How do the Irish celebrate St. Patrick’s Day?

With St. Patrick’s Day on March 17, people around the world are going to celebrate what they believe to be Irish culture—shamrocks, drinking Irish whiskey and green beer, potatoes, corn beef and cabbage.

But there’s so much more to Ireland than that. Ireland is located in the Atlantic Ocean and is separated from Great Britain by the Irish Sea. The entire island, except for six counties, which make up Northern Ireland and is part of the United Kingdom, is Ireland.

The island has a central plain and is lined with mountains, except in the Dublin region. The mountains are low, with the highest peak, Carrantouhill in County Kerry, at 3,415 ft. The main river is the Shannon, which flows south from the north-central area for about 240 miles until it empties into the Atlantic.

The popular Irish symbol, the shamrock, is the country’s official symbol. The flag has vertical stripes of green, then white, then orange. Traditional Irish sports include Gaelic football and hurling, which are also the most popular.

Their government is a Republic, and the economy has experienced a dramatic boom since the late 20th century. American tech companies have invested massively in Ireland. Approximately 25 percent of Europe’s computers are made in Ireland, and it’s the world’s largest exporter of software.

Some of the most famous authors came from Ireland, like Jonathan Swift (Gulliver’s Travels), Bram Stoker (Dracula) and James Joyce (Ulysses).

RELIGION
The Roman Catholic Church has a huge presence in Irish culture. Approximately 84 percent of citizens identify with the Roman Catholic church. About 2.7 percent belong to the Church of Ireland, about 2.7 percent are Muslim and others aren’t religious or don’t identify with a specific religion.

HOTELS
There are many hotels to choose from in Ireland. The Park House Hotel in Galway has a 4.5/5 rating, while the Jury’s Inn Dublin Christchurch in Dublin has a 4/5 rating, according to tripadvisor.com. The Merrion Hotel in Dublin has a 5/5 rating, and the The Westbury, also in Dublin, has a 4.5/5 rating. Ratings depend on the hotel, but most cost around $200 a night.

CURRENCY
Monetary unit: Euro
Currently, one Euro equals 1.06 dollar, according to currency calculator, which means you would have more money traveling there. It’s acceptable to use credit cards such as Visa and Mastercard.

GREETINGS/PHRASES
Etiquette is similar to American culture. In Ireland, loud, boisterous behaviors in public are discouraged. Strangers usually look directly at each other and say “hello” in greeting. One difference is that formal introductions are usually only vocal and don’t include a handshake.

“I’m a docile young kitten and I’m looking for a quiet home.”

Pubs, or bars, are numerous in Ireland. In Dublin, there’s one pub for every 100 people.

PLACES TO SEE IN IRELAND
One of the most beautiful spots in Ireland include the Canary Islands, which is the most popular sunshine destination with retired Irish citizens. The Cliff’s of Moher are popular. These cliffs tower over the Atlantic Ocean in the west. They offer incredible views.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT IRELAND
The average height of Irish men is 5-feet, 8-inches and the average height of Irish women is 5-feet, 5-inches.

Out of all Europeans, the Irish report the least number of UFO sightings. Only 9 percent of the Irish population are natural redheads. May is the dirtiest month out of the year.

Approximately 57 percent of Irish people wear glasses or contact lenses. Cats outnumber dogs as Ireland’s most popular pet by two to one.

In entertainment, a song only needs to sell 5,000 copies to top the Irish music charts and a book only needs to sell 3,000 copies to top the Irish bestseller list.

In 2002, Ireland was the first country in the world to place an environmental tax on plastic shopping bags. In 2004, it was the first to implement a public smoking ban.

If you decide to purchase a boat, one of the first questions you should ask yourself is what kind of loan you want to apply for. Loans for boats from financial institutions are definitely available, but there are alternative options for boat financing you may want to consider, according to AdvisoryHQ.

FINANCING A BOAT USING A PERSONAL LOAN

A personal loan is a form of unsecured credit. You can also get secured personal loans that are tied to a specific asset as collateral, but these are usually just deemed auto loans or mortgages. Instead of a revolving loan that can be used and repaid regularly (such as a credit card), a term loan assumes you have been given all of the money to spend.

You also get approved for a personal loan faster than you typically do for other loans, such as mortgages or auto loans. A personal loan also carries less interest than a credit card.

CONS OF USING A PERSONAL LOAN FOR BOAT FINANCING

Just because your interest rate will be lower does not mean it will be your lowest option. Using personal loans as loans for boats means you are using an unsecured form of credit to pay for your boat. Secured loans typically come with lower interest rates since the lender has a right to the collateral asset to recoup his or her losses if you are unable to pay back the loan.

FINANCING A BOAT USING A HOME EQUITY LOAN OR LINE OF CREDIT

If you have a lot of equity built up in your home, you can take out a loan using the equity in your home as collateral and use that loan for boat financing. You will receive lower rates because you have your home as collateral, making this loan less risky for the lender. The downside of using home equity lines of credit is that you are putting your home in jeopardy by transferring debt to another asset that carries debt.

AVOID CREDIT CARDS FOR BOAT FINANCING UNLESS IT IS AS A TEMPORARY MEASURE

Putting a large purchase, like a boat, on a credit card is a bad idea. If you are cringing at boat loan rates, wait until you get a look at your credit card interest rate applied to a large purchase like a boat. If you come across a deal that needs to be acted on now, and you know you can easily get a line of credit that you can use to purchase the boat, you are able to avoid high interest rates and other loan with a more attractive interest rate (than that of credit cards) later on, then you can use your credit card to make the purchase and quickly pay it off with the other loan before interest starts accumulating.

GETTING BOAT LOANS THROUGH YOUR BOAT DEALER

If your boat dealer offers boat loans and attractive financing rates, it is as simple as sorting out the boat financing terms with the person you are buying your boat from. Boat dealers have much incentive to offer boat loans and the best boat loan rates as part of their business. Making their dealership a one-stop shop for both boats and decent boat loan rates expedites the purchasing process. Additionally, many dealers have existing relationships with lending institutions and banks that offer boat loans.

IMPORTANT FACTORS TO CONSIDER BEFORE GETTING BOAT LOANS THROUGH BOAT DEALERS

Keep in mind that while some boat dealers may have attractive boat loan interest rates, others may charge higher rates for the convenience of providing financing in store. Your boat dealer may have a terrific deal on a boat, but a deal that is only available for a limited time. Your boat dealer may make a proposition to you. If you use the boat loan interest rates offered by its partner lending institution, he or she will put that promotional price on hold for you, pending approval from that financial institution. As a result, you get the deal on the initial price of the boat, but you may not be getting the best boat loan rates.

HOW CAN I FIND THE BEST BOAT LOANS WITH THE BEST FINANCING TERMS?

When it comes to securing any credit product with a low interest rate, your credit score is the biggest factor.

Just sayin’...

Force of nature

On Sept. 18, or thereabouts, my husband and I will become grandparents for the first time. We are very excited. Jeremy and Yemi are currently living in China and will be home some time shortly after the baby is born, hopefully by Christmas. It has been a very long time since we’ve had a baby around the house, so we’ll have to spend the next few months relearning some of the ropes. We don’t know yet if our grandbaby is going to be a boy or a girl. And since we didn’t have any girls ourselves, we’ll have to do a lot more studying if nature leads us over to the pink side.

There is one thing though that I will never forget, something I hope doesn’t happen while the baby is in my care. It’s a big one.

I’ll set the scene. It’s Thanksgiving morning, 1992. Our baby boy had just turned 8 months old and his brother was two months away from his third birthday. We were going to spend the day at Grandpa and Grandma Hogan’s house.

We got up that morning, had our breakfast and got ourselves and the kids ready. Willy, the baby, had his bath and smelled so wonderful, especially his beautiful shiny hair with Johnson’s Baby Shampoo. I dressed him in this sweet little dark green velour outfit with a white cotton collar. He had on little white socks and black patent leather shoes. He was adorable! The most beautiful baby ever! I just wanted to kiss his little cheeks over and over and over.

As we started to leave the house, Mike with Sean, our almost 3-year-old and the diaper bag in tow, and me holding Willy, it happened, — Diaper Blowout!

I don’t think there is a parent on planet Earth who needs an explanation on diaper blowout. The cause appears to be some centrifugal force of nature that scientists have yet to explain. It comes out of nowhere, without warning and ends up everywhere, in the baby’s hair, squishing out of his collar, out of his ears, out of the ends of both sleeves, over the top of his velour pants and out of the bottom of his pants into his white socks and shoes. Nothing sacred.

Well, as most mothers will tell you, when diaper blowout happens, it’s the dad that falls out first. He starts to back up with his hand over his mouth, gagging and mumbling something that sounds like, ‘Oooomp, Oooomp, I’m sorry (gag, gag), I can’t do this.’ Then he turns and runs to the bathroom, where coincidentally you need to go to start cleaning up the baby.

By now, the sweet baby, sensing there is danger reaches his chubby little arms out to Mommy. He wants to put them around her neck and hopefully get those little kisses that show him he is still loved. He is, of course, crying the entire time.

Mommy, in the meantime, instinctively backs away, not wanting to get ‘it’ all over her own hair and blouse and baby’s cries get more woeful and pitiful sounding.

Because of the nature and severity of the event, the entire episode, from blowout to cleanup, takes less than 30 minutes.

All fresh and clean and smelling delightful once again, we all get into the car and are off to Grandma and Grandpa’s.

While he drives, Dad keeps apologizing, ‘I’m so sorry, I’m so sorry, thank you for taking care of that. I couldn’t do that, I’m so sorry.’

Me, the mommy, is gazing out the passenger side window thinking about how much stronger men are than women. At least that’s what they always tell us.

By the way, our baby boy is almost 25 now — and he approves this message.

THANKS TO THE Freedom of Information Act, and the JFK Information Act, we are certain of one truth — withholding of vital information about the Kennedy assassination wasn’t done to protect the family.

YES, IT WOULD Be nice if people would mind their own business.

I READ WITH interest the article on manufactured home living. I want to point out two or three other points. A manufactured home is registered at Secretary of State like a vehicle, so it doesn’t appreciate in value, unlike a prefabricated or factory built home, which tends to appreciate.

TRUMPCARE IS GOING to replace Obamacare with the ‘rest in peace’ program.

Back surgery comes with no guarantees

DEAR DR. ROACH: An MRI showed that I have severe stenosis of my C6 vertebrae. I have pins-and-needles sensations that often go down my right arm and in the neck area of my left shoulder. I saw an orthopedic surgeon who stated that he could “cure” my condition with a laminectomy surgery. Based on his recommendation, I recently completed a six-day pack of prednisone and four weeks of physical therapy, with little diminishment of my symptoms. I am now taking Celebrex daily. I have spent hours going through the various medical journals online, but could not locate any journal article that summarizes the prognosis of this surgery. Do you know of any research that discusses the post-surgery results, including the degree to which symptoms are reduced and what percent of patients require further surgical interventions? It would be informative to know if there are any other options if PT has provided little benefit.

— J.N.U.

ANSWER: As physicians, we like to practice evidence-based medicine, but the sad fact is that evidence to help guide us often is lacking, so we are left with our own education, training and clinical experience to make those decisions. In this situation, we have a few studies to help us. The most cited one is an analysis of two randomized, controlled trials, showed a faster improvement in symptoms one or three years after surgery, but no difference in operation outcomes. The most recent observational studies don’t even apply to your condition. It stands to reason that the more severe the pain and restrictions on activity, the more likely surgery is to help. Back surgery really should be contemplated only by people with moderate to severe symptoms, and those who recognize that, despite the best care, sometimes surgery does not help and, rarely, can make things worse.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have heard of a number of different things to help acid reflux. Does raising the head of your bed fit into that category, and if so, by how much? — T.E.D.

ANSWER: Yes, raising the head of the bed can reduce symptoms of acid reflux. The traditional method is a brick or two under the head of the bed, but a wedge-shaped pillow works too. Using lots of regular pillows usually does not. When we sleep, any acid that gets passed backward (refluxed) from the stomach into the esophagus stays there for a long time, since neither gravity nor the swallow reflex helps it down. With the head elevated, there is some gravity acting against reflux and getting it back into the stomach.

How to bathe a cat in 6 fun-filled steps

DEAR PAW’S CORNER: My 3-year-old cat “Zuzu” loves to go outside and roll around in everything. She is not sure why she does this — isn’t that something dogs are known for? Thankfully, she rarely has fleas, since I give her a monthly flea treatment but she hates baths. How can I keep Zuzu clean? — Witt’s End in St. Paul, Minnesota

DEAR WITT’S END: Before we get into the science of cat bathing, I have to ask: Has Zuzu been spayed? If not, that could be playing a role in her, um, adventurousness. Cats have been known to wander off to limit her exploration to the yard if possible. Now, to the dreaded cat bath. This is rarely fun for cats or owners. Fortunately, most cats rarely need a bath; too-frequent baths can dry their skin, which can lead to bigger problems. Here’s how:

1.) Use a sink or a large container, rather than a bathtub. Fill it with just a couple of inches of lukewarm water to cool water.
2. Place a harness and leash on the cat if controlling her will be a problem. Then carry the cat to the sink, giving it lots of praise.
3. Carefully wet the cat up to its neck and add a small amount of perfume-free pet shampoo. Use a damp cloth to wipe its head and neck.
4. Dry the cat with a clean towel, give it a treat, and remove the leash and harness.
5. Let the cat be mad at you for a while.
6. Clean and bandage the scratches on your hands and arms.
