Boating for beginners...

What you need to know before taking the plunge

 By Vera Hogan • vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

So, you got the itch, bought a fully decked out boat with all the bells and whistles and now look forward to hanging out on the water this summer.

There's only one problem, you have no idea where to start.

The first thing you need to do is take a boater safety class and educate yourself on the rules and regulations of boating.

Then, consult with your friends who are seasoned boaters. Ask them which area lakes are best on which to start out, and then move on from there.

Some little tips novice boaters may not know include things like a cluster of empty gallon milk jugs, tied together at a certain location. Local boaters say that means there is an underwater stump that could damage your boat if you don't steer clear.

Another thing to know is the location of shallow spots and sandbars. Accidentally flying over a sandbar could also cause damage to your new boat and prop. Learn the ski routes of each lake (counter clockwise) to prevent mishaps.

See BOATING on 4B

Tool Box Tip #2

When insuring your possessions, opting for replacement cost coverage provides you the best reimbursement option. Why?

With replacement cost coverage, you collect the full cost to replace the item, less your deductible.

Community program helps three homes in Holly

■ April 30 was annual workday for this group of local volunteers

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Christmas comes but once a year, and it appears that all the work of Santa Claus and his elves is miraculously done on one single day.

That's the magic of the local non-profit group, Christmas in Action, Holly. They have just one official "work day" per year the last Saturday of April, after months of organizing volunteers, donations and sponsorships.

The goal of Christmas in Action is to provide hope and action to low-income seniors (60 and up) and the disabled, and use a huge volunteer team to repair homes that are in less than perfect condition.

"Our whole plan is to keep seniors in their homes as long as possible," said Randy Redmond, vice president of the Holly organization. "This year we had 30 to 60 people each working on a house, and we completed the repairs on three homes in our community. Two of the projects included roofing and gutters. We also replaced windows, doors, plumbing, flooring, landscaping and painting."

This was the group's 12th year. "We've done 37 homes in those years, raising more than $155,000 in sponsorships and donations, 100 percent of which goes back into the homes and cause," said Redmond.

President of Christmas in Action, Holly, is Ed Pedley. Phil Long serves as treasurer, Cathy Vrh is secretary and Marie Todorovsky is in charge of marketing and public relations.

Main home sponsors this year were Armstead Automotive, RHL Group and The State Bank. "Local restaurants are also very generous in helping us feed our work crews," said Redmond.

While the workday takes place only one day a year, the behind-the-scenes work begins in December/January, several months ahead of April.

"Each house has a captain," said Redmond. "It's a very organized effort. We start work right at 8 a.m. and it's a pretty wild day. We seem to draw the same volunteer crews every year so it must be a good experience for them."

Fundraisers also help raise donations for the home repairs, including a spaghetti dinner held every March and a golf outing in September.

Christmas in Action in Holly is always looking for homes to work on the following year. For more information, call Redmond at (248) 634-7720.

CREATIVE AD CAMPAIGNS TO PREVENT TEXTING & DRIVING

U.S. Department of Transportation statistics show cell phones are involved in 1.6 million auto crashes each year. To raise awareness of the dangers of texting while driving, the Ad Council and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) created a prevention campaign called "Stop the Texts. Stop The Wrecks."

Many companies have joined in with their own creative print, billboard and social media campaigns to discourage this risky and life threatening behavior.

BOATING

There are additional tips for new boaters. According to treadlightly.org:

Travel responsibly

Travel only in areas open to your type of boat.

Carry a Coast Guard approved life vest, also called personal flotation device (PFD) for each person on board.

Always operate your boat at a safe speed.

Always have a designated lookout to keep an eye out for other boaters, objects and swimmers.

Never jump a wake. If crossing a wake, cross at low speeds and keep a close lookout for skiers and towables. Boat wakes travel distances, so slow down before you reach a slow-speed zone, not as you pass the marker.

Just a little slowing down isn't good enough. Upon entering a no wake zone, some boaters react by only slowing the vessel slightly, and then plow through with the bow way up and stern dug down, actually increasing the wake.

Small boats aren't innocent. Wakes are not just a big boat issue — small vessels in the stern-down position can throw surprisingly large wakes.

When approaching a wake, slow down but don't stop. Motorboats are more stable when underway, so stopping could make things worse.

Avoid taking a wake on the beam or head on. The best approach is at a slight angle. This will keep your passengers in your boat.

Take care of older crew. The BoatU.S. insurance claims files show that persons over the age of 50 have the most personal injuries, mostly as a result of being seated near the bow when the boat slams into a wake. It's best to seat passengers — especially older passengers — amidships.

Comply with all signs and respect barriers. This includes speed limits, no-wake zones and underwater obstructions, etc.

Make every effort always to go boating with a partner.

Make certain your trailer is in proper working order and that your lights work and your boat is secure on the trailer before you travel to your destination.

When trailering your boat, balance your load including items stowed inside your boat.

Don't mix boating with alcohol or drugs.

Respect the rights of others

Respect the rights of others, including anglers, swimmers, skiers, boaters, divers and others so they can enjoy their recreational activities undisturbed.

Show consideration to all recreationists on and around the waters.

Be courteous to other boaters while in boat ramp areas. Launch and retrieve your boat as quickly as possible.

Keep the noise down, especially around shore.

If crossing private property be sure to ask permission from the landowner(s).

Be prepared

Make a realistic plan and stick to it.

Always tell someone of your travel plans and file a float plan.

Contact the land manager for area restrictions, closures and permit requirements.

Check the weather forecast for your destination. Plan clothing, equipment and supplies accordingly.

Make sure you have enough fuel and oil for the entire trip.

Make sure your owner's manual and registration are on board in waterproof containers.

Always carry a Coast Guard approved working fire extinguisher and warning flares.

Prepare for the unexpected by packing necessary emergency items.

Carry a Global Positioning System (GPS) and know how to use it.

Know distress signals and warning symbols. Know your limitations.

Apply sunscreen, drink lots of water and watch your energy level.

Avoid sensitive areas

Avoid sensitive areas and operating your watercraft in shallow waters or near shorelines at high speeds.

Always launch at a designated boat ramp. Backing a vehicle on a riverbank or lakeshore can damage the area and leads to erosion.

Always travel slowly in shallow waters and avoid boating in water less than 2½ feet deep. High speeds near shorelines lead to large wakes, which cause shoreline erosion.

Sensitive areas to avoid include seasonal nesting or breeding areas.

Avoid "spooking" wildlife you encounter and keep your distance.

Be considerate

Do your part by modeling appropriate behavior, leaving the area better than you found it, properly disposing of fuel, oil and waste, avoiding the spread of invasive species, and restoring degraded areas.

Pack out what you pack in. Carry a trash bag and pick up litter left by others.

When fueling your boat take every precaution not to spill fuel into the water. Carry a spill kit, which includes absorbent pads, socks and booms.

Use a fuel collar or bib when fueling to catch drips and overflow and prevent back splash.

Observe proper sanitary waste disposal or pack your waste out.

Before and after a trip, wash your gear, watercraft and support vehicle to reduce the spread of invasive species. Remove all plant material from watercraft, motor, trailer and other gear and dispose on dry land in a garbage container.

Drain livewells, bilge water and transom wells at the boat launch prior to leaving.

HOUSE PLAN OF THE WEEK

Ashley PLAN 30-264

The Ashley is unusual in that it has two owners' suites, each with an adjacent den. One use scenario would be by a couple in which both partners desire a good deal of personal space, but the plan also lends itself to being shared by two small families.

Each owners' suite has its own bathroom with shower. Both dens have closets, so they could easily serve as bedrooms, home offices, hobby rooms, etc.

Mother-daughter survivors wrestle with burglar

Dear Readers: I've stepped away from my column for a week while I put the finishing touches on my new book, which will be published in the fall. Please enjoy these "Best Of" columns in my absence. I'll be back with your fresh questions and answers next week.

DEAR AMY:

I am the mother of a 14-year-old girl. We are both smart, accomplished, athletic and attractive — and she has always looked up to me. I've stressed to her the importance of being strong and independent. A couple of weeks ago, with my husband gone on a short business trip, my daughter and I went to the mall, and upon arriving home we walked in on someone burglarizing our house. My daughter shoved the man, and even though it was two-against-one, he was big and appeared ready to pummel her, so I went into protective mode, pulling my daughter back and telling him to take what he wanted and leave us alone. He gagged and bound us hand and foot and left us on the floor. I felt a wave of relief that we hadn't been harmed. We struggled to get free but couldn't. My husband came back from his trip in the early hours of the morning and found us. My daughter bore up well and didn't even shed a tear. After we were untied, however, it quickly became apparent that my daughter was more than a bit peeved with me. She felt that the two of us should have fought instead of allowing him to tie us up, and that my lectures on strength and independence were just hot air. I've lost much of her confidence and, even worse, I know that at age 14 I would have felt exactly as she does. The fact that the police complimented me in front of her had little effect. How can I begin to restore my daughter's faith in me? — Tied Up

DEAR TIED UP:

Your daughter's anger is completely natural, and she is pointing it toward the only person that 14-year-old girls know to blame for anything (including how their hair looks and the barometric pressure) — Mom. One of my favorite television shows is "Veronica Mars." Veronica is a plucky teenager who works with her father as a private investigator. One of the things I like most about the show is that the heroine spends a fair amount of time running — away. She doesn't fight the bad guys because it simply isn't wise to do so. The time to fight with all of your might is when someone is trying to take you to another location — by forcing you into a vehicle, for instance. You made a quick and mature calculation based on many terrifying variables. You and your daughter are proof that you did the right thing in this situation. How do you know this? You're still here. You need to help your daughter focus her anger on the appropriate person — the bad guy. You should both see a therapist to work through this right away. The fact that your daughter hasn't expressed emotion over this is a sign that she may need some help to process what has happened. You have been victims of a serious crime. You did the right thing. The police can tell you, and I can repeat it, but you (and she) must find a way to believe it.

Acid reflux surgery has side effects

DEAR DR. ROACH:

I am so tired of gastric juices coming up and spraying my mouth. I am currently on a "last resort" medicine. My doctor wants to try it for three weeks. If it doesn't work, he's going to perform a Nissen fundoplication. From what I've read, there would be nothing more coming up. Could you explain this procedure? What will happen with swallowed air, and what will happen if I get sick to my stomach and (shudder) need to vomit? — S.S.

blocks under the legs of the head of the bed or using a plastic wedge under the mattress) and avoiding dietary triggers (coffee, chocolate, carbonated drinks, high-fat foods) should be tried. Baclofen, a powerful muscle relaxant with many possible side effects, may be the "last resort" medicine you are taking. When all else fails, surgery may relieve symptoms. A Nissen fundoplication is when the upper part of the stomach, the fundus, is plicated (wrapped) around the esophagus and stitched in place. This can be done via endoscopy or as an open procedure. It is effective at reducing symptoms in 85 percent to 90 percent of patients. Most people are unable to vomit and have less or no ability to belch, leading to bloating, increased intestinal gas and flatulence. Discomfort during eating is common. There are modifications of the surgical procedure designed to reduce side effects and complications while maintaining effectiveness, but a description of what these all are technically is in your surgeon's domain.

ANSWER:

Large volumes of stomach acid coming into the mouth is an accepted indication for surgical treatment of reflux disease. Sometimes, the acid is associated with excess saliva and is called "water brash." Prior to considering surgery, it is worthwhile to make sure the medication treatment is as good as it can be. Proton pump inhibitors such as omeprazole should be taken 30 minutes before eating. Weight loss is helpful if overweight. Raising the head of the bed 6 to 8 inches (by inserting

WHERE TO INVADENEXT

This is an expansive, rib-tickling, and subversive comedy in which Michael Moore, playing the role of "invader," visits a host of nations to learn how the U.S. could improve its own prospects.

The creator of Fahrenheit 9/11 and Bowling for Columbine is back with this hilarious and eye-opening call to arms. Turns out the solutions to America's most entrenched problems already existed in the world — they're just waiting to be co-opted.

THE BOY

The Boy is a frightening thrill ride directed by William Brent Bell starring Lauren Cohan. Greta (Cohan) is a young American woman who takes a job as a nanny in a remote English village, only to discover that the family's 8-year-old is a life-sized doll that the parents care for just like a real boy, as a way to cope with the death of their actual son 20 years prior. After violating a list of strict rules, a series of disturbing and inexplicable events bring Greta's worst nightmare to life, leading her to believe that the doll is actually alive.

Vegan French Toast Waffles

It's a French toast. Nope...it's a waffle. Well no, really, it's a magical combination of both, and it's vegan.

INGREDIENTS

- ½ cup full-fat coconut milk
- ½ cup unflavored soy or almond milk
- 3 tbsp. cornstarch
- 3 tbsp. all-purpose or whole wheat flour
- 1 tbsp. maple syrup
- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- ½ tsp. ground cinnamon
- pinch salt
- 6-8 bread slices

Prep Time:	Cook Time:	Total Time:
5 mins	10 mins	15 mins
Serves: 3-4 servings

www.connoisseurusveg.com

Crusty bread slices are soaked up in coconut milk batter and cooked up in the waffle iron to make these incredibly delicious but surprisingly easy vegan French toast waffles.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Lightly oil and preheat a Belgian waffle iron (one with square cavities, see note). In a medium bowl, whisk together coconut milk, soy or almond milk, cornstarch, flour, maple syrup, vanilla, cinnamon and salt.
2. Dip both sides of a bread slice into batter and place into one of your waffle iron cavities. If your waffle iron makes two waffles at a time, repeat and place a slice into the other cavity. Close waffle iron and cook according to manufacturer's directions (they're usually done when steam stops coming out of the iron). Repeat until you've used all of your bread and batter.
3. Top with maple syrup, vegan butter, or your favorite waffle/French toast toppings. Serve.

NOTES: Try to use a loaf of bread that has a relatively square shape and isn't too big, so it fits nicely into the waffle maker. If you have a round waffle iron you could probably get away with cutting slices of bread to fit, but it might require some experimentation.
