Can you really find love on a dating show?

■ Holly woman auditioned for 'The Bachelor'

By Hannah Ball

On dating shows, a man or woman usually meets a dozen or so suitors and rejects contestants one by one until there's one left. It's televised, it's dramatic, and it receives high ratings.

People speculate about the authenticity of shows like "The Bachelor," "Married at First Sight" and more, but some of these productions actually help people find love.

E News tabulated which dating shows are the most successful. The criteria included having at least three seasons, a mission statement about finding true love, and it couldn't be a one-season series like "I Love New York."

The most successful dating show is "The Bachelorette." With seven out of 14 couples still dating, engaged or married, "The Bachelorette" has a 50 percent success rate. Current star Becca Kufirin is engaged to her winner. "The Bachelor" has a 14 percent success rate with three out of 21 couples still together.

Nichelle Curtis of Holly auditioned in Royal Oak in July 2015 to be on "The Bachelor." She filled out numerous forms, waited in line for a while, and then had a two-minute interview.

"It was so fake feeling. Definitely no one actually looking for love. Everyone wanted to be 'that person,' for the show, either the funny one or the crazy one or the super buff one," she said. "Those shows are just such money grabs on a truly beautiful concept and emotion — love."

THE 'GODMOTHER' OF BACHELORETTEs TODAY

Trista Rehn appeared as a contestant on season 1 of ABC's The Bachelor. She finished runner-up after the bachelor selected another contestant as the winner.

After her appearance on The Bachelor, Rehn was selected to be featured in the gender-reversed spin-off, "The Bachelorette." She chose Ryan Sutter as the winner, and the couple were married on Dec. 6, 2003.

As of 2016, the Sutters reside in Vail, Colorado with their two children, Max, and Blakesley. She has come to be referred to as the "Godmother" of "The Bachelorette."

The couple have kept busy since starring on the franchise. Ryan continues to work as a firefighter, and Trista is now a best-selling author. Still, the former reality stars make sure to take time to nurture their relationship.

Remembering Mr. Ivar Strom

Driving around the city of Fenton today, it's hard to imagine what life was like in the early 1900s. I had the good fortune in mid-1995 to interview a man named Ivar Strom, who shared his wonderful stories of days gone by.

Until his death a few years after we met, Strom lived in a big white house on the east side of Adelaide Street, between Rockwell and High Street. He told me he came to Fenton in 1918 at the age of 5 and vividly recalled a childhood filled with many joys that small town living provides.

"Recreation was what we made for ourselves," he said more than 23 years ago. "Kids in those days had nothing. But between our many chores, school-work, fishing, swimming, ball games, reading books and other games we made up for ourselves, we didn't have enough hours in the day we were so busy. And we had nothing."

Strom talked about winters when all the kids would climb to the top of the hill at Adelaide or LeRoy Street and fly down the road on their toboggans without a worry about their safety. Winter fun also included hours spent on skating on the millpond and ice fishing, he said.

Strom said the townsfolk spent a lot of time at the Rowena Theater where they saw mostly westerns and serials that kept them coming back week after week. Parents didn't worry about ratings and what their kids saw on the screen because the shows were censored.

"The first swear word we heard on the screen came from Rhett Butler in 'Gone With the Wind,'" he said. That would be when Rhett said to Scarlett O'Hara, "Frankly my dear, I don't give a damn."

Strom also recalled the first time he was spanked in school, which at the time was allowed.

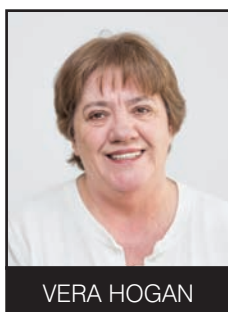

"I was gonna fix that teacher," he said. "He wasn't going to hit me like that. So I went home and told my father, who to my dismay, gave it to me worse than the teacher. I never told on that teacher again."

Strom told me that many children walked into town from the rural areas to attend school. "Kids from as far away as Linden and Argentine would come in on the train and stayed for five days during the week," he said. "They lived with friends and relatives or in rooming houses. They would go back home on the weekends to work on the farm. There was a high drop-out rate in those days. Kids left school after the eighth or ninth grade to work on farms full time."

The last thought Strom shared with me during that interview was, "The whole attitude of people has changed over the years. In those days, a man's word was his bond. You shook hands and it was a deal. If he broke his word, it spread all over town that he couldn't be trusted."

Really? If only it was still that simple!

DATING SHOWS

She won't watch "The Bachelor" or "The Bachelorette," but she does enjoy shows like "Rock of Love" or "Flavor of Love," which she calls "parodies of themselves."

"I want to be entertained, not feel secondhand embarrassment for people," she said.

On "The Bachelorette" and "The Bachelor," one single person meets a group of potential wives or husbands and eventually chooses one to have a relationship with. While the first is the most successful, and the second has a 14 percent success rate, contestants on the show often bend the rules.

In a dramatic finale, Brad Womack selected neither of his two final women in the first season. Jason Mesnick broke off his engagement to his winner in the "After the Final Rose" special, and then proposed to the first runner-up. They are now married. Arie Luyendyk Jr. did the same as Mesnick.

Despite a 2.9 rating on IMDb, "The Bachelor" regularly has millions of viewers, according to variety.com. However, the women on "The Bachelorette" have a better chance of finding love than their bachelor counterparts.

"Bachelor in Paradise," a spin-off show, has a 25 percent success rate, with three out of 12 couples still together, and "Married at First Sight" has a 22 percent success rate.

"Are You the One?" has an 11 percent success rate with seven out of 60 couples still together. In this show a group of young singles is secretly paired into couples by producers with the help of a matchmaking algorithm. They all live together and try to identify these matches. If they all succeed, the entire group shares a prize of up to $1 million. There are seven seasons out so far.

This show, which focuses on winning money, might not have a high relationship success rate for that reason.

On "Married at First Sight" on A&E, three couples, paired by relationship experts, get married the same day they meet. They go on a honeymoon and then return home to live together as a married couple for eight weeks. After that, they choose whether to get a divorce or stay married.

With a 22-percent success rate and four out of 18 couples still together, "Married at First Sight" isn't the best dating show to go on to find love.

SOCIAL MEDIA DATING SERVICES AND SHOWS

Snapchat Discover currently hosts a dating show called Phone Swap, where potential love interests decide whether to date each other based on what they find on their phone. The show will soon select Fox stations.

Facebook is currently developing a dating app, and is testing it on employees now. With the app, users will be able to create a separate profile for dating. When two users like each other's profiles, you can contact them.

NAKED ATTRACTION
DATING HAUTNAH

DATING IN THE DARK

OTHER, MORE QUESTIONABLE, DATING SHOWS

Naked Attraction — A clothed person selects two contestants from six naked people. Then the clothed person appears nude to pick one of them for a clothed date.

Dating in the Dark — Three men and three women are in one big house, but are only allowed to interact with the opposite sex in the dark room. At first, they're all in the room, talking and getting to know one another, and they can have other dates also in the dark.

Labor Day

'A Day of the People'

Labor Day in the United States is a public holiday celebrated on the first Monday in September. It honors the American labor movement and the contributions that workers have made to the strength, prosperity, laws and well-being of the country.

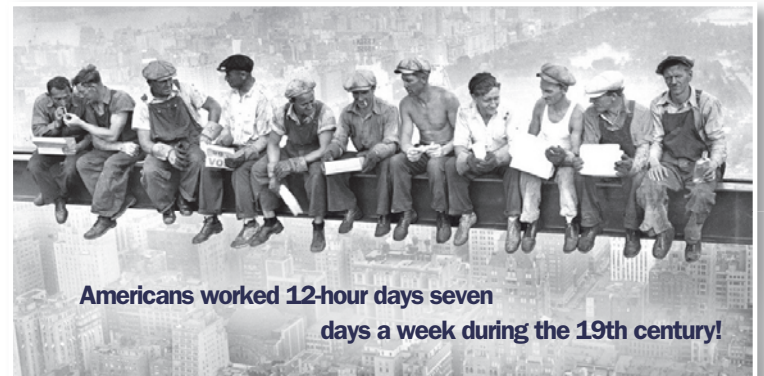

Compiled By Alyssa Booten

The first Labor Day holiday was celebrated on Tuesday, Sept. 5, 1882, in New York City, ten-thousand workers marched from City Hall all the way to 42nd Street and then met with their families in Wendel's Elm Park for a picnic, concert, and speeches.

Canada is said to have originated the idea of hosting a day honoring the labor movement. In 1872, they held a "Nine-Hour Movement" to show support for striking workers.

Americans worked 12-hour days seven days a week during the 19th century!

Norman Rockwell with Mary Doyle Keefe, the model for the 1943 'Rosie-the-Riveter' Saturday Evening Post cover.

The "Rosie" image popular during the war was created by illustrator Norman Rockwell for the cover of the Saturday Evening Post on May 29, 1943 — the Memorial Day issue.

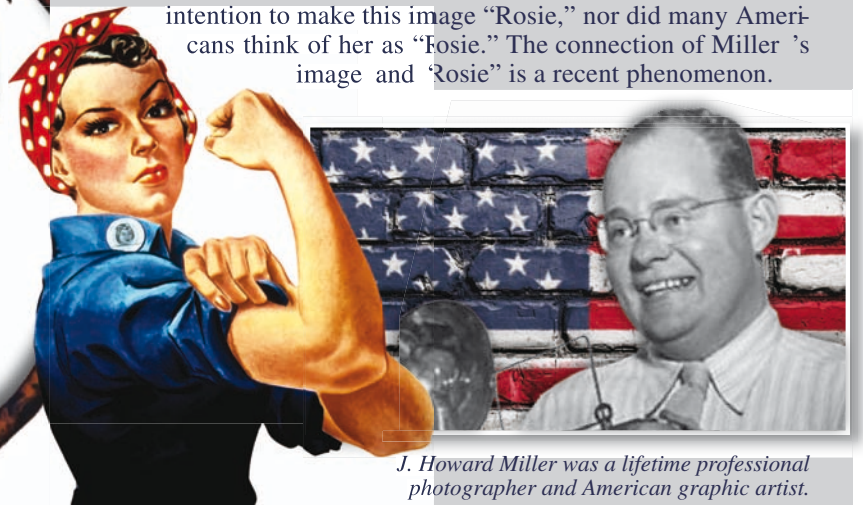

The magazine cover exemplified the American can-do spirit and illustrated the notion of women working in previously male-dominated manufacturing jobs, an ever-growing reality, to help the United States fight the war while the men fought over seas.

Rosie The Riveting True Story of the Labor Icon

According to the U.S. Department of Labor, in 1942, as World War II raged in Europe and the Pacific and the song "Rosie the Riveter" filled radio waves across the home front, manufacturing giant Westinghouse commissioned artist J. Howard Miller to make a series of posters to promote the war effort. To many people, this image is "the" Rosie the Riveter. But it was never the intention to make this image "Rosie," nor did many Americans think of her as "Fosie." The connection of Miller's image and "Rosie" is a recent phenomenon.

J. Howard Miller was a lifetime professional photographer and American graphic artist.

VOTES

LEGISLATIVE ACTIVITY

MichiganVotes.org is a free, non-partisan website created by the Mackinac Center for Public Policy to provide concise, non-partisan, plain-English descriptions of every bill and vote in the Michigan House and Senate. This report was released Friday, Aug. 24.

The Legislature remains in recess with regular sessions resuming Sept. 5. Rather than votes, this report contains some interesting or noteworthy recent bill introductions.

House Bill 6101: Increase statute of lawsuit limitation on Flint water contamination
Introduced by Rep. Sheldon Neeley (D), to extend the statute of limitations to 10 years on filing lawsuits over damages caused by a water emergency (like the Flint contamination). Referred to committee, no further action at this time.

House Bill 6104: Authorize Intermediate School District police forces
Introduced by Rep. LaTanya Garrett (D), to permit Intermediate School Districts to create their own law enforcement agencies with the full powers of regular police agencies. Referred to committee, no further action at this time.

House Bill 6110: Limit using criminal background to bar occupational licensure
Introduced by Rep. Brandt Iden (R), to limit the use of criminal records to determine whether an individual is eligible to get an occupational license mandated by the state, which is required to earn a living in many professions. Specifically, a licensing board or agency could not consider past lawsuits against an individual as evidence of a “lack of good moral character,” and also could not consider a criminal conviction, in and of itself, as conclusive evidence of this, unless the individual was convicted of a felony that is explicitly listed in statute as a disqualifying offense for the particular license. Referred to committee, no further action at this time.

House Bill 6150: Revise pedestrian traffic rules
Introduced by Rep. Ronnie Peterson (D), to revise the rules for drivers yielding to pedestrians at an interchange. The bill would establish that where there is no traffic signal drivers must yield to “a pedestrian within a crosswalk when the pedestrian is on the half of the roadway on which the vehicle is traveling or is approaching so closely from the opposite half of the roadway as to be in danger.” The bill would also make it unlawful for a pedestrian to “suddenly leave a curb or other place of safety and walk or run into the path of a vehicle that is so close that it is impossible for the driver to yield.” Referred to committee, no further action at this time.

WHICH COUNTRY MUSICIAN did you feel didn't get enough respect?
THANKS TO DONALD Trump, John McCain was not able to achieve his dream of a 'New World Order.' McCain, like the Clintons, was a member of the globalist, Council on Foreign Relations. Trump's election saved America.
SAW SOMEONE SHARE a 'breaking news' post on Facebook saying that Social Security was being renamed Federal Benefit Payment and to share the post. A quick check with Snopes reveals this to be false. People really should fact-check before sharing something.
GLAD TO SEE that President Trump made a new trade agreement with Mexico. Canada is next.

THE GROUND RULES that Obama put in place are being undone by President Trump, that's why the economy is booming, despite Obama.
TO THE HOT-LINER saying a baker should have been forced to bake a cake that went against their religious beliefs for a gay wedding. Would you also have the same thought process if it had been a couple in the KKK wanting him to bake a custom cake for their wedding?
THE MILLENNIALS WHO don't think America is great feel that way because of what the Baby Boomers did to this once great nation. Thanks for nothing.
IF YOU ARE politicizing Mollie Tibbetts' death, you are a despicable person. How disgusting of you and disrespectful to her family.

Guess Who?

I am an actress born in Maine on August 9, 1985. I have made a name for myself both on stage and in film. I was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress, and I'm well known for lending pitch-perfect musical talent to various movies.

I am an actress born in the Ukraine on August 14, 1983. I modeled and enrolled in acting classes at age 9. My first big acting role was on a TV show that followed teens in the 1970s. I've since gone on to be a "bad mom."
