Increase in outdoor recreation due to COVID

■ State parks experience an 'extreme escalation' of users

By Hannah Ball

When the COVID-19 pandemic came to the U.S., shutdowns followed and many people were stuck indoors unless they worked an essential job.

What followed was a surge of people participating in outdoor recreation as a way to get out of the house. According to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, that surge is still happening.

Ron Olson, chief of parks and recreation for the MDNR, said back when COVID-19 pandemic and the shutdowns began, the parks had to stay open because they are considered an essential service, but they had to keep the parks sanitary and safe. They curtailed interactions between the public and staff for safety.

"Whenever the weather warms even a little, because I suppose people have been sequestered, we've seen an extreme escalation in people wanting to get outside and coming to the parks," Olson said.

Diego Villaseñor and Ashley Ogle, a Fenton resident, enjoy the Fenton Millpond on the afternoon of Thursday, July 23. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources reported that more and more people are visiting parks as a way to get out of the house during the pandemic. Photo: Hannah Ball

People were not allowed to camp at state parks until June 22, but their parking lots were "inundated" with cars, he said. They had to periodically close some parks because too many people used them at once. The MDNR also experienced a delay in hiring short-term staff, which made it more difficult to staff the parks and keep them open.

Olson said they don't have an exact number of how many people have been using the parks. However, long-term staff have expressed to him that they haven't ever seen this many people at the parks before.

"It's definitely a clear escalation of people," Olson said. This brought the challenge of enforcing social distance rules.

In one popular fishing spot, the Tippy Dam Recreation Area, they had to close it down for a few weeks because it was so crowded that people were fishing shoulder-to-shoulder. The area is now open.

The start of summer always brings more people to the parks, and the state has fewer restrictions now compared to when the pandemic began. Olson said they're still seeing a surge of people.

"Weekends are busy as they normally are, but during the week, we're seeing a lot more people than we normally would have by in large," he said.

They're asking people to be patient when they visit a state park, to social distance and to wear masks while inside a facility. They encourage people to avoid large gatherings and to be respectful of each other. Olson said if someone doesn't feel well, they should stay home.

Paul Stark, recreation and athletic programmer of Southern Lakes Parks & Recreation, said their program numbers are down this summer for a few reasons.

"The obvious number one reason is COVID-19. Parents are hesitant to send their children to sporting activities and some have stated they are not willing to sign up because of health concerns," he said. "People want to send their kids out to organized activities to help relieve boredom and to get them off their video games but for some, they do not want to risk catching the virus."

Currently, they're running programs for children ages 2-9 and youth tennis at Fenton High School and Lake Fenton High School. Their most popular activity is a new program called Speed and Strength training.

There are sessions for middle and high school students.

"We have over 50 participants combined. These students are getting great training from the trainers at Ultimate Athletic Performance in Holly," he said.

SLPR is also running several fitness classes outside at Rackham Park behind the Fenton Community and Cultural Center. People are able to sign up online for the fitness classes at slpr.net.

The swimming and gymnastics programs are closed at this time.

"I do know that there has been a huge spike in people buying kayaks at the local sporting goods stores. They cannot keep them in stock.

Bicycles have been hot sellers as well. We have noticed tons of people walking outside in the neighborhoods. Tennis is very popular as well as golf. People feel more safe playing golf and tennis during the pandemic," he said.

Stark said because the virus doesn't show any sign of going away, people are looking for ways to exercise that keeps them socially distanced from other people.

Just sayin'...

It's getting colder ...

According to FBI statistics, there were approximately 17,225 murders in 2016. The July 30, 2016 slaying of Alexandra "Ally" Brueger was one of them.

Ally was 31 years old when she was shot in the back while jogging on Fish Lake Road near her Rose Township home that Saturday afternoon. She was a registered nurse and looking forward to receiving a masters degree in creative writing, which was presented to her parents after her death. She had her whole life in front of her.

Ally's killing is being investigated by the Michigan State Police. I don't know how many detectives have worked this case over the past four years but I do know there have been more than one. They tell Ally's parents very little. They tell us even less.

Other than normal investigative procedures — checking out family, friends, boyfriends, coworkers and Ally's activities around the time of her murder, I hope detectives stepped outside of the box and checked a few other things.

For example, there is a large state park campground on the same road less than four miles from where she was shot. Did MSP check the registrations of everyone staying there at the time of and before the murder?

There was a big drug bust at an assisted living home a few miles south of where Ally was gunned down. People visiting that home would have no choice but to get off the small side road and go either north or south on Fish Lake. There was a conviction in that case and the homeowner was jailed.

I wonder if MSP detectives got a hold of that file for review from the Oakland County Sheriff's Office.

At the time of the murder, there was a major road construction project underway on a nearby well-traveled roadway. While there were no video cameras in the area where Ally lay dying, what about the construction area and detour points. MSP initially asked for information about a white or light-colored four-door sedan. Could it have come from a possible detour?

These are just a few things an amateur like me thinks of. I may be way off the mark — but this case is getting colder, isn't it.

Just sayin'!

Something CORN Y

◆ It's time to enjoy the buttery taste of Michigan sweet corn to crow about

Compiled by Vera Hogan

A little birdy told us that this year's sweet corn is ready to buy at local farms and farmers markets. Here are a couple of ideas to make your corn prepping and eating much easier and more enjoyable:

MESS-FREE MICROWAVE CORN

Place an ear of corn (husk and all) on a microwave-safe plate. Put it in your microwave and cook for 4 minutes. When the cooking is done, use an oven mitt or towel to hold the ear of corn steady. Use a sharp knife to cut off the bottom end of the corn, and then squeeze near the top of the husk. The corn should slide right out, leaving the husk and silk behind.

Add whatever toppings or seasonings you like and enjoy.

BUTTER USING BREAD METHOD

One of the most vexing corn conundrums is how best to butter it. Rather than fumbling with a butter knife, many people prefer to roll their corn onto a stick of butter. Here is something easier using a piece of buttered bread. Just wrap your buttered bread around the corn and twist a couple of times to spread the butter around. (And when your corn is perfectly buttered, you can pass it on for someone else to use, or just eat it as another side dish to your meal).

BUTTER USING THE BOILING METHOD

This tip only really works for boiled corn, but it's really easy and effective. When your boiled corn is just about done cooking, drop about 8 tablespoons of butter into the water. The butter will melt and float to the top of the pot. When the corn is done cooking, use a pair of tongs to pull it out. It will emerge with a coating of butter already on it.

GET A HANDLE ON IT

When you're prepping corn for the grill, peel back the husk without removing it entirely. Remove and discard the silk from the corn, then use a piece of cooking twine to tie the husk together at the bottom of each ear of corn. Tying the husks together creates a handle on the end of your corn, which makes it much easier to move and flip your corn while grilling.

I SUPPORT SCIENCE, which supports wearing masks. ■■■■
IN RESPONSE TO ‘Sixteen million people out of work.’ Do you recall jobs were plentiful? Manufacturers are coming back. COVID-19 put us under. Rioting and looting in large cities is not because of our President Trump. ■■■■
TO THE HOT-LINER who won’t vote for Trump. Good luck with Biden, Pelosi, AOC and the rest. I suggest you read the history of communism and revolutions. There has been only one revolution that was good for the common person. It ended in 1776. Think about it. ■■■■

THE REASON DISEASES are becoming more resistant is because we’re becoming more resistant to them. They adapt. We should delay the inevitable (resist disease) and not let the inevitable come after us. ■■■■
IF YOU THINK wearing a mask is a ‘slippery slope’ that will lead to you not having guns, maybe you shouldn’t have them. ■■■■

FAUCI MAY NOT be an expert, but he’s the smartest person we’ve got. I trust him. ■■■■
YOU ASK FOR mail-in ballot. The township sends form to sign. You mail back. They in turn send a ballot. You check boxes and then sign and return. They check both signatures. Where’s the fraud? ■■■■
ARE WE CREATED equal? Are we born equal? Are we educated equal? Do we have equal opportunity to purchase housing? Think. Answer silently and honestly in your heart and mind. ■■■■
IN A DECEMBER 2019 study, Federal Reserve researchers concluded that Trump’s tariffs ‘have not boosted manufacturing employment or output, even as they increased producer prices.’ Moody’s concluded in Sept 2019 that the trade conflict with China has reduced unemployment by 300,000 jobs. Yeah, the greatest president ever. ■■■■
