Fall nuptials and alternative venues make weddings in 2018 unique and economical

By Tim Jagielo

Flint — From atop the terrace of the Flint Farmer's Market, the sun shone brilliantly and colorful flags flapped gently in the wind.

Beyond the terrace, two stories up, the city is seen in its best light as Ryan Tackabury and Elizabeth Kish are married before 200 friends and family members on Saturday, Sept. 22.

The weather could only be described as ideal, with the best of both summer and fall rolled into one evening.

The traditional summer wedding at a church and reception hall is still popular, but a growing trend is holding weddings at unique venues, outside the traditional peak times of the year.

"It is a great location with a great atmosphere, and the natural charm of the venue made decorating a breeze," said Kish about the venue. "It really helped to make the wedding a fun and whimsical night, just like we wanted."

QUIT PULLIN' MY LEG!

Compiled By Vera Hogan

Americans use idioms in their everyday language and may not even realize it. A good number of them involve our limbs, especially legs. Here are a few of them and their "unofficial" origins.

Cost an arm and a leg

Source: digpro.qsigroup.com

If something costs an arm and a leg, it is extremely expensive. The exact origin of this idiom is unknown; however, most people believe that it started being used around the time of the First or Second World War. There were many soldiers who lost an arm and a leg during the war – this was a very high "cost" to pay for their country.

Shake a leg

Shake a leg is an idiom which means to hurry up, to get going. The first use of shake a leg to mean hurry up is found in the New York Magazine in 1904. The origins of the phrase shake a leg are murky, though there are claims that the term comes from the American Civil War, when after a battle, stretcher-bearers would violently jostle a leg or arm to see if they could elicit a response from a victim on the field and thereby ascertain if he were alive or dead.

Don't have a leg to stand on

This phrase is a folksy way of describing something that has no support. The metaphor probably refers to furniture rather than human legs. Years ago we used to have four-legged, three-legged and even one-legged stools. All of these had functionality, but a stool without a single leg to stand on was incapable of supporting you.

Three-legged stools are used most often for milking cows, while one-legged stools are to put under your hinie and allow you to lean or sit unstably while watching races or other interesting outdoor activities where there are no "stands."

Pulling my leg

To pull one's leg is to deceive someone. The two most commonly repeated of the literal 'leg pulling' theories are: Thieves used to pull at people's legs to trip them and then use the quarry's disorientation as an opportunity to rob them. The "pulling my leg" theory is that people, the so-called "hangers on," were hired at executions to hang onto the victim's legs in order to give them a quick end.

Break a leg

Break a leg is said to actors for good luck before they go on stage, especially on an opening night.

Theatrical types are well known for their belief in superstitions, or at least for their willingness to make a show of pretending to believe in them. The term "break a leg" appears to come from the belief that one ought not to utter the words "good luck" to an actor. By wishing someone bad luck, it is supposed that the opposite will occur.

Give someone a leg up

This means to help a person mount an obstacle, to advance in some way. The original sense was to help a person up into the saddle by cupping one's hands for him/her to place one foot in as a "step."

What's being said on SOCIAL MEDIA

The Times solicited comments about your unique or fall-themed weddings.

Alicia McKay, who is venue coordinator at The Oakley: "September weddings are very popular at The Oakley."

Kayce Durgan: "We were married October 8th. I love fall weddings for the colors outside and because of the weather."

Angie Common: "(We were) married 10 years ago on Oct. 18. Fall is very special to us, and our favorite season. Only seemed right to have gourmet caramel apples at our wedding. And we made sure it wasn't a big Michigan football Saturday, too."

Dana Jones: "My husband and I were married on Oct. 26 of 1996. We chose to have an autumn wedding because that is our favorite time of the year. Our anniversary getaways have been filled with cider mill visits, walks through crunchy leaves, and fall color tours. Can't beat that."

WEDDING

Tackabury, a Fenton graduate, and Kish are both librarians for the Genesee District Library system. "She is one of the smartest, kindest, funniest people I have ever met, and I am lucky I tricked her into marrying me," Tackabury said.

They were engaged last August and didn't want a long engagement. They like fall, and decided to skip the busy summer season. Holding the wedding before October allowed for an outdoor ceremony.

"I was able to incorporate all of my favorite things into our wedding such as the fall colors, orange flowers, cooler weather, coffee and pumpkin pie."

Mallory Beach

They enlisted friends to handle decorations and invitations, and because of the venue, extra decorating would be minimal.

Beale St. Smokehouse BBQ in Fenton catered the event in the space where market visitors usually sit and eat lunch. After dinner was cleared, the space became a dance floor.

According to brides.com, the most economical times of the year to book venues are fall and winter months, excluding December, where you'll compete with holiday parties.

Peak seasons also vary by region — in the south, July and August are "off peak" because it's so hot out.

Lake Fenton graduate and Davisburg resident Mallory Beach and her husband, Jon, had a true fall-themed wedding.

"October is by far my favorite month," Beach said. "I was able to incorporate all of my favorite things into our wedding such as the fall colors, orange flowers, cooler weather, coffee and pumpkin pie."

Beach is a senior HR analyst at Harman International, and her husband, Jon, is a supervisor at Fortech Products.

They were married at the Indianwood Golf and Country Club in Lake Orion, before a fireplace. "I felt like I didn't need to focus too much on decorations since the venue was so unique already," she said.

Fall wedding tips, according to Martha Stewart

- Book vendors early: peak fall color times will be booked quickly, so book early.
- Make guest comfort a priority: Fall is pretty, but realize that wind and rain and cool weather are a possibility. Have a plan for rain, if your venue is outdoors, and consider extra heaters.
- Use the season's colors and harvest yield: fall isn't just about centerpieces — there's also the natural beauty of a fall sunset to consider.
- Also consider coordinating the menu with some fall touches, like chanterelle mushrooms, various types of squash, or slow-roasted meats.

Our very sweet, very spoiled 'puppers'

By Vera Hogan

When I was a kid we could not have a pet dog or a cat because our mom was allergic to them. I don't know if it was the hair, the dander or what, she just couldn't be around them.

Since my husband and I have been married we have had three dogs. The first two, Beau and Skipper, were good dogs but they were much too big and rambunctious for our little house at the time.

Our dog today, Diesel, is the king of the household, and the backyard. Our youngest son got him when he was a puppy. Diesel is now 8 years old. Aging hasn't stopped him though. Open the balcony door and yell "squirrel" and he's out like a rocket, running around the backyard like a young pup. Although he is very fit, he has never caught a squirrel. I don't think he really wants to, it's just the thrill of the chase.

Diesel (a.k.a. puppers as we call him) likes dog food well enough but he would much rather eat people food. He especially likes cheese, but not cheap cheese. He has to have the $10 a wedge cheese like brie or fromage.

Although he's harmless, Diesel barks like a big bad dog when someone comes to the door. Once that person is inside, he gets bored and goes back to whatever sofa or bed strikes his fancy. But when we get home from work, it's a ritual that we have to bend over for Diesel's kisses (face wash) when we clear the door. He hears our vehicle and waits for us on the arm of the couch.

Because Diesel is part beagle and part rat terrier, he likes to burrow under blankets. Can't make a bed up nice in my house. Diesel will pull it apart and fix it so he's comfortable deep inside the folds that are now piled high in the middle.

Diesel is very perceptive, too. He somehow knows when someone is not feeling well or is stressed. When that happens to be me, he follows me around and wherever I sit down, he sits down right by (or on) my feet. When I get up, he gets up and it starts all over again.

Earlier this month I had cataract eye surgery. A week before that surgery, I woke up a few mornings with Diesel sitting on my pillow over my head. It's like he knew something was going to happen.

Anyway, we love our Diesel and spoil him shamelessly when we can. His latest treat is a very expensive off-white mohair skirt that I somehow inherited. It's a long tube-shaped skirt with an elastic waistband, and it looks terrible on me. I tried giving it away unsuccessfully recently and was about to give it to Goodwill when I thought of something.

I pulled that mohair skirt over a long pillow that belongs to Diesel. He is mostly off-white in color with a few black and brown spots. He absolutely loves that pillow and sleeps on it every night now. It must be very soft on his face and feel like another dog maybe.

Yes, our sweet little dog is spoiled, but he deserves it.

SEPT. 30

1918: President Woodrow Wilson gives a speech before Congress in support of guaranteeing women the right to vote. Although the House of Representatives had approved a 19th constitutional amendment giving women suffrage, the Senate had yet to vote on the measure.

OCT. 1

1890: An act of Congress creates Yosemite National Park, home of such natural wonders as Half Dome and the giant sequoia trees. Environmental trailblazer John Muir (1838-1914) and his colleagues campaigned for the congressional action, which was signed into law by President Benjamin Harrison and paved the way for generations of hikers, campers and nature lovers, along with countless "Don't Feed the Bears" signs.

OCT. 2

1985: Actor Rock Hudson, 59, becomes the first major U.S. celebrity to die of complications from AIDS. Hudson's death raised public awareness of the epidemic, which until that time had been ignored by many in the mainstream as a "gay plague."

OCT. 3

1995: At the end of a sensational trial, former football star O.J. Simpson is acquitted of the brutal 1994 double murder of his estranged wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend, Ronald Goldman. In the epic 252-day trial, Simpson's "dream team" of lawyers employed creative and controversial methods to convince jurors that Simpson's guilt had not been proved "beyond a reasonable doubt," thus surmounting what the prosecution called a "mountain of evidence" implicating him as the murderer.

OCT. 4

1965: Pope Paul VI arrives at Kennedy International Airport in New York City on the first visit by a reigning pope to the United States. During his American visit, limited entirely to New York City, Pope Paul VI visited St. Patrick's Cathedral and Cardinal Francis Spellman's residence. He met with President Lyndon Johnson at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, addressed the General Assembly of the United Nations, attended a public Mass at Yankee Stadium, visited the Vatican Exhibit at the New York World's Fair, and then flew to Rome from Kennedy Airport. During less than 14 hours in the United States, the pope was seen in person by one million people and on television by another 100 million.

OCT. 5

1947: President Harry Truman (1884-1972) makes the first-ever televised presidential address from the White House, asking Americans to cut back on their use of grain in order to help starving Europeans.

OCT. 6

1866: This new method of sticking up moving trains in remote locations low on law enforcement soon became popular in the American West, where the recently constructed transcontinental and regional railroads made attractive targets. With the western economy booming, trains often carried large stashes of cash and precious minerals. The sparsely populated landscape provided bandits with numerous isolated areas perfect for stopping trains, as well as plenty of places to hide from the law. Some gangs, like Butch Cassidy's Wild Bunch, found robbing trains so easy and lucrative that, for a time, they made it their criminal specialty. Railroad owners eventually got wise and fought back, protecting their trains' valuables with large safes, armed guards and even specially fortified boxcars. Consequently, by the late 1800s, robbing trains had turned into an increasingly tough and dangerous job.

LEGISLATIVE ACTIVITY

MichiganVotes.org is a free, non-partisan website created by the Mackinac Center for Public Policy to provide concise, non-partisan, plain-English descriptions of every bill and vote in the Michigan House and Senate. This report was released Friday, Sept. 14.

With the Legislature holding intermittent sessions during the general election campaign season, the Roll Call Report continues its review of key votes from the 2017-2018 session.

House Joint Resolution C:
Protect "electronic data and communications" from unreasonable search and seizure

To place before voters in the next general election a constitutional amendment to add "electronic data and communications" to the Article I provision that recognizes the right of the people to be secure from unreasonable government searches and seizures of their "person, houses, papers, and possessions." The Senate never took up this amendment so it is not on the November ballot.

Rep. Hank Vaupel (R-Dist. 47) ☒ YES

House Bill 4205: Limit state department rulemaking authority
To prohibit a state department from promulgating rules more stringent than required by federal standards, unless specifically required by state statute, or if the department director determines "the preponderance of the evidence" shows a need to do so. Republican Gov. Rick Snyder has vetoed previous versions of this proposal.

Passed 57 to 50 in the House on May 18, 2017
Rep. Joe Graves (R-Dist. 51) ☒ YES
Rep. Hank Vaupel (R-Dist. 47) ☒ YES

House Bill 4351: Exempt private aircraft owners from sales tax on parts

To exempt owners of private general aviation aircraft from having to pay sales tax on parts. This expands an existing exemption that benefits out of state aircraft owners (as an incentive to buy parts in Michigan), so that it applies to all private aircraft owners who reside in this state. Fiscal agency projections indicate this will save aircraft owners $4 million annually, and reduce state revenue by the same amount. The Senate has not voted on this bill.

Help reduce animal overpopulation

Companion animal overpopulation is a problem that continues to tax the resources of communities throughout North America. Each year, millions of animals are euthanized in animal shelters because there are simply not enough people to adopt them.

One of the easiest ways to prevent pet overpopulation is to spay and neuter animals. Cats can reproduce at very fast rates. According to the Cat Rescue, Adoption & Foster Team of Central Oregon, two uncontrolled breeding cats can create the following situation if they have two litters a year at a survival rate of 2.8 kittens per litter: 12 cats in the first year, 66 cats in the second year, and 2,201 cats in the third year. Cats reach puberty between 4 and 12 months of age. Female cats reproduce between January and September, and might come back into "heat" every 14 to 21 days until they have bred or daylight decreases considerably. Cats can give birth 60 days after they have bred.

With regard to when to spay or neuter animals, experts advise taking a "the earlier the better" approach. The North Shore Animal League America's SpayUSA says that, for many years, veterinarians were taught that cats and dogs had to be one year old to be spayed or neutered. But it is now known that kittens and pups can be spayed or neutered at the age of two months (or two pounds). The American Veterinary Medical Association has endorsed this practice, which is referred to as "early age neutering." When spayed or neutered early, animals recover more quickly from surgery than they would if spayed or neutered later in life.

The Canadian Federation of Humane Societies offers that spaying or neutering is the responsibility of all pet owners. But for some owners, the cost of spaying or neutering can be a deterrent. Several municipalities, humane societies and SPCAs now offer low-cost spay/neuter programs or clinics to address this issue. One such organization is the Beat the Heat Alliance, Inc., which offers spay/neuter access, assistance and education in northeastern Tennessee. The group also sponsors the Beat the Heat annual event.

By controlling the rate of reproduction, communities can help alleviate the strain that is posed by pet overpopulation.

Honey Chicken Kabobs

Honey chicken kabobs with veggies. You can marinate overnight and make these kabobs for an outdoor barbecue as a tasty alternative to the usual barbecue fare! Fresh mushrooms and cherry tomatoes can also be used. (This can also be done in the broiler.)

- INGREDIENTS
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
 - 1/3 cup honey
 - 1/3 cup soy sauce
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
 - 8 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves (cut into 1 inch cubes)
 - 2 cloves garlic
 - 5 small onions (cut into 2 inch pieces)
 - 2 red bell peppers (cut into 2 inch pieces)
 - skewers

DIRECTIONS

In a large bowl, whisk together oil, honey, soy sauce, and pepper. Before adding chicken, reserve a small amount of marinade to brush onto kabobs while cooking. Place the chicken, garlic, onions and peppers in the bowl, and marinate in the refrigerator at least 2 hours (the longer the better).

Preheat the grill for high heat.

Drain marinade from the chicken and vegetables, and discard marinade. Thread chicken and vegetables alternately onto the skewers.

Lightly oil the grill grate. Place the skewers on the grill. Cook for 12 to 15 minutes, until chicken juices run clear. Turn and brush with reserved marinade frequently.
