Fenton — The sculpture “Zebra and Butterflies,” drew the attention of Michelle Chowan’s young children, who wanted a photo with the playful addition to Fenton’s annual sculpture exhibit Monday, May 6. “I think it’s beautiful,” she said of the public art overall. She said some pieces aren’t to her taste, but others are, like “Cat Tails” behind City Hall. This is the seventh year of the sculpture program, which is funded by the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and installed and removed by Flatlanders Sculpture Supply of Blissfield. This year nine sculptures were rented for a cost of $15,621 or $1,735.66 each. Assistant City Manager and DDA Director Michael Hart described the 2019 exhibit as “dynamic” and “exciting.” See SCULPTURE on 10

Building Brands

Some people say if you love what you do, you never work a day in your life. I once believed this, but I don't anymore. You can love your career, and it can still be work. It's okay to admit that. Here are two reasons why:

Weekends and vacations are better when you've earned them.

I love weekends and vacations. One of the reasons is because I earn them! If I laid around eating bonbons, I doubt my trips to the beach or Saturday nights out would be as enjoyable. I do check email while gone, but since admitting that work is work, I've been better about setting boundaries to truly enjoy my time not working.

If it's not work, how could you be in a work slump. When I don't jump out of bed excited for the day, I feel guilty. "What's wrong with me?" I think. "I have the best job ever!" A fastcompany.com article by Stephanie Vozza explains: "Even people who like their jobs can get into a work slump due to a naturally occurring phenomenon called 'hedonic adaptation,' says Tim Bono, lecturer in psychological and brain sciences at Washington University in St. Louis. 'We get used to things — even wonderful things — that at one time were sources of immense pleasure and joy,' he says. 'Someone who loves chocolate will grow tired of eating it ... if chocolate is the only thing they have to eat every single day.'" Luckily, there's a cure to the slump — the first step being admitting that what you do is work. The fastcompany.com article also suggests finding work that matters most to you and doing that and focusing on what's going well.

Your career is not the only thing you can love and still call work — think parenting (in my case pet parenting) and marriage. I'm married to a morning person. He wakes up before the alarm and blasts music. Some people say the key to a successful marriage is choosing to be married every day. Thanks to Matt's early bird ways, I consciously think about this every. single.day. — all before 6 a.m. I use that same logic when it comes to my career. I choose my career every.single.day. In fact, if it wasn't for Matt, I'd say it's the reason I get out of bed in the morning.

What do you love that takes hard work? Email me ecaswell@mihomepage.com to share.

Nursing, teaching — two noble professions

■ It's Nurse Appreciation Week and Teacher Appreciation Week

By Vera Hogan

When women who are baby boomers today were kids, the two most popular professions to pursue were nursing and teaching.

Both continue to be noble professions, which is why we are this very week celebrating Nurse Appreciation Week (May 6 -12) and Teacher Appreciation Week (May 6 – 10).

Nursing

According to Lee Nelson, who wrote “7 Things Nurses Deal with that Make Others Freak Out” in nurse.org, “Being a nurse involves seeing, hearing, smelling, touching and dealing with some of life’s not-so-pleasant things. Nurses face it all from the grossest to the most stunning situations that would make the normal person squirm or run. Yet, they never stop a beat of helping the patients that they have been trained to see through it all.”

Barb Gallogly, a senior lecturer and coordinator for Post Baccalaureate Nursing Program at Henry Predolin School of Nursing at Edgewood College, Madison, Wisconsin said, “We see it all. We are the eyes of the physician and the ears of the respiratory therapist. We are in a position of privilege to be with the patients on a minute-to-minute basis. People trust us, and people open up to us.”

Body fluids are among the most unpleasant things nurses deal with.

Gallogly says there are still things that make her gag. “But you have to rise above it, and work with it, and not let your own personal feelings or reactions get in the way of good patient care. A nurse must remain respectful of the patient and be calm when all hell breaks loose.”

Infections also are a danger to nurses and others who care for patients. Masks, anti-bacterial gel and constant hand washing are required to remain healthy and be able to care for infected people.

Nurses also need to deal with death, chaos especially in an emergency room, and family dynamics. Gallogly says it’s easy to label people as the “crazy daughter” or “hysterical mother.”

Fenton celebrates Drinking Water Week

■ Groundwater flow model is on display at city hall

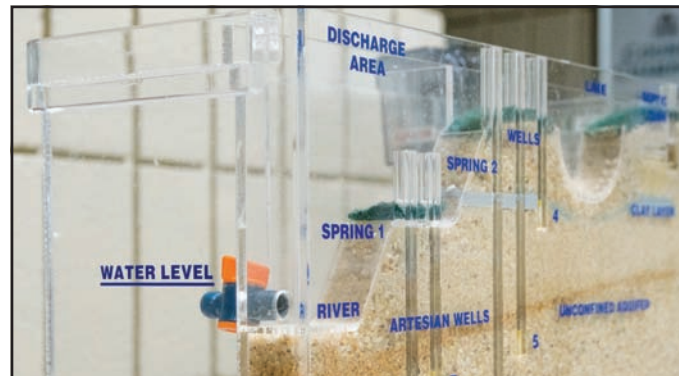

Compiled By Vera Hogan

This year the Well Head Protection committee is celebrating Drinking Water Week (May 5 – 11) in the city of Fenton. This is in conjunction with the American Water Works Association and with many other communities around the state of Michigan and the nation.

The city of Fenton produces its own drinking water for the community, according to Stephen Guy, Fenton water department superintendent. This also includes many customers in the Livingston County area of Fenton. The city does not rely on other water producers to provide water to the city.

“Our raw water is pulled from four groundwater wells in the vicinity of the water plant,” said Guy. “The water then flows through a treatment process which allows the city to make available up to 4 million gallons of water each day.

“Our drinking water plays a vital role in community public health protection and fire protection,” he said. “Our drinking water provides support for our economy by providing the necessary quantities of reliable water to our commercial and industrial users, as well as providing support to the quality of life we enjoy.

“The protection of our groundwater wells is a primary responsibility for providing clean, uninterrupted water to the citizens of Fenton. The protection of our water source has been ongoing since the inception of the water treatment facility in 2004.”

The city has a WHP team that meets quarterly and works to protect its drinking water source. The team consists of community residents and business leaders, local teachers, city administrators, and other water professionals. The team has been successful in obtaining grants from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) to help perform the protection program.

To kick off Drinking Water Week in Fenton, Mayor Sue Osborn made a proclamation to celebrate Drinking Water Week. The WHP committee has planned to include providing water related announcements at all Fenton Area Public Schools during their morning announcements each day of Drinking Water Week.

Another outreach event involves everyone in the community. The public is invited to City Hall at 4 p.m. on Thursday, May 9 and Friday, May 10 during Water Week to learn more about Fenton’s groundwater wells, their functions, and ways the public can help protect the drinking water supply.

Members of the WHP committee will be demonstrating the recently obtained Groundwater Flow Model that shows how water moves through the ground. The members will also be handing out educational and promotional items during this time at city hall.

The public is invited to Fenton City Hall, 301 S. LeRoy, at 4 p.m., Thursday, May 9 and Friday, May 10 during Drinking Water Week to learn more about Fenton’s groundwater wells, their functions, and ways the public can help protect the drinking water supply.

A “Groundwater Flow Model” that shows how water moves through the ground is on display at Fenton City Hall, with demonstrations once per day.

Contempt of Congress

An interesting story is developing in Washington, D.C. with the constitutional showdown between Democrats in Congress and United States Attorney General William Barr over his alleged refusal to honor a congressional subpoena and turn over an unredacted copy of Special Counsel Robert Mueller’s investigation into Russian interference in the 2016 presidential election.

I’m sure everyone is familiar with the term “Contempt of Court” and it appears that the House Judiciary Committee will vote today to determine if a “Contempt of Congress” proceeding against Mr. Barr should be started.

There are similarities and differences between the two types of contempts. Today I’ll focus on describing Contempt of Congress.

A shorthand definition of this type of contempt is when a person has committed an act which obstructs the work of Congress or one of its committees.

Although historically there have been cases involving bribery of a member of Congress or other acts, which have been determined to be contempt, in more recent times the refusal of a person to comply with a subpoena to testify or produce documents are the most common examples.

If the Judiciary Committee’s vote is that Mr. Barr is in contempt, the matter is referred to the full House for a vote. If a majority then finds he’s in contempt, there are three contempt options available:

To use the House’s “inherent contempt” powers and have Mr. Barr arrested, brought to the floor to answer the charges, and then held in custody until he turns over the report.

By statute, refer the matter to the United States Attorney for the

Holly schools names new athletic director

■ Casey Lombard has taught in district for 14 years, begins new role July 1

Compiled by Sharon Stone

Holly Area Schools teacher and coach Casey Lombard has been named the district's middle and high school athletic director, replacing longtime educator and outgoing Athletic Director Deb VanKuiken. Lombard begins his new role July 1.

"We are excited to have Casey on board to lead our athletic department, which incorporates competitive sports as part of a well-rounded, 21st century education that teaches students skills that will serve them throughout their lives," said Scott Roper, Holly Area Schools superintendent. "We thank Deb for her many years of service and dedication to our athletics program and wish her all the best in the next phase of her life."

Lombard was officially named the district's middle and high school athletic director at the district Board of Education's Monday, April 29 meeting. He has taught math, social studies and sports statistics in the district for the past 14 years.

Lombard earned his bachelor's degree in secondary education from Saginaw Valley State University. He has served as an assistant on the Saginaw Valley State University men's basketball team, and has been a boys and girls golf and girls basketball coach at Holly High School.

"I am honored to be chosen to continue the already stellar reputation of our Broncho athletic department," Lombard said. "I am excited to have the opportunity to help provide all students the opportunity to participate in athletics as part of their overall educational experience here at Holly Area Schools."

VanKuiken served as athletic director at the middle school and high school for 17 of her nearly 40 years as an educator. While at Holly Area Schools, she helped start several sports programs and club activities. She was previously a teacher, athletic director, assistant principal and tennis, volleyball and softball coach in the Bridgeport-Spaulling Community School District.

"I am proud of my years leading the Broncho athletic program, and truly appreciate the opportunity to work with so many great students, staff and families who help define what Broncho Pride is all about," VanKuiken said. "I am leaving the program in very capable hands, and I have no doubt Casey will help continue providing new, innovative athletic opportunities for our kids."

Training for precision

The Fenton Fire Department trained May 2 and May 6 on this vacant building, which will be demolished in preparation for the new 111 Leroy Place. The building used to hold Hometown Computers and JJ Trophy. Firefighters practiced roof ventilation using ground and roof ladders. Fire Chief Bob Cairnduff said they take advantage of these training opportunities because it provides firefighters with a realistic situation for perfecting their skills.

But that doesn't solve any problems or help anyone. "We try to explore those dynamics and include them in what we are doing with the patient," she said.

Nurses say they do it because they want to help people. They want to educate people to live healthier, happier lives no matter what squeamish circumstances they have to confront.

Teaching

As far as teaching, an apple on the desk is nice, but doesn't mean everything is all rosy cheeks and eager learners.

According to Jill Hare at teaching.monster.com, educators have the opportunity to make a huge impact on students, but with that opportunity comes many challenges. Great teachers find ways to get past these challenges and succeed.

With 20 to 25 or more children in a class, the teacher feels solely accountable for the welfare, the academic progress, and the social development of each one of them. Some kids have a difficult home life and may act out in class.

Teachers also face an unhealthy environment. Kids get sick and teachers are exposed to unnecessary illnesses due to the lack of consideration of the parents and the non-existent/enforced policies of administration regarding sick children in school. The "perfect attendance" award is for some students the only award they can aspire to and so come to school regardless of the endangerment of others.

Other challenges teachers can face include out-of-touch policy makers, difficult parents, lack of time and emotional stress.

On the other hand, teachers enjoy summer vacations, a shorter workday, a sense of belonging and prestige. Teachers are well-respected in their communities.

"The relationships you develop as a teacher are absolutely amazing," Hare said. "You are meeting people at a critical point in their life, and having a chance to build into their lives. You see your students every day, or every other day, and you get to know their minds, and their hearts. It is a great privilege, and such a wonderful thing about being a teacher."

'Peace, Love and Tattoos' service welcomes all at Transfiguration Lutheran Church

"Don't judge a book by its cover" is the message of a special service at Transfiguration Lutheran Church (TLC) at 14176 Fenton Rd., in Fenton Township, Saturday, May 11 at 7 p.m. TLC invites people to come together in peace to celebrate "Peace, Love and Tattoos," a unique worship experience that includes reflection and discussion. Another segment includes people from diverse backgrounds who will talk about their tattoos, why they got them and how they are received by others. "Our goal with this service is for people to judge less and love more," said Rev. Dr. Mark Fisher, pastor at TLC, who has his own two sleeves of tattoos. "For far too long, many people have felt like Christians are judgmental. We want to send a message about seeing the sacred value of all people, regardless of gender, sexual orientation, race, religion or socio-economic status." For more information about the "Peace, Love and Tattoos" service, visit fentontlc.org or call (810) 629-7332.

The bridge, which was built in 1937 and goes over the Shiawassee River, has been one lane only since October 2017 after years of deterioration.

Alexander Patsy, programming and development engineer with GCRC, said the northbound lane of the bridge is currently closed.

The bridge is built in two compartments — the substructure, which is everything below the beams, and the superstructure, which is everything above the beams, including the deck.

"Everything above the substructure is deteriorating," he said.

The GCRC is also looking to replace the substructure because the Shiawassee River channel has meandered over time. Patsy said the substructure is too narrow and too restrictive on the river. A steel plate is covering a 2-foot-wide hole in the middle of the bridge.

"The substructure is not terrible, but it needs to be replaced," Patsy said.

The Genesee County Road Commission sent a letter to Fenton Township officials about an opportunity to fund a Hogan Road Bridge replacement.

According to the letter, the Bay Region Local Bridge Program, run by MDOT, could fund 95 percent of the total construction costs, which is $1,068,750. For the remaining 10 percent, the GCRC and Fenton Township would each pay $168,750 in matching funds. This is only if the project is approved.

"In accordance with standing policies for bridge funding on local roadways, 50 percent of the local share of the total project cost will be funded by the Genesee County Road Commission. The remaining 50 percent of the local share of the total project cost must be funded by Fenton Township. The total project cost includes construction costs, preliminary engineering costs and construction engineering costs," the letter states.

The GCRC requested that the township send a letter of support of participating in the share of the cost for the fiscal year 2022.

The road commission will know by mid-October 2019 if the Hogan Road Bridge was chosen by the MDOT Local Bridge Program. It's a competitive program.

"Roads like Hogan Road, albeit they are important locally, have trouble standing up to bigger competition because they are lower volume," he said.

The GCRC will keep one lane open and actively monitor the structure on a routine basis until it can be replaced.

Annual Rose Hill Flower Sale and Fair

Rose Hill Center will host its 18th annual Rose Hill Flower Sale and Fair, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, May 11. The public event, which is held during May is Mental Health Month, features the sale of annuals, perennials, flower planters and its popular Rose Hill roses. There will be several family friendly activities throughout the day. Rose Hill Center, 5130 Rose Hill Blvd., Holly, is located off Fagan Road, east of North Holly Road, near the Great Lakes National Cemetery. "Each year, our annual flower sale and fair gets bigger and better, offering visitors the chance to purchase many beautiful flowers while enjoying a wonderful day with their entire family," said Rosemary Kelly, Rose Hill Center co-founder. "The event is not only something our residents and staff look forward to each year, but a meaningful opportunity to help educate others in an effort to raise awareness about mental illness."

The sculpture selection subcommittee chose the pieces. This exhibit is a little more literal than abstract, with actual zebras, anemones, psychiatrists and cats. They are placed downtown roughly along LeRoy Street from Silver Lake Road to Shiawassee Avenue.

Fenton's sculpture program has blossomed from an initial group of six rented pieces in 2013 to nine rented sculptures and five locally owned pieces for a total of 14 in 2019.

The city is now the permanent home of three James Havens pieces, since they closed the deal for his stainless steel "Large Graceful Dancer," now located at the Fenton Community and Cultural center, framed neatly against the brown brick wall.

"His works in general are very high quality. The ability to acquire artwork, let alone his, would be difficult and significantly more expensive in the future," Hart said. These pieces also become an asset that can increase in value over time.

The DDA purchased the piece for $10,150. Hart said its original price was more than $16,000. Havens said this 800-pound sculpture is the largest of a series of similar humanoid figures.

The sculptor also created "Stainless Steel Butterfly," and "The Librarian," which were privately purchased for the city through donations and fundraising drives.

While the pieces were installed Thursday, May 2, Havens, 81, was on hand to check out the entire exhibit and admire the placement of his pieces. "I like that they think my work is enhancing this already great setting," he said. He joked that he'd have to move from Ohio to be with his collection.

All his pieces are stainless steel, which he said is a "devil to work with," but is very durable, and complements and reflects the environment with the semi-shiny surface.

Lahring Meadows, east of Jennings Road and just west of U.S. 23, is proposed to be a 22-unit subdivision on 32.2 acres of land.

The owner, Lois Van Lente, requested to rezone the property from R-3 (single family residential) to Planned Unit Development (PUD) to build the 22 units with one out lot. The homes will be single story houses with two- and three-car garages. A sidewalk will go through the subdivision and 40 percent of the area will be set aside as open space.

Developers have a minimum lot size of 12,000 square feet and a minimum lot width of 75 feet. The maximum building height cannot exceed 29 feet. The developer will pay the cost of any upgrades to the sanitary sewer system to be determined by Fenton Township.

No price point on the homes has been disclosed.

The Planning Commission unanimously recommended approval.

Treasurer John Tucker, who’s also a planning commissioner, said it’s consistent with the master plan, and that it’s a “no brainer.”

Citizens in the cities of Fenton and Linden, and Fenton Township, the three municipalities that make up Southern Lakes Parks and Recreation (SLPR), were asked to amend the SLPR charter to include a levy and collect 1.2 mills for 10 years, from 2019 to 2028, to provide funds for non-motorized recreational paths in Fenton, Fenton Township and Linden. The millage was expected to raise just over $1.4 million in the first year. The estimated cost of the pathways is almost $14 million.

The ballot question had to be approved by a majority of voters in each of the three communities to pass.

In addition to the non-motorized pathway proposal, Linden City voters were asked to approve a millage renewal for mosquito control that would levy .3859 mills for four years. It would raise approximately $41,431 when first levied in 2019.

LF baseball's pitching leads squad to DH sweep thriller

By David Troppens

Quietly, the Lake Fenton varsity baseball team is putting together a pretty impressive season based around a strong pitching staff.

The Blue Devils (10-3 overall) improved their current win streak to six games with a sweep of Corunna on Monday. Lake Fenton beat Corunna 2-1 in the opener and 3-0 in the nightcap.

In the opening game, Ben Schulze needed just 76 pitches to toss a three-hit complete-game victory. He struck out four and walked three. Fifty of his pitches were strikes, and he tossed first-pitch strikes to 18 of 26 batters.

The Blue Devils took the lead for the first time with two runs in the top of the seventh inning.

Blue Devils remain perfect in GAC softball action

■ Offense sparks sweep vs. Corunna

By David Troppens

The Lake Fenton varsity softball team keeps on producing runs and victories.

The Blue Devils scored a combined 23 runs in a doubleheader sweep against Corunna on Monday.

Lake Fenton won the first game in a come-from-behind thriller by a 9-7 margin, and then won the second game much easier 14-1.

In the first game, the Blue Devils trailed at one time 7-5, but scored two runs in the seventh and two more in the eighth to earn the victory. In the seventh, Macy Phillips provided the big blow, a two-run home run after a Haley Whittecar single. In the eighth, Emily Elrich singled to start the inning, Allie LaVallier reached base on a bunt and an Olivia Tanner single plated one of the runs. Whittecar hit a sacrifice fly, plating the second run.

"We showed some character," Lake Fenton varsity softball coach Amos Rinks said. "We lost the lead in the sixth but came back in the seventh to tie it back up with Macy Phillips's two-run homer. Then scored two more in the top of the eighth to go ahead and eventually win the game."

LaVallier, Whittecar, Kamaya Whittacker and Taylor Godlewski had two hits each in the contest.

FLaX Heat lacrosse continue hot ways, defeats Oxford, 9-7

By David Troppens

Most nights, girls lacrosse games are determined by who wins the most draws.

Win the draw and that means you have control of the ball and a great chance to score the next goal. That theory didn't hold up Friday.

The Fenton/Linden girls varsity lacrosse team (FLaX Heat) won just 8-of-18 draws, but won the contest 9-7 against visiting Oxford.

"The defense in all three zones was outstanding," FLA X Heat Roger Ellis said. "Double teams executed after a missed shot, neutral zone pressure and timely interceptions on the defensive end helped our girls maintain possession throughout most of the game."

Bronchos record split vs. Goodrich at location of old Tiger Stadium

Tiger Stadium has long been demolished, but what remains is the recently created Willie Horton Field of Dreams, a place where games are played in honor of Tiger Stadium's past.

The Holly varsity baseball team got a chance to play at the site on Monday, earning a doubleheader split with Goodrich. Holly won the opening game 3-2 and lost the nightcap 7-4.

"It was awesome. It brought out a lot of memories," Holly varsity baseball coach Benny Jackson said. "There's lots of history down there and the boys did some research on the history. They seemed pretty excited as well. I thought the parents enjoyed the experience as well. They have done a really nice job down there. They have some Tiger stuff hanging everywhere, and the turf for the entire playing field makes it very nice too."
