AT&T store robbed of $24,000 in merchandise

Fenton police seeking to identify four Black males connected to Saturday's robbery

By Sharon Stone

The Fenton Police Department is investigating a robbery in which the suspects got away with approximately $24,000 in merchandise.

Lt. Jeff Cross said at 2 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 28, police learned that the AT&T store on Silver Lake Road had been robbed by four Black males between the ages of 18 and 25 who rushed into the

Pens letter to Michigan restaurants urging they reopen Dec. 9, share how 'pause' has affected industry

By Sharon Stone

In a Nov. 27 article in Craines Detroit Business, Rosalie Vicari, co-owner of Joe Vicari Restaurant Group, spoke of how the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS) and Gov. Grethen Whitmer's latest health emergency order has devastated the restaurant industry.

The group owns more than 20 restaurants in metro Detroit, including Andiamo and Joe Muer Seafood.

Vicari said the three-week "pause" for dine-in service has had devastating implications.

C If you think that the military can't distribute a virus vaccine, then you haven't been one of the troops a half a world away and gotten a Thanksgiving Day dinner fully done on time. Don't let a politician anywhere near the distribution system.'

She said that the Friday before the pause started, their Joe Muer Seafood restaurant in Bloomfield Hills had three managers, 14 servers, seven server assistants, four bartenders, three hostesses, one head chef, one sous chef, eight line cooks, two prep cooks, four dishwashers — 47 people worked and 47 people got paid. One week later, the restaurant had one manager, one head chef, one line cook and one server. Four people worked, and four people got paid.

Vicari said they will have to lay off nearly 700 people and those employees will have to file for unemployment. She added that all of the restaurants' vendors will be impacted, which could lead to more layoffs.

Vicari worries that this three-week pause could last months like it did in the spring. However, this time, there is no federal money to help the unemployed.

Their restaurants, including Andiamo Fenton, installed temperature scanners that every person was required to use to show they did not have a fever. This cost the company $30,000.

Vicari said she did not understand how a shopping mall could be filled with shoppers, yet a restaurant could not offer indoor dining.

According to the Michigan Lodging and Restaurants Association, slightly more than 4 percent of all COVID-19 cases in the state can be traced back to restaurants. She said 2,000 restaurants in Michigan have already permanently closed and another 4,000 could close permanently.

Rosalie's husband, Joe Vicari, then wrote a letter to fellow restauranteurs across Michigan.

"As we are all aware, last Sunday, Gov. Whitmer issued a three-week 'pause.' That 'pause' is due to expire on Dec. 8. The Michigan Lodging and Restaurant Association will be in front of a Federal Judge on Nov. 30 in an effort to overturn the Health Department's ruling.

If they are unsuccessful in doing this, we need to take action! As the leading restauranteurs in the state of Michigan, we need to band together and fight this closure. Our industry cannot survive another long-term closure. We are stronger if we stand together and use our strength of fight back.

The data from the MLRA shows that just over 4 percent of COVID cases can be traced back to restaurants, and yet, she decided to close restaurants, again. The malls are packed with holiday shopping, hair salons and gyms can remain open, yet our restaurants are closed.

If the MLRA is unsuccessful in overturning the decision, we anticipate the governor will make an announcement to extend her 'pause' through the end of the year, on Sunday, Dec. 6. On Monday, Dec. 7, we will hold a collective press conference, with every local station and possibly national coverage, to announce that as a powerful, collective group, we will be reopening our restaurants on Dec. 9.

Our industry cannot survive another extended closure. Thousands of restaurants and tens of thousands of our employees cannot survive it either. We need to band together and fight back, but we need to do this as a United Group of Michigan Restaurant Owners.

If you are interested in being part of the United Group of Michigan Restaurant Owners, please join us on Dec. 3 at 1:00 at Andiamo Banquet Center on 14 Mile and Van Dyke for an informational meeting.

Together, we can stand together to reopen our restaurants. For more information or to confirm your attendance on Dec. 3, please reach out to Rosalie Vicari at rovicari@vicarirestaurants.com or call (586) 770-1187.

Thank you and we looked for to uniting on Dec. 3. We are only strong if we stand together!" — Joe Vicari

Michigan-made Christmas decorations popular in 2020

Store owner says natural look is in this year for holiday décor

By Hannah Ball

December is here, snow is falling and Christmas lights are going up.

It's the 2020 Christmas season and while everyday routines are different this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, people are still seeking holiday cheer in the form of lights, trees and more.

Jon Gerych said they've had Christmas decorations at Gerych's in Fenton since October, but many people start decorating earlier than that.

More traditional values and a natural look is what's in this year when it comes to Christmas decorations, he said. This includes reds, greens, holly, berries, cones and anything natural, such as twigs, branches and birch. Cardinals and wreaths are also very popular this year. Gerych said they've sold a lot of hanging baskets and porch pots.

"This year seems more of a warmer Michigan Christmas type thing. People are trying to buy local, Michigan-made ou know the commercials it's Christmas morning and someone gets called outside to find a brand new car with a big red bow on it. They are a sure sign of the upcoming holiday and a scene I was super excited to re-create last year when I surprised my husband with a brand new truck (sadly, without a bow). Imagine my surprise when my husband saw one of those commercials last week and took offense. "Who's going to do that this year?" he scoffed. I reminded him his comments were a tad hypocritical. "Oh yeah," he said, "but this year is different."

Of course he's right. But personally, I love seeing holiday commercials right now, no matter what item is being showcased. They offer a sense of normalcy in a year that isn't. Still, I get his point. While we all tired quickly of the COVID commercials out earlier this spring, I wouldn't mind seeing some COVID-themed marketing this holiday season — but with a twist and please, no depressing piano music. I want to know how brands are giving back this year.

Why your brand should embrace giving beyond #GivingTuesday

Yesterday marked #GivingTuesday, a global day of giving celebrated the Tuesday after Thanksgiving. And while it's a great way to encourage people to give — through time or money — brands that want to grow and succeed need to have a giving plan that expands beyond one day.

Giving is an important part of our mission at View Newspaper Group. Each of our events has a nonprofit partner, and since we began hosting events eight years ago, we have donated more than $130,000 to those partners.

We sponsor charity events and golf outings throughout the year and offer thousands of dollars-worth of low or no-cost advertising to local nonprofits annually. Many of our team members also volunteer their time on nonprofit boards, through their children's school, their church and more.

Along with feeling great, giving is also good for business. A forbes. com article on the topic of corporate giving says that 81 percent of millennials want to support brands with corporate citizenship.

Speaking as a millennial, I can attest this is true. When it was time to get Matt the truck of his dreams, I turned to a local dealership I know gives back to this community in a huge way.

Wondering how to start? We can help. Our team is always happy to create advertising messages that showcase what your company is doing to help the community. Especially in these trying times, people want to know who is helping out and in what way.

Did your team get together and supply coats for a local coat drive? Snap some photos, send us some stats and we'll put the message together to share with readers. Chances are your company won't host its usual holiday party — perhaps the money spent on that event is going to a local food pantry this year. Let us put together an ad sharing that information with everyone.

It's not bragging. It's marketing. Consumers want to know how you're helping.

While I'll always like to see a shiny new car with a big red bow, this year my heart will be warmed even more (and my patronage won) by seeing businesses donate to a cause in need — no bow required.

Local organization donates $44,000

Benefits Genesys Hurley Cancer Institute

The women of Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club — in the midst of the COVID pandemic — once again broke records in fundraising efforts to help local breast cancer patients. This year the organization raised $171,000.

Genesys Hurley Cancer Institute (GHCI) is one recipient of these funds. This year, GHCI will receive $44,000.

"We are so grateful to the women of Warwick Hills who selflessly work throughout the year to help our cancer patients during a most vulnerable time in their lives," said Sue Root, director of Quality of Life services at GHCI. "These funds help relieve stress and worry so our patients can focus on healing."

According to Nancy Gignac, chairperson of Pink Par-Tee, "We were able to surpass all fundraising expectations this year because we kept our eyes on the goal, no matter how many obstacles we encountered this year."

The Pink Par-Tee 501c3 fund, created in 2010, provides financial support to breast cancer patients in active treatment who need help with basic needs such as rent, groceries and utility bills.

"Our motto- 'Together, we can make a difference,' truly spoke volumes this year," Gignac said. "The passion to help local women undergoing cancer treatment was overwhelming."

Last year, the Pink Par-Tee group raised nearly $97,000. A portion of this money was donated to GHCI to support its mammogram clinic that is offered free to the community. Funds also went to the Pink Fund, a nonprofit breast cancer organization that provides 90-day non-medical costof-living expenses to breast cancer patients in Genesee County who are in active treatment.

"In previous years, Genesys Hurley Cancer Institute, thanks to Pink Par-Tee funds, received more than 300 breast cancer care gift bags for our breast cancer patients undergoing treatment," Root said.

Chemotherapy bags, as well as radiation therapy bags, were distributed to our patients. Each contained more than $100 in needed products to help in the healing process – both physically and emotionally.

"We are so ecstatic to announce that, over the past several years, the Pink Par-Tee organization has provided more than $110,000 in financial support to patients of Genesys Hurley Cancer Institute," Root said. "We've been able to help countless women and ease their financial burdens."

Pink Par-Tee began with two young mothers who were members of Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club who wanted to honor a friend who was diagnosed with breast cancer. Since its beginnings in 2010, the organization has raised close to $1 million — all to help in the fight against breast cancer.

"We conducted a survey of 587 breast cancer survivors who benefitted from Pink Par-Tee funds to see if the money we were raising was making a difference in their lives," Gignac said. "We learned that about one-third of the recipients were more scared about how their treatment would affect their finances rather than the outcome of their disease." The survey also revealed that 64 percent of breast cancer patients were paying up to $5,000 in out-of-pocket medical related expenses, 21 percent were paying between $5,000 and $10,000, and 16 percent were hit with more than $20,000 in out-of-pocket costs.

In addition, 41 percent of the survey respondents said they skipped treatment or medication to save money. Forty percent are still in debt after treatment.

"A diagnosis of breast cancer is devastating for a woman as well as her loved ones," Gignac said. "It can drain a family emotionally, physically and financially. Our hope, through Pink Par-Tee, is to relieve some of this burden. We especially want to extend a huge thank you to our donors who helped us realize such a successful fundraising year in a time of such uncertainty."

Genesys Hurley Cancer Institute provides the newest treatments and technology in a warm, welcoming, home-like setting – right here where you need us. Visit ghci.org for more information.

The Holly Moose Lodge presented the village of Holly Police Department with a donation of $1,000 to help fund the police department's "Shop with a Hero" program. Holly Police Chief Jerry Narsh said times are tough and this donation is a huge boost.

With COVID-19 restrictions in place, the Holly Police Department team has developed an online shopping program where the families will pick up toys at the Holly police station, within restrictions but still allows them to help our children have a great Christmas.

Genisys Credit Union raises $12,178

Will benefit Lighthouse's Thanks & Giving Campaign

In November, the team at Genisys Credit Union launched a campaign with its employees to raise funds for Lighthouse's annual Thanks & Giving Campaign. The initiative raised $12,178, which allowed Lighthouse to purchase turkeys for all the families they serve to have a Thanksgiving dinner this year.

"We recognize the strain the global pandemic is putting on our communities, but I am forever moved by and grateful for the team at Genisys for coming together to raise funds to support our community partners," said Jackie Buchanan, president and CEO of Genisys Credit Union. "I applaud Lighthouse for going above and beyond during this time to ensure their neighbors are given resources and taken care of."

The team at Genisys raised the funds through an employee match program to cover the cost of turkeys which will be doubled by Meijer, as part of their Simply Give program, for a grand total of 2,432 turkeys for families in need this holiday season. Meijer started their Simply Give program in 2008 to help local food pantries fulfill their mission of feeding those struggling with food insecurity.

"We are thrilled that Lighthouse will be able to provide Thanksgiving meals for more families than ever before, thanks to the support of Genisys Credit Union," said Ryan Hertz, Lighthouse president and CEO. "Genisys employees joined together to raise enough funds to provide turkeys for hungry Oakland County families; quite a generous act, and one worthy of celebration during a uniquely difficult year."

"We are elated to be able to bring back some sense of normalcy as families celebrate the Thanksgiving holiday," Buchanan said. "A special 'thank you' to Meijer for doubling the donations."

The credit union has made a year-to-date contribution of $25,000 to Lighthouse in order to support mission of responding to poverty by building communities that work to end homelessness and helping people move from crisis toward self-sufficiency.

It is a mission of Genisys to be the community support and give back to the areas they serve through time and resources for a long-lasting impact of community wellness and betterment.

This report was released Friday, Nov. 13. The Legislature had limited sessions this week with no roll call votes of general interest. Rather than votes, this Roll Call Report describes some recent constitutional amendment proposals of general interest.

Senate Joint Resolution Q: Ban banning state employees from communicating with a legislator

Introduced by Sen. Tom Barrett (R), to place before voters in the next general election a constitutional amendment establishing that a state department or agency may not take disciplinary action against an employee because the employee communicates with a member of the legislature or a member's staff. Referred to committee, no further action at this time.

House Joint Resolution T: Repeal state constitution's same sex marriage ban

Introduced by Rep. Jon Hoadley (D), to place before voters in the next general election a constitutional amendment to repeal a provision of the Michigan constitution approved by voters in a 2004 ballot initiative that states the following: "To secure and preserve the benefits of marriage for our society and for future generations of children, the union of one man and one woman in marriage shall be the only agreement recognized as a marriage or similar union for any purposes." Referred to committee, no further action at this time.

WEAPONS STOLEN IN HOME BREAK-IN

The Livingston County Sheriff's Office is investigating a break-in of a home and theft of three long guns and a BB pistol. Det. Matt Young said the break-in occurred between 7 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., Friday, Nov. 20, at a home on Latson Road, near Lutz Road, in Deerfield Township. No suspects have been identified and the case remains under investigation.

THE RES IPSA LOQUITUR DOCTRINE

On July 18, 1863, a man named Joseph Byrne was walking past a flour shop in Liverpool, England owned by Abel Boadle.

Suddenly, a barrel of flour fell out of the shop's second floor storeroom window striking Byrne on his shoulder causing severe injuries.

There were no witnesses to what caused the barrel to fall.

A lawsuit was filed claiming that the plaintiff was injured as a result of the defendant's negligence.

Thereafter in the 1863 landmark case of Byrne v Boadle, the court ruled that despite the fact there were no witnesses, it was clear that the accident wouldn't have happened without negligence, res ipsa loquitur (Latin for "the thing speaks for itself") should apply, and negligence would be presumed. The defendant would then have the burden to rebut or contradict it.

The "res ipsa loquitur" doctrine was thus born.

The doctrine is widely recognized whenever there is a duty of care by a defendant to a plaintiff.

In Michigan, its main purpose is to create at least an "inference" of negligence (as opposed to a presumption) when the plaintiff is unable to prove the actual occurrence of a negligent act.

An inference is a conclusion reached by considering other facts and deducing a logical consequence from them. The trier of fact may accept or reject an inference. This differs from a presumption, which is when the trier of fact must accept that the presumed fact exists.

Both an inference and a presumption may be rebutted.

To use the doctrine, a plaintiff must meet the following conditions:

the event must be of a kind which ordinarily does not occur in the absence of someone's negligence;
it must be caused by an agency or instrumentality within the exclusive control of the defendant;
it must not have been due to any voluntary action or contribution on the part of the plaintiff;

• evidence of the true explanation of the event must be more readily accessible to the defendant than the plaintiff; and

• there must be some evidence of wrongdoing beyond the happening of the event.

Our legal system encourages fairness.

Some legal commentators have called res ipsa loquitur a way to provide fairness to injured parties. It is hard to disagree with this analysis.

National Breast Cancer Foundation provides grant to McLaren Flint

An increased patient need at Karmanos Cancer Institute at McLaren Flint has been met with the addition of a second full-time nurse navigator to oversee and guide patients throughout their continuum of care. A recent grant from the National Breast Cancer Foundation (NBCF) provides support for a Breast Nurse Navigator who will help guide breast cancer patients through their journey, from diagnostic imaging, to biopsy, to diagnosis and treatment.

The Breast Nurse Navigator will assess, document and guide cancer patients to prescribed treatment regimens and will track all patients to ensure quality of care. The navigator also makes certain that any woman with a suspicious breast cancer related finding receives timely diagnosis and optimal treatment and to help patients overcome any barriers along the way such as access to care, misunderstanding the breast cancer screening process, a fear of a positive breast cancer diagnosis and financial, emotional or family concerns.

"I am pleased to be able to serve as a Breast Nurse Navigator for McLaren Flint patients," said Penny Wilkinson, RN. "My primary focus is on breast cancer and navigating my patients through the ins and outs, and ups and downs of their breast cancer treatment journey. I do whatever I can to ensure my patients are comforted. I hold their hand during diagnosis, help them understand and provide support throughout their treatment and cheer them on through survivorship. Whatever their journey may be, I'm honored to be able to help them through it."

The Breast Nurse Navigator also acts as a liaison between the patient and other members of the healthcare team.

House Joint Resolution V: Add two new Civil Service Commission members in 2020

Introduced by Rep. John Chirkun (D), to place before voters a proposal to add two additional members to the four-member state Civil Service Commission, which regulates the conditions of employment for civil servants in the state. This would allow Gov. Gretchen Whitmer immediately to appoint the two new members, which would likely tilt the majority to individuals more friendly to government employee unions. The commission was in the news this year for adopting new rules requiring government employee unions to get affirmative consent from each employee annually before charging fees or dues, bringing the state in compliance with the U.S. Supreme Court's 2019 Janus ruling. (The ruling prohibited requiring government employees to pay union dues as a condition of employment.) Referred to committee, no further action at this time.

House Joint Resolution S: Exempt first $50,000 of pension income from income tax

Introduced by Rep. John Cherry (D), to place before voters in the next general election a proposal to exempt from state or local income tax the first $50,000 of retirement or pension benefits per individual who is 65 years of age or older. Referred to committee, no further action at this time.

Oakland County seniors qualify for free food delivery

Service also works for pet supplies and household essentials

Oakland County is providing a free home delivery grocery service membership for senior adults throughout the county that limits their exposure to COVID-19 by allowing them to shop for daily essentials without leaving their homes.

The service is through Shipt, which normally costs $99 annually. It gives Oakland County seniors age 60 and over the convenience and safety of shopping for food, pet supplies and household essentials online and have free same-day home delivery from a variety of local stores. Only the delivery is free. The ordered items must be paid for online using a credit or debit card and they are delivered to the customer's front door.

"The number of COVID-19 cases continues to increase locally and we all must do our part to help stop the spread of the virus," Oakland County Executive David Coulter said. "Many seniors may be reluctant to leave their homes and may not be getting the fresh and heathy foods they need, especially on colder days. This program allows our senior residents to receive essential food and grocery items safely in their homes without risking the possible exposure to the coronavirus and the flu."

This annual membership is free of charge to Oakland County senior residents who are aged 60 or older and offers unlimited, same-day grocery delivery. The free memberships are provided on a first come, first served basis while supplies last.

Interested residents must sign up by Dec. 10 at oakgov.com/covid/ grants/shipt to receive a registration code and redeem it by Dec. 20. The membership entitles you to free delivery for orders over $35. A $7 delivery fee is added if the order total is less than $35. The buyer must provide Shipt with credit card information to process payment as well as taxes and optional gratuities.

The male suspects stole roughly $24,000 worth of new cellphones, iPads and other electronics and ran out of the store. They were seen running westbound and entering a black Audi, which police learned was reported stolen in Grand Rapids.

The car was seen heading toward nearby apartments. A search of the area resulted in locating the Audi and a couple of stolen items that the suspects had dropped. Police suspect a second vehicle was used to flee the area.

The suspects have not been identified or located. Cross said police have obtained some surveillance videos, which are being reviewed.

Cross said it's likely that the cellphones will be sold and once the unsuspecting buyer attempts to activate the phone, they will learn that it's been stolen. They will be out the phone and their money.

"We are very happy to partner with the National Breast Cancer Foundation as we work to improve the health and wellbeing of women throughout our community," said Doug Glazier, vice president of McLaren Flint Foundation.

The NBCF was founded to fill in the gaps of cancer care, ensuring every woman has the access and information she needs to get through every step of her breast cancer journey.

"We support and believe in the strength of the community of Flint. We are committed to supporting this program at McLaren Flint and know that navigation helps those in need access critical services," said Douglas Feil, chief program officer of the NBCF.

COVID TESTS

McLaren Fenton is administering approximately 10 to 20 COVID-19 tests a day, said Dr. Raymond Rudoni, the director of emergency departments both in the Flint and Fenton McLaren locations.

Fenton has had 451 COVID-19 cases as of Monday, Nov. 30. Information from the Genesee County Health Department was not updated in time on Tuesday, Dec. 1 to go into this edition.

"It kind of goes up and down depending on what's going on," he said. "The last couple of weeks, we've seen an increase in testing."

There is a physician at McLaren Fenton 24/7, along with nurses, technicians, registration personnel, lab technicians and more. "Each employee is doing McLaren safe care practices," he said. This includes wearing additional PPE and making sure everyone who walks through the door is wearing a mask.

He said people in the healthcare industry are feeling more stress right now, "especially those on the front lines," like an emergency room.

"Everyone's working a lot harder. Everyone's worried like everyone else is," he said. "They're doing a great job working together and doing a great job keeping patients safe. They keep coming to work and they keep doing what's right, so we're very proud of them all."

Employees frequently clean all the touch surfaces and require everyone coming in to wear a mask.

our efforts to keep them safe," he said. "Patients are impressed with the level of care they're receiving in Fenton, prior to the pandemic and now. I think they've been very happy."

The biggest challenge lately is conveying to the public that they are a 24/7 emergency department, not an urgent care facility.

McLaren Fenton opened March 2020, only weeks before the CO-VID-19 pandemic began.

"The timing — you can't control that, but I think we've done a really good job getting to know the community and getting to know the doctors who send us patients. It's been a great opportunity for McLaren to get out and provide services to Fenton. We're very proud to be here," he said.

Gerych said people are "absolutely" looking for Christmas cheer this year.

"Everybody here seems to be happy. We don't have grinches. They come in and make themselves feel better," he said.

How much American families spend on Christmas decorations varies between sources.

The average American family plans to spend approximately $60 on Christmas decorations in 2020, according to statista.com, a data collection and analyzing website. This is an increase of approximately $20 compared to 2009.

According to komparelt.com, the majority of homeowners or businesses are expected to spend between $200 and $600 to have their holiday lights hung by a professional. The nationwide average cost is around $400. The minimum cost estimated to be paid is around $100 while the maximum cost is approximately $1,100.

Consumers spend an average of $200 each on decorations each Christmas season, and this includes parties and events, according to muchneeded.com.

Gerych said he's heard that people may spend between $500 and $1,000 each year on decorations, but there are people who spend a lot more.

One of the top-selling items this year in the store during this season has been puzzles. People give them as gifts and complete them at home with their families.

The other is nearing that status.

Both earned the same honor recently. Linden varsity football coach Denny Hopkins and Fenton varsity football coach Jeff Setzke each earned Regional Coach of the Year honors from the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association.

Setzke led the Tigers to a 6-0 overall regular season record which included a 5-0 Metro League Stripes Division crown and a 33-21 victory in the secondannual Flint Metro League's Championship game against Ortonville Brandon.

Fenton's Idoni thriving at Ferris State

Ex-Tigers star posted strong first season with Bulldogs

By David Troppens

For four seasons, Chloe Idoni found herself as the marked player on the Fenton varsity girls basketball team.

She was the most dominant player on her four squads, earning First-team All-Metro League all four seasons with the Tigers. She scored 1,370 career points with the Tigers, and grabbed a school-record 735 career rebounds. She also had 156 carrer assists, 145 career steals and 136 career blocks.

So while moving to the Division II level of the NCAA can be a huge adjustment even for the greatest of prep basketball players, perhaps no one should be shocked how quickly Idoni progressed during her freshman season a year ago. Now entering her sophomore season, it wasn't long before Idoni was making a meaningful impact on her new squad with the Ferris State Bulldogs.

The 5-foot-11 post/power forward began her first season usually playing sparingly, playing a handful of minutes. In a scrimmage against Michigan State she scored two points in just seven minutes of play. In the team's first actual game, she played eight minutes and scored two points again. But this time she had four rebounds and a steal. In her next game, Idoni hit all three of her shots, scoring six points.

Her playing time started to grow. She started playing double-digit minutes off the bench and had her biggest game to that point when she scored 16 points, grabbed six rebounds and blocked shot in 22 minutes off the bench in an 81-71 victory at Lake Superior State University. Before Idoni knew, she was a part of the starting lineup.

"At the beginning of the season my role was first off the bench, so I'd go in after the starter and perform that way," Idoni said. "My roles changed over the season and I ended up getting a starting spot. I worked hard and I was grateful for my teammates. They instilled confidence in me."

In her first start of her career, she scored 11 points, grabbed six rebounds and dished off two assists in 34 minutes of work. The Bulldogs lost a 94-90 verdict at Southeastern (Florida), a team that was 12-2

Michigan State she scored two points in just seven minutes of play. In the team's first actual game, she played (Florida).

"We had a trip to Florida and (her coach) told me I as going to start my first game in Florida," Idoni said. "I was super excited and nervous, but my teammates kept encouraging me to just go out and play how I know how to and to not think too much about it. That's what I did and I played well in that tournament."

Her breakout game came in a 75-64 victory at Northwood. She scored a careerhigh 21 points while grabbing 16 rebounds and dishing off two assists in 34 minutes of work.

"That was a cool game," Idoni said. "That game was what instilled a lot confidence in me and proved I'm where I should be. It was just confidence builder for me. I took it and ran with it."

Idoni had another highlight in an 86-85 victory at Wayne State University. She ended up scoring the game-winning putback bucket at the buzzer, earning the squad the win.

posed to take the last shot but we got three shots off in the See IDONI on 12 first game of the playoffs, beating Walled Lake Central by a 36-3 verdict. The Tigers suffered many losses in the next round of the plavoffs due to COVID-19 protocol and lost a 49-21 decision to Walled Lake Western. The Tigers have competed in the playoffs 12 straight season.

Hopkins led the Eagles to a tie for second in a 3-2 record, and a 4-2 regular season mark. That earned the Eagles the No. 1 seed of the Region 11 Division 3 state tournament.

The Eagles earned a first-round bye in the state playoffs and then round by a 24-13 score. However, COVID-19 also struck the Eagles and they played in the district title straight seasons.

game against Kearsley short-handed. That resulted in a 36-28 loss to the Hornets, a team the Eagles beat 43-22 earlier in the season.

The 5-3 overall record ended a beat Bay City Western in the second two-year run of a losing record for the Eagles. Before those two seasons, the Eagles made the state playoffs 16 last seconds," Idoni said. "I was rebounding like I was supposed to and the ball went into my hands. I threw up just by instinct. I was not thinking at that moment. I was just playing. It went in and the buzzer went off. I didn't know what to think. It was definitely cool to pull off that win. That was my first-ever game-winning shot. It's cool to have that under my belt."

Unfortunately, the game had another eventful moment — the start of an injury.

"I noticed something in my lower leg was bothering me when I was playing against Ashland and Wayne State," Idoni said. "Against Wayne State it bothered me and I saw a doctor."

It was a stress reaction which is a precursor to a stress fracture. Idoni was basically out for the season, playing in just one more game on March 3 against Wayne State. Soon after that, the Bulldogs qualified for the NCAA tournament and were preparing for their first game at the site when the tournament was canceled due to the COVID-19 epidemic.

"We went to practice and got ready to practice," Idoni said. "Before we stepped on floor coach told us they canceled everything."

Still, it was an outstanding season for Idoni and the Bulldogs. They won the North Division in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC) and qualified for the D2 women's NCAA tournament with a 27-6 record overall.

With four seasons remaining of eligibility (one being a redshirt) Idoni embraces her decision.

"I love Ferris. It's only my first year but it's the best decision I have ever made," Idoni said. "I came into such a strong program and culture and we will be building on that for the next couple of years. I'm grateful to walk into such strong program. I have the best teammates ever."
