Basic First Aid for choking, lacerations, loss of consciousness — all covered in Red Cross training

By Tim Jagielo

Flint — A group of First Aid students are kneeling over the rubber training manikins, delivering spirited chest compressions.

American Red Cross trainer Michael Hussar of Fenton is pacing the line, giving instructions. “Make your manikin click,” he said. The devices “click” when they are pushing hard enough.

“When delivering rescue breathing, he said to open their mouths “wide enough to fit an apple.”

Hussar said that First Aid and CPR training can greatly increase the chances of a victim surviving an episode. “I think a big misconception is that CPR is hard to learn or too technical for the citizen responder,” he said.

“While most participants in CPR classes are adults I have had young teenage participants complete the training as an available tool while babysitting.”

Classes are available through the American Red Cross and cost between $90 and $110. The Times has compiled basic instructions on some common emergency situations.

The Red Cross has a five-step First Aid process for encounters with an injured person, designed to keep the helper safe in their aid. This information is summarized from redcross.org, and is not a substitute for actual American Red Cross training. The Times does not claim to be an authority in first aid.

Step 1: Assess the overall scene.

In this step, the helper should stop and observe the scene, and determine if it is safe for them to enter. They should try to guess what might have happened. See FIRST AID on 7B

SOMETHING IS VERY wrong with the Tyrone board. How can they ignore 32 years experience and feel relieved? They must all live at the opposite end of the township.

THE UNITED STATES’ greatest leader was George C. Marshall, chief of staff U. S. Army, secretary of state 1947, emissary to China. American Red Cross president, and secretary of defense.

I'M UNDER NO illusion, there clearly was collusion. While Mueller’s investigation is ongoing, Trump’s lies are only growing. After, hopefully he’ll be wise enough to read the writing on the wall and quit.

CORRECTION! A HOT-LINER said, ‘We are supposed to be a democracy’ (rule by majority). Not correct. We are a Constitutional Republic (representative government). See article 4 sec.4 of the U.S. Constitution, or, recite the ‘Pledge of Allegiance’ to be enlightened.

IT’S NO WONDER people don’t watch movies anymore. As if the subject matter isn’t bad enough, how can anyone understand what is being said as every movie now has constant loud background noise.

I DON’T THINK anyone has ever been able to ask or get an answer from a nightcrawler or worm. So, technically, how can a person say they feel no pain?

IN MY ESTIMATION, it is just the opposite on your observation of Vice President Mike Pence. Whenever I see him in the background, it seems as if he is thinking: “I should be the one up there.” He does not look too happy.

Is it a curse word, or not?

“Hey you, get your damn hands off her!”

Remember when George McFly ordered that in the 1985 movie “Back to the Future?” He was yelling at Biff, that big oaf who was trying to take advantage of George’s 1955 prom date (and future wife), Lorraine, in the back seat of the old car.

Only George did not pull that off very well. His attempt at swearing while trying to sound sincere and look scary just didn’t work for the nerdy McFly.

Recently, I heard two women on TV try to pull this off. First there was Becca Kufrin, the latest woman looking for love in all the wrong places on “The Bachelor.” In her commercial promoting the show, she said, “Let’s do the damn thing.”

She later told a TV Guide reporter that she was ready to “retire” that phrase.

THN on Wednesday, I heard Gretchen Whitmer, who is running for Michigan governor in a TV commercial say, “It’s time to fix the damn roads.”

Her demeanor when she said it was like faux exasperation.

All that was missing was the heavy sigh and eye-rolling.

Back in the day saying such words was not ladylike and we were taught as young girls to be ladylike?

Don’t get me wrong, a few bad words slip out of my mouth from time to time, but not in public, and never in front of children.

Can you imagine your 5-year-old child in kindergarten class saying, “It’s time to read the damn book,” or at recess time, “Let’s do the damn thing.”

According to the Urban Dictionary, “damn” is one of those words you can use in any situation. In any conversation, you can just pop in and say “damn,” and people will know exactly what you’re talking about.

It can be an expression of dismay, an expression of awe, caring about something, condemning someone (most often to hell or an equivalent place), an expression of surprise.

In short, “damn” is an adjective you can stick in front of absolutely any noun to add a feeling of stigma to your sentence.

Then there is the religious opinion on the use of words like damn, dang, drat and hell, to name a few.

According to neverthirsty.org, these words are not fitting words for a Christian. All of them are considered to be curse or cuss words. We can express ourselves using normal English words, they say. Why use such language when the English language has enough words to communicate our thoughts?

Is this a trend, something we’ll be hearing more often? Probably. But it’s nothing new. Rhett Butler startled theater-goers in the 1939 film Gone with the Wind when he said, “Frankly, my dear, I don’t care a damn.”

Benjamin Franklin was often referred to as a modern man born in a colonial time. Among some of the many stranger things he did was to practice “air bathing” for better health. At the time, the common wisdom was that cold weather caused sickness. Franklin, however, understood that people were the problem and being cooped up all winter with each other led to sickness, so he would sit in his open window, naked as the day, to help with air circulation and disease prevention.

John Hancock

It’s said that Hancock signed his name so large on the Declaration of Independence because he wanted the King of England to see it, but this isn’t true. His signature is simply an indication of his position as president of the Continental Congress. There was only one person in the room when the document was signed as well and if independence didn’t happen, he would have likely been hanged for treason. There was a lot on the line for John Hancock.

Samuel Adams

Sam Adams didn’t brew beer. Despite popular belief, the Founding Father never brewed beer. He did, however, work for his father’s malt house. The business simply made malt that was then sold to breweries. After his father passed away in 1748, Adams took over the family business. Opponents would use this information to tease Adams, and call him a “maltster.” He was not great at being a maltster. Unfortunately for the malt company, Adams still wasn’t much of a businessman and instead gave the majority of his attention to politics. The malt house closed shortly after he took over.

John Adams

In this different type of “Adams Family,” John Adams and Samuel Adams were second cousins. Abigail Adams was John Adams’ third cousin, and of course, John Quincy Adams was their son. He was a great pen pal. The erudite Adams was a romantic and prolific writer of letters to friends and family. A devoted husband, Adams exchanged more than 1,100 correspondences with his wife, Abigail, since his patriotic duties often called him away from home for extended periods of time. Luckily for historians, most of the letters between the Adamses have been preserved in archives. (In contrast, only three letters written by George Washington to his wife, Martha, have survived.)

Thomas Jefferson

Jefferson loved science, technology and innovation. One of his favorite devices was a rotating bookstand that could hold five books at once. Kind of like having five windows open on your computer. He loved books. How many books do you have in your house? More than 20? More than 50? More than 100? In 1814, the original Library of Congress was attacked by British troops and all the books were burned. Jefferson offered his personal library as a replacement. In 1815, the Library of Congress was restocked — with Jefferson’s 6,487 books.

Distracted parents, poor security could lead to tragedy

More than 200 children drown in backyard swimming pools each year
By Vera Hogan
vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Whether in-ground or above ground, there’s nothing like a dip in the swimming pool to cool off on a hot summer day. Tragically, more than 200 young children have drowned in backyard swimming pools each year, according to the American Red Cross (ARC).

Mike Reilly, building and zoning administrator for the city of Fenton, said, “Pool safety is life safety. Even the inflatable pools can be dangerous if improperly installed, secured and maintained.”

“The main concerns are security; to prevent unauthorized use; utility connections, making sure the electrical and water connections are protected, and installation, making sure the pool is not underneath electrical conduit lines,” he said.

ARC suggests owners make pool safety their priority by following these guidelines:
- Completely surround your pool with a 4-foot high fence or barrier with a self-closing, self-latching gate. Place a safety cover on the pool or hot tub when not in use and remove any ladders or steps used for access. Consider installing a pool alarm that goes off if anyone enters the pool.
- Keep children under active supervision all the time. Stay within an arm’s reach of young kids. Designate a responsible person to watch the water when people are in the pool. Never allow anyone to swim alone.
- Have young or inexperienced swimmers wear a U.S. Coast Guard-approved life jacket.
- For older children, an adult should be paying constant attention and free from distractions, like talking on the phone, socializing, tending household chores, or drinking alcohol. The supervising adult must know how to swim.
- Keep your pool or hot tub water clean and clear. Maintain proper chemical levels, socializing, tending household chores, or drinking alcohol. The supervising adult must know how to swim.
- Keep your pool or hot tub water clean and clear. Maintain proper chemical levels, circulation and filtration. Regularly test and adjust the chemical levels to minimize the risk of earaches, rashes or more serious diseases.

Establish and enforce rules and safe behaviors, such as “no diving,” “stay away from the pool when the pool is not in use,” “no tricycles or other riding toys at poolside.”

Children are ‘climbers’
Children can climb out a window, through a doggy door, or sneak out a door to get around parents and enter the backyard pool. To prevent small children from entering the pool area on their own, there should be a fence that completely surrounds the pool or spa. Combined with the watchful eyes of an adult, a fence is the best way to protect your child and other children who may visit or live nearby.

Pools should be climb-resistant and should not have anything alongside it (such as lawn furniture) that can be used to climb it.

For above-ground pools, always keep children away from steps or ladders. When the pool is not in use, lock or remove the ladders to prevent access by children.

Pool covers should cover the entire pool so that a child can’t slip under them. Make sure there is no standing water on top of the pool. Be aware that floating solar covers are not safety covers.

Area woman saves 2-year-old from drowning
By Vera Hogan
vhogan@tctimes.com; 810-433-6823

Several years ago, Lisa Branhman of Fenton took a crash course in CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation). The next day, a pool party was held for all of the instructors and their children. The children were from 2 to 10 years old.

“We were all there and packing everything up at the end of a long, fun day,” Branhman said.

Everyone headed into the house, but one of the kids left the sliding door open and a 2-year-old girl got out.

“I’m in the bathroom changing from my swimsuit to my clothes when I hear this terrible wailing,” Branhman said.

“It was the kind of wailing that you just know something’s wrong,” Branhman said.

She ran outside and saw her friend, Liz, pulling her daughter out of the deep end of the swimming pool.

“Liz is wailing ‘she’s dead, she’s dead,’” she said. “Liz wouldn’t give her daughter to me but I took her away from her.”

Branhman said she picked the child up and hung her over. There was no pulse. Her face was dark red.

“I remembered what the instructor told us and I laid her down and started working on her,” Branhman said. “They told us to do something until help arrives.”

“Everybody was freaked and was flipping out,” she said. “I wasn’t panicked. I laid her down and started giving her breaths and chest pumps. I worked on her for five minutes at least.”

Another lady stepped in and did compressions, she said. “Of all a sudden, she started throwing up chip dip and pool water. It was the greatest thing in the world.”

Branhman said her priority to anyone in this predicament is to not panic. While you’re waiting on help to arrive, “do something.”

Today, that 2-year-old is alive and well and living in Traverse City. She went on to become a basketball star and graduated with honors from the University of Michigan.

New Treatment for Back & Sciatic Pain Relief
By Erica Rainer

Sciatica is a pain caused by a pinched nerve in the lower back. Pains begin in the lower back, travel down the leg and at times into the foot. The leg agony, called radiculopathy, “is often worse than the back pain,” says Dr. James Ide, DC, clinic director at Painless Chiropractic of Fenton MI. “It’s very common for patients to come in describing an aching, shooting, burning pain that starts in the buttocks and flows down to the leg and at times into the foot with numbness, tingling and cramps in the leg.” The sensation “can be intolerable,” says Dr. Krista Ribando, head adjusting chiro- practor at the Fenton Clinic. “Some people describe it to be similar to the nerve pain you experience if you have a toothache.”

For home care options visit PainlessDC.com/sciatica.

After reviewing many different treatment options we have found that typically the average person who suffers from Sciatic pain usually experiences the same frustration when seeking help. They tend to start off going to their doctor who prescribes them one or more of the following: Muscle Relaxers, Pain Pills or Steroid Based Anti-inflammatory Drugs.

The Muscle Relaxers tend to make patients tired but do relax the muscles. The Pain Pills mask the pain while on them but tend to make many people tense, nauseous, constipated and unable to focus. The Steroid Based Anti-Inflammatory Drugs give some people weakness, moon face, weight gain, insomnia and mood swings. All in all the pain usually comes back once the drugs are gone because nothing was ever corrected just masked. These drugs all focus on the symptoms and not the problem.

It is often the case with most pain related to the spine and nerves, regardless if your issue is in your neck, resulting in headaches or pain, numbness, tingling and/or muscle weakness in the arms and hands or down in the low back and buttocks, resulting in Sciatic Pain.

Once the patient goes to their MD, takes their prescriptions and then goes back, still in pain, they are usually referred to physical therapy, pain management or a surgeon. Most patients respond to physical therapy however, once the problem has happened many report the pain returns.

When they visit pain management, they may be prescribed the same types of drugs that did not work for them or they may be referred to the steroid epidural shots into your spinal column which may not be FDA approved so please be advised to do plenty of research if you ever find yourself in this situation.

As for having surgery… well we all know that surgery should always be a last resort because once you make the decision to have surgery, there is no going back and undoing it and many other options are off the table after surgery.

Regardless of how the symptoms are treated, the number one problem with finding relief through these treatments is that they only focus on treating the symptoms not the underlying issue. In severe cases, this condition can lead to muscle wasting, numbness, and eventually muscle tingling down to the foot or even sexual dysfunction and even loss of bladder/ bowel control. Left untreated, this condition can rapidly become a permanent condition if not treated properly.

Sciatica Relief Expert James Ide D.C.

Krista Ribando D.C.

The fully trained spinal care team has helped countless patients get relief from their agonizing back and sciatica problems. “We use a combination of ultra-advanced technology not utilized elsewhere in the area for precisely diagnosing the cause of your pain; and a unique program for reconstructing the damaged area causing the pain; this pain in the neck, low back pain is called the 10-result for terms results for most people” said Dr. Ide.

Because the treatment is non-surgical, safe and easy, most patients report an almost immediate relief from their pain. However, as Dr. Ide says “we are happy patients experience less pain but the pain is just a symptom, our goal is to correct the underlying problem which is structural. The pain is usually the last thing to show itself and the first thing to disappear and if not properly treated and maintained, will show up again in the future.

If you are ready to get to the bottom of your debilitating, stabbing, burning pain stemming from your low back, buttocks and sciatic nerve, Painless Chiropractic is ready to deliver the same positive results to you as they have to so many others. THE REPUBLICANS INTRODUCED a bill in Congress to strip $537 billion out of Medicare. $1.5 trillion out of Medicaid and $4 billion from Social Security to pay for the $1.5 trillion tax cut for the billionaires.

IF THE CITY is going to allow these pop-up fireworks-selling tents so early is it too much to expect them to also enforce the fireworks law?

IF YOU'RE WANTING more information on Trump’s $800 billion cut to Medicare, Medicaid and food stamps, contact your U.S. Representative for a breakdown.

IT’S PRETTY OBVIOUS by the comments here that the majority understand this immigration nonsense is another fabrication of the Democrats trying to discredit the President. The hypocrisy is glaring, and fact is they are breaking the law crossing the border illegally while millions of others do it correctly. No sympathy here.

LETTING PEOPLE FROM exit off northbound U.S. 23 merge into your lane when you’re at a red light is not being nice. I saw two ‘could have been terrible accidents’ in one hour today. People ‘let in’ turned left and oncoming traffic tried to turn left legitimately and they were head to head. Follow the law and let them wait and everybody lives.

NOT SURE WHAT site you Google for Obama’s approval rating but I did it again with Wikipedia.org and it was 69 percent.
American Red Cross Instructor Michael Hussar demonstrates life-saving techniques for a choking baby.

FIRST AID

how many were involved and what kinds of injuries the victim, or victims, have. They should also see if anyone else nearby is available to help.

Step 2: If the person is responsive, make contact and start First Aid

Make sure the person wants assistance. Communicate with the injured person and be clear about your level of training. Verbally enlist the help of other bystanders to find a First Aid kit and AED defibrillator. Wear personal protective equipment (PPE) if possible.

Ask the patient questions to determine their condition, and give them a general head-to-toe check.

Step 3: If they are not responsive, attempt to wake them

The Red Cross suggests shouting to get the person’s attention, using their name if it is known, or tap their shoulder or foot. Check for breathing.

Step 4: If they are breathing, begin First Aid

Have someone call 911. Follow Step 2, if the person is communicative. Roll them onto their side into a recovery position if there are no signs of injury.

Step 5: If the person is not breathing, start CPR until professional help arrives

Follow the steps listed in steps 2 and 4. Ensure that the patient is face-up on a firm, flat surface. Begin CPR, starting with chest compressions, or use an AED if it’s available. Check for signs of life.

CPR (Cardiopulmonary resuscitation)

This technique is used for victims who are not breathing, or their heart has stopped.

Step 1: First, follow First Aid Steps 1 and 3. Call 911 to get guidance with assistance.

Tilt their head to open the airway. If there is no breathing, begin CPR.

Step 2: Start chest compressions. Push hard and fast. Place your hands on top of each other in the center of the victims chest, and push at least two inches down, 100 times per minute. Use your body weight to assist.

Step 3: Give rescue breaths. Tilt the victim’s head back slightly, lifting the chin. Plug their nose and deliver two breaths, ensuring your mouths make a seal and that their chest rises.

Step 4: Alternate chest compressions and rescue breathing.

OTHER COMMON INJURIES AND EMERGENCIES

Choking

According to The Mayo Clinic, assistance should be rendered before calling 911.

If the victim cannot cough or breathe, begin these steps. If they can cough, encourage them to continue.

The Red Cross suggests a “five-and-five” technique.

Step 1: Give five firm slaps or blows to the back, between shoulder blades, from behind. The patient should be bent over and supported, chest parallel to the ground.

Step 2: If this doesn’t work, begin abdominal thrusts on persons older than 1 year. From behind, make a fist above their navel. Grip the fist with your other hand. Push hard into the abdomen with quick upward thrusts, as if trying to lift the person up. Do this five to 10 times.

Step 3: Alternate between back blows and abdominal thrusts until the object is dislodged.

Lacerations

Lacerations or cuts can be caused by dog bites, knives or anything sharp. These steps from the Mayo Clinic are for minor cuts and scrapes.

Step 1: Wash your hands to avoid infection.

Step 2: Stop the bleeding with a clean bandage or cloth if it doesn’t stop on its own. Elevate the wound and apply pressure.

Step 3: Clean the wound, starting with running water. Clean around the wound with soap and water. Remove dirt or debris from wound with sanitized tweezers.

Step 4: Apply an antibiotic or petroleum jelly. Use a thin layer to prevent scarring and keep the area moist.

Step 5: Cover the wound, if more than a minor cut or scrape. Use clean gauze secured with tape, or a bandage. Place the knot over the wound if possible. Change the dressing at least once per day. Get a tetanus shot, and look out for infection.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Please note that the City of Linden City Council and the City of Linden Downtown Development Authority will hold a public hearing to consider an amendment to the DDA Tax Increment Financing Plan that was adopted December 8, 2008.

The proposed amendment would authorize the Authority to disclaim its right to capture the additional tax increment revenue that may result or be generated by approval of a proposal at the November 6, 2018 election to levy a millage to finance certain road and road-related repairs on City streets.

The public hearing will be held Monday, July 23, 2018, at 7:00 p.m. The hearing will take place at Linden Council Chambers, Linden, Michigan, 48451.

All aspects of the proposed amendment will be open for discussion at the public hearing.

The development area affected by the proposed amendment consists of those parcels presently located in the DDA district. The amendment does not propose any changes to the boundaries of the district or development area.

Copies of the DDA development plan, Tax Increment Financing Plan, proposed amendment to that Plan and maps, plats and other information pertinent to the proposed amendment are available for public inspection at Linden City Hall located at 132 E. Broad Street, Linden, Michigan 48451 during regular business hours.

Those persons wishing to comment on the proposed amendment may do so in person by appearing at the public hearing and offering comment. Comments may also be given in writing if received by the City Clerk on or before the public hearing.

Why get another pet?
Pet owners must ask themselves why they want another pet. If the main reason is to dull the pain of loss, it may be better to wait until they have roommates to keep them occupied. If the main reason is to have another pet for companionship or safety may consider adopting sooner than busy families or those who have roommates to keep them occupied.

Other pets/people
If there are other pets in the house, think about how they may react to having a new addition in the house. Just because one person is ready for the responsibility of a new pet doesn’t mean everyone is. All opinions and personalities should be considered and all voices heard before bringing a new pet into the house.

Is it time for a break?
Some pet lovers may need a break from the responsibility of pet ownership - especially if a recently deceased pet was difficult to care for in its final years.

New pets may require a decade-plus commitment. While it may have been easy the first time around, those who are facing retirement and the possibility of travel or have children leaving the home may want to think about whether or not pets suit their current or future lifestyles.

The passing of a pet can be an experience similar to losing another important member of the family. Even though the loss is inevitable, it can still be shocking when a pet passes away.

Upon the death of a pet, many pet owners need time to mourn and grow accustomed to living without their pet. Though some might prefer to adopt a new pet shortly after a pet dies, others may need time to decide if this is the right decision. The following are some factors for pet owners to consider, courtesy of Vet Street, WebMD, Bark, and RainbowsBridge.com, as they try to decide what to do after losing a pet.

Home doesn’t feel complete
Many previous dog owners feel their homes are empty or not complete without the presence of a four-legged friend. People who live alone and relied on a recently deceased pet for companionship or safety may consider adopting sooner than busy families or those who have roommates to keep them occupied.

Why get another pet?
Pet owners must ask themselves why they want another pet. If the main reason is to dull the pain of loss, it may be better to wait until something other than emotion is driving the decision.
