Two-story spa to be built at Mill and Adelaide streets

By Vera Hogan vhogan@tctimes.com

After five years of helping clients look and feel their best, Rejuv Ave. Skin Spa in downtown Fenton is looking forward to a major makeover of its own.

The spa opened in January of 2013 and in the fall of 2014, the owner expanded the downtown location, tripling its size, which included frontage on South LeRoy Street.

The spa continues to grow and the owner is now looking to expand again — into her own, brand new twostory building at 116 Mill St., at the corner of Mill and Adelaide.

The house currently on the parcel will be torn down within the next couple of weeks, after which site work will begin to prepare for the new building.

Fair housing for all

New law, 'Fair Housing Act of 1968' prohibits discrimination

Compiled by Vera Hogan

vhogan@tctimes.com: 810-433-6823 A week after the assassination of civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., President Lyndon B. Johnson signed the Fair Housing Act of 1968,

The new law prohibited discrimination concerning the sale, rental and financing of housing based on race, religion, national origin or sex.

Intended as a f ollow-up t o th e Civil Rights Act of 1964, the bill was the subject of a contentious debate in the Senate, but was passed quickly by the House of Representatives in the days after the King assassination.

The Fair Housing Act stands as the final great legislative achievement of the civil rights era.

Other things that happen when you age

You sweat less. Sweat glands shrink and become less sensitive as you age, which means less perspiration. Muscle mass declines starting in your 30s, and by age 75, the average person's fat content is twice that of their youth.

Your teeth become less sensitive. Dentin, the hard inner tissue, builds up between the outer enamel of a tooth and its central nerve, adding more and more protection every year.

Your brain shrinks. The parts that shrink the prefrontal cortex and hippocampus are crucial to learning, memory and planning. This accounts for why our memories seem to diminish as we age. You get fewer colds because you've built up an expansive immune system

Migraines become fewer and far between, if you're a woman. According to studies, 67 percent of female migraine sufferers get permanent relief after menopause because of hormone levels

Your taste buds become less sensitive. By age 60, people have lost half of their taste buds on average You're more likely to be happy. Studies show that people become more content with age on the U-shaped curve. Kids are happy, but that feeling decreases in our middle age. Then, we usually get happier.

Aging is a part of life, and the mark of a long one. Wrinkles, age spots, and a decrease in hearing and vision will affect everyone. Here's what happens when you age:

With more years comes more wrinkles. That's because skin gradually becomes less elastic because of the loss of elastin. Skin also becomes rougher and more transparent, which is caused by the thinning of the epidermis, the outer layer of the skin.

Skin becomes more fragile, due to the flattening of the area where the epidermis and dermis meet, and easily bruised because of thinner blood vessels.

One change to your eyes that occurs with age is reduced pupil size. As people age, the muscles that control pupil size and reaction to light lose strength. This means the pupil becomes smaller and less responsive to light.

The typical American conservative am the typical American conservative.

I like cops, soldiers, working men and country boys, the kind of guys who know how to shoot, how to take care of themselves and who would have your back in a fight.

I don't much like the government in Washington, D.C. Even the politicians in small cities like Fenton and Linden tend to turn neighbors and friends into puffed up bureaucrats. If someone has to be in charge, I'd prefer the sort of guy who will give you an answer when you want to know why the potholes on your street haven't been fixed. I'm a straight, white, Christian conservative and the people that run the country today would only care what I think if I had hundreds of thousands of dollars to give them.

I don't care for the arrogant asses in D.C. who think they have a better idea of what to do with my life and my money than I do. I don't need any "help" from the government. Nor am I okay with the government using my money to help people who should be helping themselves. We may all have to pool our money to pay for streets, the police and the military, but I don't see any reason why my money should go to the families of anchor babies or scammers working out at the gym with a disability check in their wallet.

I believe there are only two genders and they shouldn't be sharing a bathroom. I'm not okay with powerful men who demand that women sleep with them to keep a job, or Hollywood creeps who take advantage of young women. But that doesn't automatically mean every woman is telling the truth either. Listen to Hillary Clinton for a few minutes and then tell me that we can trust all women.

I want our borders secured and our budget balanced. I want reasonably priced healthcare. I want Social Security and Medicare protected for future generations. I want the government to take care of our soldiers at the VA while staying out of my business.

We live in a country where our leaders steal from us, lie to us, and exempt themselves from the laws they write, while telling us how we should live our lives. We live in a country run by lying, thieving politicians and bureaucrats who can't do anything right and yet think the solution to every problem is to give them more power over our lives.

Watson's sexual assault case bound over for trial

Fenton Township man to remain behind bars at Genesee County Jail

By Sharon Stone

sstone@tctimes.com; 810-433-6786 A 62-year-old Fenton Township man's criminal sexual conduct case was bound over April 12 to Genesee County Circuit Court.

Derek Timothy Watson is facing four felony counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct (CSC) with a victim under the age of 13, one count of second-degree CSC with a victim under the age of 13, child abuse and possession of sexually abusive material. Two original weapons charges were dismissed.

Watson's preliminary exam began March 22 when the alleged 15-yearold victim testified that Watson sexually abused her when she was 12 years old.

Before the incidents, she was friends with Watson's son, and admitted that Watson was somewhat of a father figure to her. She visited the house most days, and Watson would buy them all food. She said Watson bought her first smartphone for her.

Eventually she told her mother, her boyfriend and a school counselor about the incidents. The school counselor learned about the general situation in November 2017.

The Genesee County Sheriff's Office executed a search warrant at his Hogan Road home in Fenton Township on Dec. 5, 2017 and investigators removed several undisclosed items.

No court hearing dates in circuit court have been scheduled yet, however, Watson remains behind bars at the Genesee County Jail. Circuit Court Judge Geoffrey Neithercut will be presiding over the case.

Sales taxes for internet sales

Most of us at one time or another have purchased products using the internet.

Over time, internet sales of products have steadily increased. For example, consumers spent $453.46 billion in 2017, a 16 percent increase from 2016.

As it turns out a legal and tax collection issue has developed with these sales for the 45 states (including Michigan) that levy sales taxes on retail purchases.

This is because of the 1992 United States Supreme Court case of Quill Corporation v North Dakota, which held that under the United States Constitution's Commerce Clause, states cannot impose a sales tax on out of state retailers that do not have a physical presence in the state.

Much has changed since 1992, but as a result of the Quill ruling, states have been unable to collect all of the sales taxes that would ordinarily be due to them on internet sales.

In a 2015 Supreme Court case, Justice Anthony Kennedy wrote a concurring opinion which indicated that it might be time to re-examine the physical presence rule as online retailers doing extensive business within a state have a sufficiently "substantial nexus" to possibly require sales tax collections. In 2015, Michigan's General Sales Tax Act was amended to require certain larger internet sellers to collect sales taxes. I won't go into the law in its entirety, but importantly one section uses the term "affiliate nexus."

At least 21 other states now have internet sales tax laws.

In 2016, South Dakota passed an internet sales tax law, which referenced a seller's "economic presence" in the state. It then sued four internet-based retailers to force them to collect sales taxes. Ultimately, the South Dakota courts ruled that until the Quill decision is changed, the South Dakota law can't be enforced.

This decision (South Dakota v Wayfair Inc.) was appealed to the United States Supreme Court where yesterday the court heard oral arguments as to whether the physical presence rule should be changed.

This case is being watched closely because it could affect not only South Dakota's law, but the internet sales tax laws of the other states as well.

Times change. We will all wait to see what the Supreme Court decides as to whether a change should be made here.

We felt that this program would bring more visibility to the arts in our community. 77 Joan Horcha

Spencer proves he's ready for prime time

■Linden native shocks boxing world with 51-second knockout in second pro fight

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789 Joey Spencer, 18, had a concrete plan for his second professional boxing match of his career — he wanted to be patient and work his jab.

The plan never came to fruition during his first fight on national television Friday, but the Linden native isn't complaining.

Instead of being patient, Spencer de livered about four punches resulting in three knock downs in 51 seconds, earning his second professional boxing victory in as many events at The Armory in Minneapolis, Minnesota on Friday night during a match televised to a national cable audience on Fox Sports 1.

"It's funny because I went into the ring expecting to be more patient, go into the second or third round and work my jab," Spencer said about his initial game plan for the four -round super welterweight bout. "I really wanted to work my jab and take my time, and not let the fact that it was on TV make me too excited, but that's not how it went.'

It certainly didn't. About 12 seconds into the bout, Spencer delivered the first of three left hooks to his opponent Ousmane Sylla. It sent Sylla to the canvas.

"Right when I went out there, he had his chin in the air," Spencer said.

The second knock out came just seconds after Sylla returned to his feet. Spencer im mediately charged Sylla and put him down again with another quick punch.

"I knew he was hurt and I was trying to follow it up and he ended going down with a half-jab, half-hook," Spencer said.

Based on how quickly the first two knockouts happened, Spencer was a tad more patient before landing the third one. Sylla attempted a few swings with Spencer out of range, but then Spencer attacked again with another knockout.

Spencer's pro career already had quite a bit of hype surrounding it before Friday night. After all, his second professional bout was already being televised as the > third match on a five-bout card. But after his national television debut, the hype is snowballing.

"It was great," Spencer said. "It was something special f or me t o g et in there and be able to do something that caught peo ple's attention right off the bat. The fight is getting a lot of people's attention because it was so short."

Spencer is 2-0 with two early technical knockouts (TKO) to his credit. He opened his professional boxing career at the age of 17 when he defeated Uriel

Gonzalez by TKO early in the second round at Las Végas' Mandalay Bay Hotel and Casino Events Center onFeb. 17. As impressive as his first victory was, the second one should have a great impact on his career.

"I got a call right when I was in the locker room after the fight. They were talking about our next TV date and the next one after that," Spencer said. "When I looked at my phonel realized what (this bout) is doing for my career when I saw all the social media buzz about it. This is what I've worked for forever.

"I'm thankful to God for giving me this opportunity and allowing me to perform in the sport I love."

As of press time, Spencer's third professional fight has yet to be scheduled. He's hoping it will be close to home, possibly in Linden.

Other communities wanted to buy the sculpture, but Fenton had first choice because the city is currently renting it. The DDA leases sculptures throughout the downtown. The lease on "The Librarian" would have ended this month.

The total amount raised to purchase the sculpture was $5,500 with some monies still coming in, Hart said. "The purchase price was reduced to $7,500, therefore $2,000 is being requested to finalize the purchase of the sculpture," he said.

MSI, the company that handles the sculpture leases, donated its sales com mission to the city to help it pay for the sculpture.

HOUSING

Continued from Page 3 African Americans or other minorities from certain sections of cities, race-based housing patterns were still in force by the late 1960s. Those who challenged them often met with resistance, hostility and even violence.

Meanwhile, while a growing num ber of African-American and Hispanic members of the armed forces fought and died in Vietnam, on the home front their families had trouble renting or purchasing homes in certain residential areas because of their race or national origin.

In this climate, or ganizations such as the National Association for the Ad vancement of Colored People(NAACP), the G.I. Forum and the National Commit tee Against Discrimination in Housing lobbied for new fair housing legislation to be passed.

The proposed civil rights legislation of 1968 expanded on and was intended as a follow up to the historic Civil Rights Act of 1964. The bill's original goal was to extend federal protection to civil rights workers, but it was eventually expanded to address racial discrimination in housing.

Since the summer of 1966, when King had participated in marches in Chicago calling for open housing in that city, he had been associated with the fight for fair housing.

Johnson ar gued that the bill would be a fitting testament to the man and his legacy, and he wanted it passed prior to King's funeral in Atlanta.

In 1988, Congress passed the Fair Housing Amendments Act, which ex panded the law to prohibit any discrimination in housing based on disability or on family status.

The truck had been entered into the Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN). A Detroit police officer saw the truck and initiated the traffic stop because of the stolen vehicle report.

Cross said these two men were not the ones who stole it from Fenton, but they did drive it in Detroit. The Haulmark trailer that was attached is still missing and Fenton police continue the investigation.

With the second theft complaint, Cross said the owner of a business on Fenway Drive called police April 8 to report that someone had stolen his $30,000, 2013 Ford pickup truck and a $30,000 commercial grade wood chipper. The suspect(s) cut the lock from the gate to gain entry to a back storage lot.

Fenton police learned of this re covery when the business in Detroit, where the truck was found, called the phone number printed on the side of the stolen truck. The front bumper of the truck had been ripped off and the trailer hitch was broken. The wood chipper is still missing and Fenton police continue to investigate.

Fenway Drive and Copper Avenue are located in the Fenton Business and Technology Park. Fenton police believe the thefts are related. If anyone has information about these thefts, they are to call Fenton police at (810) 629-5311.

best, he thought about how he could manipulate it.

Tipton developed a code that would narrow the winning odds from five million to one to 200 to one. The numbers he generated won five lotteries and more than $24 million in prizes.

The first time Tipton generated numbers to win, he gave them to his brotheffommy, who asked a lawyer if it was legal to play with those numbers. The lawyer said "yes." The numbers won, and three tickets won: an uninvolved person, Tommy, and the lawyer Tommy talked to. The FBI investigated this case, but they never asked finmy about his brother who worked for the MSLAso they didn't look into it.

At MSLA, T ipton was working 50 to 60 hours a w eek, do ing everything from building firewalls, web pages, software and auditing. He had no oversight and he even warned lottery officials about the security risks. Tipton suggested hiring a second person to oversee the random-generator soft - ware — something that would have made it impossible for Tipton to continue his scam. They didn't listen.

Tipton used his two-line code on as many as 17 state lottery systems. For almost a decade, he was able to rig the results for games played on three dates each year: May 27, Nov 23 and Dec. 29.

The catch

When he generated numbers, he would always give them away to someone else.

Tipton was caught because he bought the winning $16.5-million ticket himself for the Hot Lotto. He had his friend, Robert Rhodes, claim it for him, but he waited too long and there was increased scrutiny

Iowa requires that winner's names and addresses be made public, and the FBI eventually discovered Tipton's scheme.

The sentencing

Rhodes pleaded guilty to a felony chage of being party to a computer crime and was sentenced to six months of home confinement and ordered to pay $409,000 in res titution. Tommy, Tipton's brother, pleaded guilty to felony chages relating to a rigging scheme, and paid $2.2 million in restitution and was sentenced to 75 days in jail.

He told investigators that he doesn't know how he's going to pay back the $16.8 million in restitution.

Aftermath

All of the fraudulent winners were identified by the FBI, and the cheat codes no longer work. There are two lawsuits tied to the T ipton scheme case. One is against MSLA seeking class-action status for all the players cheated by Tipton.

The security on the lotteries has been revamped.

peripheral vision and decreased color vision. The cells in the retina that handle color become less sensitive with age, causing colors to appear washed out or faded.

With age, spots and floaters become more common. This is be cause of vitreous detachment, which describes when the gel-like vitreous inside eyes begins to liquefy and pull away from the retina.

Ears

With age comes lower quality hear ing. This is because as you get older, the small hair cells inside your inner ear, which are responsible for picking up sound waves and changing them into nerve signals for your brain, become damaged or die. They do not regrow. This is where a hearing aid can be helpful.

Heart

Changes to the aging heart include the natural pacemaker losing some of its cells, which results in a lower heart rate; a slight increase in the size of the heart, specifically the left ventricle, due to the thickening of the heart walls and potential abnormal rhythms.

As you age, your heart cells de posit more "aging pigment" lipofuscin, which causes the muscles to degenerate slightly. The valves become thicker and stiffer, which can cause heart murmurs.

Studies show that people become more content with age on the U-shaped curve.

Wolves' lacrosse continues improving during fourth season

By David Troppens

dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

Linden — The Fenton/Linden co-op boys lacrosse program can feel good about their current status.

The program has 44 students within its two squads, with both the varsity and JV teams having 22 players. The interest is pretty equal between the two squads. The varsity squad has 12 Fenton players on it to Linden's 10. However, on the JV team 14 of the 22 players are from Linden.

And the program appears to only be getting healthier. Among the 22 players on the varsity team only six are seniors. Seven are either freshmen or sophomores. And within the JV squad, there's plenty of interested youth with 16 being freshmen.

Indeed, the program is in a healthy situation as Jeff Jarrad begins his first season as varsity lacrosse coach for the Wolves.

"It's really grown," Jarrad said. "We have the middle school program building and that helps a whole lot. Having that program has helped because they come into our program already knowing how to scoop, pass and shoot. We don't have to start at that training level."

Despite spring's lousy weather, the Wolves have been one of the luckiest area teams in terms of getting games played. A loss to Davison on Friday at Linden High School marked their sixth game, with the squad holding a 2-4 record overall. Their wins came in a 7-4 road victory against Bishop Foley on March 22, and an 8-1 victory against Bay

showed that there still is a great divide among the elite teams in the state in boys lacrosse versus those programs that are still in their infant stages. Davison is an established team that has yet to lose a game this season. In fact, opponents have been outscored a combined 68-16 in their five games this season. So, the fact the Wolves lost 16-2 wasn't a complete shock. The squad's two goals were scored by Tucker Whitman in the opening half and Hunter Higginbotham in the second half.

TRI-COUNTY TIMES I DAVID TROPPENS Holly's Marissa Beck had two hits and two RBI in the Bronchos' 12-0 victory during the second game of a doubleheader against Marian. The Holly varsity softball team won both games 12-0.

Bronchos post consecutive 12-0 victories against Marian dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789 The Holly varsity softball team enjoyed beating Marian 12-0 in the first game of a doubleheader so much on Friday, that the Bronchos decided to do it again in the second game apparently.

By David Troppens

The Bronchos won two 12-0 contests against Marian, improving their record to 4-2 overall on the young season.

"The 4-2 start is good, but we really haven't played well yet," Holly varsity softball coach Scott Culver said. "We have a doubleheader each of the next three days. I'm hoping we can get these in as well."

In the opener, Holly scored three runs in the first and nine more in the second to earn the win in just three innings.

Holly had just five hits with Maika Hogarth, Aubrey Jenkinson, Marissa Beck, Megan Sisson and Grace Fromm having one each. The Bronchos walked five times and took advantage of six Marian errors.

Madisen Beesley earned the threeinning no-hitter, striking out five and walking one.

Spencer making sure to embrace 'the moment'

Linden native appreciative of his hometown support

By David Troppens dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789

Joey Spencer has worked all his life to be where he is right now.

But now that's he's here, even he's a little amazed how quickly his professional boxing career is evolving.

The Linden native impressed the boxing world during his national television debut, knocking out his opponent, Ousmane Sylla, not once, not twice but three times in a matter of a minute while competing in his second professional boxing match on Fox Sports 1 on Friday.

In just 51 seconds, after about four punches, Spencer had recorded his second victory in as many professional matches. With it, his career looks about to skyrocket.

"This means everything to me," Spencer said. "I prepared for eight weeks for this fight and prepared all of my life for this and it is exciting. It's exciting to see everyone from my hometown (Linden) behind me, and it's exciting to be able to have everyone watch my second fight on television."

Spencer gave the tri-county area a great thrill during his second bout. He knocked Sylla to the canvas three times. The majority of the 51 seconds of the right was spent waiting for Sylla to return to his feet after Spencer hit him with one of left hooks.

"That's really one of the main things I wanted to come out of this. I wanted to do something for the community that they can get really excited about," Spencer said. "I love my hometown so much. Everyone has supported me since I was a little kid. It's humbling."

What also has to excite Spencer is what his second fight has done for sparking his career. He already was a marked man in professional boxing as one of the great prospects to watch prior to Friday. His first fight was in Las Vegas, a professional boxing hotbed. His second fight wasn't only on national television, but it was the third of five scheduled bouts on Fox Sports 1.

Many other fighters on the card were also making their professional television debuts during the bouts at Minneapolis' The Armory, but those boxers had already fought eight, nine or 10 times prior to Friday. Spencer's scheduled four-round super welterweight bout was smack dab in the middle of the night's boxing schedule.

"Initially I thought it was going to be a throw away match, maybe after everybody fought and maybe it would be at the end or at the very beginning of the card," PHOTOS COURTESY OF TRAPPFOTOS Linden's Joey Spencer (above) won his second professional boxing match on Friday in 51 seconds during a bout televised by Fox Sports 1. By David Troppens dtroppens@tctimes.com; 810-433-6789 The Holly varsity baseball team opened the Metro League season in grand fashion, sweeping the Owosso Trojans in a doubleheader.

The Bronchos won the first game 6-1, and then won the second contest 7-4. Home runs played a big role in both games.

In the opener, Holly blew the game open with a four-run bottom of the third inning, taking a 4-1 lead at that time. The big blow of the inning was a three-run home run by DJ Tennis, plating Grant Tooley and Ben Gramer. Tooley singled to reach base while Gramer reached base on an error. The Bronchos added two more runs in the fourth.

Tennis ended the contest with two hits, a sacrifice fly and four RBI at the plate. He also pitched the final inning, getting all three batters he faced out in order.

JD Lannon was the winning pitcher, allowing just one unearned run on one hit and five walks. He struck out nine batters

In the second game the Bronchos (2-0 in the Metro and 3-0 overall) trailed 4-0 early.

a 6-5 victory. Linden tied Novi 0-0 after five innings the second game, which was called due to darkness.
