AREA FOOTBALL COACHES VARY ON THEIR INTEREST WITH THE SUPER BOWL

■ Some love it, some don't even bother watching pro football's annual championship contest

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

Jeff Setzke had the opportunity of a lifetime.

The Fenton varsity football coach was a teenager when the Pontiac Silverdome hosted Super Bowl XVI, and he was given a chance to go to the game.

"I got a phone call for a seat on a bus and I was asked if I wanted to buy a ticket," Setzke said. "It was $150 and that was a lot of money, so I didn't go. That was my one chance to see the Super Bowl and I didn't take advantage of it. Now I'm 52 and I still wish I was at that one. Plus, it was the first one in the state of Michigan. And to this day I think it's still the highest rated Super Bowl (actually the second-highest rated after last year's game)."

Setzke's interest in the Super Bowl probably fits the stereotype of what one would suspect of a high school football coach. Setzke said his family "makes it a day-long event."

But, oddly, there are others who don't get too worked up for it. In fact, Lake Fenton varsity football coach Eric Doyle is about the direct opposite of Setzke.

"To be honest, I hate it. I generally don't even watch it," Doyle said. "It's just a giant production more than it is a game. The last couple of years we've been fortunate to have some close games, but a lot of times, the quality of the game has been pretty poor. There have been a lot of blowouts, and the flow of the game is disrupted continuously with stoppages and long halftime shows. I'm not an NFL fan anyway, and the Super Bowl is one of the reasons why."

INTEREST IN SUPER BOWL VARIES FROM COACH

Most area coaches don't take Doyle's extreme view of the Super Bowl. Most seem to have a casual interest in professional football's annual championship contest. This year's game will be played on Sunday, Feb. 7 between the Atlanta Falcons and New England Patriots at Houston's NRG Stadium. Kickoff is slated for 6:30 p.m.

"It's one of the games I enjoy watching," Linden co-head football coach Nick Douglass said. "I enjoy the football part of the game, I guess. I think some people like the commercials. I like to see a good commercial, but I enjoy seeing the competitiveness of the best two teams going at it."

“It's always so long and drawn out. It's like amateur hour. Everyone pays attention to just that one game. I'm not into it at all.”

Douglass isn't making any great plans for the game, thinking he'll probably watch the game at home.

"I think it's enjoyable to sit in my La-Z-Boy and relax instead of going to the game, being 50 rows up and paying an arm and a leg to go," he said.

Just sayin'...

vhogan@tctimes.com

Thank you, Ed!

Every night before I go to bed, I pour myself a nice big glass of cold water from the tap to keep at my bedside.

And when I do that, I often think of one person and silently thank him for his efforts to make sure city of Fenton residents have good, clean drinking water.

That person is Edward Angeluski.

When I was a reporter in the late 1990s, I covered the Fenton City Council meetings. Ed attended each and every meeting and at each and every meeting, he spoke during public comment about the need for a new water plant.

VERA HOGAN

He said over and over that the most valuable thing a town has is good, clean drinking water. Towns that don't shrivel up and die, he said, and he had the data from towns out west to back up that claim.

In 1999, Ed said he was going to put his money where his mouth is and ran for a seat on the Fenton City Council. He won and served two, four-year terms.

As they had promised him, city leaders did eventually look into it, and the end result is the state-of-the-art water plant on North Road, which was completed and online by 2004. Fenton is one of the few cities in Michigan with municipally softened water.

The Fenton City Council, with the help of then-City Manager Michael Senyko, a hard-working oversight committee and a loan through Michigan's Drinking Water Revolving Fund, really came through and the $8 million plant became a reality.

Ed was involved throughout as a member of the water plant project oversight committee.

The softened water alleviated the need for home water softeners. It also contains a very low iron content, and meets arsenic standards mandated by the federal government. Originally, the new water flowing through our system didn't cost much more than what we were paying before it came online. A few years later, however, because of the increased cost of materials necessary to treat the water and maintain the plant, the water rates were raised accordingly. Then, because of a reduction in usage, they had to be raised again.

The city treasurer often said of the loan, "The bills have to be paid."

Ed took a lot of heat for the rate increases. People somehow blamed him for the construction of the water plant and resulting increased water bills.

I'll bet our neighbors to the north in Flint wish they had someone like Ed to look out for their best interests today.

Ed ran for re-election to the Fenton City Council for a third term when he was 86 years old. He was devastated when he lost the election. He was ready and willing to serve his community until he was 90.

Ed died on Aug. 7, 2009 at the age of 89. A veteran of the U.S. Coast Guard, he is resting at Great Lakes National Cemetery in Holly.

I will never forget when Ed entered the council chambers. Mayor Sue Osborn would say, "Hi, Ed, how are you doing today?"

Ed would give her a big smile and proclaim, "I woke up!"

Thanks for all of the fond memories, Ed, and for my nice big glass of cool, clean drinking water.

SUPER BOWL

His fellow Linden co-coach, Denny Hopkins has been to one, attending Super Bowl XLV at Cowboys Stadium. He's glad he had the experience, but doesn't talk too much about it, saying it was one of the items on his "bucket list." Usually he watches the game while on a vacation in Florida in between golfing ventures with his brothers.

"We go to the same place every year (in Ft. Lauderdale), we play golf and usually watch the Super Bowl together," Hopkins said. "When I watch it I just hope it's a good game."

Holly's Ryan Culloty gets involved with the social aspect of the Super Bowl, and usually watches the game with friends.

"Any excuse to get people together and eat a lot of food is a good day," Culloty said. "That's how I look at the Super Bowl."

"Last year I went to a friend's house and there were steak bites. They were outstanding. I've never had those at a Super Bowl party."

WHO'S GOING TO WIN? WHO DO YOU WANT TO WIN?

It's pretty easy to figure out who most Michigan Wolverines' fans are pulling for when it comes to the Super Bowl. Ex-

Michigan quarterback and current New England signal caller Tom Brady has created a resume that ranks as one of the greatest in NFL history. That gives Wolverines' fans a reason to be pulling for the Patriots. Culloty is a Michigan fan.

"I'm going with America's pick and going with the Patriots," Culloty said. "I enjoy Tom Brady, and Patriots' head coach Bill Belichick is outstanding. They are beyond everyone else. ... Brady takes no-name receivers and they become (stars) year after year. He takes a band of misfit toys and makes them all pros."

On the other side, Douglass is a Michigan State fan, and he seems less passionate about the Patriots.

"I'm not a big New England fan but I don't root against them," Douglass said. "If I rooted for one or the other, I'd root for Atlanta."

COLLEGE IS BETTER

One thing all the coaches seem to agree with is they enjoy the college game more than the NFL. All had similar answers why.

"I think there's a lot more variety in what you see with the college game," Culloty said. "There's always those local kids you coached against that you see on TV as well. ... With the pro game, you see a lot of similar offenses and defenses each week. You get more variety with the college game."

Eight craigslist® killers

By Hannah Ball • hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Craigslist is a helpful site if you're looking for cheap, used products, if you want to sell stuff, if you're looking for certain services, and other things.

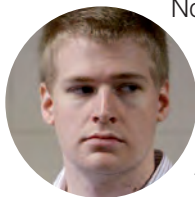

It's also a breeding ground for people looking to commit crimes. According to washingtonpost.com, 101 murders have been linked to Craigslist.

Here are eight of the worst crimes committed using Craigslist.

Source: CBS, GQ Magazine, Washington Post, The Atlantic, PETA

Philip Markoff (2006)

Now known as the "Craigslist Killer," Philip Markoff was an engaged pre-med student who used the site to find prostitutes and hurt or kill them. He was arraigned in the death of Julissa Brisman, a New York woman, on April 2006. He was charged for assaulting two other victims he found through the site. He committed suicide August 2010.

Michael John Anderson (2009)

In 2009, Michael John Anderson was convicted for killing a nanny who thought she was applying for a job. Katherine Ann Olson's body was discovered in the trunk of her car abandoned in a park.

Michael Delgado (2011)

In 2011, Michael Delgado was arrested for raping a maid, reportedly for over an hour, he "hired" from Craigslist. He was charged with false imprisonment, assault, and rape with a foreign object.

Richard Beasley (2013)

In 2013, Richard Beasley and a teenager were convicted of luring three men into woods in Ohio with the promise of jobs, and then killing them. They were discovered after their would-be fourth victim escaped.

Miranda Barbour (2013)

A teen mom from Alaska, Miranda Barbour, 19, confessed to killing 23 people in 2013. She would lure men with a Craigslist ad offering companionship for $100. She told reporters she wanted to take care of the creepy men. She was sentenced to life in prison. Authorities believe she lied about killing 23 people.

Brady Oestrike (2016)

In November 2016, a pregnant woman was tortured for five days and then killed by 31-year-old Brady Oestrike. The woman had been kidnapped at a park after offering sex for cash on Craigslist. Her body was found decapitated in the woods.

Arthur Vieira (2016)

One Virginia man pleaded guilty to charges of animal torture after buying a dog named Lucky on Craigslist. He admitted that he punched the dog, tied her legs together, muzzled her and then burned her alive. Craigslist now prohibits the sale of animals on the site.

Jason Brown (2014)

Jason Brown, a Nevada man, pleaded no contest to torturing and dismembering dogs he obtained from Craigslist ads. Police found the heads of four dogs in a mini-fridge where he had been staying. He received the maximum sentence of 28 years.

■ Charles 'Charlie' Koan shares experiences with Fenton Fire Department

By Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

In July of 1971, Americans were earning an average of just over $10,000 a year, minimum wage was $1.60 an hour, average rent was $150 per month, a movie ticket was $1.50 and gas was about 40 cents per gallon.

We were listening to new songs like "How Do You Mend a Broken Heart" by the Bee Gees, watching that radical new rascal Archie Bunker in "All in the Family." At the movies, we watched "A Clockwork Orange," Richard Nixon was the President of the United States, and the 1971 Barracuda was the hottest car around.

July 1971 was also the year that Charles "Charlie" Koan, assistant fire chief for Fenton, began his career with the fire department.

Koan said he has lived in Fenton all of

TRI-COUNTY TIMES | VERA HOGAN

Assistant Fire Chief Charles "Charlie" Koan of the Fenton Fire Department has received numerous awards for his many years of service.

his life, having graduated from Fenton High School in 1966. He was drafted into the U.S. Army right out of college. He just missed having to serve in Vietnam because he broke his trigger finger and had to go to the hospital instead.

While in the Army, Koan spent time in Germany, in Kornwestheim, just outside of Stuttgart.

Koan started with the Fenton Fire Department on July 15, 1971. He has never worked for another fire department.

When he started, Bruce Dorland was the fire chief. "I became a medical first responder 15 years ago," said Koan. "That's when fire service really changed. Before that it was car accidents, structure fires and grass fires."

The most significant change in fire service over the years has been the size and weight of the equipment, Koan said.

"That's one reason we had to move from the old station (on Ellen) to the new one (on Caroline)," said Koan. "The new equipment was putting too much weight on the floors." (See sidebar)

“I’m hoping to make 51 years. I just thought since I’ve gone this long I might as well keep going, as long as my health holds out.”

Charles “Charlie” Koan

The protective gear firefighters wear is much heavier. The helmets are much more protective than they used to be and the coats, bunker pants and boots have all changed, Koan added.

"For the most part ours is a very safe department. We've seen some burns and twisted ankles," he said.

Technology also has changed fire service, especially in the way reports are prepared.

"I grew up before computers so learning has been a challenge," Koan said.

Koan said the worst moment in his entire 45-year career was a car accident many years ago on White Lake Road.

"John Gerych's granddaughter, Kim, was killed. I graduated with Kim's mother, who was devastated. I was there and helped put her in a body bag."

The most rewarding aspect of his job is the camaraderie between the people in the department.

"Everyone has character and everybody is different," Koan said. "We work well together and have been very close. You count on them to be there to cover you."

"I've been fortunate to have worked with four female firefighters. Every one of them has pulled their own weight. Plus, they are good to have on scene. When there's a car accident involving children, the kids respond better to a woman firefighter than a male."

Koan said if he had to do it all over again, he would. When asked if he ever plans to retire, he said, "I'm hoping to make 51 years. I just thought since I've gone this long I might as well keep going, as long as my health holds out."

In his free time, Koan said he and his wife, Pamela, who retired from The State Bank after 30 years when the grandchildren came along, like to travel.

Neither of the couple's adult children are involved in fire service. Their son, Jason Koan, is a controller at a robotics company in Auburn Hills. Their daughter Natalie (Koan) Cook is a teacher at AGS Middle School.

"For the family it's tough," said Koan of his career. "The family gatherings I've been late for ... I don't know how many meals had to be warmed up two and three times. My wife is very patient and understanding."

The new fire hall

Assistant Fire Chief Charles "Charlie" Koan was instrumental in helping plan the construction of the new fire hall in 2001. He and all the firefighters took a "road trip" to Mundy Township, which had just completed its new state-of-the-art facility. They went back to Fenton and told the Downtown Development Authority (DDA), which funded the new $4.3-million hall, that Mundy's station was just what they were looking for. By today's figures, the same hall would cost around $20 million, Koan said.

Focus on these inflammation-fighting foods

■ Keep your body in balance as you fight toxins and inflammation

By Sally Rummel
news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

A little inflammation is good for your body, because it's a natural, protective part of your immune response that alerts you to a potentially harmful invader or process.

But, like a pinch of salt, too much of a good thing is actually a bad thing. When you constantly put your immune system in a state of attack, you can end up with weight gain, drowsiness, skin problems, digestive issues and many diseases, from diabetes to cancer.

You can create a balance by eating a diet rich in foods that fight inflammation-triggering free radicals and toxins.

Here are 10 powerhouse foods recommended by Mark Hyman, M.D., chairman of the Institute for Functional Medicine and author of The 10-Day Detox Diet.

• Raisins

Berries are full of free radical-fighting antioxidants, but their wrinkly relative, the raisin, can also keep inflammation in check.

• Soy

Soy has been singled out for its ability to reduce the inflammation marker C-reactive protein. Another bean benefit: protein-rich, satisfying legumes can help you replace pro-inflammatory meat in your meals.

• Salmon

This fish, along with tuna, herring and mackerel, is full of omega-3 fatty acids, which moderate the inflammatory producing process.

• Basil

Many spices are rich in antioxidant phytonutrients that fight inflammation, including crushed and dried rosemary, thyme, turmeric, oregano and cinnamon. One of basil's advantages is that it can be eaten fresh.

• Ginger

The ginger root not only has nausea-calming properties, but studies also link it to lowering post-exercise inflammation and a drop in joint pain caused by chronic inflammatory conditions osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis.

• Sweet potatoes

Packed with nutrients, sweet potatoes are good for your heart, skin and immune health. They're also anti-inflammation, with high vitamin C and E levels, and the alpha and beta-carotenes. Load up on other orange foods, like apricots, pumpkins, cantaloupe and carrots.

• Cherries

Like berries, cherries are full of phytonutrients, but they also deliver a powerful dose of anti-inflammatory compounds.

• Kale

Kale is rich in sulfur, which forces your liver to put it through two detox cycles, stimulating your body to churn out more phase II enzymes, which break down toxins in the same way digestive enzymes break down food. Other sulfur-rich cruciferous vegetables include arugula, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, bok choy and wasabi.

• Walnuts

Walnuts earn the spotlight in the nuts category for having the highest concentration of plant-based omega-3s, plus more than 10 antioxidant phytonutrients and polyphenols that also help reduce inflammation.

• Tea

Sip green, white or black teas between meals and help yourself to even more free-radical-fighting properties.

Avoid these foods that cause inflammation:

- Sugar
- Vegetable oil
- Fried foods
- Refined flours
- Dairy – especially full-fat
- Artificial sweeteners
- Artificial additives
- Saturated fats
- Traditional grain-fed meats
- Processed meats

Probiotics – are they right for you?

■ Add probiotic foods to your diet for healthier digestive and immune systems

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

We usually think of bacteria as something that causes disease.

But there are some bacteria that are actually good for you, including probiotics that can help you with your health, especially your digestive system.

The most common probiotic is lactobacillus, the one you'll find in yogurts or other fermented foods like sauerkraut, pickles, kimchi, etc. When buying yogurt for the best probiotic punch, look for the words, "live and active cultures" on the package.

Probiotics can keep you healthy by balancing your "good" and "bad" bacteria to keep your body working like it should.

According to mayoclinic.com, there's encouraging evidence that probiotics may help:

- Treat diarrhea, especially following treatment with certain antibiotics
- Prevent and treat vaginal yeast infections and urinary tract infections
- Treat irritable bowel syndrome
- Speed treatment of certain intestinal infections
- Prevent or reduce the severity of colds and flu

There's also some research to suggest that probiotics can help lower blood levels of LDL or "bad" cholesterol, according to findings presented to the American Heart Association.

The Federal Drug Administration

regulates probiotics like foods, not like medications. Unlike pharmaceutical companies, makers of probiotic supplements don't have to show that their products are safe or effective.

Side effects are rare, and most healthy adults can safely add foods that contain probiotics to their diets. Before taking supplements, mayoclinic.com suggests you talk with your doctor to see if they are right for you, plus the correct product and dosage.

Add these foods for more probiotics in your diet

- Kefir — similar to yogurt, but a more drinkable consistency
- Kimchi — spicy Asian fermented cabbage
- Kombucha — a drink made from tea, clean water, sugar, yeast and bacteria
- Miso — Japanese food made from fermented soybeans and some grains
- Sauerkraut — water, salt and cabbage, cooked with little heat to retain probiotic microbes
- Yogurt — look for "live and active cultures" on the container

Patient portals empower your health

■ Technology connects you and your doctor in a way that can benefit both of you

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Access to your health records through your own patient portal is now as commonplace in medical offices as a stethoscope or digital thermometer.

A patient portal is a secure online website that provides patients with convenient 24-hour access to their own personal health information from anywhere with an internet connection.

Using your patient portal, you can refill prescriptions, check on the status of doctor appointments, get test and lab results and much more information.

Chances are your own doctor's office or hospital uses this technology, as it is becoming increasingly popular throughout the healthcare industry.

According to the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology, 64 percent of hospitals gave their patients access to view, download and transmit their health data and 51 percent had the ability to secure message with their patients.

"We've had our (patient portal) system for about three years," said Penny Teffner, assistant administrator at Fenton Medical Center. "Our patients really utilize it. They can send messages to their health care team, get test results, refill prescriptions, check appointment dates and pay their bill online."

Front Office Supervisor Michelle Durmon handles all messages from the patient portal and routes them to the appropriate people.

"It has streamlined getting the results to patients after they've had health care services here," said Teffner.

She estimates that at least a third of their patients use the patient portal. "It's offered to everyone."

How does it work?

With a patient portal, patients using a secure username and password can view health information such as:

- Recent doctor visits
- Discharge summaries
- Medications
- Immunizations
- Allergies
- Lab results

Some portals also allow patients to:

- Exchange secure email with their health care teams
- Request prescription refills
- Schedule non-urgent appointments
- Update contact information
- Make payments
- Download and complete forms
- View educational materials

The benefits of using a patient portal include better communication between health care staff and patient, support care between visits, more complete and accurate patient information and the empowerment of the patient taking ownership of their health, according to patientengagementhit.com.

"We truly haven't had a single complaint about our patient portal," said Teffner.

Vitamin D – the ‘sunshine vitamin’

■ Get plenty of sun, eat the right foods and talk to your doctor about a supplement

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

The experts don't call vitamin D the "sunshine vitamin" for nothing.

Vitamin D is a powerhouse vitamin, affecting as many as 2,000 genes in the body, and it's produced in your skin as a response to sunlight, according to healthline.com.

What does vitamin D do for you?

Getting enough vitamin D is vital for regulating the absorption of calcium and phosphorous, and facilitating normal immune system function. It's also important for the normal growth of your bones and teeth and improved resistance against certain diseases.

If you don't get enough vitamin D, you risk developing bone abnormalities, including osteoporosis. Vitamin D may also play a role in reducing your risk of multiple sclerosis, lessening your risk of heart disease and reducing your likelihood of developing the flu.

Vitamin D also regulates mood and may help ward off depression.

Do you get enough vitamin D?

Since we live in Michigan and the sun only shines (or partly shines) an average of 168 days per year, you may find yourself "d-ficient" in this important vitamin.

The use of sunscreen, spending more time indoors, pollution, having darker skin and living in big cities where buildings block sunlight are all factors that can "block" your ability to get a sufficient amount of vitamin D.

If you don't have enough vitamin D, your symptoms may include general fatigue, aches and pains and an overall feeling of malaise, severe bone or muscle pain or weakness. Doctors can diagnose a vitamin D deficiency with a simple blood test, followed by X-rays to check the strength of your bones if you are vitamin D deficient.

Your vitamin D prescription

• Ten minutes a day of midday, pre-sunscreen sun exposure, especially if you have fair skin.

• Vitamin D supplements, if you're diagnosed with a vitamin D deficiency.

• Eating foods that contain vitamin D, including salmon, sardines, egg yolk, shrimp, milk (fortified), cereal (fortified), yogurt (fortified) and orange juice (fortified).

Experts differ on exactly how much vitamin D a person needs. Healthline.com suggests that you talk to your doctor for guidance on how to get the right amount for your body.

2017 FENTON REGIONAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

PROUDLY PRESENTED BY
Fenton Regional
Chamber of Commerce
www.fentonchamber.com

Building Business. Building Community.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 29, 2017

FROM THE CHAIRMAN

MIKE GREEN

At the click of a button the internet and social media can provide so many options for business resources and networking. Some may even question the importance of a Chamber in their community. Most likely, not realizing just how much the Chamber does in their community. In these changing times, I am pleased to report that The Fenton Regional Chamber of Commerce is growing and thriving. Why? Because, we recognize change is constant and our evolution is ongoing.

We implement goals to make both our community and membership more vibrant and successful.

This year we will continue to plan events that bring people into our local cities and towns. The majority of these events have become core to our community. Creating positive experiences and encounters with family, friends, neighbors and businesses within our community. I believe this is why our Chamber is so successful. These are experiences you cannot find on the internet or social media. They are organic in nature and attract new residents and businesses to invest in our community.

I am not sure that the general public knows the Chamber has 400+ members that join year over year. Continually reinvesting in our community to help make it a better place to live and work.

Our membership consists of area businesses, local municipalities, schools and civic organizations. A big thank you to all of them! I look forward to all the good things we will be doing together in 2017!

It's Expo time again

■ Mark your calendars for Saturday and Sunday, March 4 and 5 at Fenton High School

By Sally Rummel
news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

The Fenton Regional Chamber's 33rd annual Community Expo is set for Saturday and Sunday, March 4-5 at Fenton High School.

Saturday hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday hours will be 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

What you will find this year is huge excitement for the continued success of one of the longest-running business events in Michigan.

"We don't have to re-create it every year, as we have found a formula that works very well for our businesses," said Linda Hathaway, Expo chairman for more than three decades.

Thanks to the generosity of Sharp Funeral Homes and Brant and Associates Real Estate of Fenton, the Expo is free to all.

It's the largest of all chamber events during the year and has become a "reunion" for the thousands of people who come every year, who get a chance to visit and learn more about area businesses at the same time.

It's also very family friendly, with a petting zoo, kids' zone, entertainment, food vendors and more. "Kids can sign up to win a bike sponsored by Faith City Church," said Shelly Day, Executive Director of the Chamber.

When you walk through the doors of the high school, the first thing you'll notice is the transformation from a school gym, cafeteria and hallways to an expo setting. "We're looking at upgrading our entrance," said Hathaway. "We're hoping to do some projection images of our sponsoring businesses."

It takes dozens of volunteers, from student organizations to the chamber's Ambassadors to make it all happen in one weekend.

The Chamber is now in the process of opening up registration for chamber members and new businesses into the Expo. "Registrations are very strong," said Hathaway. "They've been very good right out of the gate."

Orientation sponsored by Genisys Credit Union for all businesses participating in this year's Expo will be Wednesday, Feb. 8 at 8 a.m. at the Fenton Community & Cultural Center.

For more information or to register, visit fentonchamber.com or call (810) 629-5447.

Egg-citing Easter event in Linden on March 25

■ Mark your calendar for breakfast, egg hunt, photos with Easter Bunny and more

By Sally Rummel
news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

The Easter Bunny will be coming to Linden on Saturday, March 25, getting a jump on Easter, which this year falls on April 16.

The Egg-citing Easter event is a long-time Linden tradition, and will include an Easter Breakfast from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. at Hyatt Elementary School, followed by photos with the Easter Bunny.

Included in the fun will be games, crafts, a bounce house and other fun activities for children. New this year will be music by Bill Young Entertainment, who will add a musical element to the outdoor events.

The popular Easter Egg Hunt will begin at 10:45 a.m. outdoors, weather permitting. More than 3,000 eggs will be placed around the school grounds.

Participation in the egg hunt will be divided into different age groups, so that kids can hunt for eggs with children near their own age.

A Bunny Hop Fun Run will take place at 10:15 a.m. A nominal fee is charged.

Flyers will be sent to local school children, reminding parents of the event. Deb Brindle, of Linden's Community Education Department, is chairman.

Families interested in attending can purchase tickets at the door. For more information, call the Fenton Chamber office at (810) 629-5447.

Stay tuned for the Chamber directory!

I'm proud to announce that we had over 70 new members join us in 2016, bringing us to nearly 500 members. Welcome to all!

To kick off 2017, the Chamber is partnering with member Harbor House Publishers for our new annual Membership Directory. 5,000 copies will be printed. New this year, there will be an online digital version of the directory as well as a handy new app! The directory features a comprehensive listing of all Chamber member businesses, categorically and alphabetically, as well as plenty of key information about the Fenton Regional area and the community events that the Chamber organizes. The kick-off date for distribution will be at the Chamber booth at the Fenton Community Expo on March 4th & 5th, at your local municipality office, and member businesses!

If you are a member or are interested in membership and would like to schedule a meeting to review Membership Benefits, don't hesitate to get in touch with me. I'm always happy to set up a meeting at your business or our office and help you get the most out of membership.

Wishing you continued business success,

Lee Mitchell, Membership Director

Foster

Foster
Living Area	1605 sq. ft.
Garage	440 sq. ft.
Dimensions	48' x 55'

The Foster is amazingly compact in size for a four-bedroom ranch-style home. Its square footage, minus the garage, measures in at about 1,600 square feet. Yet it doesn't feel the least bit cramped inside, due to the wide-open gathering spaces that run along one side.

This makes an ideal starter home for a family with plans for expansion, but also works well for empty nesters who want some separate spaces for a home office, a crafts room, and the like. Bedroom four could be built with a direct entry exterior door onto the porch, if a family member occasionally meets with clients there.
