The accordion

■ ‘Free reed’ instrument operated by squeezing bellows while playing buttons, small keyboard

Fenton — Brody Stack, 16, plays several instruments — between 17 and 20. He started with the clarinet and piano. He picked up his grandmother’s old accordion when he wanted to keep branching out with his instruments.

“It’s a party in a box,” he said with a laugh. “It’s a lot of fun. You can take that full sound wherever you go.” He added that it’s also less common so it grabs attention when he brings it places.

Accordions are called “squeezeboxes” for a reason. This unique instrument is hand held and powered by arm-actuated bellows, which force air across free reeds inside. The accordionist plays the

Just sayin'...

Remembering a great lady

When my family first moved to a small town in Illinois, our parents rented a little house on a farm owned by a woman I have only known as "Grandma Wendling." Her husband was deceased by the time we moved in, but she had a lot of kids — like 10 or 11 of them.

Last week, thanks to Facebook, one of Grandma Wendling's granddaughters posted an old family photo featuring Grandma herself and her 17 grandchildren, all under the age of 12 or so.

A classmate of mine, Ricky, also was in the photo. He was kind of geeky but I liked him. We used to play checkers in the school hallway during recess when the weather was bad.

At Grandma Wendling's farm, I used to love watching her teenage sons with their 1950s cars and their girlfriends when they came around the farm. I thought they were the "coolest" and wanted to be just like them some day. I loved the '50s music blasting from their car radios.

Grandma Wendling had a huge garden, at least an acre. Maybe it wasn't really that big, but I was a little girl and to me it looked huge. She was in that garden, on her knees, all of the time. She was always in a summer dress and wore a big floppy sun hat. Once her crops started getting tall, that floppy hat was all you could see.

Grandma also had a cat named "Elvis." Only Elvis wasn't a boy, he was a girl and had a litter almost every year. Elvis lived to be about 19 years old, which is pretty old for a cat.

Speaking of cats, my mother hated cats. One Thanksgiving, we were invited to Grandma Wendling's house. My mother was wearing a beautiful orange cashmere sweater. As we walked into the hallway, Mom suddenly let out a blood-curdling scream. When she turned around, we saw why. One of Grandma Wendling's sons had thrown a handful of Elvis's kittens at her chest — and there they hung by their claws.

So instantly, our days of even thinking about having a pet kitty were over.

Another thing I remember about Grandma Wendling is that she made the best peanut butter and jelly sandwiches ever. She spread the peanut butter and Jelly on so thick it oozed off the sides of the white bread. Her sandwiches were delicious and she always had plenty for all of the kids.

Years later, I learned that Grandma Wendling died of lung cancer. She was not a smoker, but she was around pesticides and other chemicals in her garden for decades. On the plus side, that garden fed her big brood for many years.

She was a great lady and I will never forget her.

ACCORDION

treble side with one hand, and the bass side with the other, squeezing the bellows to create sound.

Once you coordinate those three actions, Stack said it's straightforward to play. There are a few options for the tone, and it can be rather loud for its size.

He said he brought it to school, and actually inspired others to pick it up

"I think we are getting very funneled into just synthesizers and computers for making new sounds and new music and that's why you don't see unique and interesting instruments like these," Stack said. "You can't beat live music, you can't beat live sound." He believes that such instruments are under-appreciated nowadays.

How does the accordion work?

According to squeezeboxstories.com, the reed blocks inside look like giant wooden harmonicas, which makes sense because both harmonicas and accordions are "free reed" instruments.

These reed boxes sit inside the treble casing near the buttons, or keys. Each reed box has a series of reed plates, which include steel or brass reeds and leather valves. The reeds and valves are usually held in place by beeswax.

The other side of the accordion is the "bass box," which includes a different set of reed boxes operated by rods and levers. Like a piano, an accordion player can play the low-end accompaniment and the melody at the same time.

Origin of the accordion

According to squeezeboxstories.com, the accordion was invented sometime in the early 1800s in Europe.

Britannica.com offers two early inventors, the earliest in 1822.

Today, China is the largest manufacturer of accordions in the world, according to the New York Times.

The first free reed instruments called Sheng are depicted in Chinese illustrations from 1100 BC.

What does an accordion cost?

Smaller simpler models can cost approximately $25, while a more professional instrument can cost $600. Others can cost around $3,000 to $6,500 or more.

Level of difficulty

The accordion requires coordinating the left and right hands. As the hands play the melody and accompaniment, the hands also move in sync to push air via the bellows.

Stack said that if you can play piano and read chords and sheet music, it's not bad. He said the biggest challenge might be finding one.

What does it sound like?

An accordion can sound like a set of giant harmonicas. "It's very folksy," Stack said, and that it's best for upbeat music.

HARVEST BEEF STEW

- Makes 6 servings
- INGREDIENTS:
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
  - 1½ pounds beef for stew
  - 1 quart canned or stewed tomatoes, undrained
  - 6 carrots, cut into 1-inch pieces
  - 3 medium potatoes, cut into 1-inch pieces
  - 3 celery stalks, chopped (about 1 cup)
  - 1 medium onion, sliced
  - 1 cup apple juice
  - 2 tablespoons dried parsley flakes
  - 1 tablespoon dried basil
  - 2 teaspoons salt
  - 1 garlic clove, minced
  - ½ teaspoon black pepper
  - 2 bay leaves
  - ¼ cup all-purpose flour (optional)
  - ½ cup warm water (optional)

Rich "Harvest Beef Stew" is the perfect meal for chilly autumn nights.

Autumn evokes all types of cozy images. There are the chilly evenings spent around the fire pit outdoors or nights spent by the fireplace sipping warmed cider. Afternoons strolling through crunchy leaves or seeking out the perfect apples in the orchard also make autumn a special time of year.

Comfort foods are popular in fall, and many people have their tried-and-true recipes that they prepare when temperatures starts to dip. Perhaps no fall meal is as coveted and enjoyed as beef stew.

Simmered for hours, stew meats fall apart, and soft potatoes and carrots perfectly complement the rich beef. This recipe for "Harvest Beef Stew" from "Crock-Pot® 365 Year-Round Recipes" (Publications International, Ltd.) from Crock Pot® Kitchens is a make-ahead-then-forget recipe that promises all of the flavors that make beef stew so delicious. Serve it with a fresh-baked loaf of crusty bread to soak up the mouth-watering sauce.

- DIRECTIONS:
1. Heat oil in a large skillet over medium-low heat. Brown stew meat on all sides. Drain excess fat.
  2. Placed browned meat and remaining ingredients except flour and water in Crock-Pot® slow cooker. Mix well. Cover; cook on high 6 to 7 hours.
  3. Before serving, thicken gravy, if desired. Combine flour and warm water in small bowl, stirring well until all lumps are gone. Add mixture to liquid in Crock-Pot slow cooker; mix well. Cook 10 to 20 minutes, or until sauce thickens. Remove and discard bay leaves before serving.
