cremation choosing to have their ashes scattered in a specific location, a location that meant something to them in life like a favorite vacation spot, for example. Depending on the location requested, advance permission may be required. And some places, like Disneyworld in Florida, prohibit the scattering of ashes over any of its property.

Some of the more unusual, unique ways to handle the ashes from cremated remains include:

- Planting them as a tree

  There are a variety of ways to place your loved one’s ashes in a memorial tree urn. Knowing that the remains of your loved one are being used to nourish the urn. Knowing that the remains of your loved one are being used to nourish the soil can be a great source of comfort. There are a number of choices online to accomplish this. Just Google “memorial tree urn” and learn about all the possibilities.

More choosing to be cremated than buried

Cremations have doubled over past 15 years

By Hannah Ball
hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Burying people after they die has been a tradition for hundreds of thousands of years as a way to return the bodies to earth.

In religion, a proper burial helps ensure people go to heaven. However, more people are choosing cremation over being buried seven feet deep.

Becca Temrowski, co-owner of Temrowski Family Funeral Home and Cremation Services, said, “It’s been on the up for years now.”

In 2013, the cremation rate in the United States was 45.3 percent, according to cremation association.org. That number is expected to rise to 50.6 percent by 2018.

The Temrowski family has owned the funeral home for nine years, and Temrowski said cremation rates have continued to rise.

“Bu t it doesn’t mean that’s a bad thing,” she said. “People still gather even with cremation, that’s what is important. Cremation doesn’t mean you can’t have a visitation and a funeral. Some people still don’t know that.”

In the past 15 years, the cremation rate in the U.S. has nearly doubled. In 1999, only 24.8 percent of people who died were cremated, but in 2014, that number increased to 46.7 percent.

TRI-COUNTY TIMES
Why I love baseball

Here are seven reasons why I — and many, many others — love baseball:

Baseball season signals the end of winter and the beginning of spring—a season of rebirth and new life (birds, fawns and switch-hitters) as well as a clean slate for each team. Opening day is the symbolic beginning of spring and its accompanying innate optimism. Every team is in first place on opening day.

The pace of the game invites reflection between innings, as well as between batters and even pitches. Baseball leaves us time to digest what just happened as well as speculate on what might happen next. The pace of baseball is such that every pitch, play and nuance invites contemplation by the spectator.

No one watches the clock in baseball because there isn’t one. There is no coin flip — the visiting team always goes first. No one watches the clock in baseball. No one watches the clock anywhere in life. In sports, it’s only a game.

Always stay until the end of the game. On June 30, 2014, my friends and I left a Tiger game at Comerica Park in the bottom of the ninth with one out, no one on base and the Tigers down 3-0. Just 20 minutes later, while rolling down I-75, my friends and I listened on the radio as Rajai Davis hit a Super Grand Slam to win the game. A Super Grand Slam is when there are two outs, it’s in the ninth inning, the bases are loaded and you are down three to nothing, and it’s a walk-off home run because you are the home team. I couldn’t find another Tiger who had ever done that. History was made and we missed it.

All players are well known. Yes, baseball is a team sport, but each individual player is highlighted each time they bat, make a defensive play or score a run. And each has a territory that is theirs to defend — in front of tens of thousands of fans. And no sport is more enjoyable on the radio than baseball, where the announcers are often as well known and beloved as the players, such as Ernie Harwell.

Baseball season is a marathon, not a sprint. It’s a long season with a game nearly every day. That means that players have a long season full of opportunities to either shine or shine. Over the course of 162 games, there is ample opportunity to either prove yourself or to redeem yourself. That’s why baseball statistics more accurately depict talent and skill than the stats in any other sport.

Speaking of statistics. Baseball counts anything and everything. It is the most documented sport that exists. For instance. No other sport keeps stats like baseball.

Baseball movies. Some of the best sports movies of all time have been baseball movies. Bull Durham, Pride of the Yankees, For Love of the Game, Eight Men Out, Field Of Dreams, Fear Strikes Out, and best of all, Kevin the Umpire, starring William Bendix — a 1950 classic that you will love!

“Notice that when the game starts they don’t say ‘Work ball.’ They say ‘Play ball!’”

Willie Stargell

MY GRANDMA JUST turned 91. Don’t tell the DDA, they’ll throw her out to make room for a younger, more modern grandma.

FENTON CLAIMS TO want to be like Royal Oak or Milford. Our city government ought to take notice — those two cities don’t tear down anything. The best part of shopping there is the quaintness of those towns. And Holly also.

THOSE SAYING THEY won’t vote for any Republican but their favorite, are essentially giving a vote to Hillary. She is the most untrustful of all the candidates. Her explanation for her record would probably be the same she gave the families of the murdered in Benghazi. What difference at this point does it make? To most Americans it makes all the difference in the world.

I AM ON board with the DDA. I think the old house should be torn down. Vek’s should go, too, it looks out of place. I agree with the post office relocation. Please move the city hall and police station, too.

REMEMBER WHEN ‘The King’ predicted that Trump would bow out of the race? Yet another in a very long line of failed predictions. It’s time for ‘The King’ to retire.

THEY SAY HISTORY repeats itself. In Fenton, it’s happening again. The DDA is destroying history despite what the residents want.

IT’S HILARIOUS to see right-wingers in full freak-out mode over unisex bathroom issues. The ‘80s and early ‘90s culture wars are over. You lost. Grow up.

I LOVE TO sit and dine in Royal Oak, Milford and Holly. The atmosphere is historical and welcoming. There are plenty of nice shops to choose from unlike Fenton. For an upscale women’s store you must go to Holly, Milford, Royal Oak or Brighton.

NOW THAT THE sheriff’s crew has cleaned up all the trash on the freeway, how about we all pitch in and clean up what we can around town and along our roads. And please do not throw trash from your car or leave it loose in the back of the trucks. We can do better. Thanks.

MAYBE THE FENTON Development Authority should change their name to the ‘Fenton Downtown Demolishing Authority.

PORTA POTTIES? It wasn’t a picnic. Clearly, you weren’t there.

SPEAK OUT CALL your congressmen, representatives now. Last fall Fox News reported how lobbyists were writing our laws, then last night 60 Minutes reported on how they were spending 30-40 hours a week raising money and only one to two hours doing their elected job. No wonder we are a mess.

IN THE 2008 election, House Speaker Boehner said, ‘The people have spoken. They know the people have spoken and we have listened.’ Then they turned their backs on us. Now look at them scramble in disbelieve.

PLEASE KEEP ANDREW Heller in the Sunday edition. He is much more relevant to today’s issues than Foster Childs, whom by the way, I never cared for.

IF OUR DEMOCRATIC front-runner wants to hold gun manufacturers responsible for the deaths guns cause, shouldn’t a Secretary of State be held responsible for deaths she caused?

POOR DEMOCRATS, FORCED to support Hillary. If you want real choice and real change, it’s not too late. Come on over, vote Republican. Think about it, Bernie has more in common with Trump than Hillary.

YOU KNOW, I really do appreciate the fact that they graded the roads, but how about a little chloride on them. It’s so horrible that everything I own is buried with dust.

Deadly diagnosis inspires local man to walk

PurpleStride 2016 coming May 14 to raise funds for pancreatic cancer

By Sally Rummel
news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Dave Johnson of Argentine Township began to have back spasms in April 2015, but he didn’t really think much about it.

As a nurse’s aide at Providence Park in Novi, Johnson, 47, attributed the pain to lifting patients in and out of bed during long 12-hour shifts. The spasms became more frequent and excruciating, but he still thought they were work-related until other symptoms caused him to take more serious notice.

Johnson knew there was definitely something wrong when he lost his appetite during his son, Mike’s first communion, last spring. “I was a 250-pound guy,” said Johnson. “All of a sudden, I was feeling full all the time, plus achy and queasy.”

Blood work and a subsequent MRI gave him one of the most difficult cancer diagnoses a person can hear — Stage 4 pancreatic cancer.

Even more painful than the diagnosis itself were the memories it brought back of his wife, Tami’s diagnosis of oral cancer in 2009, which has left her with several permanent disabilities. “I’m taking things day by day,” said Johnson. “I saw my wife go through so much.”

Their son, Mike, was just a toddler at the time, and had to live with another family member for several months while Tami underwent radiation and chemo-therapy, a tracheotomy, tube feeding and other challenges. Today, she’s doing well and spends her time baking at home for local farmers markets through her home business, Tami’s Sweet Treats.

He also remembered the death of his father, Leonard, from prostate cancer in June 1986, just after Johnson had graduated from high school. “It took me years to come to grips with it,” he said. “I look at my own son, Mike, who’s just 8. I just want to be here to play baseball with him and see him graduate from high school.”

Doctors first treated Johnson with radiation, then performed kyphoplasty, a surgery to ease the back spasms caused by the cancer eating away at the vertebrae in his back.
Wife killer’s sentencing delayed

New sentencing date for Erich Wilfinger set for May 4

By Vera Hogan
vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

The family and friends of Marsha (Sargent) Wilfinger have to wait another week before they learn the fate of Erich Wilfinger, who in March pleaded second degree no contest to murdering his wife last year.

Marsha is formerly of Argen- tine Township.

Wilfinger was scheduled to be sentenced on Monday, April 25, but that has been postponed until Wednesday, May 4.

The fact that he was offered a plea deal angered family and friends.

“Erich Wilfinger is a killer and a coward, hiding behind a plea deal so the truth about what he did won’t come out. He wasn’t even man enough to admit his guilt,” said Sally York, former sister-in-law of the victim in a previous interview. “He deserved life without pa-role, and Marsha deserved better justice.”

Wilfinger, 67, was originally charged with open murder-homicide, possession of weapons and firearms by a felon, and trying to escape from jail.

His wife, who was 54 at the time of her death, was found in the back seat of a burning car on June 20, 2015 at the intersection of Sheridan Valley Road and Scenic Rte. 3 in Montmorency County’s Briley Township, east of Gaylord.

When Michigan State Police troopers arrived, they found the car burning in a ditch. When the fire was put out, investigators discovered the woman’s burned remains in the back seat. A trail of evidence led Michigan State Police troopers several miles to a house in Briley Township. It was there they made contact with Erich Wilfinger.

Last month, Marsha’s daughter, Kelly (Sargent) Jackson said, “We wanted him to go to trial and be found guilty of his charges by the jury, and hopefully get the maximum sentence. The least we would agree to is a second-degree guilty plea.”

“I specifically really wanted to hear him admit his guilt and admit to the crimes he committed,” Jackson added.

Veronica Pheasant of Ar gen-tine Township was a long-time friend to the victim.

“I really wanted to sit in court and watch his face as he was held accountable for what he did,” Pheasant said after the plea deal agreement. “It’s so upsetting to many people that he was offered a plea deal. I feel there was so much evidence against him but the courts just wanted it done and over and off their docket because it was so obvious.”

With the plea deal, Erich Wilfinger faces about 22 years in prison and could be eligible for parole, Jackson said previously.
What is Arbor Day?

This celebration of trees started in 1872

By Hannah Ball
hbball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Tree huggers, and anyone who cares about the environment, unite. Arbor Day is April 29 this year. The event, which is recognized by many counties, is celebrated on the last Friday of April, according to arborday.org.

Arbor Day celebrates the role of trees in our lives while promoting tree planting and care.

The event originated in Nebraska City in 1845 by Julius Sterling Morton. Morton and his wife, Caroline, loved nature and planted many trees and shrubs. He was also a journalist and was the editor of Nebraska’s first newspaper. He used the press to spread information on agriculture, and how important trees were for many things, like windbreakers, fuel, building materials, and shade.

A lack of trees in Nebraska eventually led to the inception of Arbor Day in the 1880s, according to arborday.org.

Morton was successful in encouraging everyone to plan a day specifically for trees in 1872 when the State Board of Agriculture accepted a resolution by Morton declaring April 10 Arbor Day.

Back then, awards were given to counties and people who planted the most trees. More than one million trees were planted in Nebraska on the first Arbor Day. By 1920, more than 45 states were celebrating the event, according to arbor.org.

GLOBAL RELEAF

American Forests Global ReLeaf is an organization that promotes planting trees by organizing projects across the U.S. and 44 other countries. Since 1990, it has helped plant nearly 50 million trees, according to americanforests.org. They plant trees for wildlife habitat improvement, response to wildfire, water resource protection, and carbon offset benefits.

By planting these trees and expanding forests, Global ReLeaf helps provide long-term environmental, economic, and social benefits because of the benefits of trees.

For example, trees prevent soil erosion, they clean waterways and absorb harmful greenhouse gas emissions including carbon dioxide, recharge groundwater and sustain streamflow, provide habitats for wildlife and offer recreational activities.

For those who placed their tree orders by April 18, the pickup date locally at Branching Out Nursery and Landscaping in Fenton is on Saturday, April 30.

Argentine Township unanimously passes one-year moratorium

By Hannah Ball
hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Argentine Twp. — The Argentine Township Board of Trustees approved a one-year moratorium on medical marijuana dispensaries in a 5-0 vote on Monday. This moratorium prohibits any medical marijuana dispensary from coming to Argentine Township. However, the Michigan Medical Marijuana Act already prohibits state-licensed dispensaries.

Supervisor Bob Cole said he sees this as a six-time redundancy. Cole asked the township’s attorney, David Lattie, to clarify what they were voting on.

“How do you see this as a redundancy?” Cole asked.

“Is there anywhere in the medical marijuana act that allows for a dispensary to exist in today’s world?” Cole asked.

“No,” Lattie replied. “No, that’s correct,” Cole said. “So we’re going to adopt a resolution to stop something that the state doesn’t allow?”

The reason for the moratorium is loose wording in the Michigan Medical Marihuana Act that was passed in 2008. Lattie said there is a gap in the transaction between the caregiver and the patient. Michigan law defines the caregiver as “a person who is at least 21 years old and who has agreed to assist with a patient’s medical use of marihuana.”

A patient is defined as “a person who has been diagnosed by a physician as having a debilitating medical condition,” according to the Michigan Medical Marihuana Act. Lattie said the wording defining the relationship between caregiver and patient is loose. This has allowed many Michigan dispensaries to operate in bigger cities despite the act.

For example, a few dispensaries in Lansing have claimed that they are a caregiver to the customers, and they only sell to people who have a medical marijuana card, according to a Detroit Free Press article.

The moratorium approved by the Argentine Township Board prohibits dispensaries in the township, and states that the township board will study the existing federal law and will consider the possible regulation of medical marijuana dispensaries. Michigan voters, however, could have the opportunity to vote to legalize recreational marijuana in the 2016 November election if the Michigan Marijuana Legalization Initiative receives enough signatures to be placed on the ballot.
LIGHT

According to Fenton Police Chief Rick Aro, the placement and timing of traffic lights is quite an involved process.

Aro said an engineering study is needed and traffic volume and crashes are also a factor.

“Traffic light timing is controlled by the Genesee County Road Commission at our request,” said Aro. The initial timing is set according to the results of the engineering study, volume studies, etc., he added.

“Once in a while we ‘tweak’ those,” Aro said. “Case in point, we have requested the left turn arrow be extended from westbound Shiawassee A venue to Round Drive in the morning when parents are driving students to school to alleviate the back-up in the left turn lane.”

The yellow light cycle is typically longer in high traffic, higher speed intersections.

Owen Road at Silver Parkway was always one of Fenton’s highest crash locations because of the traffic volume and multiple turn lanes, according to Aro.

“A few years ago, the light timing was causing some confusion but I think we have that fixed,” he said.

According to the Genesee County Road Commission’s Freqently Asked Questions, developers proposing a new subdivision or shopping center often hope to get the Road Commission to install a traffic signal at the entrance to their development to make it easier to get in and out.

If there are already traffic problems in the area, frequently local residents will voice their agreement that what is needed to solve the problem is another traffic signal.

According to gcrc.org, “It is as if signals are viewed as some sort of cure-all. They are not.”

Traffic engineers, when determining whether a signal is or is not “ warranted,” refer to a manual of guidelines called the Michigan Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices (michigan.gov/mdot).

This manual covers everything from signals, to pavement markings, to signs. Virtually identical manuals are used in every state.

This manual identifies nine warrants that may be reviewed in determining whether a signal should be installed.

The warrants that receive the closest review are: minimum vehicular volume, interruption of continuous traffic, and accident experience.

The first relates to whether there is enough traffic coming out of the entrance or side street in question to consider stop ping traffic on the main road.

The second relates to whether the traffic is too heavy on the main road for motorists from the side street to pull out.

The last is an indication that the people are having enough difficulty getting out that right-angle accidents are occurring.

According to the Genesee County Road Commission, everyone has experienced delays pulling out onto main roads from time to time, and the thought may have occurred to them that someone should put a signal at that location so it’s easier to get out.

“Taking it to the extreme is saying that everyone gets the signal they want. Now you are able to pull out of your subdivision or shopping center at a signal. You then drive two or three blocks, only to have to stop at another signal at another subdivision or shopping center.”

That’s how it goes, stop and go every two or three blocks for the entire trip.

Signals can be synchronized so that if you travel at a precise speed you can make all of them, but as soon as the car in front of you slows down to make a turn or the truck ahead fails to accelerate fast enough to make the next signal, you are out of synch with the signals.

Some people think that signals make accidents go away. It is actually possible to end up with more accidents after a signal is installed, according to the Road Commission. However, the type of accidents change from right angle to rear end.

Congestion and the fact that too often people frustrated at being delayed will take chances like running yellow lights, or even a red light.

The cost of installing a signal involves more than erecting poles, wires and signal heads. Road agencies are often reluctant to install signals at an intersection until the intersection can be widened to provide for a center, left-turn lane.

If that is not done, the chances of rear end accidents increases.
Veteran secretaries suffered shamelessly

By Vera Hogan
vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Today is Administrative Professionals Day, celebrated the fourth Wednesday of every April to acknowledge the hard work and accomplishments of office support personnel.

It all started in June of 1952 as National Secretaries Week and National Secretaries Day. Secretaries Day was changed to Administrative Professionals Day in 1981, so that all office support personnel could be recognized for their skills, loyalty and hard work.

I wanted to be a secretary when I was much younger. My first ‘big girl job’ as reporter Hannah Ball is fond of saying, was as a typist in a typing pool at a major, nationally known insurance company in the suburbs of Chicago.

My desk was one of about 30, arranged in rows of six across and five deep. We typed insurance policies of all manner, all day long.

Homeowner and auto policies were especially long documents, involving several legal-size pages. There were no photocopiers in those days so to make duplicates, we had to stack several pieces of carbon paper and onionskin (slightly thicker than single-ply toilet paper; could jam more in a file cabinet) behind the original and place it in the manual typewriter, make sure it all scrolled in straight and begin typing.

Here’s the tricky part, if a typo was made, it was necessary to manually erase each onionskin page and the original. In order to do that, we used a pencil-like device with a rolling eraser on one end, and a brush at the other. We then had to erase the error from each onionskin page, starting at the back, place a little piece of white paper between the erased spot and the carbon paper, and repeat that process until all pages were corrected. Then you could type the correction on the original page, and carefully print, by hand, the correction on each onionskin page.

 Needless to say, the girls in the typing pool avoided typos at all costs.

Anyway, my second job was with the same company. I was promoted to work as a secretary. It was about that time that correction slips came onto the market. It was a little piece of paper ¾-inch wide by 2 inches long, with white chalk on one side and was shiny on the other side. Revolutionary! Now if there was a typo, we would merely place one of those between the onionskin and the paper and correcting mistakes took far less time, and it was much cleaner.

As time marched on, I took other, higher-paying secretarial jobs at other companies. Imagine how excited I was when Liquid Paper correction fluid was invented. After that came the electric typewriter with the correction key. All I had to do was back up over the mistake, wipe it out with a stroke of a button and type in the correct information.

Things only got better from there. It’s hard to imagine today that not only did we not have copiers, we did not have fax.

The first two miles or so of the race were easy. Giant lights lit the path as we ran on East Shiuawasee Avenue. Participants then backtracked and ran or walked to the end of Donaldson Drive and then back.
The color stuck nicely, so by the time I finished, I resembled a rainbow.
I’m not a fast or long-distance runner but the cold weather and competition motivated me to run and not stop.
Until I hit the hill going back up Old Truck Road, that is. I was hoping we’d simply loop around and run down it.
But the person who set the course must have been a little crazy because we ran about a few hundred yards up that steep hill and then stopped halfway down at The Freedom Center to finish the race.
It kicked my assets. I had to stop a few times to walk and catch my breath.
I have to give a big thank you to the ladies who were throwing color at the runners halfway up the hill, and told me I was the first girl to get that far.
I don’t know if that’s true, but it definitely motivated me in the moment and I pushed myself up the rest of the hill.
I had a Rocky Balboa moment at the turning point, exhausted, breathless, but extremely proud at the turning point, exhausted, breathless, but extremely proud at the turning point, exhausted, breathless, but extremely proud.

Lady Eagles continue to soar

Linden defeats Holly in Metro League action, 4-0

By David Troppens
dtrippons@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

Linden — There’s no stopping the Linden varsity girls soccer team these days.

One would be hard pressed to find a team hotter than the Lady Eagles, as they won their 12th of 13 games this season, defeating the Holly Bronchos 4-0 at Linden High School Monday night.

“We’ve had a really good season so far,” Linden senior Jordan Holscher said. “We haven’t lost a game yet and we’ve played 13 games. We’ve tied one. I think it’s going better than we expected. We lost a couple of big players last year and I think we came back better (this season). It’s going really smooth.”

The Lady Bronchos tried to stick with the defending Metro League champions as long as they could. Action was pretty balanced early with the Lady Bronchos actually enjoying three of the first five chances in the contest. However, none of Holly’s shots were on target. As the half went on, the Eagles’ talent began to soar, creating a 16-4 shot edge for Linden in the opening 40 minutes.

Eventually it resulted in a goal as well. It came when Madeleine Zayan assisted an Alia Frederick goal from about 30 yards out, giving the Eagles a 1-0 lead with 25:34 left in the half.

The Eagles continued to push the action in the second half, resulting in a 15-2 shot edge during the final 40 minutes. The Eagles’ pressure also eventually resulted in three more Linden goals by three different scorers.

The first goal of the second half was provided by Zayan from about 20 yards out.

Blue Devils advance in Greater Flint tourney

The Lake Fenton varsity baseball team advanced in the Greater Flint Baseball Tournament on Saturday.

In the process, the squad also defeated its biggest rival.

Lake Fenton scored four runs in the top of the third inning and never trailed en route to a 7-2 victory against the Goodrich Martians in the championship game at Flint’s Broome Park on Memorial Day at 5 p.m.

“I thought we played our best all-around game of the season thus far against Goodrich,” Lake Fenton coach Brad LaRowe said.

“We did not get a lot of hits, but we did a great job of getting key hits with runners in scoring position which we did not do the past few games.”

On the mound Joey Reita tossed the first six innings.

Linden baseball remains perfect

The Linden varsity baseball team keeps on winning, and winning, and winning.

The Linden Eagles improved to 10-0 overall, but more importantly 6-0 in the Metro League with a doubleheader sweep of Flushing on Monday.

Linden won the first game 8-2 and the nightcap 2-0.

In the opener, the Eagles scored five runs in the bottom of the third inning to take the lead for good. The runs were provided by an RBI-double by Conor Faught, an RBI-single by Aaron Sarkon and a two-run single by Brennan Buerkel. Buerkel and Faught finished the game with two hits each.

On the mound, Lucas Marshall pitched a complete-game victory, tossing a five-hitter and striking out nine. Marshall did walk four batters.

In the nightcap, Linden hurler Jack Shore continued his pitching mastery this season with another complete-game shutout. Shore tossed a four-hitter, walking three and striking out 12. He got ahead of the batters, throwing 17 first-pitch strikes to the 26 batters he faced.

Shore has pitched 24 innings of shutout ball so far this season.

The Eagles scored the two runs they needed in the third inning. Faught singled and eventually scored on a sacrifice bunt from Kevin Bates. Aaron Sarkon followed with a double and scored on Chris Kitch’s double.

Linden returns to action today with a Greater Flint game against Swartz Creek at Broome Park at 5 p.m.

Linden’s Lucas Marshall tossed a five-hitter in Linden’s doubleheader sweep against Flushing on Monday. The Eagles are 10-0 on the season.

Trim Down Forever! VIRTUAL Bariatric Surgery

Using revolutionary Virtual Gastric Surgery, our eight-week program helps you trim down and get mentally, physically and spiritually healthy so as to promote permanent weight reduction.

Diets only work on the outside. But all the scientific research shows that what goes on in your mind is far more determinate in your ultimate success than what you eat. Remember, it’s much easier to change your mind and have that change your body than to try and change your body and hope that it changes your mind.

This is the BEST long term weight loss program available!

Hypnotherapy is perfect for Stop Smoking, Anxiety, Sports and Business Performance and more.

Why virtual bariatric surgery is better

This is the best long term weight loss option

Bariatric surgery seems like the perfect solution. And it might be, if it weren’t for the failure rate. Importantly, according to an NIH study, lap-band sur gery only has a 65 percent success rate.

Side effects are the problem. According to Pharmacy Times, approximately 40 percent of bariatric patients develop “Dumping Syndrome.” During or immediately after a meal, patients report nausea, bloating, cramping, diarrhea, dizziness and then vomiting.

Other problems include fecal incontinence. More than a third develop gallstones. Alarming ly, according to the New York Times, one study calculated suicide rates for patients at five times more than normal.

Virtual Bariatric Surgery is different. Clients go into hypnotic trance and have imaginary bariatric surgery. Once out of trance, they eat like they’ve had the surgery, but with zero side effects. And the cost is tiny by comparison to the real surgery.

But insurance does not cover it. The New York Times, one study calculated suicide rates for patients at five times more than normal.

...machines, computers, the internet, email, FedEx or any way to communicate with coworkers with a computer...

If you wanted to talk with a coworker, you physically had to get up and go to their desk or office — and sometimes that would be three or four floors above you. At this particular insurance company, there were cameras in the stairwells to make sure employees didn’t steal files or office supplies, or engage in another kind of unacceptable activity.

Nearly every time I was forced to climb those stairs, I would make sure I was in line with the camera and in a pure act of defiance, adjust my bra, or lift up my skirt and fix my slip (that’s another column) and mumble under my breath ‘take that, you perverts.’ And yes, we did have to wear dresses, or skirts and (gulp), high heels.

Today, when it comes to this type of work, I am very happy to live without the good old days. I love my computer, the internet, email, Facebook, and technology in general.

But my very favorite thing, as you can likely imagine, is the ‘delete’ button — goodbye!

LIVING IN THE AGE OF ELECTRONIC INFORMATION

Last July I received a telephone call from my credit card company telling me that my credit card had been used in Florida for two separate purchases — one at a restaurant and the other at a drug store.

I was very grateful to have received the call because I hadn’t been to Florida for years and most certainly hadn’t made these purchases.

The good news for me was that eventually the charges were removed from my account and I received a new card.

The bad news was that somehow somebody had obtained my credit card information, (and who knows what else,) and to this day I’m not entirely sure how.

Last month I received an email from an old friend who told me that he was stranded in the Philippines because he had lost his luggage, wallet and passport and I was his last hope to get home. He asked me to send him $2,000 for airfare and promised to repay me immediately upon his return to the United States.

Without going into everything, a quick phone call to my friend’s home in Pennsylvania revealed that he was safe and sound. His personal information (including email addresses) had been stolen, and the email was a scam.

Undoubtedly, many readers know of similar situations that have happened to them or to others.

These types of fraud are particularly unsettling especially when one’s privacy is invaded.

I wish that I had a perfect solution to this ever-growing problem, but simply put, I don’t.

However, there are ways that you can try to protect yourself from such fraud and theft including carefully checking your credit card statements each month, never responding to unsolicited requests for personal information (such as full name, date of birth, Social Security number), creating complex computer passwords that thieves can’t easily guess and obtaining your credit report once a year to check on fraudulent accounts that you didn’t open.

The federal government has a website full of these and other ways to prevent identity theft at USA.gov.

For help on preventing credit card fraud, go to the Federal Trade Commission website ‘Protecting Against Credit Card Fraud’ at www.consumerftc.gov.

Almost all of our personal information is stored electronically somewhere and today caution must be the universal watchword.

Why are people choosing to be cremated instead of being buried?

“The cost, number one,” Temrowski said. Cremations have become cheaper than burials. She also added that people are moving more often, so they’re not sticking to one town.

Some experts estimate this rise is due to family members wanting to embark on different traditions and rituals after a loved one dies. Many people choose to spread a loved one’s ashes in a sentimental place.

Temrowski said another reason is the burial space.

“Sometimes people don’t have burial space like they used to in the olden days,” she said.

Since fewer people are choosing to be buried or to bury their loved ones, cemetery properties (not funeral homes) are increasing the fees to cover costs.

“They’re seeing less and less traditional burials so they have to charge more,” she said. “It’s pretty national.”

However, these funerals and cost vary by town.

For example, in Pittsburgh many families have funerals that last three days with visitation and a full couch casket, Temrowski said. Then in places like Arizona, cremation rates are higher because there are more people.

“Different places are totally different,” she said.

The funeral process isn’t dramatically different with a cremation versus a burial. Families still have to decide if they want visitation and a viewing.

When someone is cremated and has a viewing, the only difference is after the visitation, they’re transported to the crematorium instead of the burial grounds.

“Things can take place after the cremation,” Temrowski said.

Whatever you choose as far as burial or cremation, she said it’s important to have some service to celebrate the life.

She said there’s been a trend when people choose not to have any funeral at all. “They might not have any funeral at all, that’s what I think is a tragedy,” she said.

She said it’s a problem when “nobody’s doing anything. This person lived this full life, they die and then there’re no needs met in terms of the grief process. Not celebrating that life is a tragedy.

“There are steps we need to take to get through things and move on and those steps are being omitted too many times,” she said.

Launch them into space
Have you or your loved one’s ashes launched into outer space. Celestis (celestis.com) offers several packages for journeying into the final frontier. For the person who was never able to live that childhood dream of space travel, this could be just the ticket — possibly a one way ticket. Does anyone have the urge to say, “To the moon with ya, Alice!”

Turn them into fireworks
Angel Flights (angel-flights.net) can turn your cremated remains into an amazing light show for all to see. The service includes 200 fireworks shells modified to hold and scatter the remains

Up, up and away
Eternal Ascent can have your remains placed inside a helium balloon that floats up into the atmosphere. The balloon travels to a height of 5 miles where at the temperature of -40 below zero — it crystallizes and bursts, scattering the ashes to the four winds. (eternalascent.com)

Mixed in paint
Memorial Ashes will have the ashes mixed with the paint that is used in a portrait of the deceased. You could have this done locally or maybe even do it yourself.

Stuff into a teddy bear
The Huggables Collection can provide you with a more snuggly urn. These bears will hold a portion of your remains allowing a cuddlier memorial. (funeral-urn.com/huggable)

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You need to wait patiently for an answer to a workplace problem and not push for a decision. Remember: Time is on your side. A financial matter needs closer attention.
