Sinking fund proposal on Aug. 4 ballot

Voters in Lake Fenton Community Schools to decide three-year, 1-mill bond

By Sharon Stone

Lake Fenton Community Schools will be asking voters within the school district to vote on a sinking fund millage proposal Tuesday, Aug. 4.

Local clerks are advising residents to request an absentee voter ballot this year due to coronavirus concerns.

This proposal will allow the school district to continue to levy the building and site sinking fund millage that expired with the 2019 tax levy.

Superintendent Julie Williams said, “Sinking fund dollars provide the school district with funding necessary to properly maintain and improve our school facilities and grounds. It also helps limit our use of general fund dollars for these types of expenses and this allows Lake Fenton Community Schools to continue to offer quality educational programming and maintain smaller class sizes in our K-5 classrooms.”

Heed the warnings of veterinarians and keep your pets off hot pavement, out of parked cars

By Sharon Stone

Have you ever walked down your asphalt-paved driveway to your mailbox or walked down your dock barefoot on a really hot day? It hurts.

This week, with temperatures in the 90s, every pet owner needs to keep in mind that their pet’s paws and foot pads are delicate to that hot and dangerous surface.

A dog’s tolerance to heat and cold varies based on their size, body composition, hair coat, health and other factors.

Win a ‘Wonder Woman 1984’ prop replica

Red Cross joins forces with new movie throughout July to save the day for patients in need

By Sharon Stone

Throughout July, the American Red Cross and “Wonder Woman 1984” are joining forces to save the day for patients in need of lifesaving blood transfusions.

The Red Cross has an urgent need for blood donors this summer, as the COVID-19 pandemic has caused unprecedented supply challenges amid this uncertain environment. Additionally, despite states lifting stay-at-home orders and reopening, many blood drives at businesses and community organizations continue to be canceled as these locations remain closed or restrict the number of individuals at any location.

As part of the partnership, the Red Cross is organizing an epic prop replica giveaway from the new Warner Bros. Pictures ﬁlm, “Wonder Woman 1984,” to be released nationwide Oct. 2, to thank those who roll up a sleeve and help patients battling illness and injury.

Those who present to donate July 1-31 will automatically be entered for a chance to win an authentic Wonder Woman 1984 movie prop replica package, which includes the Golden Lasso and a pair of gauntlets, identical to Wonder Woman’s from the ﬁlm. Limit ﬁve entries per presenting blood donor.

Now is the time to help patients ﬁght back. If you are feeling well, please make an appointment to give by using the Blood Donor app, visiting RedCrossBlood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device.

“In times of crisis, new superheroes often emerge, and new alliances are forged,” said Paul Sullivan, senior vice president of the American Red Cross Biomedical Services. “The Red Cross is thrilled to partner with Wonder Woman 1984 to encourage and thank fans and blood donors alike for being superheroes for patients in need by giving blood in July. Blood donors have a unique super power—lifesaving blood. Blood cannot be manufactured, and donors are the only source for patients in need.”

My birthday week came to a close Sunday. The weather was hot, just like I like it, and I was able to spend much of my weekend on the lake with my family and some close friends. My husband and I even found a sandy spot on Tupper Lake to beach our pontoon so that our dog could spend some time in the water with us. By the time we got home and ate dinner, I was absolutely exhausted. The sun and heat had kicked our butts.

The ironic part is that I chose to spend all that time in the sun, partly because as a lifelong resident of Michigan, I’ve come to appreciate a beautiful day.

When I thought about my exhaustion, I started thinking about all of the people I see working outside for a paycheck. Looking at this week’s weather forecast, it’s going to be hot all week long.

I know I am spoiled. Whether I am working from home or venture to the office, I’ve comfortable with my air conditioning.

Not everyone is so lucky. My thoughts immediately go to our firefighters who must wear several pounds of gear if they have to respond to a structure fire or car crash. I also think about our police officers who respond to any 911 call to keep us safe.

The list of workers I feel compassion for this week also include the employees who have to round up shopping carts left in store parking lots. Once they push them all back into the store, they then have to sanitize them to keep future shoppers safe from the coronavirus. That cycle will continue all day long.

I know I have to mow our lawn this week. It’s a chore my husband and I share to get it done quickly.

Landscapers and lawn care businesses will surely be hydrating on lots of cold water to beat the heat this week. I remember years ago a landscaper who collapsed from heat exhaustion while working at a neighbor’s home. He was fine but I still ran over and offered him a big glass of water.

To all of our farmers who are working overtime to keep their crops growing for us, DWP workers, roofers, construction crews, golf course beverage cart workers, postal carriers, lifeguards, sheriff’s office marine patrol officers, campground workers, delivery people and reporters who respond to cover breaking news, I feel for you.

I know I’ve missed some types of workers, and I apologize.

Being hot can make one grumpy and add to that a pandemic and facemasks, the level of grumpiness is sure to skyrocket this week.

To all of our friends and neighbors who must work outdoors this week, I’m going to try extra hard to be extra kind. If you see someone struggling this week, offer a bottle or glass of refreshing water.

Tips to keep your home cool and keep your family comfortable

By Sally Rummel

Air conditioning is one of those “must-haves” during a hot, humid Michigan summer so you can beat the summer heat.

Mid-Michigan is experiencing a several-day stretch of days with temperatures reaching well into the 90s. According to the Weather Channel, Thursday should top out at 97 degrees and Friday will be in the high 80s. After a couple days of mid-80s, next week will again be in the 90s, with not much rain in the forecast.

Take a tip or two from local experts who know the most efficient way to operate your A/C unit.

Editor Sharon Stone contributed to this story.

How do I know if my A/C unit is doing the job it needs to do, or if it needs to be replaced?

“Depending on how much it’s used and how well it has been maintained, your A/C unit can last about 20 years. We use a furnace in Michigan a lot more than we use our A/C. If you notice it takes a long time to get it down to temperature, you may need it serviced or replaced. Don’t be afraid to let your A/C run a long time, because it’s adding moisture to your air — it’s basically a big dehumidifier. Simply pick a temperature and keep it there. Today’s units are energy-efficient and less expensive to run.”

Dave Lamb
Dave Lamb Heating & Cooling owner

What temperature should my A/C unit be set at to work at peak efficiency?

“Keep your temperature steady day and night to run your unit most efficiently. That way, the system won’t have to overwork trying to catch up to the lower desired temperature when you get home. About 74 degrees is a good place to start. It’s cool enough, because we’ve pulled the moisture out of the air. Anything more than a 15-degree drop from what the temperature is outside can be kind of a shock to a person’s system.”

Dan Lamb
D&T Heating & Cooling owner

What’s the most important thing people should know about their A/C unit?

“Most importantly, have a maintenance check or DIY prior to the demand of the season. Maintenance will save you money over the long haul. Your HVAC system is in the top four purchases you make during your lifetime — from your home and car to your roof. If you maintain all those, they’ll last a long time.”

Ways to keep your home cool if you don’t have AC

Close the blinds
Windows can let in about 25 percent of summer heat. Block the heat with shades or blinds during the sunniest hours to keep your home cool sans air conditioning.

Set your ceiling fans to rotate counter-clockwise
A ceiling fan isn’t a set-it-and-forget-it appliance. In the summer, the fan blades should rotate counter-clockwise (as you look up at it) to push the air straight down. Increase the fan speed on really hot days.

Strip in the cool
Weather stripping keeps cool air from escaping through doors and windows. Weather stripping is very inexpensive and doesn’t take much time to install; you can strip the area around a door in less than half an hour.

Probation — Part I

The term probation comes to us from the Latin verb “probare,” which means to prove or to test.

It has several definitions and for court proceedings means a criminal sentence imposed by a judge on a convicted felon or misdemeanor which provides for a term of supervision as an alternative to jail or prison.

Its origins can be traced back to English criminal law in the Middle Ages when harsh penalties were imposed on both adults and children for crimes which weren’t necessarily serious.

For example “poaching,” which was hunting on royal lands, was a death penalty offense.

The will of the English people changed the justice system to allow for less severe punishments and the initiation of the practice of “binding over for good behavior,” a form of temporary release, which allowed defendants to prove over time that they deserved a lesser sentence.

In the United States, the concept of probation was first introduced in the Boston, Massachusetts Police Court by a man named John Augustus who is considered to be the “Father of Probation.” He believed in abstinence and that alcohol abusers could be rehabilitated. In 1841, he bailed out a “common drunkard” to prove the point.

When the defendant appeared back in court for his sentencing, his appearance had drastically changed for the better in both appearance and demeanor as a result of Mr. Augustus’ counseling efforts.

After that, Mr. Augustus began an 18-year career as a volunteer probation officer for some 1,946 people charged with various

Be a superhero
Every two seconds, someone in the United States needs blood — kids battling cancer, accident victims being raced into emergency rooms, and new moms with complicated childbirths. However, superheroes are in short supply as only three out of 100 Americans donate blood.

While tens of thousands of donors gave blood in response to an initial blood shortage caused by this coronavirus outbreak, it’s important to remember that red blood cells must be transfused within 42 days of donation, and platelets within just five days, so they must constantly be replenished.

crimes. Reportedly, only 10 of these defendants failed to comply with his and the court’s conditions.

Because of his work, in 1859 Massachusetts became the first state to enact a probation statute. This led to a national movement and now every state and the federal system have probation laws.

Michigan has had a statute since 1913.

The statute allows probation for misdemeanors and felonies with the exception of murder, armed robbery and some other serious offenses.

For felony cases, the Michigan Department of Corrections is the supervisor and the probation term can be for up to five years. For misdemeanor cases, the district court’s probation department assumes that role with a term of up to two years.

Blood Donation during COVID-19

Each Red Cross blood drive and donation center follows the highest standards of safety and infection control. Donors are asked to schedule an appointment prior to arrival and are required to wear a face covering or mask while at the drive, in alignment with Centers for Disease Control and Prevention public guidance.

Donors can save up to 15 minutes at the blood drive by completing a RapidPass. With RapidPass, donors complete the pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of donation, from a mobile device or computer. To complete a RapidPass, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Red Cross Blood Donor App.

In most states, individuals who are 17 years of age (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Unlock Michigan’s petitions approved by state

By Sharon Stone

Unlock Michigan, a coalition of concerned Michiganders who believe Gov. Gretchen Whitmer’s lockdown of life and businesses across the state is a dangerous threat to livelihoods and constitutional liberties, received final approval of its petition forms from state regulators this week.

The group’s mission is to repeal the Emergency Powers of Governor Act of 1945. They claim Gov. Whitmer has misused this law to assume sweeping, permanent powers the legislature never intended a governor to have, in violation of the Separation of Powers doctrine.

The governor would still have certain powers under the 1976 Emergency Management Act, but that law requires approval from the legislature every 28 days to extend a “state of emergency.”

Through their social media sites, Unlock Michigan says no governor should have the power to endlessly rule by decree.

“Our proposal puts before the Legislature a simple up or down vote over the antiquated 1945 law that Governor Whitmer has used to escape accountability — and even escape that messy thing called representative government,” as posted on their social media.

Petition forms are being printed this week and will be mailed soon.

Fenton artist Kim Bonner has created more than a dozen portraits of children in the Michigan foster care system. She hopes to raise awareness for adoption and help these children find permanent homes. Submitted photo

Kim Bonner, a Fenton artist, is creating portraits of children in foster care in the hopes to help them be adopted. She started making them in March.

“When everything shut down due to COVID-19, I wanted to stay busy with some creative work since all of my spring shows and events had been canceled. I’m always looking for ways to use art to help people, and this project felt like a good fit. Older youth in foster care are less likely to be adopted, so I chose to focus on creating portraits for them,” she said.

People are often hesitant to adopt an older child, Bonner said, but they shouldn’t be. She used to teach middle and high school art, and some of her students were in the foster care system.

“They were awesome kids who wanted to be loved and accepted just like every teenager does,” she said. “The main goal of this series is to give people an opportunity to learn more about adopting from the foster care system and hopefully lead to forever families for these amazing teens.”

Bonner uses profiles of children involved with the Michigan Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) for the project. It’s a state-wide resource for people interested in adopting children from the foster care system. On her website, kimbonner.com, she links the portraits to the children’s profiles on mare.org. The profiles include photos, a brief bio, and a video interview that helps her get a feel for who each child is.

Go to kimbonner.com/foster-youth-portraits to see the portraits.

It takes Bonner about three to six hours to create one piece, depending on what style she uses. Most of the illustrations are pen and ink drawings that she scans and then adds color in Photoshop. She’s also been experimenting with completely digital illustrations.

“I use digital brushes that mimic all types of media including oils, watercolor, and pastels. Sometimes I’ll do multiple versions of a portrait before I settle on one that feels right. This project has definitely been a learning experience for me, so I might end up redoing some of the earlier illustrations in the series now that I’m getting more comfortable with the process,” she said.

This isn’t the only project she’s doing to help foster kids. In 2017, she created a coloring workbook for teen girls called Courageous Coloring.

“For each copy I sell, I give another one to a girl in foster care. In June of this year, I launched a new version of Courageous Coloring with all-new illustrations. Now that the new workbook is printed, I’ve returned to working on more portraits and plan to continue posting them throughout the rest of 2020,” she said.

Bake and wash at night
Large appliances give off significant amounts of heat. Save the operation of ovens, ranges, dishwashers, and clothes washers and dryers for evening hours when cooler temperatures will offset their output.

Consider a dehumidifier
Moist heat is much more uncomfortable for people and pets than dry heat. Dehumidifiers suck the moisture out of balmy summer air in your home, making it much more comfortable, even at higher temperatures. Ideally, keep indoor humidity under 60 per cent. Use the water gathered by the humidifier to water your plants.

Shut doors to unused rooms
If you absolutely must use your air conditioner, confine the coolness to where it's most needed-rooms that you spend most of your day in or bedrooms at night. Shut doors to areas that do not need to be cooled.

Hack a fan
With a bowl of ice and a fan, you can create a faux ocean breeze. Simply fill a mixing bowl with ice or an ice pack, and put the bowl in front of a fan. Turn the fan on, and the air will mimic a chilly, misty breeze.

Try insulated window films
Window films offer a ton of benefits, from cutting energy costs to providing you privacy while still enjoying the view and light of the great outdoors. They can provide up to 98 per cent infrared heat reduction compared to unprotected windows, and reduce temperature imbalances in your home.

Purchase a chill pillow
You've switched out your flannel sheets for a lightweight set, and there's another way to cool down at bedtime. Consider purchasing a special pillow that contains cooling gel that disperses your body heat.

Hack your windows
Open the top section of your windows on the downwind side of your house and the bottom section on the upwind side. This will create a cooling pressure current. You can make things even cooler by facing a box fan out the window.

Open windows at night
Take advantage of breezy summer evenings and open your windows at night to promote a cross-breeze that will help you and your family sleep better. The cooler air will circulate all night, allowing you to start fresh with a cool home in the morning.

Get rid of incandescent lights
Incandescent bulbs waste an estimated 90 percent of their energy in the heat they emit. Switching to compact fluorescent lamps can cool your home while also lowering your energy bill.

Lake Fenton Community Schools Sinking Fund Millage Proposal

Shall the limitation on the amount of taxes which may be assessed against all property in Lake Fenton Community Schools, Genesee County, Michigan, be increased by and the board of education be authorized to levy not to exceed 1 mill ($1.00 on each $1,000 of taxable valuation) for a period of 3 years, 2020 to 2022, inclusive, to create a sinking fund for the purchase of real estate for sites for, and the construction or repair of, school buildings, for school security improvements, for the acquisition or upgrading of technology and all other purposes authorized by law; the estimate of the revenue the school district will collect if the milage is approved and levied in 2020 is approximately $612,630.00.

What is a sinking fund?

A sinking fund is a millage approved by the community and levied to support the maintenance, repair and construction of school buildings. Districts can now use Sinking Fund dollars for safety and security updates and technology infrastructure and devices. A sinking fund does not require a school district to borrow money or pay interest.

These funds are used to continue to maintain our facilities and protect the general fund when it comes to keeping our buildings up to date.

Sinking funds cannot be used for purchasing teaching supplies or textbooks, paying teacher and administrator salaries.

The law requires districts with sinking funds to keep the funds separate from other district accounts.

What does a sinking fund renewal mean?

The school district’s current sinking fund expired in December 2019. Families living within the Lake Fenton Community School District will continue to be levied 1 mill each year for the next three years (2020, 2021, 2022). Example: A person owning a home worth $200,000 (taxable value of $100,000) will be assessed approximately $100 a year.

The estimated $612,000 levied through the sinking fund by the school district each year, that is earmarked for buildings and grounds, safety, and security and technology, will allow for the school district to continue using general fund dollars given by the state to invest in teaching and learning resources, curriculum and staffing.

Holly VFW and American Legion host July 4 parade and veteran memorial

By Tim Jagielo

Holly — Memorial Day is important to the Holly VFW and American Legion.

Their parade down Maple Street and following program at Lakeside Memorial Park both recognize student achievement by rewarding local scholarships to high school students, and memorializing the loss of local service members from World War I to the Vietnam era.

“We feel deeply about those two things,” said American Legion Post 149 member Steve Striggow.

Memorial Day gatherings were canceled due to COVID-19, but American Legion and VFW Post 5587 jumped at the chance to have a “do-over” for such an important event on July 4.

This year’s parade included businesses, classic farm tractors and candidates for local office. Spectators gathered along sidewalks to applaud and appreciate the participants.

Striggow said since 1946, a health crisis has never disrupted a Holly Memorial Day ceremony. The attendance this past Saturday was lighter than a typical parade. Several of the spectators wore masks, including some members of the Honor Guard.

Striggow appreciated the attendance despite the looming health crisis. “It was overwhelming,” he said. “I appreciate each and every person who showed up.”

On Saturday, July 4, at Lakeside Memorial Cemetery, members of Holly American Legion Post 149 and Holly VFW Post 5587 conduct the basket ceremony, where more than 60 roses are placed to remember Holly veterans’ lives lost from World War I to Vietnam. A flower is placed after each name is read aloud. The event, normally held on Memorial Day, was canceled due to COVID-19.

Clay Philpot of Holly attended with his wife and three children. He usually attends the Memorial Day parade. He was a little nervous about the virus threat, though he’d been working throughout the pandemic.

“It’s really nice to see people out and enjoying their time,” he said.

After the parade, students were recognized with local scholarships and the veterans lost to war and conflict were memorialized.

Looking back: Linden’s Buchanan wins third straight league title

By David Troppens

Davisburg — Tyler Buchanan has been the king of the cross country circuit the last two seasons, coming into the Metro League Cross Country Championship on Wednesday, Oct. 16, 2019 as the two-time defending title holder.

By the time the event was over, the Linden senior made it three league championships.

Buchanan beat the field by almost 30 seconds at the event held at Springfield Oaks County Park en route to this third title. He finished the 3.1-mile race in wet, muddy and windy conditions in a time of 16:17.4. Lake Fenton’s Joseph Gilbert also had a strong showing, placing second with a time of 16:46.1.

Linden finished in second at the meet, placing second overall. Lake Fenton jumped to fourth at Wednesday’s meet while Holly placed fifth. The two squads finished the season tied for fourth.

In the women’s event, Linden placed third at the meet and third in the final standings. Lake Fenton took ninth at the meet and finished ninth overall. Holly was unable to field a complete women’s team.

Buchanan ended his Metro League cross country career with nine straight Metro League jamboree or event victories. He never was seriously threatened Wednesday.

“It means a lot,” Buchanan said. “For myself it shows that I’m really dedicated to the sport. I love the sport.

“There were a lot of muddy corners, and going down hills I had to slow myself up to make sure I wouldn’t slide. It was pretty messy out there.”

Linden’s boys had all of its top five

Holly’s Tickle return to Supercross ends on a positive note

By David Troppens

In recent years, professional Supercross rider and Holly resident Broc Tickle has seen his share of ups and downs.

The 2020 Monster Energy Supercross season would have to be considered a high point over the last couple of years. Tickle saw a two-year suspension uplifted on Feb 10, 2020. Now racing for the JGR/Yoshimura Suzuki race team, Tickle had a pretty successful winter/spring series during the supercross season in the 450 division.

In his first event back at Tampa Bay, Tickle placed 12th in the main, however, the next week he faced some more adversity when he broke his hand at the Arlington Supercross. He qualified for the main event, but was unable to continue.

“It has been awesome being back at the races and I’m thankful for the opportunities that have put myself back behind the gate,” Tickle said on social media. “After getting my X-rays, I’m going to miss some races and be back as soon as I’m healed up.”

Tickle was able to heal. When the supercross season continued after the COVID-19 pandemic with four supercross events in 11 days at Salt Lake City, Tickle competed on his Suzuki RM-Z450 bike for each of them, with modest results. However, when the season ended June 21 with the fifth straight event at Salt Lake City (due to the schedule change from COVID-19), the Holly resident ended the season with his best performance of the season, taking sixth in the main. During his qualifying race, Tickle led the field out of the gate, getting the holeshot. From there, he was able to easily qualify for the season’s final main event. In it, he ended up placing sixth, 19.938 seconds behind the pace.

“Today was a huge step in the right direction for me,” Tickle said. “I started the day off better in practice and improved throughout practice and qualifying. In the heat, I grabbed my first holeshot in a long time. I started sixth in the main and managed to stay strong and steady. This was huge for me and the JGR squad. Thank you to everyone who has made the Salt Lake City racing possible and for the support in getting me back to where I belong.”

Despite running a limited season, Tickle placed 20th in the overall standings, with 59 season points.

“I was really happy to be back at the races,” Tickle said in a statement.

Tickle spent most of the 2010s as a regular on the Monster Energy Supercross scene, his life dramatically changed April 18, 2018 when the FIM announced that Tickle had failed and anti-doping test conducted at the San Diego Supercross held on Feb. 10, 2018 and was being suspended from further competition.
