Self-checkouts too tempting to some shoppers

Fenton police see increase in latest retail fraud known as under scanning

By Sharon Stone

While police have seen a decrease in crime, most likely due to the COVID-19 pandemic and stay-at-home order issued for Michigan, Fenton police have noticed an increase in a certain type of retail fraud.

The crime involves self-serve checkouts at big box stores and shoppers under scanning merchandise.

Lt. Jeff Cross said Fenton police have arrested three women recently for placing more items in their plastic shopping bag at the checkout than they scanned and paid for.

St. John’s Fr. Riley in ICU battling COVID-19

Taking part in Remdesivir clinical trial and updating friends via Facebook

By Sharon Stone

Fr. Ryan Riley, the associate pastor of St. John the Evangelist Catholic Church of Fenton, thanked everyone for all their prayers as he battles the coronavirus. He is in the Intensive Care Unit at the University of Michigan Hospital with COVID-19 related hypoxia and severe dehydration.

On Saturday, May 9, he wrote on his personal Facebook page, “Sorry for not responding to the texts and phone calls. My lack of energy gets me. There have been so many it has been extremely touching to me! I love you all.”

Riley, 37, has been with St. John for about three-and-half years. He wrote to his Facebook friends saying that his temperature rose to 103 degrees and that he’s been trying to suppress his cough. He added that he signed up for the Remdesivir clinical trial and had his first dose over the weekend.

Laura Lemke to be next FHS principal

Will replace longtime principal Mark Suchowski who is retiring

By Sharon Stone

Laura Lemke, Fenton High School assistant principal, was appointed to principal during the Fenton Board of Education meeting held remotely Monday, May 11. She will begin her new role July 1.

Lemke has served as assistant principal for 16 years. The appointment came after Mark Suchowski, who has been principal of the high school since 2004, announced he would be retiring, said Adam Hartley, superintendent of the school district.

Suchowski started as a teacher at Fenton High School in 1994 and became assistant principal in 1999. Hartley said, “Mr. Suchowski will be ending his storied career in education but will remain an integral part of the Fenton community. His service to our families and the community has been outstanding and we thank him for his leadership.”

The recommendation at Monday night’s school board meeting was the result of Lemke completing a long and rigorous interview process. Throughout the process, Lemke continued to stress the importance of high standards for staff and students, effective communication to all stakeholders and maintaining a positive, energetic culture, said Hartley.

The position of Fenton High School assistant principal has been posted and the administration is looking forward to adding another dynamic leader to the Fenton Area Public Schools team.

Two Flint teens steal $400 worth of liquor

Fenton police pursue females as they flee Fenton store; seek arrest warrants

By Sharon Stone

Fenton police are seeking arrest warrants against two 18-year-old females, both of Flint, for their alleged involvement in an organized retail fraud case in Fenton, and fleeing and eluding Fenton police.

Lt. Jeff Cross said police responded to Walmart on Owen Road at 10:39 a.m. Saturday, April 18 for a retail fraud in progress.

Loss prevention told police they had observed the two women select two backpacks in the store and proceed to conceal high-end liquor and wine in the bags. The two females then walked past the checkout and exited the store without paying as Fenton police arrived on scene.

RETAIL FRAUD

Fenton police were dispatched to a big box store in the 3700 block of Owen Road at 2:06 p.m. on Wednesday, April 29 to investigate a retail fraud complaint. Loss prevention had a 33-year-old Linden woman in custody.

Cross said she scanned some merchandise and placed additional merchandise in the bag without scanning. In total, she had $94 worth of merchandise in the bag that she did not pay for. Cross said she denied the theft and told the officer she didn’t realize she had not scanned all of the items.

Police arrested her, issued her a court appearance ticket and released her from the scene.

On May 5, at 1:45 p.m., Fenton police were dispatched to the same store for a retail fraud. This time, loss prevention observed a 42-year-old Fenton woman under scan approximately $150 worth of merchandise. Fenton police arrested her, issued her a court appearance ticket and released her from the scene.

On May 9, Fenton police once again responded to the same big-box store for a retail fraud complaint. Loss prevention had a 35-year-old Fenton woman in custody after they observed her under scan $90 worth of merchandise. She was arrested, issued a court appearance ticket and released from the scene.

Cross said under scanning merchandise at self-checkouts is retail fraud. This crime violates a local ordinance and is classified as a 90-day misdemeanor. He said shoppers might not realize that an employee monitors these self-checkout kiosks on-site, along with loss prevention employees who are watching every transaction remotely.

He added that police did not take these retail fraud suspects to the police station because they are limiting the number of individuals they allow in the police station due to the COVID-19 standards.

"All the cleaning measures will be amplified more so"

By Hannah Ball

Childcare is going to operate a little differently during a pandemic with a contagious disease.

Fenton Early Learning Center is planning to open June 1 to care for children of parents who are essential workers.

Kylee Wilson, preschool teacher, who cleaned her classroom Thursday, May 7, wants parents to know they’re going to proceed with “extreme caution.”

Staff has been meeting a few times a week to work out a plan to open. They’ll be sending informational packets to parents about precautions they will take. This includes having the parents drive up to the building and having staff take the child’s temperature.

If the child has a fever or has symptoms, they will not be allowed in. If the child seems healthy, staff will escort them in. When parents come to pick up their children, they will call ahead and staff will bring them out.

MIDWEEK TIMES

Sharin’ the spotlight

By Editor Sharon Stone

Meals at the dinner table have always brought families together. While we provide nourishment to keep our bodies healthy, conversations with our loved ones keep us connected.

Everyone who knows me knows that my husband, Jeff, and I enjoy going out to dinner after a long day at work and we often go out with our closest friends. I don’t know why but a salad always tastes better when someone else makes it. Jeff and I are good cooks, but our dining out is more about socializing with our empty-nester friends.

The last time Jeff and I went out to dinner was Sunday, March 15. News of the coronavirus was worsening but nothing was shut down yet. We sat at the bar at The Laundry and caught up on the news with a couple of our favorite bartenders. They were nervous, wearing gloves and constantly cleaning their area. None of us knew what would happen next. We enjoyed our lunch and coffee and went on our way.

Within days, businesses were forced to close their doors, including all of the restaurants in our rotation.

Because restaurants provided food they were deemed essential, however, dining in was and is still prohibited. Since the shutdown, we have continued to patronize several restaurants in the area, first for our benefit, and secondly to help ensure that they will survive the economic toll due to this virus. We want them to open and thrive as soon as it’s safe.

Just like the rest of us, food preparers at restaurants are worried of becoming infected and infecting someone else. Despite that worry, they show up to work, take the necessary precautions and continue preparing our favorite entrees. My husband and I watch for restaurant specials in the Times and we signed up for text alerts to see what dinner will be that particular day. Right now the only thing different is that we pick up our meal curbside and have a quiet meal at home.

We are so impressed with how these businesses and their employees have adapted to the pandemic and their determination to do what they do. I’ve seen some social media posts of people debating whether we should be tipping for takeout. What? To me, this is not up for debate. We look at these people wearing facemasks and gloves and running out to our car as friends and warriors. Tip accordingly.

Fortunately, based on the number of places Jeff called to order a Mother’s Day dinner, we are not the only ones who are placing orders and keeping our restaurants in business.

I’ll touch on my appreciation for more essential workers in my next column.

“All the cleaning measures will be amplified more so,” she said. “It’s going to be different than normal. They can’t bring toys from home. We’re making sure extra stuff isn’t accumulating.”

If the children develop symptoms over the day, parents will be called to come pick them.

“Parents are going to have to be sensitive to that, if they have a running nose or cough, they’re going to have to come and get them,” she said, adding that kids often have runny noses or a cough. “We’re going to have to be more cautious.”

The center is following guidelines set by the state and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). However, one guideline is that adults and children over the age of 2 should wear masks, but Wilson doesn’t think that will work with kids.

Wilson said they will do “extreme” amounts of handwashing.

The center will be accepting new families as well. The packets they will send out will include questions about if they’ve traveled recently.

“Our enrollment is going to be down quite a bit until everyone feels more comfortable in general,” she said. “I have three young kids and they will be coming with me once it opens. It’s just as important to me as a parent and staff member.”

When asked how long she thinks precautions like these will be in place, Wilson said, “I think that either it will have to be until parents start to see the numbers of (COVID-19) cases drop or until they develop a vaccine or herd immunity.”

Shauna Meyers, operations manager for St. John Catholic Parish, said Riley noticed a slight fever last Wednesday, May 6. She said he went to an urgent care center and was prescribed medicine.

On Thursday morning, May 7, he took part in livestreaming Mass to the parishioners. Later that day, he began having difficulty breathing. On Friday, May 8, he self-admitted himself to UM Hospital.

Meyers said minimal individuals are in the church for livestreaming and they are taking every precaution, including a two-week self-quarantine, as recommended by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Parish employees were notified of Riley’s circumstances and have been instructed to self-quarantine, as well.

The parish will be closed for the next two weeks and there will be no livestreaming of services. There is no access to the church.

“We’re pretty much at a standstill for the next two weeks,” Meyers said. Funerals and baptisms will be postponed or rescheduled at another location, allowing time to have the entire church cleaned and disinfected.

Meyers said Riley will keep the congregation updated through his Facebook page. Even with more than 3,000 parishioners, she said they remain a tight-knit group. Most members are friends with Riley on Facebook or know someone who is friends with him for updates.

“He (Fr. Riley) is very involved with the school and he’s very missed,” Meyers said. “And many have prayed for him.”

Yellow ribbon added to tree by Holly Elementary School to commemorate those on active duty

By Hannah Ball

One Holly High School senior thought she’d had to leave for U.S. Army boot camp without any kind of celebration or sendoff, due to the COVID-19 pandemic and stay-at-home orders.

It was a surprise to Annah Charles, 18, when she went out on her lawn Saturday, May 9 to see a parade of vehicles with flags and signs going by in her honor.

Annah had a “really nice” send off planned by “Hometown Support for all on Active Duty,” a group that arranges memorable send offs for Holly residents leaving for service, said her mother, Lisa Charles. It had to be canceled due to the pandemic and stay home order.

“I just felt so bad. She’s a senior this year. She didn’t get a graduation party, no sendoff and she’s leaving for the Army,” Charles said. “So we started planning and contacted all of our friends and the fire department.”

Annah Charles, 18, was a senior at Holly High School this year. She left this past weekend for boot camp to become a K9 handler in the U.S. Army. Submitted photo

Annah Charles’ mother

Approximately 50 to 60 vehicles were in the parade, including four or five fire trucks, police and family and friends.

“It’s emotional because they couldn’t get out and give the family a hug,” she said. Her friends made poster boards to put in car windows as they drove by. “It was so sweet.”

Annah left Sunday for boot camp in Missouri.

“It’s so sad. It’s very hard, but you can’t help but be proud of her for making that choice and being the strong young lady she is, taking that under her belt,” Charles said. “Especially in this time with what our country is going through.”

Annah will also have a commemorative yellow ribbon hung around the trunk of an oak tree at Holly Elementary School recognizing local active military personnel.

“I’m just so excited we were able to do something special for Annah. She’ll remember that for the rest of her life,” she said.

Jim Golden, one of the organizers of “Hometown Support for all on Active Duty,” said they had a nice send off planned for Annah and one other woman in April. When that had to be canceled, the Charles family organized the yard signs and parade, and Golden made some calls to help bring more people to the event.

“Everyone cheered her on, wished her well,” he said. “She had a good time. She will remember that.”
Cameras in the courtroom — Part II

It was noted in the Estes opinion that as of 1965, televising and photographing of criminal trials was allowed in only two states (Texas and Colorado) and then only with restrictions. This also applied to civil cases. The federal courts prohibited it by special rule.

This was as a result of what happened in the 1935 New Jersey trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann who was tried and convicted of kidnapping and murdering the young son of the famous aviator Charles Lindbergh and his wife author Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

The scene was described as a “media circus” with numerous photographers taking countless flashbulb pictures of the defendant in and out of the courtroom and a newsreel camera being used to film the trial.

The Estes decision marked the low point for courtroom cameras.

However, things can change and here they did with television and other cameras gradually became smaller, quieter, and less disruptive.

As a result, a number of states began allowing them into their courtrooms.

The constitutionality of this practice was affirmed in the 1981 Supreme Court case of Chandler v Florida, which held that as a result of “evolving technology” courtroom cameras were not automatically a violation of a defendant’s due process rights to a fair trial.

Today, all states allow cameras in one form or another with each state having its own specific conditions.

In Michigan, we have a Supreme Court Administrative Order 1989-1, which allows media filming or broadcasting upon request and subject to limitations, including the number of cameras and locations, prohibiting filming or broadcasting of jurors, and in the court’s discretion, certain witnesses.

The federal courts continue to prohibit the photographing or broadcasting of judicial courtroom proceedings with limited exceptions in two Circuit Courts of Appeals and three District Courts.

However due to the COVID-19 situation, many federal courts have temporarily authorized videoconferencing of selected court cases.

Additionally for the first time in its 230-year history, the Supreme Court is allowing live audio streaming of oral arguments.

It’s fair to say that cameras in the courtroom are here to stay. Some legal commentators say their use very well may be expanded in view of everything that has happened in response to the pandemic. The legal community will be watching with interest.

We thank those who are certain of their daughter mission during these uncertain times.

Looking back: Linden gets its first win, beats Holly

By David Troppens

Linden — It hasn’t been the greatest start to the season for the Linden varsity football team.

In fact, its 0-2 start is the worst since the Eagles lost two competitive contests in their first two games in 2001 as well.

In 2001, the Eagles (1-2) righted the ship during the third week with a victory against the Holly Bronchos (1-2). The same happened this season.

Desperately needing a victory, the Eagles’ offense had their best game of the season and the defense remained strong for the entire 48 minutes, resulting in the Eagles’ 28-0 home victory against the Holly Bronchos.

“It really means a lot,” Linden quarterback Colby Kohmescher said. “We put in a ton of work this week in practice, we’ve had two tough games, two tough losses, and I think coming out and goose-egging them is going to boost our confidence a lot.”

Linden varsity football coach Denny Hopkins was pleased with the victory, but was concerned about something else. The Eagles led 28-0 at halftime, but were unable to score again in the second half.

Cross country teams always dominate Top 16

By David Troppens

It’s a question prep fans love to ask in any area of the country.

The question — so what is the best prep sport in the area?

In the tri-county area, many people would answer immediately, “football.” That would be the accurate answer if we look at the popularity of a sport. However when it comes to making a Tri-County Top 16 list, popularity doesn’t matter much. The sports staff is exploring what are the best teams in terms of talent and season success. If this was a poll of popularity, the four area football teams would routinely be on the list annually.

However, it’s rare more than one team ever makes our end-of-the-year top 16 poll.

The sport that does dominate the poll on a routine basis is one that many people rarely follow. That sport is cross country. The area’s 5K runners in the fall are clearly our top performers. When the sports staff started distributing our list of the top 16 after the 2008-09 school year, cross country squads were the No. 1 team four of the first six years. One hasn’t finished in the No. 1 spot since the 2013-14 school year, but seemingly there’s always someone threatening the top position. Frequently these lists have three, four or five cross country squads on them.

This year’s poll continues that trend.

No. 14 - Lake Fenton boys cross country: The growth of the Flint Metro League (FML) made cross country action as exciting as ever last fall. By adding Lake Fenton and Goodrich to the league, the squads strengthened an already strong sport.

Lake Fenton finished in just a tie for fourth place in the final league standings. At first glance, that wouldn’t look like the beginnings of a resume for a Top 16 squad. However, the Blue Devils were competing against some bigger schools with some very strong programs. They finished sixth in the first jamboree, improved to fifth in the second and placed fourth in the final one, earning the tie for fourth against the Holly Bronchos.

The Blue Devils went to the D2 regional meet at Linden Middle School where all three state qualifying teams were from the Metro League. Lake Fenton placed third at the regional meet.

Once at the state meet, the Blue Devils placed 22nd out of the 27 squads at the meet.

No. 13 - Linden girls cross country: The Lady Eagles have been one of the teams that typically make our Top 16 poll, placing in it eight other seasons. The Eagles were our No. 1 team in 2013-14. However, the squad didn’t make the top 16 during the 2018-19 school year so the sports staff is sure the team likes being back among this elite company. The Eagles finished third overall in the FML, placing third in the first jamboree, second in the second jamboree and third in the final league meet. The Eagles came within four team points of first-place Fenton in that second league battle.

AHH, FINALLY SOME LIVE SPORTS

Last week was a pretty nice one on Fox Sports Detroit’s broadcasts. Each night of the week, the station presented a great pitching performance in Tigers’ history. It was entertaining to witness those games again.

There have been some Tiger games on the radio as well. It’s been nice hearing those as well, but there is one problem — because they are past games, we all know they are going to be Tiger victories. I listened to one game that the Tigers trailed by six runs entering the bottom of the ninth. It took some of the drama out of the game knowing the Tigers were going to at least tie the game in the bottom of the ninth.

But now, we have some actual live sports. Yes, I have been watching some of the Korean baseball games. It’s baseball and it’s live, so I’ve watched it. This weekend there was comhole competition. Okay, that was pretty hard to watch, but it was on. Finally, later this week NASCAR is back. I’m looking forward to those events.

It’s a long way to getting back to normal, but I’ll take it. I bet the first NASCAR race breaks some ratings records.

ARIES
Mar 21/Apr 20
You’re up for a lot of energy and inspiration this week, Aries. Feel free to do anything you put your mind to, especially some recreational activities.

TAURUS
Apr 21/May 21
Taurus, you may be feeling especially affectionate this week. With an open heart, you could be ready to delve into a new layer of your relationship or find a new romance.

GEMINI
May 22/Jun 21
People may be wise to give you a wide berth for the time being. Gemini. Your dander is up, and it may be a good time to look for ways to reduce stress.

CANCER
Jun 22/Jul 22
Cancer, it is very possible that you will meet someone new this week who has the potential to become a lifelong friend. Be observant of every new face and name in your circle.

LEO
Jul 23/Aug 23
A volatile situation could reach its breaking point soon enough. Leo. Arguments that have slowly been brewing will culminate. Fortunately, things will quiet down afterward.

VIRGO
Aug 24/Sept 22
Virgo, even though you are tempted to go in many different directions over the next few days, you’ll need to pick a course and stick with it if you are to get anything done.

LIBRA
Sept 23/Oct 23
Libra, this week you may find yourself taking center stage at a family gathering or with a group of friends. Use this opportunity to make your voice heard.

SCORPIO
Oct 24/Nov 22
Be careful that your actions are not taken the wrong way, Scorpio. Do not take on traits that you would otherwise disagree with. Lighten up and be joyful this week.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov 23/Dec 21
Sagittarius, take a breather whenever you can because there is a whirlwind of activity soon to come your way. Enjoy any breaks that come your way in the days ahead.

CAPRICORN
Dec 22/Jan 20
Your willpower may be weak lately, Capricorn, and you may be eating or doing things that you’ll regret later on. Ask a friend to guide you away from temptations.

AQUARIUS
Jan 21/Feb 18
Aquarius, someone may offer you a promotion or another more influential position. Do not let this go to your head, but enjoy the success that has come your way.

PISCES
Feb 19/Mar 20
Pisces, if you have noticed you are running into obstacles in your quest to meet your goals, you may want to step back and consider a new path.
