Program links former military to union trade apprenticeships

By Tim Jagielo

Ed Koledo is former Linden Community Schools Superintendent and a retired Army Reserves battalion commander. Education, leadership and talent development are in his blood, and his new job ties all this experience together.

Koledo is the director of Helmets to Hardhats Michigan. This non-profit organization seeks to link service members, contractors and training trade unions together to get these veterans into paying apprenticeships in trades that are hiring.

While a longstanding national organization, the Michigan site of Helmets to Hardhats Michigan is unique.

Argentine dam could cost ‘hundreds of thousands’ to fix

Supervisor says dam should last through next summer

By Hannah Ball

In early November, the eastern gate operator of the Argentine dam broke and let more than a foot of water out of Lobdell and Bennett lakes before the gate could be closed.

The problem was between the door mechanism, which includes an acme nut that was installed in 1929, and the shaft that wouldn’t turn. Workers with the Genesee County Road Commission (GCRC), which maintains the dam, and Zito Construction were able to close the gate and prevent more water getting out.

More than 400 toys collected from sixth annual dodge ball tournament

By Tim Jagielo

Lake Fenton — Dodge ball, as it turns out, is a great fundraiser for important causes.

On Wednesday, Dec. 4, nearly 300 Lake Fenton students and staff members came together for the sixth annual Santa Slam dodge ball tournament benefitting Toys for Tots. Organizer Kathy Wilkinson said they collected 425 toys as well as monetary donations and food for families in need.

Teams in coordinated T-shirts flooded the high school gym just before the tournament began. There were 18 teams with students from Torrey Hill Intermediate School, 10 teams of students from the middle school and 13 from the high school. Each team had six players making a total of 246 students and 24 staff members.

“It is a great community event and it is really fun to see all of the kids and staff come together for this event,” Wilkinson said. “Each year the kids get into it more and more. Seeing everyone work together for this makes me proud to be a Blue Devil.”

‘Everybody knows Ted Goupil’

— Ted Goupil, 85, may have left the Fenton Township Board of Trustees 30 years ago, after serving from 1970 to 1990 as trustee and then as clerk, but his family name is still around.

His son, Mark Goupil, 53, has served on the board (in a different seat than his father) since 2004, and the father-son duo have become well-known public servants in Fenton Township. Agenda items are similar to 30 and 40 years prior, but the reason the Goupils got involved in local government is different.

When Ted was on the board, their main focus was building sewers around the township’s many lakes.

“The lakes were being polluted by failing septic systems. They were starting to tear cottages down and build big houses and we couldn’t afford to let the lakes die,” Ted said. “We built sewers for that 20-year period. We built I guess around 97 miles of sewers and then 57 pump stations.”

Debates over how to enact assessments and taxes hasn’t changed.

“The problem with a township like this is about half the properties are on the lakes and about half are not,” Ted said. “How do you tax people on Hogan Road for a sewer on Lake Fenton?”

Back then, the board came up with a special assessment system, one of many in the township. The board regularly enacts these assessments, which are often citizen-initiated, to pay for roads, weed treatments for lakes and more. Audience participation at meetings has been the same.

“Whenever there’s an issue that affects a certain group of people, there’s an audience,” Ted said. “You hardly ever have an audience where people come in to say you did a good job.”

One thing that’s changed is the number of people who run for local government. Mark won his current term uncontested. Ted said he doesn’t remember that happening with the trustee seats in his days on the board, though there were a few elections where the supervisor ran unopposed.

“Local government is the most responsive level of government there is,” Ted said. “You can make something happen for an individual that no other level of government can do.”

Currently, township races are partisan, and both say they shouldn’t be. “There hasn’t been a partisan issue I can ever remember on a township matter. It’s always people or property,” Ted said.

“Still is,” Mark said.

Another aspect that’s changed is voting. “Back in the day,” Ted said, they had large tabulation machines that had a lever for each candidate, and they’d sometimes be stuck counting and recounting ballots well into the night. Each precinct used to vote in a different location. Today, the paper ballots are entered into an electronic machine and tabulated. Results are digitally sent to the county. All precincts vote at the Lake Fenton High School.

“We had an election board in five places at churches and schools,” Ted said. “Now they have an election board of one set of people or property,” Ted said.
Building Brands

Santa trains sellers

T is the season for gathering around the fire and watching holiday movies with loved ones. Topping the list of my favorite holiday movies is “A Christmas Story.”

I’m sure you’ve all seen it, but just in case, it’s a holiday tale of a magical Midwest 1940s Christmas. It follows a young boy named Ralphie and his quest to receive a Red Ryder BB gun for Christmas.

Leave it to a brand manager to find work-related lessons in holiday cheer, but watching the movie recently I realized that kids at Christmas can teach us all a few important things when it comes to business:

• Prepare your pitch: During Christmas all children become mini sales professionals. They have a goal to achieve and they’ll stop at nothing to make it happen. All sales people could take a cue. Ask any kid what they want for Christmas this year and they’ll be prepared with their pitch.

• Dream big: Kids at Christmas — like all sales professionals should — dream big! Be it a BB gun, a puppy or an air hockey table (something I asked for, and to my shock, received one Christmas) no item is too big, too expensive, too dangerous or too unrealistic.

• Don’t take “no” for an answer: In “A Christmas Story” when Ralphie’s parents say “no” to the idea of a BB gun with the added (and very famous) explanation “you’ll shoot your eye out!” Ralphie realizes he still has a chance of making his dreams come true with help from Santa. Sure, we adults may not have Santa to fall back on, but there is always someone else we can ask when we hear “no” to a pitch.

• Think on your feet: This isn’t related to Christmas, but last summer our little neighbor set up a lemonade stand. He came over and asked us to buy a cup. I said “sure” only to find that there was a stand, but no lemonade. “No problem” said my neighbor, running into the house and grabbing a can of pop. “I can sell you this.” I happily bought the pop. You can’t stump a kid. They have an answer for everything.

• Find joy: Spoiler alert: Ralphie gets the BB gun in the end, but that’s hardly the point of “A Christmas Story.” The reason people love that movie is because seeing Christmas through a kid’s eyes is magical. As the hustle and bustle of this busy seasons sets in, take a note from the kids around you and do your best to find joy in it.

DOES IT OCCUR to Hannah that the reason we have the most economic prosperity is because our government doesn’t confiscate all our income (yet) for distribution to social programs like paid family leave. If you want free college, health care, daycare, etc., say goodbye to all that prosperity.

WHY DO PEOPLE drive on Shiawassee like there is no speed limit and without regard for others? I avoid this and go on Silver Lake or North roads.

Meet Sheridan Goss

- LHS senior
- Snuggle Sacks co-founder
- NHS member

By Hannah Ball

Sheridan Goss, 17, is a senior at Linden High School. Along with her siblings, she's co-founder of Snuggle Sacks, a non-profit that makes survival kits for the homeless, and has been recognized by Youth Service America.

What accomplishment are you most proud of?

Accomplishments I am most proud of would be my academics. I have worked really hard to get good grades every year and maintain my high GPA so I could join the National Honor Society.

What do you like to do for fun?

In my free time, I like to go do things with my friends or have a chill night at home with my family, playing games and watching movies.

What type of career possibility excites you?

My dream career would be an FBI profiler or a forensic psychologist.

Do you want to attend college and where?

I do plan to attend college and plan to go to Saginaw Valley State University.

Do you know what a rotary phone is?

Yes, I do know what a rotary phone is. It is an old-fashioned phone where you had to wait for one number to go all the way around before you could put it in the next number.

Would you rather live a week in the past or future, why?

A week in the future so that when I go back to the present, I would know what is going to happen to me. If I didn't like what happened in the future, I would have a way to change it.

What is one thing you would like to do before you graduate?

One thing I would like to do before I graduate is have one big family vacation with both my parents. If you could time travel, where would you go?

I would go to the 1990s because I like the fashion and music of that time period.

Do you think it’s harder to be a teen today than it used to be?

Yes, I do think it is harder to be a teen today because of all the negativity in the press about kids' behavior and how adults sometimes say that "kids these days" as if teens now are entitled and rude just because of one story.

What superpower would you like to have?

If I were a superhero I would like to have the superpower of invisibility. What are two things you couldn't live without, and why?

Two things that I could not live without are my dog and my best friend.

Do you want to stay in Michigan? If not, where would you like to live?

Kind of. I would love to stay close to family but I also hate the cold so I really want to live somewhere warm and no winter.

If you were given $1,000 to donate what/who would you donate it too?

I would split it between multiple homeless shelters because I am passionate about helping the homeless since I run my own nonprofit, Snuggle Sacks — Resources for the Homeless.

Snuggle Sacks is featured in “Unselfish Kids,” a book published by Unselfish Stories, LLC, which features charities and organizations spearheaded by children across the world. It’s written by Paul Parkinson and Sammie Parkinson. It can be ordered at Fenton’s Open Book.

Setting bonds in criminal cases — Part II

The pilot program is intended to help with bond decisions by supplying certain information to the judge so that the risks involved in allowing a defendant’s release can be assessed using evidence based practices.

The tool, which is used to accomplish this, is called a Public Safety Assessment (PSA) which is designed to predict the probability of a defendant, if on release awaiting trial, failing to come back to court, committing a new violent criminal offense, or a new criminal offense, or a conviction are included.

Each factor is assigned a point value. The points are then added up to determine the risk of a pretrial failure. The higher the total score the higher the risk.

After all the data has been obtained and scored for eligible defendants, a recommendation is made for one of four bond release levels ranging from a very restrictive release (including such things as tether, periodic reporting back to court, curfews, court reminders, and other requirements), all the way down to minimally restrictive conditions.

Statistics will be kept for each of the five participating courts. The initial results of the pilot program are expected to be announced in the fall of next year.

Bond or bail reform has both its supporters and detractors.

An example of this is found in New York where a new bail reform law, which has not received universal support, goes into effect Jan. 1, 2020 eliminating money bail in virtually all misdemeanor, non-violent felony, and some violent felony cases.

For more information on bond reform, a good starting point is the collection of articles at the Marshall Project website at themarshallproject.org.

Part I was published Wednesday, Dec. 11.

Early Christmas gift presented to Hurley NICU preemies

By Sally Rummel

When Craig and Lindsay (Hensler) Huppertz had their daughter, Kyleigh, a month premature on July 28 at Hurley Medical Center in Flint, she was in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit for only four days before being allowed to go home.

Weighing exactly 6 pounds at birth, Kyleigh towered over the tiniest preemies. But those four days of seeing very ill babies in the NICU made a lasting impression on this first-time mom.

“Some of the preemies had blankets to keep them even warmer in an incubator,” said Lindsay, daughter of Fred and Tracy Hensler of Fenton Township. “They were able to take the blankets home with them when they left the hospital. Most preemies stay there until their original due date.”

When Lindsay and Craig returned home to Midland with Kyleigh after only four days, she knew she wanted to do something to help other babies and their families. She decided to make preemie blankets when they got home.

Lindsay put a post on Facebook asking for donations and ended up making 52 fleece tie preemie blankets in all. It took her about 15 to 20 hours to make them, a small price to pay to help other babies in the NICU, she said.

Lindsay, with 5-month-old Kyleigh in tow, delivered the blankets to the Hurley NICU on Thursday, Dec. 12 and was thrilled with the reaction from staff and other preemie families. “Four babies left the NICU that day, and were able to take their blankets home with them,” Lindsay said.

Hard Hats is new and Koledo is its first director. He started in February. Before that, Michigan was part of the national organization with a regional director with up to 10 states in his jurisdiction. Only New York and Minnesota have their own statewide programs.

Koledo said he’s the “boots on the ground” liaison between the three groups, and much is facilitated via profiles online.

“There’s a huge need in the construction skilled trades right now,” Koledo said. This is because of retiring workers and an increase in projects.

Contractors, trade unions and service members all create profiles on the website. Contractors post about what workers are needed and when, and the service members are able to look at what is available.

Recently, Joe Ferguson of Montrose began his career as a plumber/pipefitter working with Goyette Mechanical and union Local 370. He’ll be paid a wage and start his career and training immediately in a three-to-five year apprenticeship. He can enhance his income with the GI Bill.

It’s an opportunity Ferguson said wouldn’t have been available without Helmets to Hardhats. Without this program, Ferguson likely would have stayed as a helper at Goyette, a non-union and non-skilled labor position.

“I’m pretty excited to get started,” Ferguson said. “I didn’t think it was going to be this quick.”

Ferguson did attain his position quicker than average. An average is six to 12 months, or at the most, a couple years.

Ferguson was a Navy quartermaster. He served for five years. He thinks the advantage of hiring a veteran is that they’ve already had to go through the training, which instilled discipline and respect.

Trade unions and contractors can have difficulty filling some basic positions, because some workers show up late, have drug abuse issues or aren’t able to handle hard work. Koledo said discipline, teamwork and a focus on safety are requirements of the construction zone and traits trained into active military.

“The military and construction career go hand-in-hand with that jobsite mentality,” he said.

Koledo said the program and his position are funded through a special Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MEDC) grant to the Michigan Building and Construction Trade Council.

The national website has helped more than 450 veterans to be linked to apprenticeships in 2019.

The Michigan website and program are new enough that the current goal is to raise awareness of the program and the opportunity. To learn more, go to mihelmetsohardhats.org.
REAL TREE SALES

of Westland cut it and then they all rode back on the trailer. Jeffrey loaded it up with nursery employee Tyler Petts.

While Christmas trees are mostly the same as they’ve ever been, people are buying them earlier in the year, and starting to buy bigger again.

Branching Out co-owner Art Vance said sales of 13-foot Fraser Firs increased by 20 percent. The time of the year for sales is also shifting.

Co-owner Dave Petts said they sold 10 trees before Thanksgiving, which he said has never happened before. The peak used to be this past weekend — mid-December, but now it’s closer to Thanksgiving. They also see sales first thing in the morning, which was rare in previous years.

Vance said Fraser Fir trees are still the top seller, but they also grow Concolor (white) Firs, which are becoming more popular. These are brighter, smaller trees according to the National Christmas Tree Association (NCTA).

Vance said these have to be protected from the deer until they’re harvested.

Business is strong, but there is still a shortage of taller trees in the industry overall because of the recession a decade ago. There were fewer trees planted in that time and because trees grow 1 foot per year, tall trees have not caught up in height yet after the recession.

Christmas tree facts
- 32.8 million natural Christmas trees were purchased in 2018; on average the survey participants reported they paid $78 for a real tree in 2018.
- 23.6 million new artificial trees were purchased in 2018, which cost $104 on average.
- Overall sales are up 20 percent in 2018.

DAM

but the dam is still broken.

Argentine Township Supervisor Brian Saad said he’s in communication with the GCRC and the state to look for options to repair the gate.

“The dam has triple redundancy,” he said. “There are two doors and the sleuth.”

However, the one remaining gate is slower than the broken eastern gate, and they don’t want to rely on the sleuth too much.

Saad said the dam should work for the next year.

Alexander Patsy, programming and development engineer for the GCRC, said they’re actively exploring options to find the best way to fix it. The cost will depend on what work is done, whether they only fix the gate operator or do more upgrades and major repairs. Patsy estimates it could cost tens of thousands of dollars or hundreds of thousands.

A new dam would could cost upward of $5 million. Together, the bridge and dam are nearing 100 years in age.

people that manages the whole thing. It’s so simpler now.”

Assessing and mapping has changed. Municipalities now use satellite data for mapping properties. The township used to have paper cards with hand-drawn houses and lines on them, done by a part-time assessor. Now, an entire department handles this. Genesee County still maintains the roads, but it will not repave local streets, such as subdivisions.

Fenton Township still contracts with the Genesee County Sheriff’s Office for police services, but the fire department has grown from a one-station operation with part time firefighters and three trucks into a two-station department with about eight trucks. Ted said there used to be an issue with houses on the west side not getting proper coverage.

Mark remembers that day. He attributes his start on the board partly to his father.

“I came home from work one day, dad’s in the driveway and said, ‘hey, Fenton Township elections are coming up, you want to run?’ I said no. He said, ‘give it a shot, see what it’s about.’ I thought they were voting for line captain. But I don’t want to rely on the sleuth too much.

Ryan leads Fenton at Battle of Bavaria tournament

By David Troppens

Kendra Ryan is more than just a quality female wrestler on the Fenton varsity wrestling squad. Ryan is proving to be one of the top performers on the team regardless of gender.

On Saturday, she was the team’s top wrestler, earning an individual championship at the Battle of Bavaria at Frankenmuth High School. Ryan helped the Tigers to a fourth-place team finish in the 14-team tournament. Ryan pinned all three of her opponents to earn the 103 weight class title.

Dylan Beverly (145) also made it to the championship round, but he ended up finishing in second. Beverly went 3-1 with two pinfall victories.

Lukas Zywicki (189) placed third with two pinfall while Ella Turnblom (112) and Jason Church (152) also took fourth.

Eagles sneak past upset-minded Bronchons

By David Troppens

Holly — The Linden varsity boys basketball team is experiencing something no Eagles’ team has experienced since December 1994.

The Eagles are learning what it feels like to be a defending league champion.

The Holly Bronchos, who finished seventh out of nine teams in the Metro standings a year ago, showed the Eagles that it’s likely they’ll see teams playing some of their best basketball in contests against Linden. The Bronchos showed they weren’t intimidated and led for large chunks of the game before losing to the Eagles 53-47 Friday at Holly High School.

The Eagles struggled mightily. Linden converted on just 18-of-58 shots and never made a trip to the free-throw line in the opening half. Meanwhile, Holly made a much more efficient 18-of-40 shots from the field, but 25 turnovers ended up being their nemesis.

Holly led 39-33 entering the fourth quarter, and the lead grew to 42-33 on a three-pointer by Ryan Ortiz. However, Linden played its best basketball in the final quarter and quickly cut into the gap. Brenden Miller converted two free throws and about 90 seconds later Blake Lund assisted Eli Beil’s three-pointer. The Holly lead was just 44-38.

Fenton starts strong, falls to Swartz Creek

By Dale M. Smith

Swartz Creek — The Fenton varsity boys basketball team opened the 2019-20 season on the road at Swartz Creek Friday night. They started strong but faltered in the second half before falling to the host Dragons, 63-54.

The Tigers came out on fire with senior Trent DeGayner and Addison McIntosh each dropping three 3-pointers in the first eight minutes of play. That sharpshooting combined with six steals, three in first the 1:30 of the game, led to the Tigers leading 22-16 at the end of the first quarter.

Fenton climbed ahead to a 29-20 margin before the taller Dragons worked the paint for some easy baskets and cut the lead to only three at 29-26. An Alec Kussro three made it 32-26. Fenton led at the break, 36-32.

A big problem for the Tigers was the foul trouble for DeGayner. The Tigers’ guard had to sit halfway through the second quarter with three fouls. If that was not enough trouble for the visitors, he then picked up his fourth foul at the 7:10 mark of the third quarter. Creek took advantage.

The Dragons finally pulled ahead at the 3:25 mark of the third quarter at 41-40. A three from Creek junior Terrian Armstrong then made it 44-40. The Dragons never trailed again as Fenton could come no closer than three points in the final stanza.

Tooley’s play leads Bronchos past Linden Eagles, 50-41

By David Troppens

Holly — Emma Tooley and the rest of the Holly varsity girls basketball team had one goal on Friday.

The Bronchos wanted to give their first-year coach Ben Varner a victory against the team he coached just a couple of seasons ago.

Consider the mission accomplished.

Tooley seemingly scored every pivotal point the Bronchos recorded, leading Holly to a 50-41 home Metro League victory against the Linden Eagles at Holly High School.

“We came in here really pumped because our coach used to coach them, so we wanted to come out and beat them and show them our coach is amazing,” said Tooley, who scored 20 points. “It was a good night. Coach really had us pumped up for this game, for sure.”

“It was our first win of the season, my first here at Holly and we beat Linden. It’s pretty special,” Varner said. “There was a lot of stress today, but it was fun.”

It was a close game throughout and the Eagles certainly were competitive. It seemed every time the Eagles made a run, Tooley responded back. With Holly leading just 10-6 after one quarter, Tooley opened the second quarter with back-to-back scores. First, she scored on a driving layup. Then she recorded a steal, drove to the hoop and scored the layup while being fouled. She converted the free throw, raising Holly’s lead to 15-6. From that point on, the Eagles never took the lead. A layin by Hunter Weeder enabled the Bronchos to take a 19-11 lead into the second half.

Linden opened the third quarter on fire, with Jordan Peterson hitting a three-pointer and Alexcis Parker making a driving layup. Holly’s lead was just 19-16. However, Tooley’s driving layup raised the gap to 21-16. Later in the quarter, she converted a free throw and a three-point play on back-to-back possessions, enabling the Bronchos to take a 27-21 lead. About a minute later, Tooley dished a pass to Hanna Covert for a layup. The Bronchos led 29-21.

However, Linden made another run. A layup by Kelsey McLenan, a putback hoop by Delanie Prince and a layup by McLenan cut the Holly lead to 29-27. Holly entered the final quarter leading just 30-27.

Again, Tooley came up big, hitting back-to-back driving layups to start the fourth quarter, raising Holly’s lead to 34-27. From that point, the Eagles were unable to cut the gap any closer than six.

Blue Devils lose another late-game heartbreaker

By David Troppens

For the second straight game, the Lake Fenton varsity boys basketball team led for most of the contest, looked poised to get a victory, but then saw it taken away in the final moments.

In the first game it was a tough loss at Kearsley High School. On Friday, it was a late-game shot by Corunna.

The Blue Devils lost 63-61 at Corunna High School.

“It was just like our first game, but this time they took the lead twice and we responded twice,” first-year Josh Fox said. “It was a matter of just doing some of the little things that help you win games. On Saturday we cancelled our shoot-around and had the boys watch. They learned they have to go to the ball instead of waiting for a pass late. … Seeing it helped them.
