

Parents upset about book, movie choices at Linden schools

■ Superintendent admits policy wasn't followed

Linden — Approximately six months after several Linden parents brought the issue of being unaware of their children watching R-rated movies and reading books with graphic material in class, Linden Superintendent

Russ Ciesielski presented a solution at the Wednesday, March 21 Board of Education meeting.

Numerous parents spoke at the meeting, upset because certain books and films contain sex, nudity, rape and other graphic material.

During the meeting, Sheila Kern, Linden parent, said, "We have numerous materials with themes of rape,

Teen testifies against alleged child predator

Derek Timothy Watson, 62, listens to testimony in the courtroom of 67th District Court Judge William Crawford on Thursday, March 22.

Flint — On Thursday, March 22, the alleged victim of Derek Watson said that when Watson asked her if they could "fool around," in his house, she didn't know what to do.

"I was just scared," said the 15-year-old girl who would have been 11 at the time of the alleged events she described.

While she spoke, Watson sat by his attorney, watching her and shaking his head back and forth.

Watson had entered the courtroom in handcuffs and crutches. He was led in by a Genesee County Sheriff's deputy for his first preliminary exam, with 67th District Court Judge William Crawford.

On Wednesday, March 21, at 10 a.m., some Holly students relayed a threat to the Holly Area Schools Police Resource Officer Michael Houck, said Police Chief Michael Story.

A suspended Holly High

School student allegedly posted a photo on Snapchat with the title, "I feel like shooting up a school today."

Officer Houck was familiar with the teen due to an unrelated contact with him the prior day. He conveyed the information to the Holly Police Department.

Approximately one-half hour later, a Holly police officer located the suspect's vehicle, which

Giant toy retailer closing U.S. doors

Readers share memories

By Hannah Ball

hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

On March 15, Toys R Us announced the closure of all 880 U.S. Toys R Us and Babies R Us stores. The well-known and popular toy franchise has been in business since 1957, but had reported declining sales since the early 1990s.

The company filed for bankruptcy in September 2017, with $4.8 billion worth of debt, hoping to restructure and rebuild. However, they were unable to operate under Chapter 11, mainly due to the amount of debt, causing the closure of U.S. stores for liquidation.

Many news outlets are calling the closures an “end of an era.”

Toys R Us blamed declining birth rates as a reason for a decline in sales. Birth rates have decreased since the early '90s, according to reuters.com, and many baby-focused and child-focused companies and organizations are feeling the lasting effects of a smaller population.

“I took my oldest there twice. He liked looking at everything and wanted everything.”

On Thursday, March 22, some items at Toys R Us in Flint Township are on clearance. The liquidation sale will begin soon.

In court filings for bankruptcy, the company also blamed big-chain stores like Walmart and Target for selling the same toys at a discount during the most recent holiday season so shoppers would buy toys there. Other factors the company cited are competition from online retailers, an increase in labor costs, and the popularity of online games.

On Facebook, the Times asked readers if they had any fond memories of shopping at the toy conglomerate.

Annette Murphy said, “My husband and I were both employees at the Flint (Linden Road) store when it first opened in 1978. We met while participating in the store bowling league. I worked as a cashier/sporting goods stock person, on the day shift and my husband worked in the back stockroom in the evening.

“We married in 1979 and are still married. It’s sad to hear that they are closing. I got chosen to dress up as Bat-girl one year to do meet and greet with the kiddies.”

■ Here are some fun facts about Tigers' opening day

By David Troppens

ssstone@tctimes.com; 810-433-6786

Forget about Detroit Tigers' season predictions.

Forget about last year's dismal performance.

When the Detroit Tigers open the 2018 Major League Baseball season at Comerica Park against the Pittsburgh Pirates at 1:10 p.m. on Thursday, none of that will matter to the 40,000-plus filling the stadium and the probably hundreds of thousands playing hooky from school and/or work to watch the game on television. Everyone is hopeful about the new season.

If there is a date that represents an unofficial sports holiday in Michigan, the Tigers Opening Day contest (the first game at Comerica Park every season), is it. As the Tigers prepare for Thursday's 118th edition of opening day, we thought it would be nice to look back at some interesting trivia about this special date.

What was the greatest Opening Day in Tigers' history?

It was the Tigers' first as a Major League Baseball team in 1901. Playing in what was then called Bennett Park, the Tigers trailed Milwaukee 13-4 entering the bottom half of the ninth inning. Certainly most of the 10,023 fans in attendance had probably already left anticipating the loss.

Instead, the Tigers scored 10 runs in the bottom of the ninth, winning the game 14-13 completing what remains the Tigers greatest ninth-inning comeback in franchise history. A key play came when Kid Gleason reached base on an error on what should've been the last out of the contest, earning Milwaukee a 13-12 victory. Instead, he reached base and Pop Dillon followed with a two-run double, earning the Tigers the 14-13 victory. What a way to start a Major League franchise!

Detroit vs. Pirates

What is Detroit's record on Opening Day?

The Tigers have a 66-50-1 record on Opening Day. In recent seasons, the Tigers have been outstanding on Opening Day, winning each of the last nine.

A tie, when did the tie happen?

In 1904, the Tigers tied the St. Louis Browns 4-4 in a game that was called due to darkness after 12 innings. In the early portion of the 1900s, it wasn't uncommon for teams to finish the season with a handful of ties due to darkness. The games were considered official games. The ties weren't counted toward the team records.

Two of the Tigers' biggest stars that remain for the 2018 baseball season are Miguel Cabrera and Victor Martinez. The Tigers begin their season on Thursday against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Comerica Park at 1:10 p.m.

Who is the most common Opening Day opponent in Tigers' history?

That honor goes to Cleveland with the Tigers playing them in 36 opening days. The Tigers haven't had much success against the Indians, Blues and Naps (all the names Cleveland has used over the years), going just 16-20. However, the last time the Indians were the Opening Day foe, the Tigers beat them 5-2 in 2010.

What is Detroit's best and worst record against Opening Day foes?

Let's base this on at least five Opening Days played. Detroit has a 5-1 record against the Boston Red Sox for their best record. Their 16-20 record against the Indians is the worst.

What is their record against the Pittsburgh Pirates?

This is the first time the Tigers have played the National League Pirates during Opening Day. In fact, it's the first time the Tigers have opened against a National League foe.

Who has been the Tigers Opening Day starter the most?

Unfortunately, we couldn't find a list for the Tigers' actual home openers. However, if we want to look at the Tigers' season-opener, which is frequently a road contest, Jack Morris owns the record with 11 starts with the Tigers winning seven of them. Starting in 1903, George Mullin started 10 times, with the Tigers going 5-5 in those contest. Justin Verlander started nine games, with the Tigers winning six of them.

Who are the Tigers' established star players entering 2018?

Miguel Cabrera and Victor Martinez are two of the few starters remaining from most of Detroit's recent glory seasons, but they are aging. Jordan Zimmerman will be the Tigers' starting pitcher on opening day, but Michael Fulmer should be the team's best pitcher this summer. This year's starting lineup will be drastically different from the one from a year ago. The Tigers are certainly in a rebuilding mode.

Prosecutor warns students of consequences for making false terrorism threats

By Hannah Ball

hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Linden — The message conveyed to Linden students on Tuesday, March 20 was that threatening to shoot up a school, even as a joke, is a crime and police will get involved.

Genesee County Prosecutor David Leyton and Deputy Chief Assistant Prosecutor John Potbury stopped by Linden High School and gave a presentation to students about the ramifications of making false threats to kill people.

“Ever since last month in Parkland, there has been a different environment around the country, a heightened sensitivity to these acts,” Potbury said.

Linden has experienced numerous threats in the past few years. Three teenagers were arrested for making threats on social media in October 2015. Police have investigated two additional potential threats originating from the district since the Parkland shooting on Feb. 14 when 17 people were shot and killed at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School.

Potbury showed photos of the schools from Columbine, Virginia Tech, Sandy Hook, and most recently, Parkland.

“In the past four weeks since Parkland, Florida, our office has received 10 reports from local police agencies from Linden to Clio, from Flushing to Bentley schools ... Incidents where students have made threats of some sort that they are going to shoot up a school,” Potbury said to the students. “There were some instances where students had hit lists.”

The day after the Parkland shooting, Ken Engel, school resource officer for Linden, reported a YouTube video, which a Linden student helped make. The lyrics threatened to shoot other people and the principal. The prosecutor’s office determined there was not probable cause that a crime was committed and did not pursue the case.

“These types of incidents, threats to shoot up a school, are not a joke,” Potbury said.

Another threat involved a student writing a threat on a desk.

Potbury mentioned free speech, and the limits that have been set by the Supreme Court.

Genesee County Prosecutor David Leyton speaks to ninth- and 10th-grade students about the legal and social ramifications of threatening to shoot up a school at Linden High School on Tuesday, March 20.

“There are certain times when free speech has its limits,” he said, mentioning past Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. “He once said you cannot falsely shout fire in a crowded theater.”

He implored the kids to imagine if someone shouted, “Someone’s got a gun” in the crowded auditorium and everyone rushed to get out.

“You know damn well you’d be scared to death to think that someone had gone to Linden High School with a gun,” he said. “People could get killed in the trampling.”

Making these threats can result in severe social and legal consequences.

Leyton told the students, “Your friends know that you’ve got issues. Your name has been sullied. You have to go to court. You may not be able to go to school. You may not be able to participate in after school activities. You may have to hire a lawyer and it’s going to cost you a whole bunch of money.”

According to Michigan law, threatening terrorism or making a false report or threat of terrorism is illegal and carries a potential 20-year prison sentence.

“Whether you think you’re joking was occupied, and he called for assistance. A second officer arrived to assist. Two males were taken in to the station for interview and investigation.

It is unknown whether the males are students at Holly High School.

While the officers continued the initial investigation, Houck interviewed the two males. As a result of the investigation and interview, one of the males was released. The other, a 17-year-old Holly resident was arrested and later transported to the Oakland County Jail.

The investigation is ongoing.

The incident will be forwarded to the Oakland County Prosecutors Office for review and charges on Friday, March 23.

“The swiftness was attributable to students immediately coming forward to our Resource Officer with this threat,” Story said. “His immediate assessment and forwarding critical information very quickly to officers led to an arrest within an hour’s time.”

which is an app people can put on their phones. The program, run by the Attorney General’s office, is an outlet for people to post tips about people who are being bullied or anything that could harm them or others. Potbury encouraged students to use the app, if needed.

How a sneeze spreads

■ Each sneeze can produce as many as 40,000 germ-filled droplets

By Hannah Ball

hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Despite spring peeking out from behind the clouds, sicknesses are still going around. Sneezes are a huge culprit for the spreading of germs. To prevent coming down with a bug, learn how to sneeze properly and enlighten others.

When you sneeze, you are spraying germs into the air for other people to encounter. When you're sick, it's even worse.

Here's how it happens:

One sneeze can produce as many as 40,000 droplets, and many are too small to be seen with the naked eye. The larger drops fall to the floor and the lighter ones stay in the air longer and land on a desk, shelf or doorknob.

Moving objects can move these germs. For example, if you sneeze near your bed and then ruffle the sheets hours later, you're moving around those sneeze germs. Opening a door can greatly spread the viruses from room to room.

The airborne particles can survive for hours and land on common items, such as paper, pens, and phones. Once these particles are breathed in, they stay at the back of the throat and the virus infiltrates the body's cell. Whether a person will fall ill depends on how much of the virus is breathed in and the person's immune system.

You may think not covering your mouth when you sneeze or cough is harmless, but you're spreading germs into the air and potentially affecting other people.

When someone comes down with an illness like a cold, the body tries to deal with the infection by bringing up mucus to help clear it. Some mucus is swallowed and is destroyed by stomach acid. When the mucus is coughed out, the germs are released into the air again.

To combat the spread of germs, scientists recommend you cover your mouth when you cough and sneeze. Then wash your hands.

CHILD PREDATOR

A preliminary exam is the first court proceeding whereby witnesses are called and evidence is presented to the judge. The teen sat for questioning by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Mark Zelley and Watson's attorney, Nicholas Robinson.

Because she is a minor, her name and any images of her are not being published.

Watson was arraigned in December 2017 on multiple charges, including being in possession of child sexually abusive material, criminal sexual conduct with an individual under 13 years of age and being a felon in possession of a firearm.

The charges, according to the Genesee County 67th District Court, date back to an alleged offense in 2013 involving the then 11-year-old girl.

Zelley walked the teenager through several incidents prior to April 2015, in which Watson allegedly penetrated her using a sex toy, asked her to touch his genitals, and took pictures of her genitals, among other acts.

Before the incidents, she was friends with Watson's son, and admitted that Watson was somewhat of a father figure to her. She visited the house most days, and Watson would buy them all food. She said Watson bought her her first smartphone.

The first inappropriate incident Zelley addressed was when while out shopping with his son and the alleged victim, Watson offered to buy her a thong, which he later asked her to model for him. She said she didn't know what to do, so she complied.

After her testimony, Robinson sought to draw attention to certain conflicts in her previous interviews with police. While on the stand, she said she thinks the events occurred when it was warm out, while the GCSO report indicated that she thought there was snow on the ground.

"I remember all that I need to remember," she said.

Robinson questioned her, seeking to cast doubt on the events, and pointed out that she didn't report the incidents until much later.

At times, she flat out disagreed with his assertions. He suggested that interviews with police years after the incident helped to fill in her "fuzzy" memories. "So the stories change, right?" said Robinson.

"Not a lot," said the teen.

"But they do change," he said.

Eventually she told her mother, her boyfriend and a school counselor about the incidents. The school counselor learned about the general situation in November 2017.

The prosecution also brought Det. Jason Murphy of the GCSO Detective Bureau to discuss seizing shotguns from Watson's home, which as a felon stemming from a 1988 marijuana charge, he couldn't legally own.

A probable cause conference on Thursday, March 29 is the next step, where both parties will go over any available records from a meeting between the teen and her school counselor, where she mentioned the alleged incidents.

Michigan one of worst in nation for third-grade reading

■But local students consistently score above state average

By Hannah Ball

hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

According to an education report by The Education Trust-Midwest, Michigan's third-grade reading levels showed the greatest decline compared to other states participating in the same assessment. The state was also one of only five states that show negative improvement for early reading since 2003.

This decline comes after the state invested nearly $80 million to improve reading outcomes.

Test results

In the 2016 - 2017 school year, only 44 percent of third graders in Michigan were proficient in reading, which is down from 50 percent in 2014-2015. However, area schools are above state average.

According to data from mischooldata.com from the 2016-2017 MSTEP and SAT assessments, Linden Community Schools' third grade students were 57 percent proficient in English Language Arts (ELA), which includes reading, and Lake Fenton's third-grade students were 54 percent proficient. Fenton and Holly third-grade students were 47 percent proficient in ELA.

Problems with reading retention

Holly Superintendent Scott Roper said Holly students consistently test at or above state average. He said one reason why students fall behind is a lack of summer reading.

"There is a great deal of research that tells us that summer reading loss is an enormous problem that can have a lasting impact on a student's educational future. In fact, some reports say that the cumulative loss from the lack of summer reading can create a gap of almost 2 years by sixth grade," he said.

To combat this, Holly has secured grant money to buy nearly 9,000 books for its 975 Young 5s through third-grade students for the summer. They are also implementing a program to provide five summer reading books for every fourth- and fifth-grade student.

Problem areas with the state

According to the report, the state did not give proper guidance to school districts when adopting college and career-ready standards. Michigan created a statewide evaluation system, but implementation is weak, and there is no statewide system of teacher and school leader professional development.

The report also states that Michigan lacks a strategic approach with literacy coaching, and the state does not have a history of identifying and effectively supporting the lowest performing schools.

Solutions?

In October 2016, Gov. Rick Snyder signed into a law a third-grade reading law that requires third-grade students meet state-determined reading proficiency requirements in order to go on to fourth grade. Students must take three standardized tests and prove proficiency before they move on. The requirements start in the 2019-2020 school year.

All local school districts have interventionists to help students who are falling behind in reading. Additionally, legislation has passed in hopes of improving reading levels.

Cheryl Thomas, principal of Hyatt Elementary in Linden, said educators are continually researching best practices to support students in classrooms.

"Most recently, the 'Literacy Essentials' have assisted schools in reflecting on instructional practices literacy and have provided potential areas for professional development," she said. "Linden sees the strength of their readers in their accuracy and are honing in on essential practices in comprehension."

“There is a great deal of research that tells us that summer reading loss is an enormous problem that can have a lasting impact on a student's educational future.”

THE SECOND amendment says the right to bear arms shall not be infringed. Better scholars than you explain the militia portion of amendment is descriptive as to one of the many needs of the right to bear arms.

FENTON SCHOOL

began issuing waivers in 2006 to get around the state law designed to boost state tourism in August and early September.

For the 2018-2019 school year Fenton Area Public Schools will join them. The first day of the school year will be Tuesday, Aug. 28, according to Superintendent Adam Hartley.

Additionally, block scheduling, which has been in place in Fenton schools for about 20 years, is gone after the current school year.

Early start

"Many schools are looking at the MDE Pre-Labor Day start waiver and making decisions based on academics for the upcoming school calendar year," Hartley said. "Fenton Area Public Schools decided to move to this new calendar for the 2018-19 school year to address our academic goals."

"With the new third-grade reading laws, schools must have all students tested within the first 30 days of school and have an iRIP (individual reading intervention plan) created for those students behind grade level," Hartley said. "We are wanting to accomplish this sooner than later and have ample time to meet with families to collaborate on interventions to prepare our students in the areas of reading and writing."

"We are enhancing our summer programming this year and would like to shorten the time between our summer instruction and the start of school," he said. "It is imperative our younger students have shorter gaps in their learning and the momentum that is developed in summer programming, taught by FAPS teachers, has a sense of continuity moving into the fall."

This summer FAPS is offering Credit Forward opportunities for students who are in a position credit wise where they can take a class online and gain high school credit to free their schedule during the year for more electives, Hartley said.

"We are also beginning our Southern Lakes Early College with Mott Community College and the three-day head start allows us to ensure the students participating are ready to go for the orientation and first of year events," he said.

"Beginning a week early this year allows us to end the school year in the first week of June as well."

The Holly, Lake Fenton and Linden school districts are not making the change with the upcoming school year.

Kindergarten open house

The kindergarten open house is one part of the school calendar that is the product of legally required bargaining between the teacher's union and the district.

"Parents will know which classroom and which teacher their child has well before the first day of school," Hartley said. "Families will be able to access the buildings and see the classrooms before the first day of school. Parents, once classroom placement is communicated, may call and set up a time with the building principal to visit the school and take a tour."

Block scheduling

The Fenton Education Association (FEA) and the FAPS Board of Education have worked together to ensure a much better financial landscape for the school community for years to come, Hartley said.

"The A/B day block staffing model has been a part of FHS for almost 20 years and AGS for seven years," he said. "While many staff, students and administration enjoy this staffing model and schedule, it became clear that this type of schedule is becoming harder and harder to maintain financially."

According to a letter sent to parents at the beginning of this school year, Hartley said, "This transition allows us to have a less intensive staffing model, while maintaining the high academic standards Fenton Area Public Schools provides for our students."

The schedule structure, beginning with the start of the school year on Aug. 28, will include a reduction of teacher planning time from 88 minutes per day to 58 minutes per day, while adding significant instructional time during the school year.

The middle school and high school students will have six, 58-minute class periods each day with an advisory period for other activities.

Gracie Warda will be a junior at Fenton High School for the 2018-2019 school year. "I really enjoy block scheduling and all the opportunities it gives us as students. It allows us to take home minimal homework, which means that we have time for other things outside of school."

"I really don't know of any students who dislike block scheduling, it's really great for the students and the teachers," Gracie said. "The new schedule will still have Student Resource Time (SRT) which is like a study hall, and I really appreciate that because it's really helpful to have an opportunity to talk to your teachers and finish homework, especially if you're busy after school."

"There are definitely going to be some growing pains with the traditional schedule because some of us have been on a block schedule since sixth grade, so it will definitely be an adjustment," she said.

TOYS R US

Jeanette Sugar said, “My all time favorite store was actually Children’s Palace. My family only went to Toys R Us after the other store shut down. I used to go there as a kid. It was fun wandering the aisles. Now as a parent, I’ve only been to Toys R Us less than 10 times.

“I took my oldest there twice. He liked looking at everything and wanted everything. However, as a parent the store lacked that magical feel it did for me as a kid. Not the best to navigate and organization lacks greatly. Prices, to me, are better elsewhere for what my child is into. I’m sad the store has to close, but it happens.”

Sarah Koza said, “They have nobody but themselves to blame. Drastically over priced and they refuse to price match. You can shop elsewhere (Walmart, Meijer, Amazon, Target) getting better deals. If the above stores don’t have it on their shelves, they offer free shipping if you order online to the store or to your home. Toys R Us cannot compete with that.”

Mary Johnson said, “Well, no fond memories as a child but we had twin daughters (1984) and made many many runs for diapers!”

History of Toys R Us

When Charles Lazarus was 25, he opened a store called Children’s Bargain Town in Washington, D.C. to cater to the baby boom in 1948. He ran the store himself, from taking care of the books to delivering products to customers’ homes.

This turned into Toys R Us. At first, he only sold furniture, but expanded with clothes and toys and set up stores nationwide.

The first Kids R Us store opened in Paramus, New Jersey and Brooklyn, New York in 1983. The next year, the store went international with openings in Canada and Singapore.

In 1992, President George H.W. Bush traveled to Japan to attend the opening of that country’s first Toys R Us store.

The first Babies R Us opened in 1996 in Westbury, New York. Toysrus.com launched two years later in 1998.

The Center of the Toy Universe in New York City’s Times Square opened in 2001 with a 60-foot Ferris wheel, a 20-foot animatronic T-rex, a life-size Barbie dollhouse and New York City skyline made of Legos. The store closed in December 2015.

Lazarus died on Thursday, March 22 at the age of 94. He no longer held a stake in the Toys R Us chain. He remained CEO until 1994.

Trying to save Toys R Us?

One toy manufacturer is putting his money where his mouth is in trying to save Toys R Us. Issac Larian, chief executive of MGA Entertainment Inc., and the man who marketed the Bratz dolls and the toy LOL Surprise, started a Gofundme in order to save the toy company. Larian and other investors kicked off the crowdfunding campaign by pledging $200 million, accompanied with the hashtag #SaveToysRUs. Their goal is to raise another $800 million to reach $1 billion to help the company through the bankruptcy process.

PARENTS UPSET

molestation, promiscuous sex. It's not isolated. It's again and again. It's not fair for parents to have their kids singled out again and again just because the nature of the material is inconsistent with values at home."

Jannette Ropeta said, "With the education in this school, they are more aware and educated on R-rated and explicit material, they also know what else is out there," she said. "Why can't teachers offer a few alternative choices that would be acceptable to parents who don't want their children exposed to vulgarity or sexual explicit content?"

She said it can be damaging for students who have been raped or molested to watch the material if they didn't opt out.

One parent said the teachers should focus on positive works, and asked, "If you have to talk about rape and injustice, let's talk about it in a positive way."

Another parent, Sarah Tottingham, said people need to respect the parent's choice to decide what is appropriate and what is not. She said it's not appropriate when students are only given the option of reading books like "A Clockwork Orange" and "A Brave New World," books that address rape and sex. She said it's not the teacher's main job to tell students about the world and what to expect.

Dan Schneider, literature teacher, told the board that those two books are options in group projects. Students have a list of books to choose from, and if they choose those books, he sends home a permission slip for parents to sign.

English teacher Bethany George said implementing more choices would be hard. "It would be very difficult to have a class of 30 people reading three different books," she said.

"I think that's one thing in the 10th-grade class we really do with a book," she said. "I know it's one of the books that's been objected to, 'A Lesson Before Dying.' I start out with 'what does it mean to feel worth and be worthy?'"

George said on the topic of rape, she teaches by using the book "Speak," which is about a girl who is raped, but there is no rape scene. The book focuses on trauma.

"We had a student speak last week about how that has helped her," she said.

George said she would love to be positive, but there many bad things in the world and it's important to talk about those, too. "I wish all kids had involved parents but unfortunately we don't," she said.

George said teachers who have degrees in education and writing curriculum know more about writing curriculum.

At the March 7 meeting, George told the board that at the beginning of each course, she gives students a packet explaining the literary works they will be reading. Additionally, a summer reading packet is always sent home with information about the books. Alternative options are always offered if a student has an issue with a certain book, she said. Over her 18 years of teaching, she's had 10 requests for alternatives.

Multiple students spoke in favor of George and Schneider at the March 7 meeting.

Changes to be made

Ciesielski admitted the high school has not been following policy for about three years when it comes to approving films and books taught in class.

"We have not followed our own process. We realize that," he said. Policy will be followed. Including board approval. On Jan. 26, the board enacted a new district-wide policy, and aims to implement a new curriculum adoption process for the 2018-2019 school year.

"The first proposed policy change was the exclusion of any nudity or sexually explicit activity in movie clips" he said.

G-rated movies can be shown, parent permission is needed with PG and PG-13 movies, and teachers can no longer show NC-17 or R-rated movies.

"Currently, there is a district-wide moratorium on showing R-rated movies," he said. Students can opt out of watching any movie for religious reasons.

From previous meetings, Ciesielski identified issues brought forth from the concerned parents. The first issue is that parents said they weren't aware of the course material before students were reading the books. Ciesielski said all course material, including required reading and what movies they will watch, will be posted on the LHS website with disclosure statements and the syllabi will require a parent signature.

Parents were concerned that certain books were mandatory reading regardless of content, and parents said that no equal choices were offered. Other concerns were singling out students if they object to course material and that a one-size fits all policy does not address a diverse population.

Ciesielski said they have policy guidelines in place, specifically administrative guidelines 2240B, alternative learning activities for opt-out students that addresses this. He said they would do better to follow policy.

Ciesielski asked parents to be patient as the changes are implemented.

Kern said a lot of their issues were addressed in Ciesielski's presentations, but they are "words on paper." Policy hasn't been consistently followed for 13 years, she said, adding that only 15 items have been approved by the board in those 13 years, when there are 91 courses at the high school with multiple literature texts.

"Where's the accountability?" she said.

Kern said the moratorium of R-rated movies was in place, but learned through a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request that two R-rated movies were approved after the moratorium was put in place on Jan. 26.

“Why can’t teachers offer a few alternative choices that would be acceptable to parents who don’t want their children exposed to vulgarity or sexual explicit content?”

Times Staff Reporter Hannah Ball stands on The Great Wall of China during a two-week trip in March.

My two-week China adventure

■ From Great Wall, to healthier foods and bartering at markets

By Hannah Ball
hball@tctimes.com; 810-433-6792

Suzhou, China — From March 3 to 17, I was more than 7,000 miles away from Michigan, visiting my parents in Suzhou, China.

I went with my sister, Rebecca, her fiancé, John, and our uncle, Paul. What an adventure.

Here's what's different and here's what's similar.

Most Asians have dark, straight hair. If you have blonde, curly hair like me, people will stare at you and ask to take photos with you. There was a language barrier, but a lot of people know some English, which goes a long way when complemented with hand motions and Google translate.

Their cashiers get to sit while working, which is much better than America. Their subway systems, especially in Suzhou, are super clean.

There's a huge focus on plants and trees. The Chinese love flowers, especially in the cities. You'll see rows and rows of beautiful flowers and trees separating lanes in the road, or on the sidewalks or on walkways above busy intersections.

There were security guards everywhere. Suzhou is a very low-crime area, and our Chinese guide in Beijing said most cities in China are pretty safe.

“‘Made in China’ has a much different ring when you’re shopping in China.”

It's the most populated country in the world, and wow, did I notice that in Beijing. There are way too many people in Beijing with an estimated 22 million population. For reference, about 8 million live in New York City. We went for three days, mainly to hike The Great Wall, which was spectacular. It bends and curves, and the many of the stone steps are uneven. I have no idea how those soldiers navigated that thing when it was icy or wet, because I almost tripped a few times when it was dry.

Shanghai was wonderful, especially Pudong and the Bund at night. They're on the Huangpu River. The lights on the tall buildings make for a breathtaking sight.

Pollution is a major issue. The air quality index wasn't bad in Suzhou when we were there, but on our last day in Beijing, the air quality was described as “very unhealthy” on their weather report. I had a headache all day. Many people wear masks when the air gets bad.

This is partly why my parents are there. My dad is an engineer for Umicore, and he helps to reduce automotive emissions.

One of the best things about China is the markets. At these markets, look at the price tag and offer less than half. Walk away at least once and then they'll give you a great deal. I bought scarves for my friends for 80 RMB (which is about $12 USD) each, when they were originally marked at 475 RMB each. “Made in China” has a much different ring when you're shopping in China.

SUMMARY

■ China is very different from America, but has many similarities.

The food is far healthier than American food. They don't eat a lot of bread, to my dismay, but they do like rice. Most traditional Chinese meals focus on meats, vegetables and maybe some mushrooms. Duck is popular, and any meat that's considered to be high quality comes with bones in it. Sharing is a huge thing also. For most meals, everyone at the table shares multiple dishes. By the way, I have mastered the art of chopsticks.

Liquor is cheaper than wine and beer. The Chinese love baiju, which is 53 proof. Be careful with baiju. The Chinese word for “beer” is “pijiu,” which we used a lot.

The toilets, or more commonly known as “squat potties,” are toilets that are in the ground. Many people say they're just a hole in the ground, but that's not accurate. It's a toilet in the ground that you squat over, do your business, and then flush. It's a great leg workout and a lot more sanitary than sitting down on a seat. However, their sewer systems cannot handle paper very well, so all toilet paper is thrown in the trash.

I learned about how the government is developing apartment buildings and then pushing people into cities. I asked about their taxes and social customs and so much more, but it's impossible to fit everything in a short article.

Meet ROSEMARY STICKEL

- Writer
- Artist
- Nonagenarian (in her 90s)

By Sally Rummel

news@tctimes.com; 810-629-8282

Rosemary Stickel, 95, has lived through the Depression and World War II, and raised three children, Andrea Van de Kamp 75, of Los Angeles, California; David Stickel, 67, of Fenton and Cynthia Alexander, 65, of Plymouth. She is proud to have six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren following in her footsteps of life.

Times Associate Editor Vera Hogan got to know Stickel when she taught a "Write Your Life Story" class at the Loose Center back in the mid-2000s, and Stickel wrote a few stories for the paper.

Where did you grow up?

I had an idyllic childhood in a small town in Indiana. My dad owned the Ford dealership. It was just before the Depression. It was just so happy. My folks were happy and in love. Things changed with the Depression and the future became very uncertain.

What was it like to live through the Depression?

After the stock market crash in 1929, my life changed forever. I was 8 and didn't really understand the enormity of it all. One of my dad's friends, a banker, committed suicide. Dad was forced to close down his business and we moved back to Detroit, where he went to work for Max O'Leary Ford.

We often had someone living with us, so many people were out of work. Men stood on street corners selling apples or trinkets, anything for a few coins. You have to have lived through

"I don't know how I got so lucky. I've had a wonderful life."
Rosemary Stickel
Fenton resident

it to understand it. It was like moving into an Ice Age.

What did you do during the World War II?

I was very fortunate to work as a draftsman at Smith, Hinchman & Grylls in Detroit during the war. I had majored in art in college and that's how I got the job. Most of the men were fighting in the war.

That job led me into very interesting things. I got to know architect Minoru Yamasaki (designer of the original World Trade Center in New York City) very well and also architect Eero Saarinen, who designed the St. Louis Arch and the Fenton Community & Cultural Center.

What happened after the war?

After the war, I had insight into the post-war world. Freeways changed the way we lived and how we shopped. People were buying cars and could get around. Northland Mall became the new retail center in metro Detroit. My husband was an architect and was one of the designers. I was there for all the beginnings of these new things.

How did you end up living in Fenton?

We raised our family in the Birmingham-Troy area and I moved here in 1996 to be closer to my son, David, and his family. I knew it would be easier on him to be closer as I was getting older. David and Debbie live just around the corner from us.

TRI-COUNTY TIMES
TIM JAGIELO

Rosemary Stickel, 95, lives in WellBridge of Fenton. She is already planning her 100th birthday.

What was the best advice you ever received?

I was kind of brash and didn't always listen. It comes back in spades; you better think twice about things.

My biggest regret now is how I probably hurt people's feelings along the way. I'm sorry about that, I wish I could change it. I never gave it a thought when I was young. Now I have time to be introspective.

What do you think of the state of the world today?

I am an anachronism — I'm not of this time or place. My main interpretation of things comes from my 20th century perspective. That was my time. I know things are always changing. When I think about my grandparents living before cars, refrigerators and bathrooms, it blows my mind.

What are your goals for this year?

I want to be able to go to my grandson's wedding in October. I'll get all gussied up for the occasion. My daughter Andrea's oldest daughter is getting married in California in May, but I can't travel anymore.

To what do you attribute your longevity?

I picked the right parents — my mom lived until 94 and my dad until 91. They never smoked or drank. I have a first cousin who lived to 101 and my Aunt Sue was just a month shy of her 100th birthday when she passed. I don't know how I got so lucky. I've had a wonderful life.

How do you plan to celebrate your 100th birthday?

My best friend from high school is still going strong, and so is one of my best neighbor friends from growing up. We played since we were toddlers. We're all planning to hold on and celebrate our 100th birthdays together at the Park Place Hotel in Traverse City.

Fenton's new varsity softball coach Ken Brant talks to his players during an outdoor practice at Fenton High School on Thursday.

Fenton's Brant, Linden's Puente begin tenures as new head coaches

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

When Fenton High School needed a new varsity softball coach, athletic director Mike Bakker only had to look in his own hometown for a solution. That's where he found Ken Brant.

The same was true when Linden athletic director Greg Durkac hired Tony Puente to lead the Eagles' varsity baseball program.

Both coaches live in the communities where they just became head coaches.

Brant, who also had a daughter in the Fenton program at one time, is excited to have this opportunity.

"I'm from Fenton and I love the game of softball," Brant said. "I'm excited about the opportunity Fenton has given to me. I did have a daughter who played in the program but now she's in college and moved on. I just wanted to help the program."

Linden resident Puente also jumped on the opportunity to coach in his hometown. He has 15 seasons of varsity baseball experience, coaching at Milford, Fowlerville and Hartland.

"I found out about the job through (ex-Linden coach) Steve Buerkel and what got me excited is that I live in Linden. It was an opportunity to coach in my hometown.

"Even though Hartland (isn't far), living in the same hometown is kind of neat. They live and go to school in the same community, so I might see them at the stores when you coach in the same community."

LF's Trombley leads our 2018 wrestling class

■ LF senior completes dominating career with fourth state championship

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

Being a four-time prep individual state champion has its privileges.

Lake Fenton's Jarrett Trombley learned that lesson only minutes after capturing his fourth state title this wrestling season.

"There was one moment when I went into the stands (after winning his fourth state title) I asked my mom if I can have $5 to get some dipping dots," Trombley said. "A guy in the crowd heard me ask and said, 'come on he's a four-timer, get him some dipping dots.'"

Trombley has earned another right that one could expect after winning his fourth state championship this March. He's now our 2018 Tri-County Wrestler of the Year.

Trombley had a senior season with the Blue Devils no other Lake Fenton wrestler has ever accomplished.

Trombley finished his prep career at 194-1 overall. In fact, during his Lake Fenton career (his last three prep wrestling seasons) he was undefeated. He also capped his career by becoming only the 23rd prep wrestler to win four individual state championships, earning the most recent in the Division 3 individual tournament at 130 pounds at Detroit's Ford Field in March, capping a perfect 59-0 senior season.

And, of course, he was able to get the five bucks for his dipping dots to celebrate.

Trombley's beginning as a wrestler

When it comes to wrestling, Trombley was a natural to the sport almost from the first time he put on some wrestling tights.

"I remember that I started when I was 5 years old," Trombley said. "My dad was a coach and my older brothers wrestled, so I wanted to be like my older brothers. I was pretty good so I stuck with it.

"I remember my first year I had 40-something wins, one loss and won MWYA states that year."

Lake Fenton wrestling coach Vance Corcoran remembers the first time he saw Trombley wrestle.

"His dad and I are good friends and he told me

(at a youth wrestling meet) you have to watch him wrestle. Even at 9 and 10 years old, he was phenomenal. He was doing the crazy stuff he's doing now and was head and shoulders above everyone else. He was a tough little kid."

Trombley's senior season

Trombley's domination was evident all season long. He was so dominant, in fact, it probably spurred him on to finding some other motivation to help him prepare for his 2018 state championship quest. During the summer, he was looking at the Michigan High School Athletic Association record book and saw the state record for takedowns was 526.

“I thought I could probably break that,” Trombley said. “I started the season getting as many takedowns as I could. I had about 100 takedowns in three meets and I thought I could do this.

“Later in the season I got my conditioning up. Taking people down so much is tough before you get your conditioning up.

As the season went on, I kept getting better and being able to compete longer throughout the match. When I was approaching 500, I knew I could definitely do it, so I kept pushing forward.”

Trombley not only broke the record, but pretty much demolished it, recording 609 takedowns during the season.

“I don’t get a trophy for it, but it’s a cool milestone accomplishment, and it’s kind of cool to say I’m the national record holder,” he said.

“He broke the old record by 80,” Corcoran said. “He doesn’t get tired. ... We started keeping him after practice every day to run sprints and he did it every single day”

Area track teams begin season at SVSU indoor meet

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

The spring sports season has begun, but the first event wasn’t outdoors.

Fenton’s and Holly’s track programs competed at the annual Saginaw Valley State University indoor track meet, and each had their share of solid performances.

The Fenton boys track team had the most top-20 performances of the area squads at the meet. John Sage had two of them, taking 13th in the 60-meter dash (7.43) and 14th in the 200 (23.61). Fenton’s best individual performances were earned by Chanse Setzke and Samuel Deardorff with both taking thirds. Deardorff took third in the 3,200 (9:44.06) while Setzke took third in the long jump (20-foot-6).

Other individual Fenton boys with top-20 efforts were: Adam Jesse, fourth in the 3,200 (9:45.15); Nolan Day, seventh in the 1,600 (4:38.26); Mitchell Chabot, eighth in the 1,600 (4:38.45); Ryan Miller, 12th in the long jump (18-7 1/2); Ethan Pyeatt, 17th in the 400 (54.19); and Ethan Krantz, 19th in 60 hurdles (9.82).

The Holly varsity girls track team had nine top-20 performances with two athletes earning two of them. Andrea Ruiz took 10th in the 800 (2:31.16) and 13th in the 1,600 (5:31.37) while Monica Ruiz took 11th in the 400 (1:04.65) and 17th in the 800 (2:35.89).

performances were: Gabrielle St. Andre, 10th in the 60 (8.44); Samantha Tschirhart, 17th in 200 (1:05.9); Hannah Muth, 13th in 60 hurdles (10.84); Annah Charles, 17th in the 60 hurdles (11.20); and Emily Sanders, 18th in the high jump (4-3).

2017-18 All Tri-County Wrestling Team

Times 2018 Wrestler of the Year

Most Valuable Wrestler	Team	Rec	Postseason
------------------------	------	-----	------------

130) Jarrett Trombley Lake Fenton 59-0 State champion
Comment: Trombley is one of the greatest wrestlers in Michigan prep history after capturing his fourth straight state championship. Trombley, who started wrestling at Lake Fenton his sophomore season, never lost a match during his career with the Blue Devils. He’ll be wrestling at North Carolina State next school year.

The rest of the first team

Wrestler	Team	Record	Postseason
103) Luke Thornton	Linden	40-9	State qualifier
112) Nate Young	Holly	46-10	State qualifier
119) Justin Cygnar	Linden	35-11	Fifth at state
125) Gavin Lawrence	Lake Fenton	32-16	Regional qualifier
135) Jayden Rittenbury	Fenton	42-8	Third at state
135) Brady Triola	Fenton	42-12	Seventh at state
140) Mario Ramirez	Fenton	25-20	Regional qualifier
145) Sean Trombley	Lake Fenton	48-2	Second at state
145) Carsen Cuthbert	Holly	53-9	Sixth at state
152) Thomas Adams	Fenton	40-8	State qualifier
160) Jackson Nevadomski	Lake Fenton	43-2	State champion
171) Cade Dallwitz	Holly	53-5	Second at state
189) Jonathan Marme	Linden	25-17	Regional qualifier
215) Collin Dallwitz	Holly	47-12	State qualifier
285) Blake Querio	Holly	44-16	Sixth at state

Note: This team is selected based on the wrestler that had the best performance in the individual state series. If there are no placers at a particular weight in the state series we select the highest placer at the league meets. There may be up to two wild card positions, but to qualify for one of the two spots, the wrestler must compete at the state meet. Records are based on MSHAA state meet results.
