NICE article on the go-getter and future firefighter, Holly High School’s Logan Campbell.

Since the Torrey Road/North Road intersection closed I began driving through downtown Fenton. Every day there is a gentleman in a wheelchair on Leroy Street who waves and smiles at everyone. He brightens my day and people wave or honk their horns. It’s a pleasant change from all the negativity.

COMMENT OF THE WEEK

WITNESSED two drivers hop out of their cars yesterday in Fenton to help a driver of a broken down car push it out of the roadway. Love my town.
Two weekends ago Fenton saw another beautiful four days on the grounds of St. John The Evangelist Parish. What is now a true Fenton, Lake Fenton, Linden & Holly community event saw many smiling faces from kids and adults alike. If you volunteered and gave of your time or talents, if you enjoyed good food & desserts, if you purchased tickets so your kids could enjoy the rides or if you purchased a raffle ticket in the hopes of winning one of a great number of prizes, YOU made Applefest a success, Thank You!

This event has been successful for many years because of the hard work and dedication of countless volunteers many from the parish, and this year a growing number from the community. That is a good thing! The community has the most to gain from each years success, Thank You!

Looking forward to the 48TH ANNUAL APPLEFEST September 2020

Peanut allergy treatments may have new medical breakthroughs; talk to your allergist

By Sally Rummel

When Charlie Jones was 2 years old, he got peanut butter on his face and immediately broke out in hives, followed by a very severe reaction. He was diagnosed with an allergy to peanuts, tree nuts and milk.

Now 6 years old, Charlie’s life literally depends on a rigid adherence to safe foods. His parents, Aaron and Shannon Jones, are avid label readers. He is also a homeschooled first-grader, partly due to his parents’ anxiety over his allergy.

“If he touches peanut butter, he’ll get hives,” Shannon said. “However, if he ingests it, he will go into anaphylactic shock.”

Peanut butter and jelly sandwiches used to be a staple on everyone’s childhood menu. But today, with 5.6 million American children and adolescents suffering from a food allergy, this childhood favorite has been replaced by safer foods — plus a very real dose of reality for parents who know that exposure to peanuts could be a matter of life and death.

Currently, the standard of care for food allergies is to avoid the allergy-causing food and to always carry a supply of injectable epinephrine, such as an EpiPen, to counter reactions.

But there are medical breakthroughs on the horizon. A new drug, Palforzia, manufactured by Aimmune Therapeutics, has been recommended for approval by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), perhaps as soon as January 2020.

If approved, this oral immunotherapy will include ingesting small doses of pharmaceutical-grade peanut protein daily, increasing the dose over months to inhibit the immune system’s overreaction to peanuts.

While a person with a peanut allergy may not be able to eat peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, oral immunotherapy offers an extra buffer of safety against possible severe allergic reactions.

Why don’t UPS trucks turn left?

While I scratch my head when asked to list the signers of the Declaration of Independence, name my congressman or to recall something else equally important, my mind somehow gathers and remembers far less valuable tidbits. It always has and it probably always will.

Along that line, here are 10 mostly useless facts I have collected today. Most of these seem unbelievable, but multiple online searches say they are true. I’ll probably find many more tomorrow. But for now, these items have floated to the top of this weird pile of knowledge:

1. UPS truck routes are designed to make only right-hand turns while delivering packages. Computers determine all daily routes so drivers make only right turns, even if that results in longer distances. The company knows left turns into traffic are much more dangerous, which is true.

2. Heat and cooling temperatures at every Walmart store in the U.S. are controlled at the company headquarters in Bentonville, Arkansas. Computers monitor local conditions, but you’ll need to bring a sweater if you’re always chilly in the store.

3. Or, buy one while you’re shopping.

4. By the way, Walmart makes $1.8 million in worldwide profits every hour. One-third of all U.S. residents will shop there every week. That’s why Walmart is the world’s largest retailer.

5. What is the most-productive workday of an average week? It’s Tuesday, for most folks.

6. If the United States would switch from our $1 bill to a $1 coin, we’d save more than $4.4 billion in 30 years. That’s because coins last much longer than bills, which wear out in about six years on average.

7. The Coca-Cola logo is recognized by 94 percent of the world’s population. It’s the best-known image on earth. And, yes, Coca-Cola did actually contain small levels of cocaine until 1929. That happened in part because cocaine was a legal drug here until 1914. The shortened name of “Coke” refers to the cola nut, not the cocaine…

8. By the way, rival Pepsi-Cola got its name originally from the digestive enzyme pepsin. Company officials wanted customers to know that

What do you think about the ban on flavored vaping products?

“I think it’s good. I don’t think anyone who hasn’t smoked a cigarette would even buy tobacco-flavored vape juice.”

“I probably wouldn’t have quit if they didn’t take it away. I vaped for about three years. I started in high school because everyone was doing it.”

“I don’t vape. I don’t think they know enough about them either. It’s one of those weird political views. We let people drive motorcycles without helmets but we won’t let them vape?”

“I haven’t thought about it. I don’t smoke. Vaping is probably not good. It’s one of those things where you find out after the fact that it’s bad, like cigarettes.”

“I think it’s a great idea. You want to make it less attractive to teenagers.”

HERE’S THE LAST decade in Michigan education: Schools are getting worse. Teachers are getting paid less. We’ve barely increased state education spending. We’re not paying what we owe for teacher pensions and retire health care, and a road-funding plan proposed by Lansing Republicans could make all of it worse.

Linden’s wastewater facility receives awards

- Wins one state and one national award

Compiled by Hannah Ball

Linden’s wastewater treatment facility received the first ever Premier Utility Management Performance (P.U.M.P.) Award at a Sept. 12 tribute at the state capital.

The P.U.M.P. Award is a new honor created by the Michigan Water Environment Association (MWEA) in partnership with the Michigan Department of Environment, Great Lakes, and Energy (EGLE).

“This designation highlights Linden’s Water Resource Recovery Facility for its service excellence in producing clean water, helping to protect the Great Lakes, recovering nutrients such as phosphorus and nitrogen, generating energy, utilizing green infrastructure and contributing to the sustainability of local communities,” said state Rep. Mike Mueller (R-Fenton Township).

39th annual walk at Bush Park in Fenton supports local and global hunger relief

By Sally Rummel

When you support the upcoming CROP Hunger Walk in Fenton, you’ll be helping local people as well as hunger, water-related issues and disaster relief around the world.

Local walk will meet at Bush Park on Sunday, Oct. 6 for registration at 1:30 p.m. and the walk at 2 p.m. You can also “rock” the event on rocking chairs provided on-site, for those who’d prefer to support CROP in a seated position.

Twenty-five percent of funds raised will stay local, supporting the school lunch spring break program at St. Jude’s Episcopal Church in Fenton, the food pantry at Fenton United Methodist Church and the Linden Presbyterian Church F.I.S.H. community food pantry.

Seventy-five percent of the funds will be used to help global food, water and disaster relief through Church World Service, a faith-based global relief organization.

This year’s theme will be “The ’50s,” to celebrate the 50-year anniversary of the CROP Hunger Walk, first started by Church World Service in 1969.

A 39-year tradition in the tri-county area, local walkers have raised a total of $381,859 in the past 38 years, with $95,000 supporting local programs.

Local churches involved include Fenton First Presbyterian Church, Fenton United Methodist Church, St. Jude’s Episcopal Church, Linden Presbyterian Church, Linden United Methodist Church and Tyrone Community Presbyterian Church. Local Boy Scout troops and the local Jazzercise franchise in Fenton also help with volunteers and participation.

“Each year, we try to add new churches and organizations,” said Dave Rayner of Holly, local CROP Hunger Walk co-chairperson. He and his wife, Denise, have been involved with CROP for almost 30 years. “It’s a passion for us,” he said. “It’s not only a great charity, but it also involves all these communities and churches.”

How can you get involved with the CROP Hunger Walk?

You can join the walk or rock on Oct. 6, you can donate to people who are walking, or you can make a donation online at Crophungerwalk.org/fentonmi.

For more information, call Don Isenberg at (810) 240-0863 or Susan Malinowski at (810) 629-2506.

Did you know that the cost of a Nursing Home in Genesee and Lapeer County averages between $8,670 and $12,590 per month; assisted living costs between $2,551 and $7,509; and in-home care costs $17-$30 per hour? There is a 50% chance you will spend 6 months or longer in a long term care facility.

Learn how to protect you and your loved ones from going broke! Attend this free seminar hosted by Attorney Michael Thomas.

Come to this Free Seminar and learn:

- How you can use proven legal and financial strategies that can protect your assets and access Medicaid and VA benefits to cover nursing home, assisted living and home care cost-without spending down all of your assets.
- How you can use these planning strategies even if you do not qualify for long-term care insurance.
- How you and your loved one still have good planning options even if you have already entered a nursing home; it’s not too late.
- How you can stay in your home longer, afford the care you need, and protect your assets.

Michael E. Thomas, Attorney

Over the past several years, we have heard from many of our clients, disturbing stories about relatives or friends who are facing the possibility of entering a nursing home or long term care facility. The problem is this: these relatives have just enough hard-earned assets so that they do not qualify for Medicaid—and yet, all of those assets will be consumed by nursing home costs. In fact, the latest national statistics predict that 50% of those 65 years of age or older will spend six months in a long term care facility at a current average cost of $9000/month. There is no greater threat to your assets than long term care expenses.

At our free workshop we will explain the Truth about Medicaid, and how to legally shelter your assets—even if you are already in a nursing home. Do not miss this opportunity to shelter your assets against this significant risk.

SOS made $58 million selling personal information

Includes names, addresses, vehicle information, driving records and more

By Hannah Ball

In fiscal year 2018, the Michigan Secretary of State (SOS) collected nearly $58 million from selling citizens’ personal information to private companies and private investigators.

The SOS sells “millions” of records a year, according to Michael Doyle, communications manager for the SOS.

“Tens of thousands of people order their own record every year. Millions of vehicle records are sold for purposes like vehicle recalls. Millions of addresses are sold for address verification by the IRS and Department of Treasury, for employment screenings and other purchasers who have certified the information will be used for a permissible purpose,” he said.

Definitions

Michigan Vehicle Code section 257.208c states that the SOS can disclose “personal information” to law enforcement, insurance companies, motor vehicle business, statistics and data gathering companies, to private detective and to the media for certain purposes.

MVC section 257.40b defines “personal information” as an individual’s photo, name, address (but not the zip code), driver’s license number, Social Security number, telephone number, digitized signature and medical and disability information.

The SOS does not sell personal information for the purposes of surveys, marketing and solicitation purposes. It also does not sell “highly restricted personal information,” which is defined as an individual’s photograph or image, Social Security number, digitized signature, medical and disability information, source documents presented by an applicant to obtain an operator’s or chauffeur’s license, and emergency contact information.

“The Department of State provides driver and vehicle record information to members of the media on a daily basis for a charge of $11 per record lookup. This is a permissible use if the media is requesting information in preparation of a report relating to the operation of a motor vehicle or public safety. Among our typical lookup requests are an individual’s driving record, the owner of a vehicle with a given plate number and the title history of a vehicle,” Doyle said.

Costs

A complete database purchase has a retrieval service charge of $16 per 1,000 records. A partial database, such as specific counties or zip codes, costs $64 per 1,000 records. An individual’s driving records cost $11 or $12 certified, according to Doyle.

In fiscal year 2018, the SOS brought in $57,985,111.94 from records lookup fees.

“These are legitimate information requests under Michigan law. The department has methods of checking to make sure information is being properly used by those who request it. Anyone who attempts to use the information for a purpose other than what is permissible violates the law and may be subject to prosecution,” Doyle said.

When asked how the SOS ensures the applicants and buyers use the information for the intended purpose, Doyle said the department does not share that information publicly so applicants don’t learn how to avoid detection.

“There have been instances where information has not been used properly. The department can cancel access and file a claim against the individual’s or company’s surety bond. The department has canceled companies’ access before,” Doyle said.
Suspicious behavior leads to Fenton man’s arrest

To be arraigned on multiple charges after release from hospital

By Sharon Stone

A 31-year-old Fenton man is discharged from an area hospital, he will face multiple charges related to his behavior in downtown Fenton early in the morning on Sunday, Sept. 22.

Lt. Jeff Cross of the Fenton Police Department said police responded to the 100 block of S. LeRoy Street at 4:15 a.m. on a report of a suspicious man attempting to open the door of a closed pub.

Upon arrival, police spotted the man and recognized him from past encounters. Cross said responding officers determined the man was intoxicated.

With some effort, an officer arrested the man and placed him into the patrol vehicle. While in custody, the man admitted that he had just broken a window at a nearby bank.

While police were discussing the situation in the parking lot, an employee of a nearby bakery walked over and said the suspect in custody had just entered their building, which was open only to employees, and sprayed WD-40 on the tables. The suspect also took a bakery dog treat and began eating it. Employees told police that when the man exited the bakery he pulled the fire alarm.

Cross said the man was quite agitated in the patrol vehicle and he injured himself when kicking and hitting the divider and doors. On the drive to the Genesee County Jail, police changed course and took him instead to an area hospital for medical treatment.

Pending charges include breaking and entering, larceny from a building, malicious destruction of property, indecent exposure, resisting police and disorderly intoxication. The man also has two outstanding arrest warrants.

Donaldson Drive to get new energy-saving lighting

Twenty-six streetlights will be replaced for $11,430

By Vera Hogan

Donaldson Drive will be getting new energy-efficient lighting. At its Monday, Sept. 23 meeting, the Fenton City Council voted favorably to replace the current 400-watt metal halide fixtures with 60-watt LED luminaires.

According to Interim Public Works Director Dan Brisson, the current fixtures feature globe-type covers that are delaminating (hazing), which greatly reduce light output. They require frequent re-lamping and several fixtures have corrosion issues where the bulbs are mounted.

“The current operating budget includes funding to convert 26 streetlights on Donaldson Drive to LED luminaires,” Brisson said.

Chapple Electric of Fenton has proposed 60-watt LED luminaires and a return-on-investment analysis that determines a payback of one year and eight months when considering energy savings and the maintenance cost of re-lamping the existing fixtures, Brisson said.

The cost to replace the lighting fixtures with new acorn-style globes is $11,430, which includes materials, labor, estimated permit costs and estimated Consumers Energy incentive rebates.

Businesses could be hurt by lost revenue, former smokers return to cigarettes

By Tim Jagielo

Fenton — Years ago, when Patrick Ayar’s teen daughter wanted to try vaping, he said, “Why? You don’t smoke. If you don’t smoke, you don’t need to vape.”

Ayar owns Vaporia in Fenton. His wife, Mary, is an expert on concocting their custom e-liquids, which is their sole product. They mostly make and sell flavored e-liquids.

They were set to expand internationally beyond the small Fenton storefront and lab before the news of Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer’s ban on flavored e-liquids was announced.

Now, they’ll try to hold on and keep open for their clients who still use flavorless vape liquid as an alternative to cigarettes.

When asked how this ban will affect them, Ayar said they are going to lose a lot of money.

E-liquids are made of vegetable glycerin (VG), propylene glycol (PG), nicotine, and the flavor mix, which is a combination of concentrates, according to Mary Ayar. This compound is loaded into a vape pen, or e-cigarette, which heats up the liquid, allowing the user to breathe in the flavor and nicotine vapor. The Ayars boast an e-liquid that doesn’t make your throat itch.

Six will be replaced for $26,330

By Vera Hogan

It may come as a surprise to some that the “new” state-of-the-art Department of Public Works facility on Alloy Drive is not so new anymore.

The building, renamed the Leslie P. Bland Public Works in 2017 in honor of the late DPW director, was built more than 17 years ago. The official ribbon cutting, marking the opening of the new DPW offices and garage, took place in November 2002.

As with any building, repairs and replacements are needed over time. Today, it’s the DPW garage heating units that need replacing.

At their Monday, Sept. 23 meeting, Fenton City Council members voted to accept Interim Public Works Director Dan Brisson’s recommendation to hire K&S Venture Specialties of Rochester Hills to remove and replace the existing heating system for $26,330.

“The current garage area heating system consists of six ceiling mounted gas fire, forced air units,” said Brisson in a memo to City Manager Lynn Markland. “Over the past few years, the heat exchangers on these units have cracked and the units were taken out of service for safety reasons.

“Presently, only two of the six units are in operation which does not provide adequate, balanced heat to the garage area,” he said. “The existing units have an energy efficiency rating of 70 percent.”

K&S Venture Specialties, the lowest of three non-local bidders, has extensive experience with the DPW garage’s heating system and specializes in energy management systems for commercial and industrial applications, said Brisson. The only additional costs to the installation will be any permit fees that may be required and minor contracted electrician fee to disconnect power at the electrical distribution panel to the old units, Brisson said.

TO THE SOCIALIST who thinks Trump is plundering our country. Perhaps you should ask some of the half million people now working if they would rather go back on welfare where they were under Democratic leadership.

TO THE GUN-hater. So you think guns are only for murdering people. Have you forgotten how guns created this country? Without guns, you likely would not be here. Guns fed this nation. They protected it. They fed, clothed and protected the nation. They forced other countries to respect our right to exist.

WHY WOULD YOU allow an Early 5 or kindergartner to walk to a bus stop by themselves in the first place? Take some responsibility and go with them.

PLEASE EXPLAIN HOW Trump would plunder the country when he doesn’t even take a salary for serving? He donates it to charity, unlike Obama, who doubled the presidential salary before leaving. Who is the plunderer?

Witches Night Out set for Friday, Oct. 11
By Hannah Ball

Witches, wizards and other haunted creatures are invited to the second annual Witches Night Out in downtown Fenton on Friday, Oct. 11, from 5 to 9 p.m.

More than two dozen Fenton businesses are participating.

Fenton’s Open Book owner Karen Piacentini and local author Brenda Hasse are chairs of the event.

“Why the witch theme? Who doesn’t like Halloween? It’s fun to dress up as a witch or wizard, enjoy good food at our local restaurants, and shop in our spooktacular stores,” Hasse said.

“I t’s fun to dress up as a witch or wizard, enjoy good food at our local restaurants, and shop in our spooktacular stores.”

Stones will accept donations for the Fenton Firefighter Charities, which is a non-profit charity organization through the Fenton Fire Department that helps local families in need.

The first 500 guests to Witches Night Out will receive a few shopping bags, which will be distributed at the porch of the Fenton Museum.

“We are sponsored by the DDA, Kayden Wealth Management, Callard Clinic, Fenton Vision Center, and First Choice Heating and Cooling,” Hasse said.

Below is a list of participating businesses:

Southern Lakes Parks and Recreation also will have the Fenton Community and Cultural Center open for patrons to use bathrooms and to promote programs they offer.

Are you from the Fenton area?
I grew up just outside a little village of about 400 residents called Sugar Grove, Ohio. I grew up in the hollows of the Hocking Hills region. This area is, believe it or not, an actual tourist destination in Ohio. I was blessed to grow up in a small Appalachian community. I spent summer days hiking in the hills and swimming in ponds. Of course, I spent a few digging holes and bailing hay, too.

Where did you go to school?
I went to high school at Berne Union, the village school. We had about 900 students K-12 all in one building. I have a bachelor’s degree in Liberal Studies from Ohio University. I have a Master of Arts in Literature from Eastern Michigan University. I also hold a Master’s of Arts in Political Theory and a Doctor of Arts in Religious Philosophy from Harrison Middleton University. The Doctor of Arts differs from the Ph.D. in that the DA focuses on studying the subject in order to teach it rather than focusing on research within the subject matter. I actually focused my dissertation on the Marvel Cinematic Universe, the religious and political ideologies presented in those tales, and using it all to teach morality and ethics.

What inspired you to become a professor?
Honestly, I have to say it was my mentors when I was in college. I worked for one of my favorites, who gave me the hardest-earned “B-” I ever achieved and knew firsthand the impact that he, and others like him, had on a young man from a small Ohio town. Dr. Henderson taught me that my duty as an academic is always the process of discussion, debate, and investigation — and to back it all up with evidence. He argued that professors were the Fifth Estate; there to say the unpopular, think the unthinkable, and take the heat for all of it. He taught me that my job was to get students to think, not to tell them what to think.

Why humanities?
My family and friends asked me that very question when I switched my major from computer engineering. The more I studied politics and religion at Ohio University, the more convinced I became that the story was more important than the data. This is why I went on to study the story at EMU. Stories bring us closer as a human race. Stories are so much a part of who we are and how we learn as humans. The humanities truly cover all those things which make us human — art, music, politics, drama, film, literature, religion, philosophy, etc.

Can you explain what the “X” in X-mas really means?
In ancient manuscripts and commentaries on the Bible, monks and scholars would use the “Chi” or Greek “X” to represent Christ. This made writing the commentaries easier and is akin to shorthand. But this even can be seen in mainline Protestant churches and Catholic Churches in the Chi Rho “PX” sign that represents “Christos Rex” or “Christ the king.” This is called the Christogram. The earliest Christians used an “X” to symbolize what we now know as the cross. I have a collection of small artifacts and one of those is a second century Christian ring that uses the “X” to symbolize the cross upon which Jesus hung. Do not think about this as a modern way to cross out your belief, but rather an ancient way to celebrate it.

Is your wife a professor, too?
My lovely wife, Vera, and I have been married for 16 years. She is truly my better half and my rock. She is a proud high school English teacher and an even prouder Fenton Tiger. I met her at Ohio University 21 years ago. It is true that friends make the best spouses.

What do you do in your spare time?
I love camping with my family and traveling to see family. Now that our daughter is older, we are taking as many adventures as we can. My hobby right now is trying to be the best dad and husband that I can. I have started to get involved in volunteer work in the city. I currently serve on the city’s library board. But I also get a little bit of videogame playing and film watching in. My main hobby would be my job. I know this sounds boring to some, but since I study and teach popular culture, it truly is a labor of love. Where else do you get to watch Captain America films and claim to be working?

What are your thoughts about living in Fenton?
I truly love Fenton. We tried to first move here back in 2006 as the housing market crashed. It took us some time to get here, but we couldn’t be happier. We have lovely and generous neighbors and there is a true sense of community here. There is new and old, hip and traditional, and a perfect mix of kind-hearted people.

What is something most people don’t know about you?
Most people don’t know that when I was a child, I watched “The Wizard of Oz” daily and I do mean daily. I would get up early and start the movie. Whatever I didn’t finish would be watched sometime in the evening. This went on for years. I can still, to this very day, recite every line, every chorus, and every guffaw of that great picture.

Many local businesses such as party stores and gas stations also sell flavored e-liquids in the form of disposable e-cigarettes, and all have to get rid of their stock by Oct. 2. Local smoke shops report that a large percentage of their sales are from these flavored e-liquids, which as of Sept. 18, they had to begin to phase out.

Jill Perry, manager of Smoker’s Depot in Fenton said vape products account for 45 percent of their business and flavored products account for 95 percent of that.

Pipe Depot manager Hunter Brown said these products account for up to 65 percent of their business. “We don’t carry any tobacco, because people are trying to quit smoking and don’t want to see tobacco products like cigars or cigarettes,” he said.

Both businesses reported having sales to purge the stock of flavored liquids.

Wild Bill’s Tobacco is a large statewide chain selling a variety of tobacco products. The closest branch is in Holly. Visitors to the website are greeted with a large banner warning shoppers that they have only so many days to purchase any flavored e-liquids. According to the website, store hours have been extended to accommodate people buying e-liquids. They also advertise a sale.

All contacted storeowners and managers say that this ban will push vape users back to smoking regular cigarettes.

“No one wants to go back to smoking cigarettes,” Brown said. “It’s going to affect a lot of people’s quality of life.” He said he sees at least 10 people a day for an e-liquid system because they want to quit smoking cigarettes.

The goal of the ban was to curb teen vaping, but Brown said his market is usually those who’ve been smoking for 20-30 years.

All shops report not allowing anyone under 18 in the store. Ayar has intentionally made his store less attractive by only selling e-liquids — no soda or other vaping accessories, in a plain interior.

The Ayars are holding out hope that something might happen to challenge Gov. Whitmer’s directive.

Two challenges were made by Michigan Republican representatives. Rep. Steven Johnson (R-Wayland) proposed HB 5019 exempting flavored vape products with less than 2-percent nicotine from the ban.

The Detroit Free Press reports that last week, Rep. Beau LaFave (R-Iron Mountain) proposed a bill that would prohibit the state from “implementing rules that limit the production, sale or use of vaping products.”

The ban came as an emergency response to deaths reported because of vaping, which is regulated by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), but not known in its long-term effects.

DEER CRASHES THROUGH WINDOW, ENDS UP IN BATHTUB
Department of Natural Resources (DNR) officers and Fenton police responded to a home in the 800 block of N. LeRoy Street in Fenton on Wednesday, Sept. 25 at approximately 6 a.m. after receiving a report that a deer had crashed through a window of the house. The deer ended up in a bathtub. Lt. Jeff Cross of the Fenton Police Department said he believes the injured deer was taken to a rehabilitation center. Damage to the house was minimal.

Epic CNC Training Academy offers tours on Manufacturing Day

By Sally Rummel

Every time you eat a bowl of Kellogg’s Frosted Mini Wheats for breakfast, you’re getting a taste of what Epic Machine in Fenton is all about.

This local manufacturer makes the rollers that roll out this popular cereal brand, as well as a number of other products in your life every day — from vacuum molds for McDonald’s drink lids to tooling components for fire hydrants and manhole covers.

Epic Machine has been manufacturing high precision-machined components for industries worldwide since 1979, utilizing CNC (Computer-Numerical-Controlled) turning, CNC milling and precision grinding equipment. Their customers include foundries, military contracts, the food industry, medical supplies and more.

The company was founded by Nick Popa of Fenton who learned the manufacturing trade at Henry Ford Trade School from 1943 to 1947. He was directly taught machining by Henry Ford instructors.

Epic Machine CEO Mike Parker founded Epic CNC Training Academy in 2013, working with the state of Michigan to develop a re-education and training program. He was taught as an OJT (on the job training) employee when he was 18 and now he is the CEO. “Our goal is to bring skilled, trained tradespeople back into Michigan’s manufacturing industry after the state’s Great Recession,” Parker said.

Epic CNC Training Academy is hosting an Open House and tours Friday, Oct. 4, in recognition of National Manufacturing Day. Their goal is to show the public how students can learn a trade that will result in a good-paying career, after just one eight-week session.

Open house hours will be 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Epic Machine, at 201 Industrial Way, Fenton.

“The median wage for a machinist is about $20 per hour,” Parker said. “However, it’s all based on a person’s skill level. The more skill you bring to the table, the more money you’ll make.”

Epic CNC Training Academy runs four sessions per year and up to four students per session.

“We focus on quality over quantity in our focused, hands-on training,” said Melinda Keway, academy director.

“It’s a 40-hour week for our students. They are totally immersed in learning computer operated equipment. When a student is done with the session, he or she will be proficient and confident in their skills, and will be ready to meet the needs of an employer as an entry level skilled tradesperson.”

How do you know if a skilled trade in the manufacturing industry is the career for you? “If you’re good at math and mechanically inclined,” this might be a good fit for you,” Keway said. “You also must be 18 years old or older. The majority of our students are in their mid-20s and have come to us after trying a different career path and realizing they want to do something different with their lives.”

Epic Machine has been approved to use the new “Forever” GI Bill, which lets military veterans use federal benefits for technology courses through non-college providers.

Academy students will learn:

• CNC milling
• CNC turning
• MasterCam
• G and M code programming
• How to read blueprints and manufacture the product
• Career skills, like time management, that are necessary to be successful

“You grow your skill by doing it,” Keway said. “Come in and see what the world of manufacturing is like today. It’s totally different than what you might expect.”

TO THE PERSON who is excited about the roundabout because ‘it will be super funny watching old people try to figure it out.’ I am old and have gone out of my way to do kind things for years. Have you thought about helping an old person learn how to navigate a roundabout? Your disrespect is despicable.

IF GENESEE COUNTY and Fenton Township maintained Margaret Drive we wouldn’t be paying for it now. The road commission just started addressing potholes two years ago and Fenton Township has never done crack sealing, which is its part.

HOT-LINERS WILL WRITE anything, such as college loans. My two mid-30-year-olds pay hundreds every month on college loans. I assisted them financially and they still had debt. Not once did any loan money go for trips, cars or condos. There are always a few who abuse a situation and ruin the reputation of the many.

SLOWER DRIVERS ARE not driving slowly to irritate you or anyone else. Slower drivers are usually people who are elderly, young, perhaps ill, and perhaps adjusting to blood pressure or other medication their doctor demands. The irritating one here is ‘the tailgater.’

ACCORDING TO a lottery propaganda billboard I just saw, schools got $141 million this year. Put Fenton’s share in the sinking fund.

I FIND IT very interesting that many are behind getting rid of flavored vaping because it has killed 15 or 20 people. Maybe we should eliminate real cigarettes that kill tens of thousands each year.

TOWING COMPANY, YOU should let your drivers know that throwing cigarette butts out the window is littering. Not a good look for the company either.

I AGREE WITH the Hot-liner who said fall is such a sad time of year. Why is everyone in a hurry for it to cool down when we waited so long for the warm weather?

TOO MANY PEOPLE at Applefest, an event that’s meant to bring the entire community together? How do you suggest limiting people? Suggestion — let’s start with you staying home.

holding things underneath of it. The officer saw the man dump items into the car and cover the items with some type of cloth.

A female sat inside the car.

The officer walked over to the opposite side of the car and spoke to the man and asked permission to look inside the car. With the man’s consent, the officer lifted the cloth and observed merchandise from the store.

When the officer made eye contact with the man, the man took off running west toward the Silver Ridge subdivision.

Cross responded to the scene while the first officer stayed with the car, the stolen merchandise and woman. Cross located the man and chased him into Silver Lake Park and Silver Lake. “I chased him in the lake,” Cross said. “I was up to my waist in water. I caught him.”

Cross ordered the man out of the water where he was placed under arrest. The man, a 27-year-old Fenton resident, is facing charges of second-degree retail fraud, organized retail fraud and resisting an officer. He has not yet been arraigned. Police do not believe the woman was involved with the retail fraud.

Assisting at the scene were Genesee County Sheriff’s deputies and Linden police.

The village, with only 6,000 residents, is one of 20 national finalists in the Partners in Preservation Grant voting competition sponsored by American Express, National Geographic, Main Street America, and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Holly is the only community in Michigan to reach this point in the process from more than 100 applications nationally, according to Katy Golden, assistant village manager and Downtown Development Authority (DDA) director.

“A $150,000 grant is on the line that will be used to move the Holly Union Depot closer to its historic downtown district and re-purposed,” Golden said.

“It has sat vacant for years because it is sandwiched between active rail lines that do not offer enough safe access for pedestrians by modern standards.

“We intend to move the depot about 1,000 feet, closer to Broad Street (across from the Moose Lodge) so that we can access it again,” she said. “Once it’s moved, we can rehabilitate the building and open it to the public again.

“We need Holly to land in the top 10 by Oct. 29,” Golden said. “You can vote daily at nationalgeographic.com/voteyourmainstreet and cast all five of your daily allotted votes to Holly. The site is a little bit clunky, but it’ll only take a moment.”

Participants will need to register with their email, and after receiving the link to vote, click on Holly/Union Depot and the “vote” link. A drop-down menu will appear with all 20 projects.

“You can click on Holly from the drop down menu for each of your five available votes and finally click on your vote confirmation. We can’t do this without your help. Let’s show the nation how mighty we are when we come together for a good cause.

“Share this website, tell everyone you know, wherever they live, and ask your friends, family, and co-workers to vote every day,” Golden said. “Thank you for supporting our project.”

Winning districts will be announced Oct. 30.

About the Holly Union Depot

Holly Union Depot, built in 1886, was such a people place that over time, millions of travelers wore deprivations in the floor as they waited to purchase tickets. In the course of its history, women also developed a strong connection to the depot. There, they distributed meals for soldiers, sent the men off to war, and welcomed them home.

Famous prohibitionist, Carry Nation, arrived at the depot in 1908 and became known for her hatchet-wielding crusades against “demon-rum” on nearby Battle Alley.

Grant funding will help transform the depot into a welcome center and tourism office where visitors can learn about Holly’s history and the important roles that women past and present play in the community.

STRIKE
His fellow union members Thursday, Sept. 26 at the south employee entrance of the GM Flint Assembly plant.
His wife Kari stood with him as most drivers sounded their support with horn honks as they drove down Van Slyke Road.
Day and night, the picket line remains at the GM Flint Assembly plant on Bristol and Van Slyke Roads.
Jason Clouse is one of more than 5,000 Flint area employees who are on strike with all UAW employee across the country. They have been since Sunday, Sept. 15 when the UAW and General Motors (GM) failed to reach a new contract with employees resulting in the longest strike since 1970, according to Fox Business.
The last official statement from GM announced that negotiations have resumed. “...Our goal remains to reach an agreement that builds a stronger future for everyone. A work stoppage impacts our employees, families, communities and the American economy, the statement read.”
Areas of contention include healthcare cost sharing, better pay and benefits for temporary UAW workers. Clouse said a temp worker makes about $15 an hour, about half the rate of a full-time worker while doing the same work.
On Wednesday evening, Sept. 25, multiple news outlets reported that bargaining was going well and progress was being made toward a deal.
Still, workers like Clouse will take their shifts on the picket line for a minimum of four hours per week. Clouse said they often do double shifts. “The passion this membership has, they’re going above and beyond,” Clouse said.
He said the goal is to “bring awareness to the company, to GM, that we’re done doing all the sacrificing,” he said.
He said without employee sacrifices, GM wouldn’t be where it is now, following the 2009 restructuring.
There are rules to picketing. Clouse said they cannot completely block vehicles, and they have to allow a vehicle to enter the plant every 10 minutes. This has led to long lines of semi trucks and management’s vehicles waiting to enter the plant. “It creates a tremendous traffic jam, especially on Van Slyke,” Clouse said. They also have to keep moving and can’t stay in one spot.
He said overall, the reaction from the public has been positive. Most motorists honk in support as they go by, and some have brought food and water to picketers. He has been called “spoiled” by other people and that he should “get back to work.” He’s taken these opportunities to explain why they strike, usually with positive results.
Clouse said he’s ready to get back to work, but he will wait with his fellow union members until they get a better deal. “At the end of the day we are fighting for our well being,” he said. “That company, without us, isn’t going to run efficiently.”
Clouse is responsible for securing airbags on the driver side and routing the wire harness at General Motors Flint Assembly.
GM reinstated health-care benefits Thursday, Sept. 26 for its 48,000 United Auto workers members who are on strike. The company had cut healthcare coverage for union members and moved them to more expensive, temporary COBRA plans Sept. 16, the first day of the strike.

"At the end of the day we are fighting for our well being. That company, without us, isn't going to run efficiently."

Today, some allergists take a proactive approach using desensitization — introducing foods with finely ground peanuts to reduce high-risk babies’ chances of becoming allergic to peanuts.

Also promising is a “peanut patch,” designed to desensitize allergic children ages 4 to 17 with a skin patch. These methods are not yet FDA approved so they are not currently available to the public. There is time now to discuss these possible future options with a family doctor or allergist.

Local schools also are very involved in the daily care of students who suffer from food allergies. “We’ve become more educated and aware of the allergies and how to support students when they are at school,” said Russ Ciesielski, superintendent of Linden Community Schools.

Many local schools have designated tables/areas that are nut-free zones.

“It depends on the severity of the nut allergy per classroom,” said Principal Sonya Shaughnessy of West Shore Elementary School in the Lake Fenton school district.

“For peanut-sensitive or mild allergies, students can sit together at the same table but are taught and not allowed to share food at any time. For severe nut allergies, including airborne or touch-sensitive students, we have allocated a peanut-safe table for students to sit at together, who have purchased hot lunch options only. All school-provided lunches are nut safe.”

Shaughnessy added that the food allergy trend is fairly stable at West Shore.

“About 15 to 20 percent of students report major allergies. Allergies specific to nuts are consistently 3 percent or less,” she said.

Linden and Lake Fenton schools reported that their districts are prepared if a child goes into anaphylaxis shock because of exposure to an allergen.

Both districts said they have staff training on how to handle situations where a child goes into anaphylaxis shock. Each building has a Medical Emergency Response Team (MERT) made up of building staff and each building is equipped with EpiPens.

About food allergies

• One out of five food allergy sufferers had been to the emergency room at least once in the previous year because of a severe allergic reaction.
• Peanuts rank as the most common food allergy, affecting about 1.6 million young people.
• Milk allergies are the next most common, affecting about 1.4 million.
• Other common food allergies are to shellfish, tree nuts, eggs, fin fish, wheat, soy and sesame.
• About 40 percent of young people studied were allergic to more than one food.

SUMMARY

- Medical treatment for peanut allergies is becoming more proactive, with some doctors using a method of desensitization to help a high-risk baby avoid an allergy.
- Now, a peanut patch and oral immunotherapy are on the horizon, pending FDA approval.

DISORDERLY BRIGHTON MAN AT FENTON RESTAURANT

At 9:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 19, Fenton police were dispatched to a restaurant in the 1200 block of N. LeRoy Street on a report of a disorderly person. Lt. Jeff Cross said upon arrival, police observed the suspected disorderly person wearing no shirt and trying to fight others in the parking lot. The man, later identified as a 30-year-old Brighton resident, was yelling obscenities and confronted the responding officer. Police arrested the man. The owner told police that when the man, who he believed was intoxicated, was inside moments earlier, he went behind the bar area and yelled obscenities, at which time the owner called police and escorted him outside. The man attempted to leave, however, the owner tried to stop him from driving and told him police were on the way. The man assaulted the owner. Based on his behavior, police called for an ambulance and on the way to the hospital, the man assaulted a paramedic. Pending charges include assaulting a police officer, assault and battery, resisting police and disorderly intoxication.

Fenton XC teams leading the pack at jamboree

By David Troppens

Halfway through the Flint Metro League cross country season, it looks like little is changing on the top of the standings.

The Fenton varsity girls and boys cross country programs are the three-time defending champions, and have now each won the first two Metro League jamborees this season.

The second victory for both programs came Wednesday at the Cummings Center. The Fenton boys dominated the male race, scoring 52 points, 28 points less than second-place Linden. On the female side, the Tigers competed without their No. 2 runner and still figured a way to beat the Linden Eagles 41-45.

Lady Eagles jump to second at league event

By David Troppens

Ever since the Flint Metro League cross country seasons were changed to the three-meet system to decide the league champion, it seems every jamboree has a few surprises.

On the girls’ side of the ledger, the Linden Eagles were the surprise on Wednesday at the Cummings Center. Linden, who finished 21 points behind second-place Flushing at the first jamboree and 48 points behind first-place Fenton, took second place at the second jamboree. Not only did the Eagles take second, but they came within four points of tying Fenton for first place.

Fenton won while Lake Fenton placed eighth. Holly was unable to field a complete team, but did have the second-place runner in the race, Andrea Ruiz.

The Eagles were the story at the second meet, putting themselves in a tie for second in the overall standings.

“The girls ran a great race from start to finish,” Linden varsity girls coach Ben-

Linden soccer back in hunt for Metro League title, defeats Kearsley

By David Troppens

The Flint Metro League season didn’t begin the way the Linden varsity boys soccer team would’ve hoped. The Eagles lost a 2-1 verdict against Goodrich and have been looking for help from other teams to get back in the league chase ever since.

The Eagles finally got their wish on Wednesday, and got it from a rival no less. The Martians lost their first game of the Metro League season when the Fenton Tigers defeated them 2-0. That meant when the Eagles defeated Kearsley by a 7-0 score on Wednesday as well, it put the Eagles and Tigers on top of the Metro standings at 8-1, and put Goodrich in third at 7-1. If any of the three teams with one loss win the contests they have remaining this week, they’ll earn at least a share of the Metro League title.

It may be fair to consider the Eagles as the hottest team in the league. Ever since losing that tight game to Goodrich, Linden has outscored Metro foes 35-2, earning shutouts in six of those contests.

Keeper Ian Downarowicz had been pivotal to that defensive play, collecting his 12th shutout out of 16 games this fall.

Fenton falls to Flushing, still in league race chase

Fenton — Obviously, it was a match the Fenton varsity boys tennis team wanted to win.

Losing to Flushing 5-3 and falling a game behind the Raiders in the dual portions of the Metro League standings isn’t the goal when a squad is gunning for a league championship.

However, the loss wasn’t a death sentence to the Tigers’ league title hopes either.

And in some ways, Fenton varsity boys tennis coach Gary Ballard remains optimistic about his team’s chances of earning at least a co-league crown by the time the Flint Metro League meet is completed sometime Tuesday (weather permitting).

“We had three matches on the courts and it came down to who won two, and one would’ve tied. We would’ve been happy with the tie. But I think we are better in a tournament setting.

The Tigers (7-1 in the Metro) also defeated the Brandon Blackhawks 8-0 on Thursday, helping them remain within striking distance of Flushing entering the Metro League meet.

When I look at the match ups and where we’ve done well, I think we have a good chance (of winning the league meet and earning a co-title). It’s going to come down to us and Flushing.”

The Tigers (7-1 in the Metro) assured that to be the case after victories against Kearsley and Brandon on Tuesday and Wednesday, respectively.

It’s officially a three-team race for the Flint Metro League boys soccer title with one week remaining in the regular season.

The Fenton Tigers (8-1) made sure of that Wednesday night.

Trailing Goodrich (7-1) by a game in the loss column, the Tigers posted a 2-0 victory against the first-place Martians, putting three teams in a tie for first place with one loss. Linden (8-1 in the Metro), who beat the Tigers 2-0 on Sept. 18, are now also tied with Fenton and Goodrich after beating the Kearsley Hornets 7-0, also on Wednesday.

Fenton, who are the defending league champions, can earn at least a co-title if the Tigers defeat Flushing on Monday and Brandon on Wednesday. If Fenton wins those games it could end up being a shared title with one or two teams, or end up being an outright title if the other two squads collect a loss or a tie.

Of course, Fenton must take care of business and win its games.

The Flint Metro League’s Stripes Division is pretty much a two-team race entering the second half of the season.

The Holly Bronchos remained within a match of Flushing defeating the Swartz Creek Dragons by a 25-15, 25-15, 25-12 score.

It’s apparent the Bronchos (4-1 in the Metro) remained focused despite playing a squad on the other side of the standings.
Tigers struggle vs. Flushing Raiders

Fenton — There have been some positive moments during the Flint Metro League season so far for the Fenton varsity volleyball team.

The Tigers have a winning record at the midpoint of the league season, and have already beaten area rivals Linden once.

However, there have been times when the Tigers have clearly struggled. Wednesday was one of those moments. Playing against the Stripes Division’s only undefeated team, the Tigers lost a 25-19, 25-12, 25-18 verdict against the Raiders.

The Tigers struggled in all three sets, trailing 6-2 early in the first set, 8-3 in the second set and 5-1 in the third set. Usually it was Fenton’s own mistakes that created the deficits.

The Tigers also had a tough loss to the Holly Bronchos earlier in the year in three sets. First-year Fenton varsity coach Meghan Polce thinks it may be more mental than physical.

“I know there is a good rivalry between Fenton-Linden, Fenton-Holly and Fenton-Flushing and I feel like our team psyche themselves out before we even get started based on the name of the team,” Polce said.

JAMBOREE

The women’s race probably was the more impressive result considering the loss of Kaitlin Bayer, a runner that took fifth in the first Metro jamboree. On her birthday, Alexa Keiser captured her 11th straight Metro League victory, earning first place with a time of 19:04.2, about 26 seconds ahead of Holly’s second-place runner Andrea Ruiz. However, despite missing Bayer, the Tigers still got the rest of their top five runners to finish within the top 15. Emily Grob took seventh (21:05.0) while Taylor Huntoon placed 12th (21:22.7). Chloe Lefever (21:27.5), who finished 24th in the first jamboree, improved to 14th in this one. Finally, Jessica Adams placed 15th (21:31.6).

“We had a couple of really great performances to make up for our missing Kaitlin Bayer, who was a late scratch,” Fenton varsity cross country coach Jesse Anderson said. “Chloe Lefever really had an amazing effort, running smart and then super tough over the last mile to move up 10 spots from her first jamboree and allow us to sneak out of there with a win. Alexa got her 11th straight win on her Birthday, on a day she wasn’t feeling 100 percent, so I am pretty proud of her too.”
