STAY SAFE AT LOCAL LAKES THIS SUMMER

Be aware of dangers that could be in the water

By Hannah Ball

Rusty nails. Bacteria. Swimmer's ear.

Our inland lakes offer much beauty and enjoyment during the hot summer months, but the water could carry unseen dangers and ailments.

➔ BACTERIA

Bacteria can enter the body through open wounds, such as an open cut or scrape. Nine beaches in Michigan were closed last week because of high bacteria levels. None were local beaches.

At one beach in Florida, a young girl became infected with flesh-eating bacteria called necrotizing fasciitis last month. She was treated and is in stable condition. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), this bacteria is rare, but one in three people who develop this condition will die from it. To avoid contracting an illness from bacteria in lakes, do not swim with an open wound. Take a shower after swimming and inspect the skin of your children after being in the water. Clean any new wounds.

A bacteria that can live in chlorinated pools is cryptosporidium, which is the leading cause of outbreaks of diarrhea tied to water, according to the CDC. The number of crypto cases in the U.S. has increased an average of 13 percent since 2009.

The bacteria spreads when there is fecal matter in a pool, and it can cause dehydration and malnutrition. To avoid it, urge kids not to swallow pool water and check swim diapers of children every 30 minutes to make sure they're clean.

Avoid swimming in pools if you've recently had diarrhea.

E. COLI MONITORING

The Department of Environmental Quality Beach Guide shows that Clover Beach in Fenton Township, Silver Lake Beach and Copneconic Lake at Camp Copneconic are monitored weekly by the Genesee County Health Department. Seven Lakes State Park is monitored by Oakland County Health Division. None currently have warnings or advisories.

The Michigan Department of Environment, Great Lakes and Energy (EGLE) has a cooperative lakes monitoring program (CLMP) that allows volunteer citizens to monitor indicators of water quality in their lakes. Volunteers tested Lake Fenton in 2017, Marl Lake in 2015, and Silver and Byram lakes in 2014.

Byram Lake is occasionally closed due to elevated levels of E. coli. Photo: Tim Jagielo

SWIMMER'S EAR

Otitis externa is an infection in your ear canal, which is a tube that runs from the hole on the outside of your ear to your eardrum. It's identified by itchiness in the ear, pain, trouble hearing, and fluid or pus draining out the ear. If your ear hurts when you tug or press on it, you might have swimmer's ear, according to webmd.com.

It's caused by bacteria, but sometimes happens because of a virus or a fungus. Call your doctor if you think you have swimmer's ear.

RUSTY NAILS AND OTHER SHARP OBJECTS

Walking along the beach barefoot in the water can be relaxing, but it can expose someone to stray glass, nails or other sharp objects left in the water that could cut skin. Wearing water shoes is the easiest way to avoid stepping on something sharp and being injured.

If you are cut by metal or something else rusty, make sure you're up to date on your tetanus shot. Always bring a first-aid kit when going to the beach or on a boat.

Boating safety tips from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources include the following:

Wear a life jacket. Drowning was the cause of death in 76 percent of boating accident fatalities in 2017, according to the U.S. Coast Guard.

Stay sober. Alcohol is the leading contributing factor in fatal boating accidents.

Stay alert. Watch for swimmers, other boats, kayaks, wildlife and more.

Check your boat before using it. Make sure to keep enough life jackets on board for every passenger, as well as a fire extinguisher, rope and a paddle.

Take cellphone and store in waterproof pouch if possible. Call for help if needed.

Mobile eats and treats are nothing new

– Compiled By Vera Hogan –

Some people call it a “roach coach” and others call it a “gut wagon,” but no matter what you call them, food trucks are here to stay and gaining in popularity.

The concept, however, is not new. According to The Balance Small Business, the history of American food trucks dates back many years as mobile dining and street food have been part of Americans’ dining habits since the late 17th century where it could be found in many of the larger cities on the east coast.

The following is some of that history:

Food has been sold from trucks since 17th century

1866

The Chuck wagon is invented by Charles Goodnight to feed cattlemen and wagon trains traversing the old West. Why do they call it a chuck wagon? Not because it's a nickname for Charles. Since early 17th Century, individuals involved in the meat business referred to a lower priced part of the beef carcass as the “chuck.” Although less glamorous than other cuts, the chuck was an important source of nutrition for the working man.

1894

Sausage vendors sell their wares outside the student dorms at major eastern universities (Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and Cornell), and their carts became known as “dog wagons.”

1900

The earliest street food was not hot dogs or pretzels, but in fact oysters and clams. At one time, this was the food of the masses and even the poorest citizens ate oysters for dinner. As European immigrants continued to come to New York, the street food changed to hot corn, pickles, knishes, and sausages. In the 1970s and '80s, it was predominantly Greek souvlaki and kabobs being sold from carts. As the Muslim population increased, so did the halal carts which now make up most of lunches in Midtown.

1936

The Oscar Mayer “Wienermobile” is a series of automobiles shaped like a hot dog on a bun, which are used to promote and advertise Oscar Mayer products in the United States. The first version was created in 1936 by Oscar Mayer’s nephew, Carl G. Mayer, and variants are still used by the Oscar Mayer company today. Drivers of the Wiener mobiles are known as Hot-doggers and often hand out toy whistles shaped as replicas of the Wiener mobile, known as Wiener whistles.

1950s

Ice cream trucks begin selling their frozen treats. Good Humor is a brand of ice cream started in Youngstown, Ohio, in the early 1920s with the Good Humor bar, a chocolate-coated ice cream bar on a stick sold from ice cream trucks and retail outlets. In the 1950s the Good Humor company operated up to 2,000 “sales cars.”

Not on my watch!

The first time I was allowed to watch my younger sister alone was Saturday night, July 16, 1966. I was 13 and Monika was 9. Our older sister was 17 and on a date. Our parents were out for dinner and dancing.

We lived in a rural area of Bonfield, Illinois, located about two hours south of Chicago. Ours was the first house in a row of 10, surrounded by farm fields on all sides, on Route 17.

Not being a news junkie at the ripe old age of 13, I had no idea that during the overnight hours of July 13, 1966 and into July 14, a killer named Richard Speck was on the loose. He was being sought for murdering eight student nurses, who lived together in a townhouse on Chicago's south side.

My parents didn't mention it and probably didn't think it was necessary since it happened more than 100 miles away. They didn't see what I saw on the TV that Saturday night, that Speck was on the run and heading south, in our direction.

Here's what happened.

When 23-year-old Corazon Amurao opened the front door to Speck's knock, he forced his way in at gunpoint. Speck gathered the nurses together and ordered them to empty their purses, before tying them all up.

Over the next few hours, eight woman, between 19 and 24, were bound, robbed, beaten, strangled and stabbed during Speck's frenzy, and one victim was said to have been raped. Speck lost count of his victims and failed to notice that Amurao had managed to hide herself under one of the beds. When he left hours later, she cowered in her hiding place before finally climbing out on a window ledge to scream for help.

The police arrived to scenes of horror. They brought Amurao to safety, interviewed her and proceeded with the police drawing of a suspect. Amurao remembered the distinctive "Born to Raise Hell" tattoo that, along with the image, enabled police to identify their suspect as Speck.

Although he was arrested and taken into custody in Chicago on July 19, 1966, I didn't know on July 16 that he wasn't on his way to a destination south of Chicago that I was sure would take him right past our house. I was scared to death, but I was ready to protect my little sister with a baseball bat and can of black pepper placed at the front door.

Even though he was a strong 25-year-old man, capable of butchering eight women in their home, I thought that my skinny, scrawny self was bad enough to throw pepper in his eyes, beat him upside his head and call police. Yeah, right!

LOOKING BACK at this week in HISTORY

COMPILED BY VERA HOGAN

JULY 14

1789: Parisian revolutionaries and mutinous troops storm and dismantle the Bastille, a royal fortress and prison that had come to symbolize the tyranny of the Bourbon monarchs. This dramatic action signaled the beginning of the French Revolution, a decade of political turmoil and terror in which King Louis XVI was overthrown and tens of thousands of people, including the king and his wife Marie-Antoinette, were executed.

JULY 15

1971: During a live television and radio broadcast, President Richard Nixon stuns the nation by announcing that he will visit communist China the following year. The statement marked a dramatic turning point in U.S.-China relations, as well as a major shift in American foreign policy.

JULY 16

1995: Amazon officially opens for business as an online bookseller. Within a month, the fledgling retailer had shipped books to all 50 U.S. states and to 45 countries. Founder Jeff Bezos' motto was "get big fast," and Seattle-based Amazon eventually morphed into an e-commerce colossus, selling everything from groceries to furniture to live ladybugs, and helping to revolutionize the way people shop.

JULY 17

1967: One of the oddest musical pairings in history ends when Jimi Hendrix dropped out as the opening act for teenybopper sensations The Monkees. The booking of psychedelic rock god Jimi Hendrix with the made-for-television Monkees was the brainchild of Hendrix's manager, Mike Jeffery, who was seeking greater public exposure for a young client who was a budding star in the UK, but a near unknown in his native United States. It was in the UK, in fact, that Monkee Mike Nesmith first heard a tape of Hendrix playing while at a dinner party with John Lennon, Paul McCartney and Eric Clapton. Nesmith and his fellow Monkees Peter Tork and Mickey Dolenz became instant Jimi Hendrix fans, and after witnessing his legendary performance at the Monterey Pop Festival in June 1967, they encouraged their own manager to invite the little-known but highly respected Jimi Hendrix Experience to join their upcoming U.S. tour.

JULY 18

1986: New close-up videotapes of the sunken ocean liner Titanic are released to the public. Taken on the first manned expedition to the wreck, the videotapes are stunning in their clarity and detail, showing one of the ship's majestic grand staircases and a coral-covered chandelier swinging slowly in the ocean current.

JULY 19

1879: Doc Holliday commits his first murder, killing a man for shooting up his New Mexico saloon. Despite his formidable reputation as a deadly gunslinger, Holliday only engaged in eight shootouts during his life, and it has only been verified that he killed two men.

JULY 20

1969: At 10:56 p.m. EDT, American astronaut Neil Armstrong, 240,000 miles from Earth, speaks these words to more than a billion people listening at home: "That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind." Stepping off the lunar landing module Eagle, Armstrong became the first human to walk on the surface of the moon.

Guilt-Free Banana Chocolate Smoothie

Chocoholics often feel that nothing beats a rich piece of chocolate, a sumptuous slice of chocolate cake or a creamy serving of chocolate ice cream. Chocolate contains four times the amount of catechins as tea, and it contains the same heart-healthy flavonoids as red wine. However, the way chocolate is prepared can affect its potential health benefits. For those who want a healthy, low-fat chocolate option that's easier on the waistline, smoothies may be the way to go.

This recipe for "Guilt-Free Banana Chocolate Smoothie" from Ellen Brown's "Super Smoothies: 100 Recipes to Supercharge Your Immune System" (Crestline) is one way to get a full dose of delicious chocolate (in two forms). This smoothie is chock-full of other ingredients, including a potassium-rich banana, that are part of a healthy, balanced diet. When the kids are indulging in ice cream, this smoothie offers parents the same texture and taste without all the guilt.

Serves 4 1-cup servings

INGREDIENTS:

- 1½ cups chocolate soy milk
- 3 ounces chopped dark chocolate
- 3 tablespoons cocoa powder, preferably Dutch-processed
- 2 tablespoons bee pollen
- 2 tablespoons flaxseed oil
- 2 cups sliced banana
- 1 cup chocolate frozen yogurt
- 2 tablespoons shaved chocolate for garnish (optional)

DIRECTIONS:

Combine soy milk, chopped chocolate, cocoa powder, bee pollen, flaxseed oil, and banana in a blender or smoothie maker. Blend on high speed for 45 seconds or until mixture is puréed and smooth. Add frozen yogurt, and blend on high speed again until mixture is smooth. Serve immediately, garnished with chocolate shavings, if desired.

THE PUBLIC
In “The Public” an unusually bitter Arctic blast has made its way to downtown Cincinnati and the front doors of the public library where the action of the film takes place. At odds with library officials over how to handle the extreme weather event, some homeless patrons turn the building into a shelter for the night by staging an “Occupy” sit in. What begins as an act of civil disobedience becomes a stand-off with police and a rush-to-judgment media constantly speculating about what’s really happening. This David versus Goliath story tackles some of our nation’s most challenging issues. PG-13, 2 hr. 2 min. Drama

She was the ultimate patriot. Now, what she knows could bring down the government. Libby Lamm (Tika Sumpter) is a former top national security advisor who, while working with Rachel Burke (Jamie Lee Curtis), a ruthless, steely-willed political veteran, signed off on a controversial military action that was supposed to end the war on terror. The problem: thousands died under false pretenses. Libby sets out to tell the truth, risking treason - and her own life. This gripping saga of lies, conspiracy, and betrayal is an explosive look at what it takes to do the right thing - even if that means going up against your own country. R, 1 hr. 42 min. ## 5 ways to prevent your pet from getting lost Loving pets want to be right by their owners’ sides as much as possible. As a result, a boisterous puppy may follow underfoot while a cute kitty will snuggle on the sofa with its owner.

Even though pets prefer to stick close by, there are times when distractions, events or noises can cause a pet to roam. Animals that do not know how to find their way back home can quickly become disoriented and lost.

The number of pets that go missing can be staggering. The American Humane Association estimates that more than 10 million dogs and cats are lost or stolen in the United States every year. One in three pets will become lost at some point during their lives. The following are five steps pet owners can take to prevent them from getting lost.

- 1. Get a collar and identification tag. Collars may seem “old school” in a digital world, but a dog tag is an ideal way to identify a pet and provide contact information should he or she get lost.
- 2. Invest in microchipping. Microchipping is an effective way to ensure current contact information always accompanies the animal, whether he or she is wearing a collar or not. Microchips are small identification devices about the size of a grain of rice that are painlessly inserted just under the skin of a pet. The microchip gives off a signal that can be read with a handheld scanner used by animal shelters and most vets. A study published in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association, examined information from 53 animal shelters across the U.S. and confirmed the - high rate of return of microchipped dogs and cats to their families.

- 3. Ensure your pet is spayed or neutered. Animals that have not been spayed or neutered have a tendency to roam because they are looking to fulfill the instinct to mate. Neutering removes this desire, and the pets may be more content to remain at home.
  - 4. Leash pets outdoors. Even the most well-behaved and trained animals may dash off after a squirrel or other distractions from time to time, especially if the animal is scared. These issues can be prevented by using a leash outside at all times.
  - 5. Escape-proof homes and yards. Check to see if any potential escape routes are around the house and outside in the yard. Dogs that dig can be deterred by burying chicken wire around the edges of the fence. Make sure gates are self-latching as well. Indoors, check that windows are secure. Exercise caution when opening doors and check that pets have not squeezed through, advising visitors to do the same. If you have a Houdini on your hands, supervise outdoor play.
