diamonds

ARE MORE THAN 'A GIRL'S BEST FRIEND'

Local jeweler shares valuable intel on the world's hardest substance

By Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Superman was right! Diamonds are 100 percent carbon, but compressing the substance into diamonds requires a bit more strength than most humans have in their hands.

Chip Beltinck, who owns Sawyer Jewelers in Fenton with his wife, Mary Ann, said not only are diamonds all carbon, they have been around for 3 million years.

Beltinck says less than 1 percent of the world's mined diamonds are made into jewelry. The most common uses for diamonds outside of fine jewelry are for industrial applications, he said.

Because diamonds are so strong, they are extremely effective at polishing, cutting, and drilling. Many industries, including automotive, mining, and military, use diamond saws and drills. Small diamond particles are added to drill bits and saw edges to make them more powerful for cutting tough materials.

Also, contrary to popular opinion, not all diamonds come from South Africa.

News briefs*OLD NEWSBOYS OF FLINT NEWSPAPER SALE

The Old Newsboys of Flint will be holding its annual newspaper sale on Friday, Dec. 8. Their volunteers will be on street corners throughout Genesee County as well as in front of some local businesses. For a complete list of where you can donate, go to their Facebook page "onbflint" or call (810) 744-1840. "This is one of our largest fundraisers," said Christopher Hamilton, executive director. Proceeds will provide Christmas boxes to needy children in Genesee County. The Old Newsboys have put presents under the tree for more than 806,000 children across Genesee County. Last year alone, 6,468 children received gifts. "We would like to thank our volunteers who generously donate their time to make this a successful fundraiser," Hamilton said. "With the support of the community we're making a difference, one child at a time."

Just sayin'...

vhogan@tctimes.com

My European vacation

In the early 1980s, I worked at the Chicago regional office of an international courier company. One of my responsibilities was to maintain the weekly "courier calendar."

To make a long story short, I had to make sure there was someone on a flight to London, England from Chicago, every night of the week. A traveler back then could take along four large pieces of baggage. So, it was cheaper for the company to fill four large canvas mail-type bags with small packages for delivery and send them through as luggage. That meant, however, that someone had to actually sit in the seat and deliver the baggage claim tickets to the waiting employee in London.

VERA HOGAN

I'm sure it's all together different now, but that's the way we used to do it.

I had regulars I could count on to go when I called, and once my dad's friends on the Chicago Police Department caught wind that I could send them to London for a week, for free, I had plenty of takers.

I took advantage of the benefit, too, and went with my older sister. Our grandparents lived in Frankfurt, Germany. We flew to London a day apart. I went first and stayed in a hotel until she got there. Then the two of us flew to Frankfurt, where our parents, who had already been there for a week, would meet us.

When we arrived at the Frankfurt airport, we looked around in awe and fear at nothing whatsoever written in English. There also were some impressive looking men in uniform, walking in pairs with what appeared to be some very large, scary looking high-powered rifles.

My sister said to me, "I don't think we're in Kaaaaannnnnsaaas anymore!"

Anyway, we met with Mom and Dad and had a great time touring the country and visiting with our grandparents.

A couple of little snags on that trip, though. When I arrived in London the first day, I was about to step off the curb to hail a taxi when I almost got run over by one. I forgot they drive on the wrong side of the road. Later, I found a nice restaurant and ordered dinner. I waited and waited and about an hour later, I asked about my meal (I wasn't sure if an hour was a normal wait time.) They said my waitress had to leave because her dad died. Nice, thanks for letting me know.

One of the little highlights of the trip was finally witnessing one of my siblings get it from Dad. We're driving through some of Germany's most beautiful countryside, with majestic mountains, lush hillsides and winding rivers. You almost wanted to break out and start singing "The Sound of Music."

My sister, who is from Bloomington, Illinois kept saying things like, "Oh, we have nice scenery like this in Bloomington." And, "Lake Bloomington is this nice in the summer." She would not stop.

My dad kept warning her, "If you don't shut up about Bloomington, I am going to pull this car over." And he did! She only had to walk a half a mile before he picked her up again. It was great!

Famous diamonds

Compiled By Vera Hogan • vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Diamonds may be a girl's best friend, but some large historic diamonds are thought to be cursed, while others were acquired after bitter battles of war. Each of the following diamonds has a unique story of its own.

Burton-Taylor Diamond

The Burton-Taylor Diamond is a 68-carat white cut, pear-shaped diamond, given to Elizabeth Taylor by Richard Burton. After their split, the diamond was sold for an estimated $5 million in 1978.

source: alexdonald.wordpress.com

Koh-i-Noor Diamond

The Koh-i-Noor that means "Mountain of Light" is a 105-carat diamond that was once the largest known diamond in the world. It became part of the British Crown Jewels when Queen Victoria was proclaimed Empress of India in 1877.

Hope Diamond

The Hope Diamond is a large, 45.52-carat deep-blue diamond, housed in the Smithsonian Natural History Museum in Washington, D.C.

The Orlov

The Orlov (sometimes spelled Orloff) is a large diamond that is part of the collection of the Diamond Fund of the Moscow Kremlin. It is widely reported that the diamond once served as an eye of the statue in a temple in southern India. The man held responsible for its removal was a French deserter, who apparently died after touching the gem.

www.s8.drugiegoroda.ru

Great Star of Africa

The Great Star of Africa is the largest rough gem-quality diamond ever found, at 3,106.75 carats. It was discovered in 1905 in South Africa. It was cut into 105 gems. It is kept, along with the other British Crown Jewels, in the Tower of London.

Tiffany Yellow Diamond

The Tiffany Yellow Diamond is one of the largest yellow diamonds ever discovered, at 287.42 carats in the rough when discovered in 1878. Founded by Charles Lewis Tiffany in 1837, Tiffany & Co. bought a great diamond necklace of Empress Eugénie, considered at the time to have been the finest single item to go on sale.

Darya-ye Noor Diamond

The Darya-ye Noor "Ocean of Light," weighing an estimated 182 carats is pale pink and one of the rarest to be found in diamonds. It is on display at the Central Bank of Iran in Tehran.

"Canada has a huge vein," Beltnick said. "There also are diamond sites in the United States."

According to geology.com, the discovery of numerous commercial diamond deposits in Canada has generated prospecting interest in the United States. Areas with similar geologic settings to the Canadian deposits exist in Alaska, Colorado, Minnesota, Montana, and Wyoming.

How do local jewelers get their diamonds? Beltnick said, "We have a sight-holder. They will buy in at $5 million for a bag of rough diamonds that look like rock salt. From there they go to a cutting facility in Antwerp (Belgium) or New York."

According to diamonds.net, a Sight-holder is a company on the De Beers Global Sightholder Sales's (DBGSS) list of authorized bulk purchasers of rough diamonds.

DBGSS is controlled by the De Beers Group, the largest producer and purveyor of rough diamonds in the world. DBGSS was previously known as DTC (Diamond Trading Company).

"The cutting is still done by hand for the larger diamonds," Beltnick said. "The smaller ones are done by machine."

Diamonds aren't always white. "There are natural purples, greens, reds, yellows and blue," he said.

Diamonds come in all shapes, sizes and price tags. The cost will depend on the size, color, clarity, shape and cut of the diamond.

And, of course, diamonds can be found not only in rings, but pendants and sometimes wrist watches.

Of the shapes, Beltnick said a round diamond is the most expensive because round cut diamonds require the most raw material to be made. It takes a larger rough diamond to cut a round diamond than other shapes.

Other shapes include the Marquise or Navette (oval shape), pear shape, Asher, which is somewhat square. Then there are the ovals, radiants, baguettes, tapered baguettes and triangles.

Beltnick also shared information that some people may not be aware of. Local jewelers enjoy proprietorship over some products and he used Rolex watches as an example.

"I can't sell Rolex watches in my store because Ronny (Medawar) over at Medawar Jewelers is the proprietor of that brand in this area," he said.

What this means, said Beltnick, is that someone can't come into my store and say "Hey, they are selling Rolexes over at that store for this much, what can you do for me." Sawyer can't do anything or offer a discount, according to Beltnick because Medawar has the proprietary relationship with Rolex. No one else in the area can sell Rolex watches except Medawar Jewelers.

"And that's great with me," said Beltnick, who says these types of proprietary relationships are a benefit to all retailers.

In addition to Sawyer (Cornerstone building downtown) and Medawar Jewelers (Silver Lake Road at Silver Parkway) the Fenton area is fortunate to have exclusive jewelry retailers that include Mos' Art Jewelers, Inc. (Silver Parkway) and Guenter Beholz Jewelers, Inc. (downtown Fenton), whose specialty is watch and jewelry repair.

FUNERAL ETIQUETTE

When you arrive at the funeral home, go to the family, and express your sympathy with an embrace or by offering your hands. Don't feel as though you must avoid talking about the person who has died. Talking can help the grieving process begin. If you were an acquaintance of the deceased but not well-known to the family, immediately introduce yourself. Do not feel uncomfortable if you or the family member becomes emotional or begins to cry. Allowing the family to grieve is a natural healing process. However, if you find yourself becoming extremely upset, it would be kinder to excuse yourself so as not to increase the strain on the family. Source: thefuneralsource.org
