Classic and custom cars take over downtowns

Hundreds of unique, historic vehicles create party atmosphere in Fenton and Linden

By Tim Jagielo

Hundreds of vehicles turned out to see the Fenton Cruisin’ Cruise for Charity on August 9, after which a cruise served as the ever-popular ‘downtown’ event.

Fenton — It was literally classic cars as far as the eye could see on Wednesday, Aug. 9. Broad Street was lined with colorful cars from Bridge Street to “the curve,” with throngs of visitors and car enthusiasts in between, for the 2017 Tune-up Party.

There were more than 350 vehicles registered this year, with approximately 2,000 visitors, according to Linden City Manager Paul Zelenak.

“It’s something we look forward to every year,” said Zelenak. “It fosters relationships between the community and the businesses.”

Linden’s tune-up car cruise serves as the ever-popular ‘downtown’ event, which took place Thursday evening.

Downtown Fenton was closed to through traffic on Thursday as the classic cars descended upon LeRoy Street, creating a festive din of revving engines, impeccable paint jobs and a little chaos.

Nearly 400 vehicles were escorted by police from AGS Middle School to downtown Fenton in a long rumbling procession.

Fenton welcomed the vehicles downtown, with an expected thousands of visitors. “This event brings people from all over, we are proud to share all of our downtown charm to all our visitors,” said Nancy Muffley, of Southern lakes Parks and Recreation, which runs Fenton’s event.

Tell us about your family.
I have been married to my husband, Patrick Vondra, for 12 years. I have two grown daughters, Anna Fagan, 29, and Kathryn Fagan, 27. I have two grandchildren (Anna is their mom), Owen James is 7 years old and Trace Brian is 1 1/2 years old.

We have three horses, five dogs, one cat, 32 chickens and two roosters. My parents are Carl and Shirley Roos (Holly). My brothers are David and Raymond and my best friend is my sister, Barbara.

I also have two stepsons, Chris and Robert and one stepdaughter, Katrina. I have two step-grandsons, Gavin and Ian, and three step-granddaughters, Emily, Erica and Jena.

What do you love about your job?
I love to interact with all the residents in the city. I love working with the numbers, and I especially love working with Sue Young, my deputy treasurer. We work so well together and I don’t know what I would do without my ‘Cemetery Sue.’

What are some of the challenges of your job?
When I have to turn off a resident’s water for nonpayment. I try my best to work with the residents to set up payment plans to get their water bills paid. But when no response or contact with me is possible, I have to be a treasurer and do my job. I hate having to do it, but I am just doing my job.

What inspired you for the National Night Out event?
I saw a newscast last year about Flint having a National Night Out. I came in the next day and asked my police chief and my city manager if we could do that. They both said yes and to go for it. I worked on this event for a year. This is my first National Night Out event. I learned a lot from it, including what to do right and what to fix. We had more than 1,500 people attend. I really thought this event was going to be a flop, but was amazed that it was such a success.

What do you like to do in your spare time?
I have three other part-time jobs, along with doing tax returns out of my house. I work a lot. I love spending time in my barn taking care of my horses and chickens. My family has an organization called Angel Haven Foundation. There are 300 people in the Appalachian Mountains that we help feed and clothe. We have been doing it for 17 years now. We collect unwanted stuff from people and have a huge benefit sale at my parents’ house every year. This year we are having our sale Sept. 20-24. I also spend as much time with my grandchildren, Owen and Trace, as I can.

What is something most people don’t know about you?
I have been a diabetic for 45 years and have neuropathy in both legs, but I walked the bridge (Mackinac) five miles last year with my husband, sister and cousins. Everyone thought I would not be able to do it, but I did. I love to do anything I can for anybody. I am taking over the Linden Angel tree this year for the kids at Linden schools. I love to decorate my house at Christmas time. I have 17 Christmas blow-ups that I love to display at Christmas with lots and lots of lights. I don’t like the color red.
MUGS to help ‘espresso’ yourself

BY VERA HOGAN
vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

August is “National Coffee Month.” Don’t ask us why, it just is. Rather than highlight the many types of coffees on the market today, we thought we’d share some fun, unique coffee mugs.

- This mug belongs in the dentist or orthodontist’s office. Mom can take her kids for their appointment and say, “See, you don’t want to look like this do you?”

- This is genius! Who would have thought of such a functional operation as a coffee mug complete with cookie holder. Oh yeah, that’s right — Santa Claus.

- Lego my coffee! Ha ha, very funny, but we’re not sure how drinking coffee from this mug would work out though. Seems like the urge to build something would take over and spillage could occur.

- Admit it, there is at least one person in your life that you would love to watch drink coffee out of this mug at your house. It’s just a joke though, don’t really poison them.

- This mug is very important. Some people hate tea and frequently say, “I would rather drink out of the toilet than drink a cup of tea.” So, drink coffee from this mug and remember — tea bad, coffee good.

- The only people who should own and drink out of a mug like this are an old couple, who have been married for at least 50 years, and are accustomed to discussing these sorts of things in private.

- These cups should belong to the Wicked Witch of the West. “You cursed brat! Look what you’ve done! I’m melting! Melting! Oh, what a world! What a world! Who would have thought a good little girl like you could destroy my beautiful (coffee)?”
Cut out the cost of name brands

New online company sells all brandless products for $3

By Hannah Ball
hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

While shopping, people tend to select name brand products. Chapstick when you need lip balm. Peligres for your morning cup of Joe and Lay’s for a salty snack are just a few examples.

However, one new online company is doing away with brand name products and selling all items for $3.

Brandless.com sells items like chips, lotions, coffee, jams, dishes, skin moisturizer, cotton balls, notebooks and kitchen supplies along with many other items.

It’s no secret that brand name items cost more.

“Brand tax is the hidden costs you pay for a national brand. We’ve been trained to believe these costs increase quality, but they rarely do,” according to the company’s website.

According to Brandless.com, people pay at least 40 percent more for products of comparable quality as ours, and sometimes up to 370 percent more for beauty products like face cream.

A daily facial moisturizer on Brandless costs $3 for 4 oz. Aveeno daily moisturizer costs $12.29. This brand tax also applies to food. Organic yellow corn tortilla chips are two for $3 on Brandless. Tostitos style tortilla chips are $4.

According to its website, they are able to cut costs by buying right from the manufacturer and not adding markups or going through a corporation.

“We partner with our suppliers to create packaging that makes sense, limits waste, and distills the values and ingredients you care about most,” according to Brandless.

The company offers certified organic, gluten-free, non-GMO, vegan, certified kosher, and no sugar added products.

The company also offers bundles. The Brandless bundle contains 19 items that are favorites of the company’s staff. The office starter kit contains 31 items ranging from office supplies, to lotions, to snacks and coffee and tea. The Brandless beauty basics contains eight items, and the university intern survival kit has five items.

Brandless went live July 11, 2017, based in San Francisco and Minneapolis. The company does not test their products on animals, and they have banned over 400 harmful ingredients, like parabens, polypropylene, phthalates, and sulfates from their beauty products.
