THE BENEFITS OF SMALL-TOWN
LIVING ARE ENDLESS

By Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-629-6823

Small towns were at one time the lifeblood of this country. Before the interstate highway system bypassed a good number of small towns, there were thriving burgs and villages all over the United States.

Although many small towns are more isolated, it does create a tighter-knit community and stronger sense of belonging.

The city of Fenton enjoys the best of both worlds — its close proximity to the highway and the good life a small town has to offer.

For people who have grown up in the local area, there is no better life. While a big city may offer more opportunities and excitement, small town living offers something else, the most of which involves peace of mind and a sense of community.

For example, while crime exists anywhere you live, there is a lot less of it in small towns like Fenton, Holly and Linden. All of our local communities enjoy the benefit of well-staffed police departments. The best part is most residents personally know the patrol officers and ranking officers on their police departments. The same holds true for fire departments.

FENTON FREEDOM FESTIVAL

TRI-COUNTY TIMES | TIM JAGIELO

The Fenton Freedom Festival Parade on July 4 followed tradition, drawing thousands of people to downtown Fenton. Spectators lined the streets along Shiawassee Avenue, South LeRoy and Caroline streets for the annual two-hour event, which included local fire departments, the sheriff's office, local businesses and individual displays of patriotism by visitors.

Some people have no luck at all

I am seriously wondering this week why bad things always seem to happen to good people.

My sister Monika is a perfect example. She has three daughters, 27-year-old twins and one who is 22. All three are college graduates thanks to the hard work of my single-parent sister. One of the twins even received her master's degree last week.

Monika turned 60 years old earlier this year. She and her girls spend every spare moment of their time hiking in the Arizona and Utah mountains. Their Facebook pages show literally thousands of pictures of them climbing over rocks and up steep hills. A recent hike took them from the border of Mexico to Utah.

Good grief! I hate walking through Walmart.

Even at her age, Monika is in fantastic shape and takes great care of herself. She does not have an ounce of fat on her, does not smoke or drink and she is a devout Christian.

So why, I ask, did this girl, who never had a cigarette in her mouth ever, get throat cancer? A big old tumor came up out of nowhere one day. She spent the better part of 2016 battling that cancer, suffering immensely through the entire ordeal.

She did survive, however, and the cancer is gone — for now at least.

When I got on my Facebook page last Tuesday, the first thing I see is Monika in a hospital bed in the emergency room. She and the girls usually spend their summer vacation in Carlsbad, California. This year, however, or maybe it was just for the Fourth of July weekend, they decided to travel to Washington, D.C.

Monika wanted to see everything there is to see in our nation's capitol and watch the fireworks at the National Mall. But nope, was not to be. A couple of days went without incident, but then she tripped in a crowd of people, fell hard, and broke her shoulder.

What! This lady, who has spent the last 10 years climbing over thousands of miles of red rock canyons and mountains of every description, trips at a corner city sidewalk into a crowd?

If it wasn't so pitiful it would be funny.

Here's what she posted: 'Happy 4th of July! Saw the spectacular parade in

VERA HOGAN

D.C. and soon after I'm in the emergency room. Broke my shoulder and feel fortunate that I could see the fireworks from my room. Girls went to see them live and can't wait to hear about it. Prayers are appreciated. I'm in a lot of pain, and hope to endure these few days and see some more of D.C. If not I have a nice room.'

I must admit I would not have been that upbeat. In fact, the hospital staff may have learned a few colorful words had it been me.

It's possible my sister may need surgery on her shoulder when she gets back home to Phoenix. I hope not. I hope she still has time to make it to Carlsbad for a week on the Pacific Ocean.

I have one word and a message for her if she does though. Shark! Please stay out of the water!

Though some may argue the point, especially in Fenton, there really is no "rush hour." Small town life means small commutes, no sitting in traffic, and rare cases of road rage. You usually don't give the single digit salute (a.k.a. the bird) to another driver because you may know the person behind the wheel.

You think we have terrible rush hour traffic in Fenton? You'll change your mind once you visit Chicago, Los Angeles or New York City.

Small towns offer more opportunities when it comes to getting civically involved. Everyone has the same chance of becoming the next mayor or member of the city council in Fenton and our local communities.

Some people like to drive around when they're bored. But the thing about small towns is that they're small, so you can walk to places if you want. The city of Fenton leaders have gone out of their way over the past two years to make this a truly walkable community. The new downtown Fenton Streetscape is solid evidence of that.

Small towns like Fenton, Linden, Holly and more love their local festivals. The most recent Fenton Freedom Festival is one example of a community coming together for a few days of friendship, fun, food and, of course, celebrating freedom. More importantly, we celebrate each other in small towns, our achievements, important milestones, and we take care of each other by shopping at our friends' and neighbors' local businesses and dining at their local restaurants.

Small town economies thrive when everyone shares their hard-earned dollars locally.

People who live out of state, like in Phoenix or San Francisco, for example, and see the Fenton Fourth of July parade online, can't believe their eyes. This type of Americana just doesn't happen if you're not from a small town. There is so much to do and see at local festivals, with people you actually know and love.

Speaking of people you actually know, this can sometimes be a double-edged sword. But, if you behave yourself it can be a very good thing to know most of the people in your town. If you have an emergency, for example, chances are your neighbor will help you out in any way they can. Don't expect that kind of behavior in the city where everyone assumes you could be a killer.

People often leave our small towns for various reasons. Young people, for example, often can't wait to test their wings in larger cities in this country, and around the world. But no matter how long they've been away, coming back to your small town, the place you grew up or chose brings new meaning to, "There's no place like home."

MR. PRESIDENT, MAYBE you should be as compassionate about the health care of the citizens of the United States as you are about the health of a foreign baby.

THERE ISN'T A decent fish house in Fenton. We currently have to go to Davison or Ann Arbor. The old Ruby Tuesday building is a perfect location for the new Fenton Fish House.

TRUMP'S TWEETS SHOW that he is insecure, lacking self-esteem and lacks confidence in himself. Just as a spoiled rich brat kid would react. Not presidential material. He needs to grow up first.

LAKE FENTON SCHOOL, when are you going to cut down that dead tree? Or are you going to wait for it to fall over and kill someone? Take care of it.

I WANT TO thank the person at the Fenton post office who was kind enough to add 80 cents to my check that I had added wrong to buy my stamps. That was very nice of them and I will pass it on.

SHOULD CITIZENS SETTLE for a government's worst effort with our best tax dollars?

TO THE PERSON whining about trees and walls on Lake Fenton, you probably like walls. Build that wall, build that wall.
