Order ends Dec. 20; indoor gatherings discouraged

On Monday Dec. 7, the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS) has extended by 12 days the epidemic order that restricts indoor social gatherings and other group activities. The additional 12 days will allow the department to determine the full impact of the Thanksgiving holiday on the spread of COVID-19 across Michigan.

Under the Dec. 7 order, MDHHS continues to urge families to avoid indoor gatherings, and only two households may gather inside, with strict protocols recommended. Individuals should wear masks consistently whenever See IN-DOOR DINING on 7

Police department accepting donations until Friday, Dec. 11; officers help buy Christmas presents for families in need

By Hannah Ball

Despite the COVID-19 pandemic, local police departments are still finding ways to do Shop With a Cop, a program in which police departments buy presents for families who need help during the holidays.

Officer Nick Jones with the Fenton Police Department said this is the third year they’re doing Shop With a Cop. It’ll be different from previous years. To identify which families are in need, the school resource officers talk with school administrators at Fenton schools and communicate that information to the FPD.

Young cancer survivors deliver joy, hope

Return to C.S. Mott Children’s Hospital bearing Christmas gifts to oncology and bone marrow transplant floor

By Sharon Stone

The Times began following the story of Phoebe Keech in 2013. The nearly 2-year-old Deerfield Township girl had just been diagnosed with Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia (ALL). She underwent chemotherapy for two-and-one-half years.

Just prior to her 5th birthday she had gone into remission.

Now 9 years old, Phoebe has recently graduated to long-term survivorship for ALL, a pediatric cancer since she has been in remission for five years.

Phoebe (Team Phoebe) and Toby Versola (#43VersolaStrong) have come together to spread home for the holidays by asking for toy donations, gift cards, and hospital room makeovers to young people fighting cancer and blood disorders at C.S. Mott Children’s Hospital.

As previously reported in the Times, in September 2018, then 14-year-old Linden Eagle Toby Versola was diagnosed with Hodgkin Lymphoma, a cancer that starts in the lymphocytes.

Toby had taken a hard hit at football practice a few weeks prior to his diagnosis and his parents took him to a family doctor for X-rays. The doctor called and said to take Toby to another hospital for a CT scan right away. That appointment revealed a large mass. He was immediately sent to University of Michigan Children’s Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Toby’s mother, Courtney Versola, said he got a diagnosis of remission in the winter of 2018. Moving forward, he prepared for his JV season of football. Two weeks before the season started he had his one year post scans with his oncology team. In August 2019, Toby was given a diagnosis of relapsed Hodgkins Lymphoma.

After hearing the results, Courtney said Toby picked himself up. He shook it off. Then bravely looked at her and said, “Mom, I got this.” Toby was in and out of the hospital for four months. See SURVIVORS on 9 of this issue.

The Tri-County Times (USPS 018-092) is published weekly (with exceptions) by JAMS Media, LLC, 256 N. Fenway Drive, Fenton, Michigan 48430. The tri-county area has so many people stepping up to help others during these challenging times. We also have many creative and driven business owners who are doing anything they can to save their small business and the hard-working men and women they employ.

As I write or read in the Times the heartwarming and extraordinary things ordinary people are doing all around us, I feel comforted and encouraged knowing that we will emerge this COVID-19 pandemic as a closer community.

For example, Fenton elementary teacher Jenn Horton, who used to be a restaurant worker, created a fundraising campaign to help our out-of-work restaurant workers pay some of their bills or buy a few Christmas presents for their family. In just a week, she raised nearly $13,000 of her $20,000 goal. One local restaurant owner himself donated $1,000 to her cause.

A few restaurants in town have gone deep into their pockets to provide outdoor dining areas to keep their business afloat and to provide a paycheck to their employees. The owners of the FirePlace Bar & Grill, The Barn and The Fenton Fire Hall have gotten creative with igloos, tents, heaters, firepits and even a new roofed patio so that they comply with the COVID-19 restrictions. Sitting next to a warm and cozy campfire and enjoying a tasty beverage and burger reminds me of tailgating at a cold football game, so I look forward to checking these out.

Another story that touched my heart is about 9-year-old Phoebe Keech and 16-year-old Toby Versola who continue to improve after undergoing years of treatment for cancer. Their two families joined forces and are helping to bring smiles to other kids who are battling cancer. On Friday, they delivered much-appreciated gifts to the oncology and bone marrow transplant floor at C.S. Mott Children’s Hospital, a place they know too well.

A future story the Times is working on is about a couple in Holly who are fixing up children’s used bicycles to make them look new. They are going to donate them to families in need.

I can’t wait to check out all of the Christmas and holiday paintings that Linden Hotel co-owner Karen Stroud did on business windows in downtown Linden.

I’m sure there are many others, young and old, who are spreading kindness, providing a warm meal, a gift for a child, or lending a hand to a neighbor. That’s what makes this community so special. Let me know if there is someone who has stepped up to make someone else’s day a bit brighter. There could be a future Times story in the making.

A generous, special community name?

Hurley encourages people to protect mental wellbeing

Be kind to yourself, take time for activities that bring you joy

Holidays can be a stressful time for families and individuals. Add in the stressors of the COVID-19 pandemic, and anyone’s mental health may suffer. That’s why it’s so important to work toward protecting our mental wellbeing from the get-go or to seek help when our usual coping mechanisms aren’t quite cutting it anymore.

Paying attention to how we feel is the first step. According to Recco Santee Richardson, PhD, LPC, Clinical Therapist, of Hurley Mental Health Associates, with all the holiday commotions, it’s easy to be caught off guard if we become anxious, upset or worried.

“We need to be mindful of how we’re feeling and have a plan for if we do start to have such feelings. We need to be aware of any subtle or sudden changes in our moods or behaviors,” he said.

That plan he’s referencing is a plan to take care of ourselves. It could involve getting enough sleep, maintaining a healthy diet, exercising, getting fresh air or just taking time to enjoy the moment.

“The things that bring a smile to our faces or make us relax, we have to make sure we do those,” Richardson said. See HURLEY on 6

Symphony Linden guests enjoy holiday light display

Linden Pay It Forward and assisted living facility partner to bring Christmas cheer to guests, community

By Hannah Ball

Symphony Linden now looks like a winter wonderland with a light display with Santa, presents, reindeer and more made from 44,000 lights.

Pay It Forward and Symphony partnered to bring holiday cheer by putting up Christmas lights for the guests at the assisted living care facility. They started accepting donations in November, and held the lighting ceremony on Saturday, Dec. 5.

Santa plugged in the lights.

Stephanie Johnson, Linden Pay It Forward project manager, said they raised $4,242 in three weeks.

“We have approximately 44,000 lights and about 60 volunteers helping hang the lights as well as a lot of DIY projects. The lights will stay on until Jan. 2. We started with nothing, not even a strand of lights when we took on this project,” she said.

They’re very proud of how the community helped them get this done in three weeks. They’re planning on making it an annual tradition.

“It was a lot of pressure and was very time consuming but totally worth it. Wendy Wagner and I want to thank our husbands, Rich Wagner and Chad Johnson, for putting up with the craziness and going above and beyond to help us along with our kids,” she said.

Johnson said they want to thank their sponsors, including Sharp Funeral Home, Linden Child Development Center, and ELGA Credit Union.

The employees and the community. I could never have done it without Pay It Forward and the Linden support, the vendors. It’s amazing. I almost wish it was Christmas all year round,” she said.

On Saturday, the guests looked out the windows at the display, and a few waved glow sticks. Noye said they’re going to do their best to get the guests out in wheelchairs or walking around to see the lights from outside. Organizers are considering doing something like this in the summertime.

Rodney Roberson, general manager/administrator, said he called the former owners and thanked them for “having the foresight” to put the facility in Linden.

“It doesn’t always have its advantages location wise, being away from the main hospitals, but this is why we’re at where we’re at,” he said. “You can’t beat the people who come together and put this together for us and our guests. It’s beyond words. You don’t see things like this except in small towns and communities that are close knit like this.”
Privilege

Years ago, there was a television show on the CBS network called “I’ve Got A Secret” where celebrity panelists would question a contestant and then try and guess their “secret,” which typically was something notable or unusual.

Without going into any further details about the show, when it comes to secrets, the law has its own version of how it deals with them in what is commonly referred to as “privilege.”

An example of privilege is when a client goes to an attorney and communicates confidential information so that the attorney can give them legal advice. When this occurs, the communications are considered to be private and, unlike the television show, generally not subject to disclosure. This is called “attorney-client privilege.” The reason behind it is to allow the client to completely confide in the attorney.

This is the oldest privilege and dates back to 1577. There are a number of others under both federal and state laws.

In Michigan, we have at least 15 other privileges under statutes, the common law, and Michigan Court Rules.

I won’t list them all here, but they include physician-patient privilege, clergy-penitent privilege, and husband-wife privilege.

Although each of the privileges remain secure when they are in effect, it is important to note that there are certain exceptions and exclusions.

Continuing with the attorney-client example, the privilege does not apply in the following situations:
(1) when an attorney-client relationship is not established;
(2) when the communication was not truly “confidential” such as when it was made in the presence of a third party who is not affiliated with the attorney;
(3) when the client intentionally waives the privilege; and
(4) when the client’s confidential communications involve the threat of future criminal acts.

Each privilege has its own set of rules. For example, the attorney-client privilege is narrowly construed while the physician-patient privilege and clergy-penitent privilege have broad application. The purpose of the husband-wife privilege is to promote marital harmony and all records arising out of a privilege are also considered to be private.

The law of privileges is based on public policy and is meant to protect certain interests and relationships. Over the years there have been some modifications, but on the whole, there is general agreement that it has accomplished its goal.

they are inside with individuals not in their household, and are recommended to pick only a small group to see regularly.

Bars and restaurants must remain closed for dine-in service, but can remain open for outdoor dining, carry-out, and delivery. Gyms are open for individual exercise with mandatory masking and additional strict safety measures.

Casinos, movie theaters, and group exercise classes remain closed. Professional and college sports meeting extraordinary standards for risk mitigation may continue without spectators. Colleges, universities, and high schools will continue with remote learning, with no in-person classes.

“Hope is on the horizon, but we need an additional 12 days to determine the full impact of the Thanksgiving holiday on our efforts to mitigate the spread of the virus,” said Gov. Gretchen Whitmer.

This is all about protecting our families and frontline workers until we eradicate this virus once and for all. With recent daily case counts averaging well above 6,000, the daily death toll at alarming levels and the risk of hospitals becoming overwhelmed, we must work together as Michiganders and listen to our health experts. This may be the most difficult time yet in our struggle with COVID-19, but there is light at the end of the tunnel.”

The order will keep existing measures in place through Dec. 20 and does not include a blanket stay-home action. Employees who work in jobs that cannot be performed from home can continue to go to work, including those in manufacturing, construction and health occupations. Outdoor gatherings, outdoor dining and parks remain open. Individualized activities with distancing and face masks are still allowed: retail shopping; public transit; restaurant takeout; personal-care services such as haircuts, by appointment; and individualized exercise at a gym, with extra spacing between machines.

“We each have a personal responsibility to wear a mask consistently and minimize indoor gatherings, so we can protect our frontline heroes and loved ones,” said MDHHS Director Robert Gordon. “If we don’t, the disease will continue to spread and people will continue to get sick and die.”

SHOP

Normally, officers will take these children shopping at a local store and the kids can pick out presents for their families.

Jones said they are unable to do this due to COVID-19 and Gov. Gretchen Whitmer’s orders. They have an alternative plan, but Jones said they’re keeping it mostly a secret.

The department will purchase gift cards through Walmart and VG’s as well as gas cards, and some businesses have donated money for toys and books. Jones said they have another surprise for the children.

This year, they’re doing Shop With a Cop for 21 families, and maybe more. Last year, they had 20 families.

So far this year, they’ve raised $5,500, an increase from last year’s $4,000. Donations are being accepted through this Friday, Dec. 11.

In the fall of 2019, he got another diagnosis of remission. He was now ready for an autologous bone marrow transplant. Toby was in the hospital for 22 days. While there, he was blessed by Wish Upon A Teen. This program specifically was a Design My Room by Wish Upon A Teen. This program and friends also donated around $750 worth of gifts and one local business owner, Gary Holvick of Holvick & Associates, donated 32 gifts for each of the 32 hospital rooms on the pediatric oncology floor at Mott.

“This was around $1,300, absolutely amazing,” Carrie Keech said.

Toby’s family is tabulating their donations.

The families drove to C.S. Mott on Friday, Dec. 4 where met with Childlife advocates and loaded the donated toys onto carts that were wheeled to the seventh floor. “Courtney Versola and I are proud moms,” Keech said. “We are proud of our warriors, proud of our family and friends, and proud of our community.”

Phoebe’s mother, Carrie Keech, said that due to COVID, many holiday happenings at the hospital will look very different this year.

The amount of support both families received was more than they could have possibly imagined and prompted this project.

This project started in September (Childhood Cancer Awareness month), when the school Phoebe attends donated to wear gold (pediatric cancer ribbon color) and raised funds to buy toys for kids at the hospital — an idea entirely Phoebe’s.

The Keech’s family and friends also donated around $750 worth of gifts and one local business owner, Gary Holvick of Holvick & Associates, donated 32 gifts for each of the 32 hospital rooms on the pediatric oncology floor.

“After one of his long walks around the 7E pediatric oncology and BMT floor at C.S. Mott’s Children’s Hospital, he walked into his room and was greeted by Executive Director Nancy Sovran and an amazing decorated room,” Courtney said. “All new bedding, cool lights, Bluetooth speaker, art supplies and more. The impact this had on Toby was amazing. He immediately felt a little better knowing he could relax and hangout in an almost normal feeling room.”

Toby will now start his road to physical therapy with hopes of getting back on the football field for his varsity year. “Through this he has learned to be compassionate toward others and show kindness without knowing their journey,” Courtney said.

This will be the second year the #43VersolaStrong family will gift 32 stockings to the super heroes of 7E. Along with this, their #43VersolaStrong is kicking off their first annual Design My Room Sponsor fundraiser. With everyone’s donations, they have sponsored four rooms to be decked out.

searched the area. Law enforcement from Linden, Genesee County and the Michigan State Police with their K9 unit assisted. These agencies did not find the suspect.

Approximately 15 to 20 minutes later, the 40-year-old male suspect entered a Check 'n Go in Grand Blanc. Cross said the Grand Blanc City Police Department had been dealing with robberies at this location. The department received a call, and the 40-year-old suspect was apprehended. He had the 33-year-old Fenton man's wallet in his pocket.

The victim was uninjured and shaken. Cross said the weapon was described as a black semi automatic handgun, but law enforcement discovered it was a BB gun. Because the item was used in commission in a crime as if it was a real pistol, it fits the criteria for an armed robbery.

The suspect has not yet been arraigned for the Fenton armed robbery, so his name will not be published yet.

The 2019-20 girls swim season was an outstanding one for the Fenton Tigers.

Actually, it was a historical one as well.

The Tigers had their first two-time event individual state championships, a run that now extends 17 straight seasons.

The program’s outstanding season didn’t go unnoticed, and neither did Fenton varsity girls swimming and diving coach Brad Jones’ efforts.

It looks like the pause involving Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) action is going to last a little longer.

Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer’s COVID-19 pause, which was expected to end as early as today, was extended 12 more days during a press conference Monday afternoon.

The initial three-week pause was set to end after Tuesday ended, but will now be extended to Dec. 20. This means all prep athletics will be on hold at least another couple of weeks.

The decision will impact the end of the fall sports season as well as the start of the winter sports season. The tri-county fall athletic team most directly impacted by the decision is Fenton’s varsity girls swim team. The Division 2 state swim meet was suspended less than a week before it was supposed to compete when the first pause was established during a Whitmer press conference on Nov. 15.

The MHSAA had planned on hosting the state swim meets on Dec. 23 with other plans slated to conclude the state volleyball and football playoffs as well. If the state opened up today as planned, winter sports competition was scheduled to start Jan. 4. It’s unclear if that date will change due to the new COVID-19 restrictions.

“We realize the crisis our medical caregivers and first responders are navigating and understand the need to continue the pause,” MHSAA executive director Mark Uyl said in a prepared release.

“However, the MHSAA had provided a detailed plan to both Governor Whitmer and MDHHS that would have completed fall tournaments with no spectators as safely as possible during the month of December along with allowing winter sport practices to resume. While we are disappointed in today’s announcement, we will continue to look forward as we remain committed to play three sports seasons to their conclusion. The MHSAA Representative Council will meet on Wednesday of this week to chart out another plan for finishing fall and restarting winter.”

Of course, Fenton varsity girls swim coach Brad Jones is among those upset with the extended restrictions. Jones saw his varsity boys swim team lose out on its chance to compete at the state meet last spring. The squad was getting ready to leave to the state meet when it was suspended and

Prep sports will ‘pause’ a little bit longer

By David Troppens

It looks like the pause involving Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) action is going to last a little longer.

Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer’s COVID-19 pause, which was expected to end as early as today, was extended 12 more days during a press conference Monday afternoon.

The initial three-week pause was set to end after Tuesday ended, but will now be extended to Dec. 20. This means all prep athletics will be on hold at least another couple of weeks.

The decision will impact the end of the fall sports season as well as the start of the winter sports season. Association (MISCA) Coach of the Year.
“Being selected coach of the year certainly a nice surprise,” Jones said. “But I think more importantly it represents our program and things they’ve done the last few seasons. Personally for me, the state of Michigan has a tremendous amount of amazing coaches so to be selected is an incredible honor.”
Jones is the longest current running varsity head coach in Fenton High School, coaching for 31 seasons (most of those seasons at Fenton). During that time he’s built the most dominant women’s program in the Metro League with his girls team winning 17 straight league titles. They have won every single title since the Metro League has honored a league champion. The boys are starting to build an impressive resume as well. Fenton’s men have won each of the last seven Metro titles. That means Jones has been part of 26 league championships.
“It’s the type of kids that we have in our program that has made 31 years so easy,” Jones said. “It’s simply all about the kids and the kids I’ve had. I’m certainly fortunate to have the support of some amazing kids who buy in to the program and work hard. As a result, we’ve been pretty successful. ... Put that combination together and it’s very easy to go to work in the morning.”
“Getting to work in the morning consists of getting up at 4:30 a.m. during most normal practice days. The team is on deck at 5 a.m.
“I hate being away from the pool,” Jones said. “I love spending time with the athletes. I love going to practice and seeing them every day.”
The Tigers also had its 400 freestyle relay team of Olsen, Lillie Kromer, Delaney Fries and Abigail Dolliver finish in third place at last year’s D2 state meet, an all-time best for the Tigers’ program. Fenton finished the state meet with an eighth-place team performance.

eventually canceled. Now, his girls team is going through the same issue, while his boys team is experiencing a suspension of the start of its season.
“I feel horrible for the kids,” Jones said. “The worst part of this is they are the ones that put in the time and have done everything they’ve been asked to do and now it’s being put off again. That’s the hard part, continuing being the bearer of bad news to athletes. Not just ours but every athlete has done what has been asked of them. We are ready for the boys season and we want to finish the girls season, but we are not able to do that now.

very least, the Lions need to find his replacement. He’s in his 30s and has a bad back. It’s time to move on. He’ll probably do well in a different environment as well. Sometimes that’s all someone needs.

Prep sports are on a pause
Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer’s press conference on Monday means prep sports will be delayed at least another 13 days.
It sucks. I hate this decision for a lot of reasons, primarily for the Fenton varsity girls swim team who wants to compete in the Division 2 state swim meet. That’s what the emotional side of me says.
The practical side of me says, it’s the right decision. Two months ago, many of us didn’t know anyone who had been diagnosed with the virus. That’s not the case any more. In fact, the number for me has skyrocketed into double-digits. Luckily, most have recovered and are doing fine. Still, the state is seeing hundreds of deaths a day. It makes sense to wait another two weeks to see if we can curb this virus.

Michigan vs. Ohio State
Hopefully the game is able to go on. There are some Michigan fans who hope it doesn’t happen because Michigan will likely get crushed, but that’s a bad way to approach this. Even if you don’t care about either team, this is one of the top two or three rivalries in college football history. If it can be played, it needs to. I’d doubt there is a player on either team that wants to see the game canceled. This game is the primary reason some of those student-athletes made their decision to play at either school. Hopefully it does get played.
