HORIZON LAKES AIRPARK...

...IT'S NO FLY-BY-NIGHT OPERATION

'Wings of Mercy' takes off from Price Airport

By Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-629-6823

Although it is not as large as originally intended in 2003, the Horizon Lakes Airpark is a local gem, being home to pilots who share their skills and time through "Wings of Mercy."

"Four of the pilots who live on the airport have flown Wings of Mercy flights," said Cody Welch of Cody F. Welch & Associates, Inc., homeowner in the park. "Wings of Mercy is a nonprofit headquartered here at Linden Price Airport, which provides a free ride to distant major medical centers for financially and medically qualified people who need to travel for life — saving or life altering care not available at our fine local institutions."

"We level the playing field for people who are faced with financial and medical challenges all at once. The free ride is in a private aircraft such as those based here.

We have flown over 2,300 missions since July 1996."

Although 118 units were planned originally at Horizon Lakes Airpark, today, 35 residential site condo units exist, said Welch. "Of those, there are 16 homes built. We anticipate the 17th home beginning construction in the next few months.

Just sayin'...

Summer of '66

Last week, upon reading a Facebook post by a couple of friends who talked about the hard work kids used to do on local farms back in the day, I was reminded of something very special.

In 1966, the summer before starting eighth grade, my mom and dad traveled to Germany to visit our grandparents. Due to lack of funds at the time, we could not all go and my two sisters and I were literally farmed out — to a local farm family.

The first thing my younger sister, Monika, and I did every morning on the farm was go out to the chicken coop and collect eggs.

They had dozens of chickens and this was just like a treasure hunt. We loved it.

After we collected the eggs, Mrs. H. would cook a big farmer's breakfast garnished with fresh tomato slices. They were straight from the garden. I never had tomato slices for breakfast before.

Until it was time for lunch, Monika and I just wandered around looking at everything on the farm and asking Mr. H. a million questions. They had cornfields and bean fields, horses, cows, pigs and goats, and dogs and cats in addition to the chickens. There was much to learn and I was fascinated.

We had lunch with Mrs. H. every day. She made the best peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. I'm sure she canned her own jelly because she had a big garden filled with fruits and vegetables.

The rest of the afternoon was spent helping Mrs. H. snap beans and shuck corn, doing what we could to help her with "supper" preparations. We called it dinner at our house.

The family and farmhands would all eat supper together at the huge dining room table. I remember once there was a long green caterpillar crawling in a big bowl of broccoli. My little sister screamed and cried — it was great. The worm was plucked from the bowl without a word and serving resumed.

After supper, it was our job to "slop the pigs." That meant scraping off all the plates into two big bowls. We then took those bowls outside and hurled the contents into the pigsty. Big fat pigs struggled to stand up in the mud before devouring everything in sight, including the corn cobs and watermelon rinds. Pigs will eat anything, and I mean anything! I thought about tossing my sister over the railing because she was such a pain, but ...

At night, we would sit outside on the veranda with Mr. and Mrs. H. and watch the sun go down over the fields that surrounded their farm. We sometimes ran around catching fireflies after dark. Sometimes we would listen to the radio. We didn't watch TV there and I don't remember if they even had one.

I have been fortunate to travel quite a bit since then and have enjoyed some very nice vacations. But in 1966, I was blessed with one of the best summer vacations of my life.

Horizon Lakes Airpark resident Mark Pensentadler works on a kit airplane in his hangar on Wednesday, June 21. Pensentadler, like several others who use the airport, is a commercial airline pilot. He has a Piper airplane as well.

AIRPARK

The original developer is gone, having become a victim of the 2008 recession. "However two of the original shareholders are still actively marketing lots that they hold privately," said Welch.

There are seven remaining lots for hangar homes as well as seven home sites that do not have access directly to the airport, Welch added.

It is necessary to own an airplane to live in a Horizon Lakes Park hangar home.

The hangars are designed to blend with the exterior of the homes.

The streets in the community are named after women aviators, such as Anne Morrow Lindbergh, Jeana Yeager and Amelia Earhart.

With regard to the remaining homeowners, Welch said there are retirees and working people. There are small business owners, engineers, retired airline pilots, active airline pilots, retired General Motors engineering executive, attorneys, IT executive, school teacher, construction estimator, retired schoolteachers, nonprofit manager, retired municipal employee, nurse, etc.

"The diverse backgrounds come together into a terrific community bonded with a common interest," he said. "We get together several times a year for different activities such as the Linden Santa parade, the Wings and Wheels pancake breakfast in May, The Wings of Mercy Runway 5K (coming up Saturday the 24th) and the occasional mass fly out with airplanes for breakfast or lunch at various Michigan airports. This is a vibrant subdivision."

The homeowners association manages the airport for the owner, which is the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Buyer beware

■ You may be in for a big surprise when your online purchase arrives

COMPILED BY VERA HOGAN
vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-629-6823

Making purchases on the internet has become a fast, easy and often affordable way to do our shopping. However, there are some serious drawbacks and the saying "buyer beware" could never be more important advice when shopping online. The following are just a few of many things that can and will happen:

Clothing from Asia and the Far East

Purchasing a pretty dress, blouse or bathing suit online may seem like it is going to save you some money. However, you run the risk of not getting exactly what you expected.

Also, the sizes could be way off. For example, extra large (XL) in a foreign country really means size 14 in the U.S. Size 22 in the U.S. is a whopping 5XL in Asia. This blouse has been floating around the internet for quite some time. If you order, the tiny size you receive may surprise you.

teens.drugabuse.gov

Prescription drugs

Obtaining prescription drugs in the United States can be outrageously expensive if you don't have good insurance (or none at all). The lure of cheap online drugs, therefore, can be strong, and it's perfectly legal in the U.S. to buy your prescriptions from Canada or other countries. In 2013, however, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) pulled off a sting operation that targeted 9,600 online pharmacies and seized $41 million in illegal and counterfeit drugs. If you buy from a questionable online pharmacy, there's no way of knowing what you're getting, and those pills that show up in the mail could have an incorrect and potentially harmful chemical makeup.

Everyday groceries

Sure, there are a lot of places to buy food online and that's all well and good if you're buying bulk pasta or other packaged goods. But, if you're buying the only three things that we tend to keep in the house (milk, bread and age-blackened bananas) you may want to venture out into the real world. Everyone's happy to get a 40-pound can of Crisco in the mail, but much less appealing is a 40-pound can of salmonella.

www.brandlabs.us

Shoes that fit

With shoes getting more and more expensive by the day, most buyers typically make sure they're spending their hard-earned money on something that's guaranteed to get worn and won't have to be returned. If you buy shoes from an eCommerce store, the chances of getting a pair that feel like hard-carved Dutch clogs are that much higher.

Household pets

A growing trend among commercial puppy breeders is to cut out the pet stores and use online retailing to get their puppies directly into your homes. These puppies, bred in facilities commonly known as puppy mills, are housed in cramped, filthy conditions without sufficient veterinary care, food, water or socialization. Purchasing a puppy online typically supports this cruel industry.

'100 Deadliest Days' reminds teen drivers of summer danger

■ Inexperience and more road time lead to increase in deadly crashes between Memorial Day and Labor Day

By Sally Rummel
news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

The endless days of summer are supposed to be about beaches, bonfires and carefree living. However, if you're a teen driver, the summer can be the deadliest time of year.

The "100 Deadliest Days," according to the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety, is the period between Memorial Day and Labor Day when the average number of deadly teen driver crashes climbs 15 percent compared to the rest of the year.

These teen crashes spike during the summer months because teens have more time on the road when they're out of school, paired with their driving inexperience.

This summer marks the 10-year anniversary of one of the most tragic teen car accidents in the city of Fenton. Two teens died and one was seriously injured when they crashed into the front of The Fenton House restaurant in downtown Fenton on June 7, 2007. Alcohol and excessive speed were believed to be factors in this deadly crash.

"We've gone a couple of years now without a fatality," said Fenton City Interim Police Chief Jason Slater.

Statistics show that new teen drivers ages 16-17 years old are three times as likely as adults to be involved in a deadly crash. For every mile on the road, drivers ages 16-17 are:

• 9 times as likely as drivers 18 and older to be involved in a crash

• 6 times as likely as drivers 18 and older to be involved in a fatal crash

• 5 times as likely as drivers 30-59 to be involved in a crash

• 2 times as likely as drivers 30-59 to be involved in a fatal crash

Over the past five years, more than 1,600 people have been killed in crashes involving inexperienced teen drivers during this deadly period.

These fatal teen crashes are on the rise. The number of teen drivers involved in fatal accidents increased more than 10 percent from the previous year, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Parents can have a huge influence on their teen's safe driving experience by getting more involved and talking to their teens about the dangers of risky behavior behind the wheel. They also can model their own good behavior, by staying off their cell phone and buckling their seat belt.

SUMMARY

■ Teen vehicle crashes spike in the summer between Memorial Day and Labor Day in what highway safety experts call the '100 Deadliest Days.'

Three factors that commonly result in deadly crashes for teen drivers are:

• Distraction — this plays a role in nearly 6 out of 10 teen crashes, four times as many as official estimates based on police records. Top distractions include talking to other passengers in the vehicle and interacting with a smartphone.

• Not buckling up — in 2015, the latest data available, 60 percent of teen drivers killed in a crash were not wearing a safety belt. Teens who buckle up significantly reduce their risk of serious injury or death.

• Speeding — excessive speed is a factor in nearly 30 percent of fatal crashes involving teen drivers.

What can parents do to decrease the likelihood of their teen being involved in a deadly crash?

• Have conversations early and often with their teen about distracted driving and speeding.

• Teach by example and minimize risky behavior while driving.

• Make a parent-teen driving agreement that sets family rules for teen drivers.

THE HATE-FILLED violent and obstructionist Democrats have no agenda and no message. It's a shame that they don't want to roll up their sleeves and help tackle this country's problems alongside the Republicans. Washington is at a standstill because of the Democrats.

■ ■ ■
REPUBLICANS IN CONGRESS: the people who complained about Obamacare for half a decade, had years and years to prepare their own healthcare bill, created a failed bill at first, and now the House and Senate aren't communicating. They've had control of Congress for years and still can't get it done.

Richard Ladd Stiles, Sr.

1945-2017

Richard Ladd Stiles, Sr. - age 71, passed away on Sunday, June 18, 2017 at Hyde Park Nursing Home in Flushing, MI. He was born on December 27, 2017 in Blytheville, AR to C.H. (Sonny) Stiles and Jonell Ladd Stiles. He graduated from Blytheville High School and then attended Arkansas State University where he earned a degree in Accounting. After obtaining his CPA license, he worked for businesses in Blytheville, AR, Jacksonville, FL, Wichita, KS and King of Prussia, PA. In his youth, golf was a favorite hobby, but he had varied interests; reading, drawing, architecture (self-taught), numerical coding, photography, tennis, and traveling. He was proficient in many things - a genius. He talked about "grooving" his swing in baseball to the point where he could hit rocks with a broomstick at night with his eyes closed. He was on the leading edge of technology. He built out vic20, and built a tape backup out of a cassette player and programmed video games while everyone else was going to the arcades. He loved investing and coming to understand the market. Eventually, he managed his own investments full time. He was a CPA, a Comptroller, and he oversaw the computerization of accounting systems. He migrated to computer programming when that market got hot. He went back to school in his 60's to learn Java Programming. He never stopped learning. He was preceded in death by his father, C.H. (Sonny) Stiles, and a brother, Carleton H. Stiles, Jr. He is survived by his mother, Jonell Ladd Stiles of Blytheville, AR; a sister, Nan Stiles, of Little Rock, AR; an aunt, Violet Carney of Blytheville, AR; and his greatest achievement, his three sons, Richard Ladd Stiles, Jr. (Susan) of FL, William Michael Stiles (Kamee) of MI, and David Frederick Todt of PA; and five grandchildren. EVERYBODY LOVES SOMEBODY

On the surface, the young and beautiful Clara Barron (Karla Souza) seems to have everything- a great job as an OB-GYN; a great house in LA; and a big fun-loving Mexican family. But, the one thing Clara doesn't have figured out is her love life. Pressured by a family wedding in Mexico, Clara asks a co-worker to pose as her boyfriend for the weekend festivities - only to be caught by surprise when her ex-boyfriend (and family favorite) suddenly shows up after disappearing from her life completely. Torn, Clara must decide between going back to the past or open her heart to new and unexpected possibilities.

I am a pop singer/songwriter born in New York on June 22, 1953. I adopted my distinctive fashion sense as a teenager. I gained notoriety for my playful songs, but I've gone on to be a well-rounded musician.

I am an actor born in California on May 2, 1972. Before my film career, I was an athlete, playing in the Canadian Football League and competing in the WWF and WWE. Today I'm a rock-solid leading man.
