Son’s disappearance ‘horrible for all of us’

Reward offered for information on Noah Kerridge, a Linden graduate, missing since April 19

By Sharon Stone

Aug. 14 will mark four months since family has seen Noah Kerridge, 20, of Linden and Waterford.

Sarah Whitson, the mother of Noah Kerridge, said they are still searching for him. The 2019 graduate of Linden High School was last seen Monday, April 19 at approximately 4:50 p.m. His mother said he’s not responding to his phone and no one has reported seeing him. He told his father, Keith Kerridge, he was going for a walk but never returned home and his cell phone was turned off. Kerridge had been living with his father in Waterford for about a year prior to his disappearance. He is 6-feet, 4-inch tall, is approximately 185 pounds and has long brown hair and blue eyes. He ran cross country and was on the robotics team for a short time at Linden High School.

Counselors, residents and weed control experts talk about lack of fish and native plants in Linden Millpond

By Hannah Ball

Linden — The Linden Millpond has a weed problem.

That was the consensus at the Monday, Aug. 9 Linden City Council meeting. Numerous residents were in attendance to voice concerns and complaints about the state of the millpond. These concerns were echoed by the council. City Manager Ellen Glass said in 2012, the city attempted a special assessment for the millpond. Concerns over the weeds have been growing in recent years.

Glass invited Nick Brookshire, manager of Aquatic Nuisance Plant Control, to discuss the possibility of paying for weed control to kill the invasive species and weeds in the millpond. This company handles weed control on Byram Lake and the Fenton Millpond.

“I’m sure you guys have all the invasives that everyone else has around here,” he said. The flow of water spreads the invasive plants more.

For a job of this caliber, they would use contact herbicides and do two treatments per year for weeds and then a midseason algae treatment.

“That is what we find is the best control for these invasive weeds and also your algae,” he said.

The two main invasive species they treat in the Fenton Millpond are Eurasian milfoil and curl leaf pondweed. They do harvesting in the millpond after the Fourth of July. When communities choose to harvest instead of using chemicals, the little fragments of weeds left over from harvesting can spread and root.

“In the long run, you’re just making the problem worse,” Brookshire said.

When contact herbicides are used, there’s a swimming restriction of 24 hours as a safety precaution as well as a three to five day restriction on irrigation. They put up treatment posters with this information. “In the 11 years that I’ve been doing this, I’ve never had any incidents or people getting sick or anything like that from treatment,” he said.

One treatment would be around Memorial Day, but it depends on the weather. If the winter isn’t cold enough to kill the weeds, they come earlier. They would do an algae treatment around the Fourth of July and then the second treatment at the end of July or early August. They don’t charge for the algae treatment.

One resident said at one location, the lily pads almost completely choke off the access. If it weren’t for the motor boats, there would be no access.

Another resident said within the last year, he’s witnessed two people out of their kayaks due to the overgrowth. Safety is becoming an issue. He also asked about wildlife.

Brookshire said these chemicals have been found to be safe and are approved by the Environmental Protection Agency. Treating the river will be different compared to treating lakes because the river is always flowing. They would use Clipper Herbicide on the millpond. It’s a fast-acting contact herbicide that quickly attaches to plants and can kill multiple invasive species.

Another resident said, “The fish seem to have gone this year. I don’t know where they went. I used to be able to catch bass and everything off like that.”

He asked if the ecosystem will come back once the weeds are gone.

Brookshire said the millpond doesn’t have a good native plant base.

“What we have noticed is when you get rid of those invasives after a few years, you start seeing more natives, more native plants. That’s a sign of a healthy ecosystem,” he said.

Councilor Pam Howd, a biologist for the state of Michigan, mentioned multiple reasons for the weed treatment, such as wildlife.

“We don’t have wildlife. We did a few years ago, but the ducks have virtually vacated and then water quality itself suffers because the invasives choke the oxygen out of the water. That’s why you don’t have fish because they have nothing to breathe.”

This also means the native plants don’t have oxygen, so they can’t grow and replenish.

“People come here to kayak and enjoy our parks...and I see the pond and it’s very disheartening,” she said, adding that the weeds will hurt the dam mechanics, too.

Councilor Heather MacDermaid, who lives on the river, said, “We’ve been trying to get this done for years, and in the years that I’ve lived here, it’s gotten worse and worse and worse.”

“It’s not only people living on the millpond who use it anymore. “This has become a place to go,” she said, adding that the millpond is disgusting now. “I’d really like to see it taken care of.”

Brookshire said it’s too late in the season to treat it this year. He did not provide council with a quote. The council has not decided how to pay for any treatments.

Linden might join statewide mutual aid program

By Hannah Ball

Linden — Linden City Council is considering joining a statewide mutual aid program that shares wastewater and public works resources in times of emergencies.

The Michigan Water/Wastewater Agency Response Network (WARN) is a conglomeration of 52 public works agencies across the state that have agreed to share resources and assist each other in the form of personnel, equipment, material and supplies in the event of emergencies that disrupt utility services.

WARN is recognized by the Michigan State Police as a National Incident Management System first responder.

Linden would be the 53rd community to join.

Thomas Trice, interim public works director, said, “If we need aid, we can ask for it. If somebody else needs aid, they can ask us for it. It allows us to provide aid if we can.” He gave a presentation on the program to council Monday, Aug. 9.

In a letter to the council, he detailed how in May of this year, several communities from Genesee, west Oakland and Livings- ton counties met and discussed providing mutual aid in the area of public works.

“As first responders to incidents that require immediate action and, many times, specialized or multiple pieces of equipment to clear the issue or provide a safe environment, first responding public works departments rely on their surrounding communities to help until they get control of the situation and can provide the necessary contractors to do the work,” Trice wrote.

“Major storms, tornadoes, flooding, water and sewer supply interruptions, blocked roads are a few of the emergencies public works responds to that can quickly deplete their forces.”

The Urban Cooperative Act of 1967 authorizes public bodies and private entities to work together to provide mutual aid. Trice said 49 states have WARN programs.

The program is not binding. The agreement gives sole discretion to the members whether to respond to a request for assistance, or to what extent to respond if they choose to. Members can request cost reimbursement for services rendered.

“It is very simple and clear. If an agency asks for assistance from the city, we can choose to provide it or not depending on our situation at the time of the request,” Trice said. “The greater value to the WARN program is that it is statewide... The agreement is to provide initial aid until an agency can get control of the situation and provide what is needed through other means, such as private contracts.”

There is no cost to join WARN. Trice believes Linden is the only one in Genesee County that’s considering joining as of right now. He’s been in contact with Fenton officials.

Councilor Brad Dick said, “Looking through, it looks like it’s a very good idea with our other mutual aid programs. I’d be for it.”

Councilor Pam Howd asked about the possibility of a statewide emergency. Trice said emergencies are usually local, and agencies across the state can travel to give assistance.

Councilor Brenda Simons said it’s a good idea and they should have been doing this long ago. Councilor Aaron Wiens agreed.

Manager Ellen Glass said they would have the city attorney look at the agreement. They will discuss it again at the next meeting.

Hair is a big deal in our household. Caring for it, styling it and keeping it (in the case of my better half) take up a large portion of our self-care time and budget. During the pandemic, however, all that effort pretty much went to waste. With face-to-face work and meetings making a comeback, hair is once again a big deal (at least to us).

Turns out seeing others’ hair in real life was something I missed. This became apparent last week when our team had our first face-to-face meeting. It was so good to see everyone, and it was fun to see who had changed up their hairstyle in the time we’d spent apart. There were new colors and cuts and lots to be admired.

Of course, the purpose of our first face-to-face team meeting in over a year had nothing to do with hair. It was far more important than that.

Back in January, group Publisher Wes Smith shared in this column that he was hoping — despite the pandemic — to find ways to connect the team. “Our team members did a fantastic job in 2020 working individually and in small groups. But we know that inspiration, satisfaction and dedication to a shared vision and mission is multiplied when we feel connected. That’s what I’ll be working on in 2021.”

With that in mind, the goal for this first team meeting was fairly modest — get everyone in one room. Bonus: There was fresh coffee and donuts.

At the meeting, each person was asked to share a challenge and a reward of their job. The responses were great.

I’m not one to dwell on or share challenges, but I’m going to put a few of our team’s challenges here because I think it’s helpful for readers to know that newspapers — although we played a vital role in the pandemic — were not immune to some of the negative impacts brought on by the last 17+ months. Here’s what our team had to say:

• Re-learning processes after returning from furlough
• Selling during a pandemic and now a shortage of workers for many of our clients
• Loss of clients due to retirements and closures brought on by the pandemic
• Building relationships in new territories, which were “inherited” due to our team shortages

It was later discovered that the catalytic converters were removed from a second company van that was on the premises. There was evidence collected at the scene and all surveillance footage is being reviewed.

Fire Department to Buy LUCAS Device
Automated CPR device will replace problematic device that is five years old

By Sharon Stone
Fenton City Council unanimously approved a request Monday, Aug. 9 from Fenton Fire Chief Bob Cairnduff to purchase an automated CPR device.

In a memo from Cairnduff to City Manager Lynn Markland, the fire chief explained that the fire department needs to replace its current automated CPR device that is five years old. He said the device is used whenever the fire department responds to a medical emergency and the patient does not have a pulse. The unit is placed on the patient and the machine performs automated chest compressions.

Cairnduff said the fire department has had numerous issues and repairs with the current device, manufactured by Zoll. He said they pulled the current device in March and first responders have reverted to manual CPR.

After researching the devices and obtaining quotes, the fire chief requested that the fire department purchase a LUCAS (Lund University Cardiopulmonary Assist System) 3, v3.1 system, sold by Stryker. The LUCAS device costs $18,985.47, which includes the system and five-year service and maintenance agreement that covers all on-site repairs, preventive maintenance and batter replacement during those five years.

Cairnduff said the quote will also includes a $3,000 trade in value of the current device from Zoll.
Reels in 47.86-pound Chinook

salmon from Lake Michigan

Using a Moonshine raspberry carbon spoon lure this past weekend, an angler from Ortonville turned in a new state-record fish.

Luis Ricardo Hernandez Martinez was troll fishing with Capt. Bobby Sullivan of Icebreaker Charters on Lake Michigan near Ludington early Saturday morning, Aug. 7, when he caught a Chinook salmon weighing in at 47.86 pounds and measuring 47.5 inches.

“I never expected a catch like this would happen,” Martinez said. “It’s possible for anyone if I can do it. I would like to extend a great ‘thank you’ to Capt. Bobby, as it was he who made this catch possible for me.”

Sullivan added, “Luis did an amazing job, executing perfectly everything I asked him to do in order to bring this fish in.”

This record breaks the previous state-record Chinook salmon — 46.06 pounds, 43.5 inches long — caught in 1978 by Ray Essex, of Grand Rapids, out of the Grand River in Kent County.

The new state-record Chinook salmon was verified by Jay Wesley, Lake Michigan Basin coordinator with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, with Scott Heintzelman, the DNR’s Central Lake Michigan Management Unit supervisor, also present.

Michigan’s state-record fish are recognized by weight only. To qualify for a state record, fish must exceed the current listed state-record weight, and identification must be verified by a DNR fisheries biologist.

To view a current list of Michigan state fish records by species, visit Michigan.gov/StateRecordFish. For more on planning a fishing adventure, visit Michigan.gov/Fishing.
The pandemic and the CDC eviction moratorium

Unfortunately, the pandemic remains with us.

We don’t know when it will end, but with current events in mind, this is a good time to provide a brief history and an update of a current law, which resulted directly from it — the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) eviction moratorium.

The original order was issued by the CDC on Sept. 4, 2020, temporarily halting residential evictions nationally for the non-payment of rent. It was intended to prevent eligible tenants from becoming displaced and to stop the spread of COVID-19. It has been extended from time to time since then.

Shortly after it was issued, various landlord groups throughout the United States filed suit claiming that the CDC did not have the authority to issue such an order and seeking to have it declared void.

One of these lawsuits (Alabama Association of Realtors v Department of Health and Human Services) made it to the United States Supreme Court. On June 29, 2021, the court, in a 5 to 4 vote, left in place the nationwide moratorium and the latest extension until July 31.

Justice Brett Kavanaugh cast the fifth and deciding vote. Although he found that the CDC had exceeded its authority and only Congress could extend the moratorium by legislation, he voted not to end it because the extra time would allow for an orderly distribution of previously approved relief funds to tenants.

Congress didn’t extend the moratorium and it expired.

On Aug. 3, the CDC issued a new moratorium order (to expire Oct. 3) on a “county by county” basis. The order states that the moratorium applies only to U. S. counties, which are experiencing “substantial” or “high” levels of community spread of COVID-19. If a county subsequently reaches these levels, it will apply until the rate is either “moderate” or “low” for 14 consecutive days. This test also applies to counties, which were initially covered.

The Alabama plaintiff filed an emergency motion in the original lower court seeking to have the CDC order declared void. The motion remains pending.

This is legal drama at its best. If the Supreme Court ultimately rules the new order is void it will have national implications.

Many legal commentators believe the plaintiff will be successful. Only time will tell.

The Times reached out to school officials at Linden Community Schools, Holly Area Schools, Lake Fenton Community Schools, Fenton Area Public Schools, Holly Academy and St. John School in Fenton with a series of questions to inform readers of what will be happening at our local schools.

Linden Community Schools Superintendent Russ Ciesielski said classes for his students will begin Monday, Aug. 23. He said the district anticipates enrollment numbers to be less than what they were in the 2020/2021 school year. “We are projecting a loss of 50 students compared to 2020-2021. These projections are not COVID related.”

Linden will offer in-person classes and a 100% virtual option. There are no COVID policies exclusive to student athletes.

The recommendations of the CDC and the GCHD encourage facemasks to be worn inside of buildings, regardless of vaccination status.

Ciesielski said, “Linden Community Schools supports these recommendations, but will not mandate or require facemasks to be worn. Face masks, regardless of vaccination status, are not required for students, employees, parents, or visitors.

“We understand that vaccinated, and unvaccinated, staff, students, and visitors may choose to wear masks and we will fully support the choices our families make regarding this decision.”

He added that anyone (regardless of vaccination status) when on public transportation, including school buses, pursuant to a federal order from the CDC, will be required to wear a face mask.

When it comes to COVID vaccines, Ciesielski said, “Linden Community Schools does not require a COVID vaccine for enrollment, employment, or visitors.”

During the spring, Linden worked with the GCHD to schedule vaccination clinics for LCS staff. Linden had over 75% of its staff take part in the scheduled vaccination clinics. “We do not have information on staff who were vaccinated on their own,” Ciesielski said.

Field trips will be allowed. Depending on what the field trip is, the destination, and what special rules may be in place by the destination will determine what, if any, special rules will need to be in place.

He added that the school district will not require regular COVID testing of anyone in the district. If a student, or staff is deemed to be a close contact, the quarantine time is 10 days (subject to change based on guidance from the Genesee County Health Department).

Linden participates in school of choice and does not limit the number of students accepted through school of choice.

“We understand that vaccinated, and unvaccinated, staff, students, and visitors may choose to wear masks and we will fully support the choices our families make regarding this decision.”

Pilot from a grandmother and her two small grandchildren from a Quality Inn in Frenchtown Township, Monroe County at 2:15 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 3. The 55-year-old victim, visiting from Alabama, told police that the man, later identified by media reports as Lanham, displayed a handgun and demanded her vehicle.

That afternoon, the stolen vehicle was spotted on I-75 in the Holly area and Michigan State Police troopers attempted to stop the vehicle. Driving in the Honda Pilot, Holladay and Lanham crashed into other vehicles on E. Holly Road, injuring the occupants of the other vehicles.

The duo then fled on foot into a home on E. Maple Street in Holly Township. The family inside the home at the time was able to escape unharmed.

Holladay eventually surrendered and was taken into police custody Tuesday night. Lanham barricaded himself for hours and a police robot found him deceased from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Holladay was initially transported to the Oakland County Jail and then transported to Monroe County where the alleged carjacking took place.

Charges against her are pending in Oakland County.

The estimated completion date is November.

Keith Brown, construction engineer with MDOT, said they need to demolish the existing barrier wall on the bridge. They will do the outside portion first and will do the inside at a later date.

“We will not be demolishing the whole bridge, just the sections we are working on,” he said. “When we remove the barrier, we also need to remove about 5 feet or so of the bridge deck to tie all the steel back into the bridge deck.”

This project is part of a $12.3 million investment in significant bridge improvements to 16 structures along the I-75/U.S. 23 corridor through Genesee County. Work includes steel beam repairs, deck replacements, and protective epoxy coating. MDOT completed work on the Owen Road bridge earlier in the summer. The Silver Lake/North Road/Torrey overpass requires more steel repair work comparatively. Keith said he believes this bridge was completed in the late 50s while the Owen Road bridge was completed in the early 90s.

In this section, Brown said they’re also replacing the expansion joints on the deck.

“These run transverse to U.S. 23, so in this stage we will remove them through the ramp lane and a little into what would be the right lane. Once we have this side done, we will switch traffic and do the rest of the joint,” he said.

When the joints are out, a few beam ends will be removed and replaced along with other work under the bridge.

“When we have the bridge work set, we will remove the approach pavement on U.S. 23 and replace that,” he said.

Last week, MDOT employees began work on the U.S. bridge over North Road while doing intermittent lane closures. Traffic shifted toward the median to allow work to occur on the overpass.

From Aug. 16 to 21, drivers should expect Silver Lake Road and North Road to be closed at U.S. 23 during overnight hours (8 p.m. to 4 a.m.) while bridge demolition is completed, according to the press release.

Following the Labor Day holiday weekend, drivers should expect lane closures on U.S. 23 from Silver Lake Road to the Shiawassee River bridge and also south of Hill Road at the Swartz Creek bridge. These lane closures will be in place through November.

The Fenton Police Department shared the press release on Facebook with the caption, “Please note, we did not choose an orange barrel summer, an orange barrel summer chose us.”
Fenton boys track takes top spot in Top 16

By David Troppens

The sports staff enjoys checking back at the past when we create these top 16 stories, and today we’ll look at the past No. 1 squads.

Only nine teams have finished No. 1. Cross country teams have earned the top spot more than any other sport, earning four. The Linden boys cross country team is king of the hill, earning the No. 1 spot a whopping three times in just 12 seasons. The only other squad to earn the No. 1 spot twice is the Lake Fenton wrestling team.

What other teams have been No. 1 once? They are Linden girls cross country, Fenton girls soccer, Linden baseball, Holly girls tennis, and Billmeier Camera Shop.

Linden camping trip is area’s ‘unofficial’ start to football season

By David Troppens

Grayling — The first official day of the prep fall sports season, including football, was Monday.

But for the Linden varsity football team, the “unofficial” official start is a few days earlier.

This season it was Thursday around noon when the 36 varsity players met up at Linden High School not for some weight training, 7-on-7 practices or anything like that. It was so they could head to past Linden athletic director and ex-assistant football coach’s Greg Durkac’s cabin located in a wooded area in Grayling for the team’s annual camping trip.

Football was thrown, but usually they were the silly tiny sponge variety. Sports were played, the competitions included games of slam ball and cornhole. Great stories were told while walking trails to old cemeteries. There was some physical education as well. But instead of experiencing it in a weight room, it happened during the annual canoe trip.

In short, the annual camping trip the weekend prior to the start of official prep football practices, was a hit once again this year.

“It’s great to be out here,” senior James Barrie said. “It’s a great experience for everyone. We are having a great time bonding, and it’s a great thing to do. Getting all that time bonding with each other and being with the team is so valuable. It forms bonds we’ll through the whole season.”

“I like getting everybody together and getting away from football for a few days. I want everyone to be themselves, be kids again or be more Network/Announcers: Dan Dickerson and Jim Price are doing the game on the Tigers’ radio network.

Background: A year removed from competing in the 2006 World Series, the Tigers were still a strong squad in 2007, and entering this contest Detroit was just one-half game out of first place in the American League Central Division. After the victory the Tigers ended up back in first place by a half-game. At this time, it looked like the Tigers were headed for another postseason run.

Game summary: Magglio Ordóñez had the best season of his career in 2007, and this was one of the games that made it a memorable season. Ordóñez became only the second Detroit Tiger ever to hit two home runs in the same inning, helping the Tigers earn the 11-6 victory.

The four-baggers came in the bottom of the second inning. After the Athletics scored two runs in the top of the second on a Marco Scutaro home run, the Tigers responded with eight runs during the bottom of the second. Ordóñez opened the inning with a solo home run and just a few minutes later, the bases were loaded. A Mike Rabelo ground out, plated the Tigers’ second run and a two-run single by Brandon Inge gave the Tigers a 3-2 lead.

Placido Polanco followed with an RBI single and an out later, Gary Sheffield singled. Ordóñez returned to the plate against Oakland starter Dallas Braden for a second time during the inning, and Ordóñez hit a three-run shot, giving the Tigers an 8-2 lead.

The Tigers didn’t just cruise from there as Oakland was able to score six runs, with four coming against starting pitcher Nate Robertson, but Detroit’s offense made sure the Tigers allowed the 39,960 Comerica Park fans to have happy.

More about Ordóñez’s day: Remarkably, in the Tigers’ strong history of many great power hitters, Ordóñez’s two home runs in one inning was only the second time it had happened in Detroit’s history.

Ordóñez finished the season with an American League leading .363 batting average. He hit 28 home runs, an AL leading 54 doubles and drove in 139 runs.

Nate Robertson: Price summarized Robertson’s career during this contest with one comment, “I guess the way to describe Nate’s performance is inconsistent,” Price said. “You see some stuff you like and then you go, ‘what happened?’”

So what happened next? The Tigers’ offense went into the deep freeze once again as Detroit lost its next five games, being outscored 31-12.

Fenton boys track and field: This one should’ve been pretty easy to guess. The only tri-county area team to win a team state title during the school year, the Fenton boys track squad won its first in school history. In fact, it’s the tri-county’s first team state championship since the Linden boys cross country team won its D2 state championship in dominant fashion way back during the 2008-09 school year.

The Tigers had an outstanding season. Not long ago, the Tigers finished in last in the Metro League, but this season Fenton dominated the Flint Metro League, going undefeated in dual play, and beating every league foe by at least 30 points. At the league meet, the Tigers locked up the Stripes Division title by outdistancing second-place Flushing by 57 points.

In the postseason, the Tigers were magical. Fenton won a team regional championship, collecting 105 points. Then, at the state meet the Tigers earned their first team state trophy with 34 team points. The big events were Noah Sage’s second in the 400 (47.41), Brandon Miller’s seconds in the 100 (10.84) and the 200 (21.36), and the 800 relay team’s second-place finish in 1:28.23. Along with Sage and Miller, Donovan Miller and Evan Koch were the relay’s competitors.

It was a historical season for Fenton. So much so, the city had a parade for the championship squad. And while winning a team state championship may be more exciting, the squad can feel pretty pleased again now that they are atop the Tri-County’s Top 16 Team poll.
We thank those who are certain of their mission during these uncertain times.

• Filling in for ill co-workers
  Seeing those challenges in print could make one wonder how View Newspaper Group has not only survived but thrived in this last year and a half. Two words: OUR TEAM. The same group who shared these challenges were quick to share the rewards of their career. Here are some of my favorite rewards:
  • Our team coming through with flying colors and continuing to serve the community with our papers
  • Receiving questions of concern from readers about our team working through the pandemic
  • Surviving changes
  • Hearing compliments on our COVID-19 coverage
  • Building new relationships
  • Clients continuing to advertise with us because we’re a trusted source

Could we have held this meeting via video conference? Sure. Would it have had the same impact? Not at all. I’ve enjoyed the ease, convenience and safety of video meetings, but nothing beats sharing ideas face-to-face, whether it’s with your team or with a client.

The free flow of information, the audible laughs, sighs and — yes, sometimes groans (no one is on “mute”) when meeting in-person) are an important part of getting to know people, what drives them and how you can build an even better team. For example, as our meeting went on both our editorial and sale teams reminded each other to share potential clients and story ideas. We’ve proven that we can work well independently, but we can’t excel that way.

Want to have an in-person meeting with one of our team members? Contact me at ecaswell@mihomepaper.com.

We’d love to see you. Plus, I just got a new haircut and I want to show it off.
